LAURIER PRESENTS ULTIMATUM ON RECIPROCIITY

RIOT AND DISORDER IN THE BRITISH PARLIAMENT

Members Refuse to Allow Premier Asquith to State Government's Views on the Peers Veto Bill---Speaker Had to Adjourn the House For Fear of a Free Fight---The Supporters of the Peers Privileges Driven to Desperate Measures to Block Democratic Progress

(Canadian Press Despatch)
London, England, July 25.—The last act in the passage of the bill to take away the power of the House of Lords to defeat the people's legislation was marked tonight by some of the most riotous scenes in the annals of the British House. For two hours a scene of riot and disorder ensued. Fists were shaken, insults were hurled across the floor, and here and there members were pulled back to their seats by their calmer minded friends.

Conservative Opposition
Opposition to the Bill has been centered in the Lower House, and the signal of Premier Asquith's rising to deliver the speech stating the Government's attitude toward the amendments was the signal for a pandemonium of noise from the Conservative benches. The noise and disorder was renewed at every attempt made by Mr. Asquith to speak. It was the first time in its history that the House had refused to listen to a speech by its Premier.

whelmed by the tumult of noise. The wonder was that the crowded House did not come to blows, but every would-be belligerent was pulled down by his neighbors. Every means short of personal violence was successfully used to prevent Mr. Asquith from explaining the views of the Government. After two hours of disorder the Speaker decided to suspend the sitting to obviate graver disorders.

WHY ROYAL WAS DELAYED
Time Lost on North Trip Due to Tide and Fog
The long expected Princess Royal arrived about 11 a.m. today bringing a good passenger list including the May Roberts Theatre Company. The reason for the steamer's being so late were several. Three hours were lost waiting for freight at Vancouver. Four hours delay occurred waiting for tide at Seymour Narrows, and the Royal was fog bound for thirteen hours at Alert Bay.

MAGISTRATE CARSS IS ATTACKED IN COUNCIL

Charged With Lenience Towards Gamblers by Aldermen Clayton, Newton and Douglas---Mayor Hotly Resents Imaginary Insinuations Against Himself as Chairman of Police Commission---City Solicitor Will Bring in a Full Report of Recent Proceedings Before Mr. Carss

Spurred evidently with the determination to tilt at every sort of giant or dragon which threatens the fair fame of young Prince Rupert, Alderman Newton, the council Don Quixote has now couched his lance against Magistrate Carss. Over the recent gambling case, the outcome of the raid on the Grand Hotel by Chief Vickers' officers the objections to the magisterial conduct have arisen. At last night's council it was moved by Alderman Clayton and seconded by Alderman Newton that the city solicitor furnish a report giving particulars of the recent gambling case.

Not Police Fault
It occurred to Alderman Douglas that the objections raised might reflect against the police force by leading to the impression that they were lax. This he was anxious to prevent. "Prince Rupert," he said, "has got a pretty good police force now, and I would be sorry to think that they were censured over this. But," he went on with rising resentment in his voice, "I have reason to believe that the magistrate when this case came up, reprimanded the Chief of Police for having acted without first telling him about it."

Strong for Square Deal
"I am anxious to see everybody have a square deal as far as may be possible in the city. This idea of pulling up six men and fining them while the magistrate reprimands the Chief of Police for having done his absolute duty, looks as if the whole enforcement of civic laws is to be confined to the hands of one man who would constitute himself Prosecutor, Judge, and Jury. This sort of thing is not to be allowed if our community is to stand out as one in which the principles of right and wrong are properly maintained."

SCAVENGING BY-LAW WENT THROUGH FINAL STAGES

Mayor's Magic Amendment "Section Twenty-Six" Throws Onus of Settling all Disputes Upon the Medical Health Officer—The Scavenging Charge is 50c a Month

Without much difficulty the Scavenging By-law got through its final stages in council last night. It will come into force shortly. Most of the interest centered about the amendment introduced by the Mayor and known as Section 26. This amendment simply provides that all disputes in regard to the scavenging work must be settled by the Medical Health Officer.

Charge for Scavenging
In the words of the City Solicitor the clause in the by-law covering charges for domestic scavenging is summed up thus: "The total charge per month for domestic scavenging is fifty cents. The scavenger must do everything for fifty cents a month. He must do whatever the Medical Health Officer says should be done. If the Medical Health Officer says he must call every day, then every day he must call, and the charge must not exceed fifty cents per month."

