PUGET SOUND FISHERS ARE CATCHING STRANGE SPECIES

are Sunfish and Harracouta, Flying Fish and Fish of Many Bright Colors.—It is Believed an Ocean Earthquake Has Driven Them There.

Victoria, Aug. 4.—Swarms of tropical fish of all shapes and colors have been coming into the nets of the Puget Sound fishermen during the last few days, to the great surprise of the men. It is believed that there is a general westward drift of fish of the Pacific Ocean, probably caused by earthquakes shaking up and changing the topography of the floor of the seas, thereby compelling the finny creatures to migrate to localities heretofore free of the strangers.

SALVED THE SPOKANE

Wrecked Vessel is Towed From Seymour Narrows to Seattle

Seattle, Aug. 3.—Broken, bruised and blackened by the waters of Seymour Narrows, where she was wrecked a month ago, the steamer Spokane has been safely towed to Seattle by the British tug Salvor. She was partially propelled by her own steam.

The picture was in contrast to her departure from this port three days before the wreck, when the decks were aflutter with waving handkerchiefs, light hearts and fond good byes as the gangplank was withdrawn and when the glint of the lights in her stern port holes cast dancing shadows on the rippling tide.

Aviator Injured

St. Louis, Aug. 4.—(Special)—Aviator Kearney fell from a height of 500 feet with his biplane last evening and is dangerously injured.

The police court case in which the woman Gypsy Hamilton of Despair Avenue again figures, came up in the court room today at 2 p.m. Case proceeding.

SUICIDE ON OCEAN LINER

Second Engineer Ferguson of Steamer Lonsdale Cut His Throat and Died.

(Canadian Press Despatch) Victoria, Aug. 4.—A tragedy took place on board the Canada-Mexican liner Lonsdale which arrived last night from Santa Cruz. Second Engineer P. M. Ferguson, 31 years old, cut his throat on July 23rd and died six hours later when the vessel was hurrying to Mazatlan for assistance. The purser placed six stitches in the man's throat with sail needle in a desperate effort to save the man's life. He was buried at sea.

Investigation Afoot

Rumor, yes, and rather more than rumor hath it that a stringent investigation is to be conducted regarding this morning's pyrotechnical display at the Central Hotel. A certain active alderman will take a principal part in the business. Alderman Douglas is active on waterworks questions. Others are active about fire.

HAYTI IN THROES OF REVOLUTION

President Simon has Fled a Cruiser, Leaving General Firmin in Possession.

(Canadian Press Despatch) Port au Prince, Aug. 4.—The revolution in Hayti has triumphed. President Simon fled from the capital today and took refuge on board a Haytian cruiser. On all sides the capital is invested by the followers of General Firmin, one of the revolutionary leaders. The city is in the hands of a committee of safety. There is no general disorder and the foreign powers have not landed blue-jackets.

As the aged President was embarking there was a clash in which his chamberlain, Deputy Brin and five persons were killed and his daughter and six others were wounded.

North Yakima, Wash., Aug. 4.—William McKearney was killed late today by William O'Neill, his cell mate in the city jail. O'Neill first strangled his victim then stabbed him with a steel fork. Both were under arrest on a charge of intoxication.

WHALES CONSORT WITH SUBMARINES

Officers of "Narwhal" Report That Big Fish Fear Them Not.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 4.—The officers and crews of two of the submarines of the Atlantic fleet said today they have learned that whales are not the least afraid of the underwater warships. Whales have been reported off Block Island several times this summer, and last Wednesday during the naval war game the men in the submarines Narwhal and Salmon had personal experiences with the big fish.

Early in the morning the Narwhal, when off Block Island, met a whale and the fish accompanied the boat for several miles. Just before dusk that day the Salmon when off No Man's Land had much the same experience. The big fish evidently mistook the submarines for one of their own kind.

TREATY IS SIGNED

Another Greag Step Taken Towards World Peace

(Canadian Press Despatch) Washington, Aug. 4.—The general arbitration treaties between the United States, Great Britain and France were signed today.

