Scheme to Refund Prince Rupert Bonds Under Way For Purpose of Reducing Present Interest Rate

"The Bond Buyer," a financial journal published in New York, has in a recent issue an outline of the Prince Rupert move to refund the bonded indebtedness of the city at a rate of interest that the city could pay. The article follows: In response to our request for a confirmation regarding the report that bondholders of the City of Prince Rupert, B.C., would be asked to agree to a plan providing for the payment of a flat interest rate of 4% on the city's obligations, Commissioner W. J. Alder writes as follows: "At the time of my arrival here on May 15, 1933, there was in arrears over $50,000 for interest, and a similar amount due for salaries and unpaid accounts. All interest today has been paid or provided for, and

Major Cutler and Associates Plainly Heard by Local People Over Short Wave as They Explored Upper Regions—Balloon in Difficulties

Local people this morning heard over short wave radio communications passing between Major Cutler and his two associates, Captain Cutler and Captain Stephens who ascended to a great height into the stratosphere by balloon, the latest height mentioned being 57,000 feet, and people on the ground. They spoke first at 9 o'clock this morning to the National Geographic representative at Washington. Later they conversed with Chicago.

At 11 a.m. Major Cutler said they were up 40,000 feet.

About 1:30 they again conversed but with considerable difficulty. The balloonists reported that they were up 57,000 feet. They were in difficulties with the balloon rather badly torn. They said they were coming down but could not say how they would do it and planned to land in Nebraska within twenty miles of North Platte and people there were asked to lend any possible assistance. The last heard was that the balloon was stationary in the stratosphere.

Five Men Reach Land and Nine Are Still Missing From Fishing Boat Astrid D.

SYDNEY, N.S., July 28.—After drifting for four days in an open dory five fishermen arrived here today to reveal that nine other members of the crew of the schooner Astrid W. had been adrift since Tuesday morning with scant food rations and water supplies. They abandoned the vessel one hundred miles off Sydney a few minutes before she sank following an engine-room explosion.

CLAXTON IS TO REOPEN

Will be Canning Fish Monday—Fire Said to Have Originated in Ammonia Pipes

Passengers arriving on the Cardena last evening who were present when the vessel was at Claxton cannery in the morning say the general opinion seemed to be that the fire originated from an escape-ment from the ammonia pipes. The vessel was just approaching the cannery about half past ten when the officers saw smoke coming from the cold storage power plant. Very soon the place was ablaze. At once Captain Georgesson ordered the pumps manned and every hose on the vessel was trained on the blaze. The cannery crew also worked with will and in that way the fire was prevented from spreading. The store rooms were saved but the power and freezing plant and building were destroyed together with half a million pounds of fish belonging to Edmunds and Walker. No estimate has reached here of the amount of damage. Operations at the cannery have stopped temporarily but it will be operating again when the fishing begins again Monday, following the weekly closed period.

CONGRATULATIONS

The Daily News congratulates Miss Helen Valentine on having won the Governor General's medal, leading the students in the whole district. We also congratulate Miss Mercer and the other members of the staff of Booth School and the parents. We expect great things of Miss Valentine.

BRITISH COLUMBIA'S CASE

Bruce Hutchison, writing in McLean's Magazine recently in an article entitled "Revolt Beyond the Rockies," has the following few pungent paragraphs:

"The British Columbian, looking out across the mountains, began to say to himself:

"It is natural perhaps that the prairies should be hard up when they have only one crop and grain prices are low. But we have almost everything we can use. We have lumber, minerals, fish, foodstuffs of all sorts. Trading them for manufactured goods, managing our own affairs, we should always be prosperous. But, instead, we have to sell them in a cheap world market, against the competition of such nations as Japan and Russia with their low living standards. And when we buy manufactured articles we must buy them behind tariff walls in the protected east, in Ontario and Quebec. We pay high prices. We get low ones. We are being strangled to fatten the east. Confederation simply can't be held together on that basis."