"PASS RECIPROCIITY OR GO TO COUNTRY"

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Presented His Ultimatum to the Conservative Obstructionists in the House Yesterday Afternoon—Borden Professes to be Willing

(Canadian Press Despatch)
Ottawa, July 25.—"Pass this reciprocity agreement, or prepare yourselves to go to the country."
The above was the ultimatum which Sir Wilfrid Laurier delivered to the Opposition in the House of Commons last night. The statement was received with great cheering from the Government followers. The statement means an end of the deadlock which has arisen over the measure, prolonging the present session of Parliament to an indefinite length.

was the duty of the Government to pass the re-distribution bill, and at once refer the whole question of reciprocity to the people.

"Section 26," is the answer to all enquiries regarding the working of the scavenging contract in the city.

BUY A CIVIC TEAM
Expert Horse Purchaser Needed to Undertake the Awful Responsibility.
After some discussion in council last night over the proposal that a city team should be purchased since it is impossible to buy one horse, the matter has been left to the Board of Works to enquire into the price of horses and find out where they can be purchased.

SOME TARIFF ECONOMICS—BRITISH COLUMBIA VS. WASHINGTON

One unanswerable reason why British Columbia needs reciprocity, is because the tariff has proved a failure to prevent British Columbia and the Pacific States from trading.

Above all it has prevented British Columbia from selling to the Pacific States as much as we purchase from them. It has prevented the possibility of our exports equalling our imports. The tariff has proved a boomerang. It has recoiled on British Columbia and hit her hard.

Figures published earlier in the week showed that goods to the value of over $7,000,000 were purchased by British Columbian buyers from the State of Washington during last year, while Washington purchased a little over $4,000,000 worth of goods from British Columbia.

The tariff was put in force with the object of keeping purchases at home—to ensure that our imports were less than our exports. The fact, that as between the Province of British Columbia and the state of Washington, our imports were nearly double our exports, proves that the tariff is ineffective to accomplish its object. Every purchase made abroad is an evidence of the failure of the tariff to prevent trade from following its natural channel.

But who pays the penalty for this breach of the tariff's object? It is the people who purchase the goods. It was the people of British Columbia who paid the taxes on that $7,000,000 worth of Washington goods last year—not the people of Washington who sold them to us.

Like Napoleon who after issuing the Berlin Decree forbidding trade with England, had to purchase British knapsacks and British footwear for his troops to march to Austerlitz to defend the Berlin Decree, so the people of British Columbia after placing a penalty upon Washington goods, go and buy $7,000,000 worth of them—and pay the penalty themselves.

Why is it that British Columbia did not sell to Washington last year as much as British Columbia bought from Washington? The reason is because the two chief commodities required by Washington from British Columbia, lumber and fish, are both taxed by the tariff makers.

The Seattle fishermen find it cheaper to steal our fish, rather than pay a cent a pound duty. The Canadian fisherman cannot sell it there in fair competition. Our lumber too is heavily taxed.

Reciprocity will abolish the duty on British Columbian fish, open the markets of the United States, and build up a big fish industry around Prince Rupert. It will also create a great demand for the products of our forests.

After reciprocity passes, we will buy such foods as we need from Washington at reduced prices. We will sell them increased quantities of lumber, and enormous quantities of our fish.

After reciprocity passes, British Columbia will export more to Washington than she now imports from Washington.

That means prosperity for us in two ways.

FIAT JUSTITIA RUAT COELUM

Not only half the world, but half of Olympus as well must be laughing over the story of the Saskatchewan wheat loaves which some hungry varlet ate while on their way to England as a present for King George's breakfast table.

The joke consists in the fact that on the outside of the twelve pound solid silver basket with golden wheat decorations which conveyed the loaves, was an engraved tablet with the Grain Growers' motto "Fiat justitia ruat coelum." (Let justice be done though the heavens do fall). That hungry sailor who did justice to Saskatchewan's loaves must have been a Latin scholar and a wit to boot.

According to Alderman Newton he knew all about the water-shortage a year and a half ago. Then he ran for office and forgot all about the water shortage until reminded a week ago. More laughter for the gods.

After changing his side almost as many times as Alderman Newton, George Morrow announces that he will run as an independent Liberal. An independent candidate is one who is not afraid to stand alone. Mr. Morrow evidently knows what's coming to him.