"The best place to keep dynamite is in a blacksmith's shop as near the forge as possible," said Jim Rogers after the bang this morning.

"Sure thing," replied Frank Moley. "All the best opinions in the city this morning concur about it. Nothing could be more effective."

McCURDY HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Fell to the Ground Beneath Monoplane at Toronto Meet.

(Canadian Press Despatch) Toronto, Aug. 4.—J. A. McCurdy, the Canadian aviator, had a narrow escape from death last evening when his machine fell to the ground and was dashed to pieces at the aviation meeting.

The monoplane turned completely over pinning McCurdy beneath the wreckage. Luckily he was not tied to the seat so he escaped serious injury though bruised and shaken. The machine was completely wrecked.

DYNAMITE IN SMITHY DOES HAVOC DOWN TOWN

Spark Fell on Store of Seventy-five Sticks with Detonators.—Shack Blew Up in Sheet of Flame.—C. Londstrom and Helper Escaped Alive.—Thousand Dollar Broken Glass Bill for Second Avenue and Seventh Street.—Central Hotel a Wreck.

At nine forty-five this morning the little blacksmith shack on Seventh street and Second avenue between the old school house and the Central Hotel echoed to the tinkle of the hammers as Charlie Londstrom with his assistant were welding a chain. At nine forty-six by the clock in the Central Hotel breakfast room you literally could not tell that smithy from a hole in the ground. Seventy-five sticks of dynamite together with a number of detonators and a single spark from the anvil did the trick. Hardly a whole pane of glass remains in the entire district yet by the most wonderful good fortune, no one was killed, and there is not even a bad cut from shattered glass to record.

Powder in Smithy

In the grimy old powder case in the farthest corner of the smithy the seventy-five sticks of dynamite had been placed by some Solomon. The blacksmith himself had intended to have the case removed, but familiarity breeds contempt, and he didn't. His escape with his Swedish assistant this morning was a miracle and nothing else. He just caught a glimpse of a spark floating airily towards the powder case, saw it settle, and then dragging at his companion's shoulder dashed out of the shack and sped down street. Close on his heels came the Swede, and as the men ran the terrific explosion thundered out. High in the air streamed up a sheet of livid flame, a huge puff of smoke, and a thousand planks, bits of lumber, small rocks, nails, hammers, and shattered fragments of the forge. All around crashed, splintered and tinkled the shattered panes of half a thousand windows.

In a rain of falling fragments the men reached safety.

Like an Earthquake

Passing along Second avenue were W. Sims, Jack McLennan and Jim Mackenzie. Jack had his rifle in his hand. They were going to the wharf, and were just abreast of the smithy when it suddenly soared aloft. "It was an awful shock," said W. Sims to the Daily News man. "The whole ground shook. It was just as if someone came and lifted up us from behind." Others described the shock as "Like an earthquake."

Fire Followed

Instantly after the shock fire broke out in the old schoolhouse. The roof caught, and blazed up. W. Unwin, himself a fire hall call-man was on the scene and rang in the alarm from Box 9, at the same time getting the standing hose line run out from Second avenue and Sixth street corner. The small hose reel was on the spot a minute or so ahead of the red auto car hose which took the rough grade well. Chief McInnis was on the job with half the shaving lather still on his face. The fire was out in a few moments.

Central Hotel Wrecked

By far the most damage was done to the Central Hotel. Every window on the north and east sides of the building was shattered, and the breakfast room was thrown into utter disorder, and strewn with glass. Tables were overturned, large wall mirrors flung down, and the clock hurled into the room from the wall. It registered the instant of the concussion 9.46 as it lay stopped on the floor. No one in the breakfast room was hurt, but many of the ladies there are suffering from the alarm and shock.