"An obvious set of economic facts surely, but we're just getting them through our heads out here, now that we have time to think during the depression.

"There is no room here for figures, but take one item: British Columbia buys its automobiles in Ontario at prices far higher than it could buy them for in Seattle, just across the border. It pays these high prices, created by the Canadian tariff, so that Ontario industries may be protected. On the cars now using the roads of British Columbia, we have paid, according to the provincial government's official calculation, at least $25,000,000 more than we would have paid for them in Seattle—either to help Ontario or to swell the customs receipts of the Dominion government.

"Added to the enormous premium we have paid on our clothes, shoes, furniture, almost every manufactured article that we use, you will see what kind of a toll we have carried.

"In return, we market little in the east. Our products are sold almost entirely in world markets or, to a less extent, on the prairies. Here, in addition to the heavy visible taxation and an economic drain not shown in government blue books which, we feel, justifies us in asking temporary aid from Canada in our temporary difficulties."

Concluding the article Mr. Hutchison sums up as follows:

"Well, then, what will satisfy this restless young province behind its wall of mountains? Most British Columbians couldn't answer that offhand, for up to now their resentment has hardly had time to crystallize into definite plans. Certainly they don't want a hand-out from Canada. They want to carry their share of the load and a real opportunity to do it.

"They want some kind of a revision of the nation's economic structure—in tariffs, in trade, in currency and credit—to enable them to use their own wealth which lies, waiting to be used, at their door. Moreover, while all men's minds nowadays are in disagreement on actual methods, all have been convinced that such a revision is possible, that we could all be prosperous if we used our heads. That conviction is the most significant, perhaps the most hopeful thing that has come out of the depression in the west."

PAGANISM IS SEEN IN SCOTLAND

Ministers of Churches Condemn Visits to Clouties Well in Highlands

A Victoria visitor to Scotland tells how thousands of people visit Clouties Well and to tie a clout to the bushes nearby to ward off evil spirits. For hundreds of years people from all over the country have visited it on the first Sunday in May, dropped a coin and wished. The church has put a ban on the custom but visitors have continued to increase.

J. G. Brown, formerly of the Dominion Public Works Department at Victoria and at one time a frequent visitor to Prince Rupert, writes of it to the Victoria Times:

"The ministers of churches in the Highlands have condemned these visitations as pagan, irreligious and superstitious and contrary to Christian principles and belief, and call it trafficking with the Devil. This condemnation instead of arresting the pilgrimages has increased them tremendously. It has called the attention of thousands to this affair who would not have heard of it, excited their curiosity, and to such an extent has this increased that bus companies applied to the road authorities for permission to run busses from almost every corner of the Highlands, north, south, east and west. When these applications were heard, bitter opposition was put up by the ministerial bodies. But they lost out, and on the first May Sunday bus loads of people arrived at the well from Inverness every hour, and bus loads from every quarter of the Highlands as far south as Perth and Dundee arrived at frequent intervals all forenoon and afternoon. In addition dozens of private motor parties also visited the well. All those visiting the well take a drink of the water, drop their coin and make their silent wish. Others tie the 'clout' on the bushes, drop their coin in the well and make their silent wish too. The money dropped in the well is later retrieved and distributed to Highland charities."

Two nights ago I visited Mr. Macklin's garden. His home is known among the neighbors as "The Castle," a little stucco bachelor's residence, neat and picturesque. Of course he built it himself and he is improving it and the grounds steadily. I have spoken before of his fine English Iris. Now he has sweet peas, dahlias and many other flowers and soon will have gladioli. He grows quantities and gives them away. He is a pretty good man to know. He never minds picking his flowers.

James Boyd is grooming up his chrysanthemums and should have a fine showing there in the fall. His sweet peas look well and are likely to be heard from at the flower show next month. Jack Frew is also likely to be heard from about that time. He has some fine rose trees and his sweet pea "Fragrance" is the last word in beauty and perfume. There should be a great showing of flowers if the weather man is a little more decent than he was in his treatment of the rose show.