A REMINISCENCE OF SHERLOCK HOLMES

THE ADVENTURE OF THE DEVIL'S FOOT

BY ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE

Copyright, 1911, by the Century Syndicate

"Well, Watson, it is on the face of it a not impossible supposition. The man who had the guilt upon his soul of having brought such a fate upon his own family might well be driven by remorse to inflict it upon himself. There are, however, some cogent reasons against it. Fortunately, there is one man in England who knows all about it, and I have made arrangements by which we shall have the facts this afternoon from his own lips. Ah! he is a little before his time. Perhaps you would kindly step this way, Dr. Leon Sterndale. We have been conducting a chemical experiment indoors which has left our little room hardly fit for the reception of so distinguished a visitor."

I had heard the click of the garden gate, and now the majestic figure of the great African explorer appeared upon the path. He turned in some surprise towards the rustic arbour in which we sat.

"You sent for me, Mr. Holmes, I had your note about an hour ago, and I have come, though I really do not know why I should obey your summons."

"Perhaps we can clear the point up before we separate," said Holmes. "Meanwhile, I am much obliged to you for your courteous acquiescence. You will excuse this informal reception in the open air, but my friend Watson and I have nearly furnished an additional chapter to what the papers call the Cornish Horror, and we prefer a clear atmosphere for the present. Perhaps, since the matters which we have to discuss will affect you personally in a very intimate fashion, it is as well that we should talk where there can be no eavesdropping."

The explorer took his cigar from his lips and gazed sternly at my companion.

"I am at loss to know, sir," he said, "what you have can to speak about which affects me personally in a very intimate fashion."

"The killing of Mortimer Tregennis," said Holmes.

For a moment I wished that I were armed. Sterndale's fierce face turned to a dusky red, his eyes glared, and the knotted, passionate veins stared out in his forehead, while he sprang forward with clenched hands towards my companion. Then he stopped, and with a violent effort he resumed a cold, rigid calmness which was, perhaps, more suggestive of danger than his hot-headed outburst.

"I have lived so long among savages and beyond the law," said he, "that I have got into the way of being a law to myself. You would do well, Mr. Holmes, not to forget it, for I have no desire to do you an injury."

"Nor have I any desire to do you an injury, Dr. Sterndale. Surely the clearest proof of it is that, knowing what I know, I have sent for you and not for the police."

Sterndale sat down with a gasp, overawed for, perhaps the first time in his adventurous life. There was a calm assurance of power in Holmes's manner which could not be withstood. Our visitor stammered for a moment, his great hands opening and shutting in his agitation.

"What do you mean?" he asked, at last. "If this is bluff upon your part, Mr. Holmes, you have chosen a bad man for your experiment. Let us have no beating about the bush. What do you mean?"

"I will tell you," said Holmes, "and the reason why I tell you is that I hope frankness may beget frankness. What my next step may be will depend entirely upon the nature of your own defence."

"My defence?"
"Yes, sir."
"My defence against what?"
"Against the charge of killing Mortimer Tregennis."

Sterndale mopped his forehead with his handkerchief. "Upon my word, you are getting on," said he. "Do all your successes depend upon this prodigious power of bluff?"

"The bluff," said Holmes, sternly "is upon your side, Dr. Leon Sterndale, and not upon mine. As a proof I will tell you some of the facts upon which my conclusions are based. Of your return from Plymouth, allowing much of your property to go on to Africa, I will say nothing save that it first informed me that you were one of the factors which had to be taken into account in reconstructing this drama—"

"I came back—"
"I have heard your reasons and regard them as unconvincing and inadequate. We will pass that. You came down here to ask me whom I suspected. I refused to answer you. You then went to the vicarage, waited outside it for some time, and finally returned to your cottage."

"How do you know that?"
"I followed you."
"I saw no one."

"That is what you may expect to see when I follow you. You spent a restless night at your cottage, and you formed certain plans, which in the early morning

STRIPED AND PLAIN SILK THE NICEST SANDWICHES

Something New and Dainty for Picnics and Suppers

The making of sandwiches is, or should be, a dainty bit of work. The bread must be well-baked and old enough to cut evenly, for which purpose the knife used should be one with a thin, sharp blade. It is very nice to have the butter creamed—that is, worked with a spoon until it is of a creamy consistency—and then flavored, if the sandwiches are for serving with tea. At all events the butter should be softened enough to spread easily. It is advisable to spread before cutting the slices, as they are more liable to crumble or break if it is done afterward. The slices must be thin, and the crust should all be trimmed off neatly. Care should be taken to spread the filling evenly; it is disappointing to have a sandwich that is bare in spots. For serving at table or with tea, the double slices are cut into small triangles or oblongs, but for picnic lunches cutting in half will leave them not too big. For these outdoor lunches the sandwiches should be wrapped separately in paraffin paper and packed in boxes. If made some time before they are required, sandwiches can be kept fresh and moist by covering them with a damp napkin and keeping them in a cool place.