Blown Out of Bed

In the upper bedrooms windows were all shattered, curtains rent, and dressing tables disordered. In the bedroom nearest to the smithy Ted Quinn was asleep at the moment of the explosion. He was awakened by the thump of his head on the floor. The sudden jar to the big building just at that corner had simply jerked him out of bed. With relief his friends greeted him coming hurriedly down stairs with his most cherished possessions, a bundle of papers and a bullderm bag held firmly in his untrembling hand.

Plank Pierced Wall

Driven by a huge arrow by the force of the explosion, a plank shot across to the old "Optimist" building and slapted edgeways through the wall where it sticks firmly. J. C. McLennan's home, the nearest house to the smithy is badly damaged outside shingles stripped off, and windows gone.

Will Prepare Voter's List.

(Special to Daily News) Ottawa, Aug. 4.—The Dominion Government has practically decided to make the voters lists for British Columbia, the conditions there being similar to the cities of Winnipeg and Brandon, no lists having been prepared within the past year.

PRETTY ACTRESS MISTAKEN FOR BOLD COUNTERFEITER

Miss Mack of the Honeymoon Trail Handed Over Wad of Real Bills in the Play, and Went Shopping With Some "Stage Money."

Deinty little Drena Mack, "Premier Singing Comedienne," with The Honeymoon Trail, has been on the stage since early childhood, and during her career has met with many and varied experiences.

One of the best of her stories is about the way she was almost mistaken for a counterfeiter in a Minneapolis store last Christmas owing to her going out shopping with some "stage money" in mistake for the real goods. The mistake originated from the fact that Miss Mack has two handbags, one of which she uses for the street and the other for the stage. In the latter she carries a wad of "stage money" which she uses in the action of the play.

At the matinee Miss Mack got the bags mixed. She handed over a wad of two hundred dollars in real money to Jack Westerman, who promptly threw it on one side, and then went out shopping with the "green goods." When it came to settling the bill, she waited a long time for the change. She was anxious to get back to the theatre for the evening performance, and her taxi was waiting. In a few minutes a severe looking man appeared and in a hard, unsympathetic voice asked Miss Mack where she got that bill.

Quite surprised, the young lady asked him what was wrong with it. When she was told that it was a very bad cheap counterfeit, she indignantly offered another bill from the same roll, which was more than Mr. Store Manager could stand; and Miss Mack was asked to come up to the office. Then the truth dawned on her. She tried to explain, but all her talk was received with suspicion, and when she told the store manager she would run right over to the theatre and find her real money, he calmly informed her that he would send an officer with her. Miss Mack asked permission to phone her husband, Mr. Harry Cleveland, and after a little delay succeeded in finding him at the hotel.

"Hello," says Miss Mack. "Is that you Harry?"

"Yes," came the reply. "Well, come down to this department store quick. I'm held up here for trying to pass some of that old stage money, and say, send someone over to the theatre right away and see if my real money can be found."

"Well, I'll be —" said Harry as Miss Mack hung up the receiver.

On going to the theatre Harry found the roll of real bills where Mr. Westerman had thrown it in the property room; then he hurried to the store, bailed Miss Mack out, and explained the situation satisfactorily to the manager.

"But, sry," said Miss Mack, "I want to know why you went to the theatre first," and Harry is trying to explain it yet.

WHAT RECIPROCITY MEANS TO THE PEOPLE

Under the reciprocity agreement, Canada and the United States agree to mutually abolish taxes on food stuffs crossing the boundary line, and to reduce and standardise the taxation on many other articles. It is worth while to study the list of articles which will be affected, and thus clearly understand the real benefits which the ratification of the reciprocity agreement will bring.

In the first place are the following articles produced in Canada, for which the Canadian farmer and fruit grower wants to find a market. They are:

- |                  |         |
|------------------|---------|
| Cattle           | Apples  |
| Horses and Mules | Pears   |
| Swine            | Peaches |
| Sheep and Lambs  | Grapes  |
| Poultry          | Onions  |
| Wheat            | Butter  |
| Rye              | Cheese  |
| Oats             | Milk    |
| Barley           | Cream   |
| Beans            | Eggs    |
| Potatoes         | Hay     |
| Corn             | Straw   |

This will be a great boon to the farmers of Canada, who will have a market of ninety million people opened to them.

