Some of the European nations are not paying Great Britain or United States and the people of those countries are not taxed anything like as heavily as are the British. It is ridiculous to think that one little nation should carry the whole cost of the war. All must do their share.

BUSINESS IMPROVEMENT

Some Prince Rupert people complain that business has not improved with them, at least not enough to mention, while others say business is well on the up trend. A review |. of the financial situation arriving by mail states: "Canadian business on the whole has been rising from the de-pression at about the same pace as it fell in the last stages GOLF QUEEN pression at about the same pace as it fell in the last stages of the decline."

The review says that recovery from depression is usually marked by sharp upward increases and occasional stability or minor declines which at the time are regarded Ada Mackenzie Defeated by Mrs. M. with apprehension. Business recovery to prosperity levels is seldom uninterrupted and the revival in Canada to date has been of that type. The pace in Canada has been unusually rapid but uneven and subject to interruptions.

The review points out that perhaps more than any other women's golf champion ended yessingle factor in bringing about improved conditions was terday when Mrs. M. McIntosh of the example of Great Britain in stabilizing government waterloo county Golf Club deand converting the national debt. Canadian and other markets responded.

Another report coming from Montreal shows that the nament. Power Corporation of Canada subsidiary concerns all report increased business. Included in the list was the Northern B. C. Power Company which reported a very considerable increase.

We have been told that we are too optimistic but we are in duty bound to tell these things and we hope to be able to be more optimistic before very long.

Ancient Deed To English Property Comes to Light

A rather unusual legal document, unique on account of its great age, has been turned over to City Solicior E. F. Jones by an unemployed person in the form of an original parchment deed made out in the year 1620 during the reign of King James I under which a man named John Dilly transferred to John Creeke a house and parcel of land abutting the village common in the village of King Sutton, Northamptonshire, England. There were no blank printed deed forms in those days as there are today and this document has been laboriously printed out in script, the phraseology being, however, largely similar to Third Ave. that which is used today. The document is in an excellent state of preservation. The owner would sell it to any person who might be interested in such a relic.

Mining has entered on a period of renewed activity. Employment in mining increased 8% in 1933. It was responsible for the furnishing of much more employment in associated industries. Its importance as a producer of new wealth and as source of employment, directly and indirectly, may be expected to materially increase throughout 1934.
