Austrian Situation Quietens Down As New Anti-Nazi Regime Takes Over Responsibility of Government

Dr. Kurt Schuschnigg Succeeds Engelbert Dolfuss as Chancellor—Disgruntled Nazi Soldier Confesses Having Committed Assassination

LONDON, July 30: (CP)—Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, acting Prime Minister of Great Britain, informed Parliament today that there is no immediate danger of war in Europe despite the difficulties and perplexities of the present situation.

VIENNA, July 30: (CP)—A new Austrian cabinet was appointed yesterday with Dr. Kurt Schuschnigg, an ardent anti-Nazi, succeeding Engelbert Dolfuss as Chancellor.

Authorities today announced that Otto Planetta, disgruntled former Army sergeant, dismissed because of Nazi sympathies, confessed to firing the shot last Wednesday which killed Chancellor Dolfuss.

Week-End Developments: Week-end developments in the Austrian situation included the following: Great Britain, France and Italy, it was reported, might demand that Chancellor Adolph Hitler dissolve the Legion of Austrian Nazis in Germany.

Another wave of Italian troops started northward Saturday to support 48,000 now concentrated on the Austrian border. A strong police cordon was placed around the German embassy at Rome when a large crowd gathered, apparently bent on a hostile demonstration.

An official Belgrade communique emphatically denied as without foundation reports published abroad that Jugo-Slavian troops were being concentrated on the Austrian frontier.

Rumors were current at Steenockerzeel, Belgium, that former Archduke Otto von Hapsburger, pretender to the Austrian throne, and his mother, the former Empress Zita, are expected to reach Vienna shortly.

Count Sigray, leader of the Hungarian Royalists, in a statement at Budapest on the Austrian situation, said that restoration of the Hapsburg monarchy had become absolutely necessary for Austria and Hungary.

ACTRESS IS DEAD

Marie Dressler, Beloved Figure of Stage and Screen, Passes Away Saturday Night

Was Sixty-Two

Middle Age is Best Part of Life, She Found—Had Great Success Late in Life

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., July 30: (CP)—Marie Dressler, veteran Canadian-born stage and screen actress, who had been ill for the past two months with a complication of diseases and whose recovery was despaired of some weeks ago, died here Saturday night. She was 62 years of age, having been born in Cobourg, Ont., November 9, 1871.

Marie Dressler was Hollywood's "grand old trouser," although the stage also claimed her for its own. The veteran actress had been everything in the show world, from chorus girl to screen star.

Although success came to her late in life and after years of bitter struggle, Miss Dressler made no complaint of a long period of unemployment before she became a film sensation by portraying Marthy in "Anna Christie."

"Middle age is the best part of life," she said after celebrating her sixty-second birthday. "You don't really begin to live or to appreciate life until after you're 50."

"One of the most tragic and pitiful sights in the world is a middle aged woman who feels that life is over for her, and looks and acts accordingly. They are such fools. As soon as their families are reared and their hair is turning gray, they fold their hands and give up the game.

"Why, if they only knew it, life is just beginning for them. They can start living for themselves instead of thinking about other people. Their responsibilities are over. I didn't really begin to live until I was 50, and I honestly feel younger than I did at 25."

Born Lelia Koerber, Miss Dressler's father was Alexander Koerber, an officer in the Crimean War. Anne Henderson Koerber, her mother, was a musician.

Miss Dressler spoke appreciatively of her Canadian birth and upbringing, but on occasion she defended her United States citizenship with characteristic vigor.

The actress' first public appearance was as cupid on a pedestal at the age of five in a church theatrical performance at Cobourg. (Continued on Page Four)

Canada at War Twenty Years Ago

(Written for the Canadian Press by Captain W. W. Murray, M.C.)
(Copyright, 1934)

The delirium which seized Europe in the feverish days towards the end of July 1914 was heightened by the baffling complexity of the elements entering into the international discord. A chronology of political and military activities discloses how undeviating was the path which led to armed conflict. On July 28, the day that Austria-Hungary declared war on Serbia, the German government rejected proposals for an international conference, made four days previously by the British foreign secretary, Sir Edward Grey.

Hoping for the best but fearing the worst, the British Admiralty ordered the First Second and Third Fleets to their war bases. From then on war measures developed with bewildering rapidity. On July 29, the day which saw the bombardment of Belgrade by the Austrian army, Russia ordered partial mobilization against the Dual Monarchy. A "warning telegram" was sent to the British fleets; the War Office ordered a "precautionary period" for the army, Germany still believing that Great Britain might be induced to keep out of the impending cataclysm, made a bid for British neutrality.

In brief, Germany proposed that she would seek no territorial expansion from France itself should she emerge victorious from a conflict with that republic. Germany, however, would give no similar undertaking with respect to the French colonies. The integrity and the neutrality of the Netherlands would be observed, declared the German note. The document had one important omission—it made no mention whatever of the neutrality of Belgium.

"What does that amount to?" declared Rt. Hon. H. H. Asquith, then Prime Minister of Great Britain, in the House of Commons a few days later. "In the first place, it meant this: That behind the back of France we should have given, if we had assented to that, a free licence to Germany to annex, in the event of a successful war, the whole extra-European dominions and possessions of France.

"What did it mean as regards Belgium? When she addressed, as she has addressed in these last few days, her moving appeal to us to fulfil our solemn guarantee of her neutrality, what reply should we have given? We should have been obliged to say that, without her knowledge, we had bartered away to the power threatening her our obligation to keep our plighted word."

In return, said the British Prime Minister, for the betrayal of France and Belgium the Germans were to give a promise—"a promise, be it observed, given by a power which was at that very moment announcing its intention to violate its own treaty and inviting us to do the same."