In British Columbia where we have to import large quantities of eggs, meats, wheat and vegetables, we will be able to import from our nearest neighbors without paying taxation on our food. Whether we are buyers or sellers there is a clear advantage.

In the second place there is a long list of products of the Canadian fisheries, at present barred from the United States by their tariff, which will be admitted to the United States market by the passage of the reciprocity agreement.

These include:

- |          |             |
|----------|-------------|
| Mackerel | Salmon      |
| Cod      | Halibut     |
| Herrings | Oysters     |
| Lobsters | Salted Fish |

This means a great deal for the fisheries of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, and a great deal more for the fisheries of British Columbia. The thirty per cent ad valorem duty on canned salmon meant that last year the B. C. salmon pack was only 738,458 cases to the 2,391,000 cases of the Alaskan salmon pack. The cent a pound duty on halibut means that the market of the United States is open to the Seattle fish poacher, and closed to the Canadian fisherman who owns the halibut banks. Reciprocity will remedy this.

Then there is the third list of products of the mine and forest, at present barred out of the United States market, which will enter free of duty after reciprocity passes. These include:

- |                         |          |
|-------------------------|----------|
| Hewn Timber             | Mica     |
| Railroad Ties and Poles | Salt     |
| Sawed Boards            | Asbestos |
| Wooden Staves           | Feldspar |
| Pickets and palings     | Talc     |

This will mean prosperity for the miners and lumbermen of British Columbia.

There is no occasion to more than briefly state the facts to demonstrate that the reciprocity proposal is the best piece of prosperity making legislation that has ever been brought before the Canadian Parliament.

The business man who seeks cheapness as the first consideration in buying his printing, never really pays much attention to other elements in the transaction—except, perhaps, the matter of getting it done quickly.

A REMINISCENCE OF SHERLOCK HOLMES

THE ADVENTURE OF THE RED CIRCLE

BY ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE

Copyright, 1911, by the Century Syndicate

PART II.

As we walked rapidly down Howe street I glanced back at the building which we had left. There, dimly outlined at the top window, I could see the shadow of a head, a woman's head, gazing tensely, rigidly, out into the night, waiting with breathless suspense for the renewal of that interrupted message. At the doorway of the Howe street flats a man, muffled in a cravat and great-coat, was leaning against the railing. He started as the hall-light fell upon our faces.

"Holmes!" he cried. "Why, Gregson!" said my companion, as he shook hands with the Scotland Yard detective. "You sneeze end with lovers' meetings. What brings you here?" "The same reason that brings you, I expect," said Gregson. "How you got on to it I can't imagine."

"Different threads, but leading up to the same tangle. I've been taking the signals." "Signals?" "Yes, from that window. They broke off in the middle. We came over to see the reason. But since it is safe in your hands I see no object in continuing the business."

"Wait a bit!" cried Gregson, eagerly. "I'll do you this justice, Mr. Holmes, that I was never in a case yet that I didn't feel stronger for having you on my side. There's only the one exit to these flats, so we have him safe."

"Who is he?" "Well, well, we score over you for once, Mr. Holmes. You must give us best this time." He struck his stick sharply upon the ground, on which a cabman, his whip in hand, sauntered over from a four-wheeler which stood on the far side of the street. "May I introduce you to Mr. Sherlock Holmes?" he said to the cabman. This is Mr. Leverton, of Pinkerton's American Agency."

"The hero of the Long Island Cave mystery?" said Holmes. "Sir, I am pleased to meet you." The American, a quiet, business-like young man, with a clean-shaven, hatchet face, flushed up at the words of commendation. "I am on the trail of my life now, Mr. Holmes," said he. "If I can get Gorgiano—"

"What! Gorgiano of the Red Circle?" "Oh, we've learned all about him in America. We know he is at the bottom of fifty murders, and yet we have nothing positive we can take him on. I traced him over from New York, and I've been close to him for a week in London, waiting some excuse to get my hand on his collar. Mr. Gregson and I ran him to ground in that big tenement house, and there's only one door, so he came out since he went in, but I'll swear he wasn't one of them."