Nut meats, which contain a good deal of nourishment, enter into the composition of a variety of sandwich fillings. English walnuts are used principally, chopped very fine. One very likeable combination is jelly or marmalade and nuts. Spread the bread, buttered or otherwise as preferred, first with preserve and sprinkle over it the chopped nuts. Nuts are also mixed with chopped apple or celery, moistened with cream or mayonnaise. Raisins, stoned and cooked in a very little water until they are tender, are mixed when cold with an equal quantity of finely chopped peanuts, and used for a sandwich filling, moistened with lemon juice.

Cheese is another nourishing constituent. Mix equal parts of grated cheese and English walnuts ground or pounded fine. Season with salt and moisten with rich thick sweet cream. Spread between thin slices of buttered bread. Peanut butter may be used instead of nuts. Rub some cottage cheese to a paste with a little cream, and season with salt and a dash of nutmeg. Moisten half as much peanut butter with lemon juice, mix the two together, and spread on thin slices of brown bread.

While taking his morning run in preparation for his recent bout with Young Togo, Harry Forbes got near the Oklahoma State penitentiary, where guards, looking for escaped convicts, twice chased and detained him.

The eleven of the Germantown Cricket club of Philadelphia will sail shortly for Europe and will engage in thirteen matches in England and Ireland, playing some of the crack amateurs of King George's realm. The first game is scheduled for July 28 with the Royal Artillery at Woolwich, and the series will wind up at Cork on August 25.

Miss Bertha Rapp is a wrestler of no mean ability. In a catch-as-catch-can bout on board the S.S. Adriatic, which recently arrived in New York, she threw one man and held out for twenty minutes against another, the latter weighing 185 pounds. Miss Rapp, who weighs only 150 pounds, is a Swedish girl who teaches calisthenics in New York.

A course that will make possible the breaking of all automobile records is promised by the Savannah Automobile club, under whose auspices the Grand Prix and Vanderbilt cup races will be held next November. Work has already commenced on the track. It is also planned to hold a number of long distance runs, with Savannah as the terminus, from points as far distant as Boston and New York, as well as from a number of cities in Florida, Georgia and the Carolinas, just before the races. An attempt to interest New York motorists in such a project is now being made.

Except for the signing of the articles, everything has been arranged for a match between Jack Johnson and Bombardier Wells for the biggest purse ever offered in Great Britain. Johnson is to receive $30,000, win, draw or lose. The sum of $15,000 is to be deposited July 15 and the other $15,000 is to be handed to Johnson an hour before the contest, which is to take place in London probably in September.

An attempt to cross the Atlantic in a fifty foot motor boat will be made by Captain John Weller, whose craft, the Romania, has just left New York on the perilous voyage. No power boat has yet succeeded in accomplishing the feat, but Captain Weller is confident of success.

HUSBAND IS ABSOLUTE LORD AND HEAD OF HOUSEHOLD

Judge Decides He is Entitled to Order His Meals at Any Hour, Choose the Servants, and Decide What Food is to be Put on the Table

(Canadian Press Despatch) Springfeld, Mass., July 25.—These precepts for the guidance of wives and husbands in cases of difference over household economics, are laid down by Judge Charles L. Long, in the separate support case brought by Mrs. Edith S. Marsh against Henry D. Marsh, assistant treasurer of the Five Cent Savings Bank: "The husband is absolute lord and master of the exchequer. "He is entitled to his meals at any hour he wants them.

"He may select such food as he chooses. If he wants one food and his wife another, the husband's decision goes. "A servant girl to whom the husband objects must be discharged. "Finally, man—who pays the bills, and not woman—is boss." Judge Long advised the Marshs to patch up their differences. Mr. Marsh left the court room wreathed in smiles. Mrs. Marsh did not endorse the court's opinions, and said so.

you proceeded to put into execution. Leaving your door just as day was breaking, you filled your pocket with some reddish gravel which was lying heaped beside your gate."