Germany's proposals were unacceptable, and the British note, delivered by Sir Edward Goschen, ambassador in Berlin, to Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg, said so.

P. W. Forest well known representative of Kelly-Douglas Co. Vancouver, was a passenger on board the Princess Charlotte Saturday afternoon returning south after a business trip to the Yukon Territory and Northern British Columbia.

The Letter Box

STATE DIRECTION

Editor, Daily News:—
Yes, Mr. Editor, there must be a change. All common sense people agree with the conclusion of your editorial regarding the North Vancouver election, but how is it to be? The crisis is nothing more or less than the finish of the old mode of capitalism with its liberal economy. The social problem perplexes the politicians, absorbs and obscures politics. What is the way out? Socialism? No! It is in fragments the world over. What then?

Briefly and clearly it is: Liberal economy, versus directed economy.

1. The main problem of the modern state today, is distribution of wealth. It is obvious that in order to do so, the state must intervene in private economy, discipline it, and dominate as rationally as possible the forces of the market, for the economic forces left to themselves can solve no problem and will only increase chaos.

2. The modern state must conscientiously, become the centre of the economic reality and, with laws and regulations, establish the mobile equilibrium of prices, products and consumption so as to utilize the immense energies possessed by humanity and the natural forces and exercise them in the interests of the national and world collectively.

3. The professional and trade categories constitute the reality of economic life. They, undisputedly, form the rational management of industry, therefore, the modern state must organize them to become the super-democracy and form the self-government of industry. Labor of hand and brain must cease to be a mere instrument of exploitation and become the subject of the whole economic and social structure.

Mr. Editor, Russia shifted the means of life from private hands to the one of the state and obtained—not Communism—but a capsized form of Socialism, namely, state capitalism, but is her social problem solved? Far from it! Have the advocates of the C. C. F. reflected on that experience in socialization of industry?

From the Waterfront

With 219 passengers, including 193 round-trip tourists, on board, C. P. R. steamer Princess Charlotte, Capt. W. Q. Pamer, was in port from 3:45 to 5:30 Saturday afternoon southbound from Skagway to Vancouver. One passenger disembarked from the vessel here while four boarded her at this port for the south.

The B. C. Packers service boat Florida V. arrived in port last night from Vancouver to pick up C. Thomas, managing director of the company, who flew north from Vancouver late last week owing to the cold storage plant fire at Claxton. Mr. Thomas will return south on the Florida V. after visiting other company plants in the north. Mrs. Thomas arrived on the Princess Louise this morning from Vancouver and went aboard the Florida V. here.

Over four hundred tourists were in town this morning aboard two Alaska steamers. C. N. R. Prince George, Capt. H. E. Nedden, arriving at 9 a.m. from Skagway and sailing at 3 p.m. for Vancouver, had 205 passengers on board, sixteen of whom disembarked here. C. P. R. steamer Princess Louise, Capt. Thomas Cliff, arriving at 10 a.m. from Vancouver and sailing at noon for Alaska, had 203 passengers on board including 144 round-trippers. The Louise also had 440 tons of freight for Skagway.

The Armour Salvage Co.'s service boat Salvage Princess, Capt. Joe Desmuller, which happened to be in port over the week-end from New Massett where she is under packing charter to the Nootka Packing Co.'s cannery, was pressed into service Saturday night to bring to the plant of the Canadian Fish & Cold Storage Co. here some 150,000 pounds of frozen halibut and salmon which had been salvaged from the Edmunds & Walker cold storage plant at Claxton on the Skeena River which was destroyed by fire last Friday. The Salvage Princess brought the fish in in her hold and on three scows Sunday morning and left last night for down the coast with A. Ferguson, manager of the Massett cannery.

ACTRESS IS DEAD

When she was 14, she appeared in the amateur theatrical show at Lindsay, Ont. She joined a roving light opera troupe. Her first job paid $8 weekly.

Success followed the footsteps of the ambitious young actress. It was during these successful days that she bridged the formerly uncrossable chasm between the social "Four Hundred" and the theatrical world. She became acquainted with Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, leader in New York society, while appearing as an entertainer at her home, and the acquaintanceship developed into a lasting friendship.

Not only social leaders were among her friends. She was a friend of most of the famous men and women in politics, finance and the arts over the world. She knew all the presidents since Cleveland.

TWO FILMS, BOTH GOOD

"Thirty Day Princess" and "The Trumpet Blows" at Capitol At First of Week

A breezy comedy-romance, "Thirty Day Princess," featuring Sylvia Sidney in a dual role, and a swaggering story, "The Trumpet Blows," in which George Raft is cast as a matador of the bull ring, comprise an interesting double bill which comes to the screen of the Capitol Theatre for the first of the week.

"Thirty Day Princess" is replete with chuckles, sly humor, bright dialogue and superb acting. Miss Sidney plays the dual part of a princess and pretender and wears a dazzling array of delightfully stylish gowns, dresses, coats and accessories. Cary Grant plays the part of a newspaper publisher who falls in love with the girl while Edward Arnold appears as a ruthless banker. Lucien Littlefield, Henry Stephenson and Edgar Norton have important supporting parts.

"The Trumpet Blows" unfolds a story of drama, romance and adventure below the Rio Grande. George Raft portrays the part of a Latin youth who is determined to gain fame in the bull ring. Adolphe Menjou appears as his brother, a retired bandit turned cattle baron. Frances Drake is an alluring dancer whose charms make the brothers rivals in love. The conflict reaches a thrilling climax in the arena.

Miss Raiphena Winch R. N., after a visit at Hazelton with her father, Dr. H. C. Winch, arrived in the city from the interior on this afternoon's train and sailed on the Prince George for Ocean Falls where she is a member of the hospital nursing staff.