"Mr. Holmes talks of signals," said Gregson. "I expect, as usual, he knows a good deal that we don't." In a few clear words Holmes explained the situation as it had appeared to us. The American struck his hands together with vexation. "He's on to us!" he cried. "Why do you think so?" "Well, it figures out that way does it not? Here he is, sending out messages to an accomplice—there are several of his gang in London. Then suddenly just as by your own account he was telling them that there was danger, he broke short off. What could it mean that but from the window he had suddenly caught sight of us in the street, or in some way come to understand how close the danger was, and that he must get right away if he was to avoid it? What do you suggest, Mr. Holmes?"

"That we go up at once and see for ourselves." "But we have no warrant for his arrest."

"He is in unoccupied premises under suspicious circumstances," said Gregson. "That is good enough for the moment. When we have him by the heels we can see if New York can't help us to keep him. I'll take the responsibility of arresting him now."

"Our official detectives may blunder in the matter of intelligence, but never in that of courage. Gregson climbed the stair to arrest this desperate murderer with the same absolute quiet and businesslike bearing with which he would have ascended the official staircase of Scotland Yard. The Pinkerton man had tried to push past him, but Gregson had firmly elbowed him back. London dangers were the privilege of the London force. The door of the left-hand flat upon the third landing was standing ajar. Gregson pushed it open. Within all was absolute silence and darkness. I struck a match, and lit the detective's lantern. As I did so, and as the flicker steadied into a flame, we all gave a gasp of surprise. On the deal boards of the carpetless floor there was outlined a fresh track of blood. The red steps pointed towards us, and led away from an inner room, the door of which was closed. Gregson flung it open and held his light full blaze in front of him, whilst we all peered eagerly over his shoulders. In the middle of the floor of the empty room was huddled the figure of an enormous man, his clean-shaved, swarthy face grotesquely horrible in its contortion, and his head encircled by a ghastly crimson halo of blood, lying in a broad wet circle upon the white woodwork. His knees were drawn up, his hands thrown out in agony, and from the centre of his broad brown, upturned throat there projected the white haft of a knife driven blade-deep into his body. Giant as he was, the man must have gone down like a pole-axed ox before that terrific blow. Beside his right hand a most formidable horn-handled, two-edged dagger lay upon the floor, and near it a black kid glove.

"By George! it's Black Gorgiano himself!" cried the American detective. "Someone has got ahead of us this time." "Here's the candle in the window, Mr. Holmes," said Gregson. "Why, whatever are you doing?" Holmes had stepped across, had lit the candle, and was passing it backwards and forwards across the window-panes. Then he peered into the darkness, blew the candle out, and threw it on the floor. "I rather think that will be helpful," said he. He came over and stood in deep thought, while the two professionals were examining the body. "You say that three people came out from the flat while you were waiting downstairs," said he at last. "Did you observe them closely?" "Yes, I did." "Was there a fellow about thirty, black-bearded, dark, of middle size?" "Yes, he was the last to pass me." "That is your man, I fancy. I can give you his description, and we have a very excellent outline of his footmark. That should be enough for you."

"Not much, Mr. Holmes, among the millions of London." "Perhaps not. That is why I thought it best to summon this lady to your aid."

We all turned round at the words. There, framed in the doorway, was a tall and beautiful woman—the mysterious lodger of Bloomsbury. Slowly she advanced her face pale and drawn with a frightful apprehension, her eyes fixed and staring, her terrified gaze riveted upon the dark figure on the floor.

