Pink Salmon Run Slow in Massett Inlet—H. M. S. Danae Arrives—Most of Canneries Remaining Open to Pack Fall Varieties

As the month of August enters its second half, it is beginning to appear, according to reports reaching Prince Rupert, that there may be another failure in the run of pink salmon in Massett Inlet such as that of the last cycle year. While there is still the possibility that the run may be rather late in materializing, the feeling is beginning to gain ground that it is rather the case of another failure. It would have been a rather serious situation for the canneries at Old and New Massett had it not been that they have been able to get pink supplies from runs at Naden Harbor and on the West Coast of Graham Island. There is a good run of pinks at Rennell Sound on the west coast, no fish having shown up on the east coast of Graham Island as yet although chums are starting to appear around Skidegate Inlet.

According to reports reaching here this week from the Queen Charlotte Island waters of Skidegate Inlet have been almost the color of milk for several days. The pigment, for which no account is made, is believed to have come in from the west coast.

Dr. R. G. Large returned to port at the end of last week with his power cruiser Neiris from a week's yachting trip to Queen Charlotte Island waters including Massett Inlet and Naden Harbor. Dr. Large's guests on the trip were Mrs. Large, Dr. and Mrs. Neal Carter and J. O. Williamson.

The fish packer Bruce I. Capt. B. M. Newell, delivered 40,000 pounds of salmon from the North Island trolling grounds to the Canadian Fishing Co. at Butedale on Thursday of this week and was here yesterday on its way to the Islands for another trip.

C. P. R. steamer Princess Adelaide, Capt. S. K. Gray, arrived in port at 6:45 last evening from the south and sailed at 10 p.m. on her return to Vancouver and waypoints.

The Canadian National dock off headquarters of the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve was the centre of local waterfront attractions around 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon as the trim light cruiser