Sterndale gave a violent start and looked at Holmes in amazement.

"You then walked swiftly for the mile which separated you from the vicarage. You were wearing, I may remark, the same pair of ribbed tennis shoes which are at the present moment upon your feet. At the vicarage you passed through the orchard and the side hedge, coming out under the window of the lodger, Tregennis. It was now daylight, but the household was not yet stirring. You drew some of the gravel from your pocket, and you threw it up at the window above you."

Sterndale sprang to his feet. "I believe that you are the devil himself!" he cried.

MAGISTRATE CARSS ATTACKED

Mayor Takes Umbrage

It looked to the Mayor now as if Alderman Clayton was hinting that the Police Commissioners were not doing their duty, and the Mayor as Chairman of the Police Commission immediately resented this.

"If there is any man in this city," he said, "who can claim that he has a pull with the Police Commission, I should like him to trot out right here." I am not going to stand for any insinuations against the Police Board and against myself as Chairman of it. I object very strongly to such insinuations from any member of this council."

"I make no insinuations against the Police Commission," said Alderman Clayton never batting an eyebrow, "but I do say that if things like this are allowed to go on by the council, then it is time we dismissed the man responsible for them."

Named Mr. Carss

So far while the term "Police Magistrate" had been used occasionally no one had made any direct mention of the magistrate's name. It was left for Alderman Newton to do it. He did it without mincing the matter. "I meant my remarks," he said, "to apply to the police magistrate of this city. To prevent any mistake I will name him. I refer to Police Magistrate Carss who reprimanded the Chief of Police for having acted against these men without having first seen him."

Doubting Douglas

Although the work of the police in the city is clearly approved by the other aldermen, Alderman Douglas has his doubts even of their integrity. "The police may be doing their duty all right," he said, "but I was going around the hotels late the other night, and if they were not doing business I'd be very much surprised." (Great applause greeted this account of Douglas in the role of Sherlock Holmes).

"I don't blame the police," said Alderman Newton, "but put it this way: Is it any wonder if they do allow illegal goings when they are reprimanded when they do bring in cases?"

Some mitigation of the harsh term "reprimanded" was attempted by the city solicitor who stated that it was usual, and in fact necessary for the Chief of Police before undertaking a raid, to obtain authority from the magistrate or a member of the Police Commission. However, he remarked that he had never heard the magistrate reprimand the chief for not having got this permission. He agreed that the chief had made out a complete case, and said that he himself differed with the magistrate's decision. He had hoped to have brought the case up for trial at the higher court, but it was a case where speedy trial might be chosen by the accused.

MUCH WANTED MEAT IS HERE

Princess Royal Brought Great Chunks of the Finest for the Depleted Butchers' Boards. Hungry Householders Will be Fed on Fish Again.

What was it made so many people anxious last night to greet the arrival of the C. P. R. S.S. Princess Royal? Up till a late hour citizens were to be seen pacing to and fro, going down to the wharf, and returning, even ringing up Digby Island to discover where the Royal was. An anxious, not to say a hungry, look haunted the faces of many of the watchers. It was not the "Lonely for a girl" look that might have been justified by the fact that a new theatre company was due to arrive by the Royal. It was real hunger.

For Prince Rupert has been short of meat for a number of days now. For some reason or other the last boats from below failed to bring the much desired provender for the flesh pots of Rupert. Housewives have been besieging apologetic butchers until the poor men have exhausted their little stock of meat, and their

To Root Out Free-love

Tacoma, Wash., July 25.—Federal and county officials today decided to take aggressive steps to destroy the colony of free-lovers which for several years has existed at Home, on Lake Bay, 20 miles from here. Ranchers in the vicinity have made numerous complaints lately because members of the colony—men and women—have persisted in bathing in the nude and parading about the streets without taking the trouble to clothe themselves.

ROOM FOR FILL ON SECTION ONE

But Ald. Hilditch Wants Preference Given to Owners of Lots who Want to Improve for Building Purposes.

In Section One there is going to be room for rather more fill than the City Engineer has to dump, and lot owners in this section are accordingly benefited. Those owning high lots can now find room for a limited amount of fill nearer their lots than might otherwise have been.

At last night's council Alderman Hilditch was rather emphatic that preference should be given to those lot owners who are anxious to build and improve lots for business purposes, rather than those who wish to improve simply for speculative ends.