"You have killed him!" she muttered. "Oh, Dio, mio, you have killed him!" Then I heard a sudden sharp intake of her breath and she sprang into the air with a cry of joy. Round and round the room she danced, her hands clapping, her dark eyes gleaming with delighted wonder, and a thousand pretty Italian exclamations pouring from her lips. It was terrible and amazing to see such a woman so convulsed with joy at such a sight. Suddenly she stopped and gazed at us all with a questioning stare.

"But you! You are police, are you not? You have killed Giuseppe Gorgiano. Is it not so?" "We are police, madam."

She looked round into the shadows of the room. "But where, then is Gennaro?" she asked. "He is my husband, Gennaro Lucca. I am Emily Lucca, and we are both from New York. Where is Gennaro? He called me this moment from this window, and I ran with all my speed."

CROSSES ATLANTIC IN SMALL YACHT

Capt. Thomas F. Day Reaches Gibraltar After Thirty-five Days' Trip.

Gibraltar, Aug. 1.—The yawl Sea Bird, which arrived from the Azores last night, is sailing late today for Italy. Captain Thomas F. Day of New York, and his companions, T. R. Goodwin and F. B. Thurber of Providence, R. I., report a pleasant trip across the Atlantic. In their twenty-five foot craft they left Providence, R. I., on June 10th, and arrived at Horta in the Azores on July 1. On July 5 they set sail for Gibraltar. From the Azores they experienced light winds and calm weather. They made the trip of approximately 3,300 miles in 35 sailing days.

Sniff Yacht Shifted

Early this morning a city garbage wagon arrived at the waterfront to add to the cargo of the sniff yacht by the amount of one load of old bean cans, cabbage stumps and kitchen refuse. The teamster never dreaming but that the noble craft still lay at its accustomed moorings on the Davis wharf, or perhaps still dreaming of sweeter matters, just backed up to the wagon stops on the wharf and opened the wagon back door. A cataract of cans descended with a splash into the water. There was no sniff yacht there to receive them. The spacy Ocean Queen has altered her moorings to Cow Creek where she will be "at home" to the Commodore and city scavenging brigade at the usual hours.

How About the Dog?

Handwriting experts, concerning whom some hard things were said by counsel in the Plymouth society libel case, occasionally have an unpleasant time in the witness-box. A leading Irish barrister of days gone by once began his cross-examination of a handwriting expert by asking, "Where is the dog?" When the witness asked, "What dog?" counsel replied, "The dog which the judge at the last assizes said he would not hang on your evidence."—From the London Chronicle.

HE SWIMS AT 102

An Old Father Neptune of Real Life in New York

New York, Aug. 3.—John Costigan of No. 150 East 49th street, at the age of 102 years, amazes all who see him by his swimming prowess. When he appears each day on the beach at Rockaway, where he is spending the summer, he is received with cheers.

The beach was crowded yesterday when the old man waded into the water. As he swam out a shout went up: "Oh, look at that old man swim!" "That is my grandfather!" cried little Arthur Stein, eight years old, who stood on the beach among the crowd. "My grandfather is a good swimmer. He can beat you all."

The old man made his way past the last pole, but "Ben" Johnson, one of the Rockaway Beach life guards, would not allow him to go farther. "Don't be afraid," he swam the East River at the foot of Market street when I was a little fellow," protested Costigan.

The hope is expressed that "The Cosy Corner" will fill a social need.

NATTY BATHING SUIT

Fashion's Latest

There is another model in crepe de chine quite unlike the just described but equally charming. It is trimmed with a wide band of net, richly embroidered in the finest of gray silk embroidery. This band goes diagonally across the skirt, and the upper part of the waist and lower part of sleeves are made of the embroidery. Long sash ends of velvet or satin of a contrasting color give a certain note of distinction and originality if it is not desired to keep it in one color. Such a model could be copied in dark color to good advantage, using black crepe de chine and white filet lace over black chiffon.
For summer evening gowns crepe de chine combined with voile chiffon of the finest and sheerest of lace net makes up most attractively, and a very charming simple evening gown of these materials can be made at surprisingly low cost. The upper part of waist should be chiffon or net, and the lower skirt, if trimmed with a band of passementerie or of jetted or embroidered trimming or even bead fringe, is becoming and extremely smart.