Gardening In Prince Rupert

This is a good time to take stock of the big rose importation which was made last spring. Dozens of people have expressed themselves as extremely pleased with the manner in which the trees have grown and the varieties they received. I am very pleased with the ten trees I took. Many of my neighbors have also expressed themselves along similar lines. A few are not so well satisfied. Fred Riffou had two trees of Dainty Bess, which he does not like. It is a single rose with only five petals much like a wild rose only larger and the color more delicate. I have promised to buy one of these from Fred as soon as they are ready to move. It is largely a matter of taste. I like them, he does not.

I should like to hear of any others who have not been satisfied. It is a good thing to hear both sides of any question. By airing our grievances now we can avoid trouble in the future. Most of the trees are in bloom now and it is the time to speak.

I went last evening with Jack Frew to see a green rose. It is one of the imported trees a Karl Augusta Victoria, usually white but this one is strongly tinged with green. Two roses are in bloom and both flowers are greenish. They are an interesting freak grown by Walter Howarth, 641 Fifth Avenue, East.

Flying by Night British Feature

Air Force Pilots Expert in Navigating "Blind" Commons Told

LONDON July 28: (CP) — All through the year, in foul weather and fair, about 70 squadrons of the Royal Air Force practise night flying. Sir Philip Sassoon, under-secretary for air, told the House of Commons. He said the amount of night flying in the R. A. F. had greatly increased during the past three years.

Sir Philip referred to the importance of the correct use of navigational instruments. He declared the reason for failure of United States service pilots when they were put to run the air mails was they had had no experience of instruments for "blind" flying.

The under-secretary added: "Everybody knows that month by month experience of instrument flying increases in the Royal Air Force, and that now there is hardly a pilot in the force who has not learned to fly by his instruments. Therefore, when he flies in bad or foggy weather, he is able successfully to navigate his machine."

Sir Philip said a great amount of night flying was done by units at Farnborough, home of the research station known as the Royal Aircraft Establishment, and by headquarters units in various other stations. "If

Junior Elks Take Senior Brothers By Score of 6 to 5

After four defeats in a row at the hands of the older Elks the Juniors managed to turn the tables last night and emerged victorious by a score of 6 to 5.

Although the victors were on the big end of the score all the way through so very little separated the count that it was anybody's game until the end.

Lindsay, Young Elks' chucker, had his hands full in the last inning when the Seniors offered the "big stick" end of their lineup for his delivery. With a two-run lead to hold he was no little put out by the auspicious array of Elk batting power he had to stem, and when he walked the first man up, Johnson, the two-run lead began to look very inadequate. Joy next flew out but Lambie hit to centre-field to score Johnson. One run away from a tie Lindsay momentarily tightened up and fanned Oeg but again became nervous with the next man Budnich, and walked him. But Lambie ended the game by getting tagged out by Steffenrud coming into third.

Score by innings:
Senior Elks 0 0 1 1 0 0 2 0 1—5
Batteries—Junior Elks, Lindsay and Campbell.
Senior Elks, Brown and Budnich.

Man in the Moon

Good afternoon. How do you like Prince Rupert's weather?

By Jove it's hot
And yet it's not
As hot as it might be,
I like the sun
I think it fun

Taking a fly is all right but it must not be a filler in stocks at the wrong time.

Jake says he'd like to fly, fast and high, like an eagle in the sky. He'd dive and swoop and loop the loop, you'd see his smoke go by.

Now that the U. S. squadron is gone and Claxton cold storage is burned and the entrance exam results are out, I am wondering what will be the next excitement.

I have been enjoying reading about people taking holidays but mine still seem to be beyond the offing, wherever that may be.

How I'd like a holiday,
A jolly day, by golly say,
I'd surely have a lovely time
And do anything to complete this rhyme.

The teacher had been telling the class about the rhinoceros family. "Now, name some things," she said, "that are very dangerous to get near to, and that have horns." "Automobiles," replied Johnny.