Causes of Cake Failures
Housewife S.: Your cake batter is probably too thick for layer cake, that is why it rises in the middle and not at the sides. It is coarse-grained and full of holes because it is not rich enough, has too much rising and is not sufficient beaten.

Evening Refreshments
For an informal little party serve lemonade, and if it is cool enough, coffee, with sandwiches, and a couple of kinds of cakes. You do not "have" to have ice cream. If each item in the above is nice of its kind, it is quite sufficient for the occasion.

Telkwa Leaves Rupert
When the C. P. R. S.S. Princess Era left for the south last night she took with her the launch Telkwa which belonged to Dr. Ewing who is now up river. She did a good deal of hospital work in the days of the old general hospital by the waterfront near Vickersville. She will be put in commission again at Vancouver.

ITEMS OF SPORT
New York, Aug. 3.—The sport world was today mildly interested in the announcement that Tom Sharkey has joined the ranks of managers. He has taken Jim Barry under his managerial wing and declares that Jim is the only genuine white hope.

Humboldt, Iowa, Aug. 3.—Frank Gotch, champion wrestler of the world, is getting into training for his coming match with Hackenschmidt, on Labor Day. He does fourteen miles of road work in the morning and works on the gripping machine, plays hand ball and wrestles.

Jack Holland, who is well known in Pacific Northwest baseball circles and who is now owner of the St. Joseph club in the Western League, is accused of trying to assault Manager Jack Hendricks of Denver. The trouble grew out of the allegation that Hendricks had sent telegrams to Denver saying that Denver was defeated in St. Joseph solely through the rowdism of St. Joseph fans.

Danny Murphy, the Athletics' right fielder, says the New York Highlanders have too many signals. Too many signs, according to Dan, are too much of a task for the ordinary run of ball-players.

The St. Louis Cardinals, the Denver and Omaha clubs are lucky baseball teams. The three outfits have been in railroad disasters this season when a number of passengers were killed, and not a ball player was seriously injured.

Jack Coombs' father's faith that his big son will be pitching baseball when he is 45 years old is not based upon the best of premises. It is a great thing to be a "stout boy" like Jack or Ed Walsh, but it is the pitcher that has the smoothest action that can stand the wear and tear the longest. Dr. Harold Ernst, the eminent bacteriologist, was the true prophet when he said years ago that Cy Young's action was so smooth that there was no reason why his arm should ever give out.

San Francisco, Aug. 3.—Freddie Welsh will not box anyone before his meeting in Los Angeles next November, if Tom McCarey can prevent it. Such is the word which comes up from the southern city to add one more difficulty to the fulfillment of Promoter Clark's hope of securing one of both of these fighters for a Labor Day match in this city.

CHAMPION OF TENNIS
Joe Tyler of Spokane is the successor of Bernard Schwengers of Victoria as lawn tennis champion of the mainland of British Columbia. Joe captured the title on Saturday at the Vancouver Lawn Tennis Club's courts by beating C. E. Foley of San Francisco after a keenly contested game. Foley won the first set 6-3, but lost the next by the same margin. The third set was long drawn out and Foley won eventually by 12 to 10. The pace proved too strenuous for the Californian, however, and he weakened, losing the next two sets 6 to 3 and the match.

CAN NOW TELL HUMAN BLOOD

Analysts Use New Discovery for First Time in the Criminal Courts of England.

(Canadian Press Despatch)
London, Aug. 3.—For the first time in the history of the criminal courts of England a skilled analyst has been able to say positively that the stains found on the clothes of a prisoner were made by human blood, and not only that, but that the blood was from an anaemic person.

In many murder trials the guilt or innocence of a prisoner has turned on the evidence of the analyst, who heretofore was unable to swear positively whether the stains were made by mammalian or human blood. The point came up in the Crippen case, and it was then said that science was at work on the subject and a successful outcome of the investigation was anticipated.

In the case in question a man was charged with killing a woman and when arrested stains were found on his clothes. Dr. Wilcox, the Government analyst, who was a witness in the Crippen case, stated in evidence that modern methods now enabled him to say that the blood was human and that it came from an anaemic person, which the victim was. The prisoner was found guilty and sentenced to death.

PRINCE ALBERT'S NEW COAST RUN

Under Captain McKenzie She Will Ply Between Vancouver and Northern B. C. Ports.

When the new G. T. P. S.S. Prince John reaches Prince Rupert, the Prince Albert will at once come south to enter into a new service which has been inaugurated for her. She will engage in the run between Victoria and Vancouver and Northern British Columbia ports, relieving the two big G. T. P. steamers of much of the freight which is carried to the coast points. The Henriette has been used to sound the business on the new run, and she has already been found to be too small for the trade.

Inside it is all upset. But the splendid old clock there though flung to the floor with face shattered and twisted hands, still ticked on defiantly and rang out the hour of ten a.m. as cheerfully as if nothing had happened.

Had Presentiment

Mrs. J. C. McLennan is away from town at present, and as Mr. McLennan was at his place at the City Hall, there was no one in when the crash came. Just before leaving Mrs. McLennan told a friend that she had a strange presentiment that something was going to happen with the blasting going on on First avenue near by, and said she wanted to be out of the house when it happened. Another house which suffered was the residence of Mr. Tom Dunn. Windows are shattered on both Second avenue and Seventh street frontages. Big plate glass windows along Second avenue are in fragments. The Dominion Baths suffered most. The plate glass windows of the Central Bar are split and smashed all round. J. Gilmore the well-known old timer, estimated the repair bill for glass at about $1000, and Peter Black regrets to report "No insurance on a pane" of his place.

Crowd Thronged Scene

Half the business section got out to see the excitement, and were ready to lend a hand had the school fire got threatening. Fire Chief McInnis, Works Superintendent McNeil, and the City Engineer were very early on the spot. Several constables also looked after the keeping of order, and warned the crowd to stand out from the falling fragments of glass from the high hotel windows. The whole affair, however, was at an end in about fifteen minutes.

If your house and glass is insured in the Ocean Accident and Guarantee Insurance Company your claim will be paid promptly.

You never can tell when an accident might happen to your house or property. Better get insured at once in the above company through the Mack Realty and Insurance Company, Fulton Street, Phone 150.

ALD. NEWTON IN THE FIELD

Announces He will Contest Comox-Atlin Against the Liberal Candidate as an Opponent of Reciprocity.

In his newspaper, Ald. S. M. Newton last night stated that he had given way before strong pressure brought to bear on him, and would enter the contest for the Federal seat, as an opponent of reciprocity.

The news came as a bombshell to many of Alderman Newton's political friends. The Mayor came charging into the City Hall in an excited condition, and immediately adjourned with several of the aldermen who were at the Hall for a committee meeting to his private room.

Some of the more prominent members of the local Conservative party were very outspoken about the matter. The general opinion among them was that the editor-alderman had decided on a bold "swoop," to get ahead of the other three "prospects" who are anxious to secure the nomination.

As Alderman Newton is not the official candidate for the Conservative party as yet, it is quite possible that the party may prefer to nominate a separate candidate, instead of trailing in behind Mr. Newton.

There is a feeling of resentment in the minds of those who think that the latest candidate tried to force the hands of the local Conservatives to further his private ambitions.

Navigation Note

At noon today the Civic Sniff Yacht passed out of harbor heading for midocean. Though the harbor entrance was busy with other shipping, viz., the S.S. Hazelton passing out, and the tug Escort II coming in with the North Bend in tow, the Commodore handled his vessel with consummate skill and seamanship contriving to keep just to windward of all the other craft in strongly appreciated style. There is a rumor around now that the Sniff Yacht may be the next challenger for the America Cup.