"James, have you talked in school today?" inquired the teacher.

"Only wunst," said James, hanging his head.

The teacher turned to the small girl sitting next to James.

"Helen, should James have said 'wunst'?"

"No, ma'am," answered Helen. "He should have said 'twice'."

Salmon Trollers on Queen Charlotte Islands Having Big Harvest—Salvage Princess Back From Islands—Naas Fishing Better Than Skeena

Salmon trollers around Seven Mile Point and Shag Rocks are having one of the biggest harvests in years. A fine run of cohoes and springs in continuing after having been on for the last ten days or so. All boats are doing well and, in some cases, there have been handsome financial returns, all of which is helping to make up for the recent lean times. There are some 200 boats fishing on the Massett grounds and on some days they have been averaging 1000 pounds with some of the larger boats getting as high as 1800 pounds or so. At North Island no records have yet been broken although there has been fair fishing. The Canadian Fish & Cold Storage Co. is packing Massett salmon to its plant here, the Canadian Fishing Co. is taking it at Butedale and deliveries are being made to New Westminster for Edmunds and Walker. The Massett Cannery are also packing cohoes at Old Massett Cannery, having so far put up over 2000 cases.

The Pacific Salvage Co.'s power tug Salvage Princess, Capt. Joe Desmules, under charter to the Nootka Packing Co. for salmon packing to New Massett cannery, arrived in port early this morning from the Islands, bringing Manager Ferguson of the Massett Cannery who may take seine fish from the mainland pending the commencement of the Massett pink run which should develop within the

Skeena and Naas Rivers
Fishing on the Skeena has not been quite as good this week as last. Averages to the boat of sockeye yesterday were twenty-five but there were few fish in the river itself. The result was that practically all the fishing was done outside. It was feared that the fire at Claxton would interfere with the activities of the B. C. Packers but it is satisfactory to know that they will be operating the cannery again Monday after a temporary stoppage.

The Naas River has been giving better results than the Skeena. Yesterday fishermen took an average of 40 fish to the boat. Pinks are showing up in increasing numbers on both the Naas and Skeena. Cohoes are being taken at all the trolling grounds as well as springs.

The cold storage plant at Claxton Cannery caught fire yesterday at 10:30. The news was flashed to Vancouver and at noon Herbert Fullerton of the firm of Blaine, Fullerton and White, insurance adjusters, left Vancouver by plane and arrived here last evening about 7 o'clock. Later they left for Claxton to make an adjustment of the claims so that the work of the cannery might not be held up.

Rum-Runners In New Role

PICTOU, N.S., July 28.—High powered boats that were geared for speed to run away from preventive cutters in the rum trade are now racing from this port to Boston, New York and Palm Beach with lobsters as their cargo. They make the trip to Boston in the legitimate trade in 36 hours and facilitate market conditions by rushing their live cargo in fresh.

Pretty Wedding Round Lake Lady

Ceremony Took Place at Smithers Anglican Church

With the edifice tastefully decorated for the occasion, a pretty wedding took place in St. James' Anglican Church, says the Interior News, Smithers, at 7 o'clock on Friday evening, July 20, when Lola Irene, daughter of Mrs. Laura Wakefield of Round Lake, became the bride of Victor Lawrence Williams, of Finlay Forks. The Rev. L. J. Hales was officiating clergyman.

Given in marriage by her uncle, E. C. Barger, the bride entered the church on his arm to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march played by C. Rotham, and looked charming in white silk georgette and lace made in coat effect. Orange blossoms held her long veil in cap effect. Her bouquet consisted of bridal rose, peonies and pinks, with fern.

The attending bridesmaids were Miss Bonnie Wakefield and Miss Doris Barger, cousins of the bride, the former attired in a gown of flowered crepe and the latter in a pale mauve crepe, each carrying bouquets. The groom was supported by Lester Wakefield, brother of the bride.

During the signing of the register Miss Alice Barker sang "Because."

T. J. Crossland was a passenger south last night on the Princess Adelaide.
