Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson Dies After Long Illness—Was, At Least, Spared Pain of Knowing Failure Of Efforts

Headed World Disarmament Conference at Geneva—Health Failed After His Crushing Defeat in Politics

LONDON, Oct. 21: (CP)—Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, president of the world disarmament conference and one time leader of the British Labor party, died yesterday following a two months' illness. He was seventy-two years of age. In failing health for the last few years, he underwent an operation in September from the effects of which he failed to recover. He took a turn for the worse late last week since when his recovery had been despaired of. His final illness at least spared him the pain of realizing the almost complete failure of his long efforts on behalf of peace as indicated by the existing international situation. Friends said he had been unable to read newspapers for a month and that he did not know Italy had attacked Ethiopia.

Arthur Henderson was a sick man when, as its chairman, he opened the world conference on disarmament at Geneva in February, 1932.

He was sicker, probably, than many of those who saw and heard him realized, for ruddy good health and geniality sloughed rapidly away from him after the labor party's catastrophic defeat in the British general elections in the fall of 1931.

Possibly the strain of the campaign and the hectic months that went before it, the opposition of old friends and the fact that he was the focal point of the attack, may have aggravated his ailment. At all events, he learned the news of his own overwhelming defeat while lying ill in a hotel bedroom.

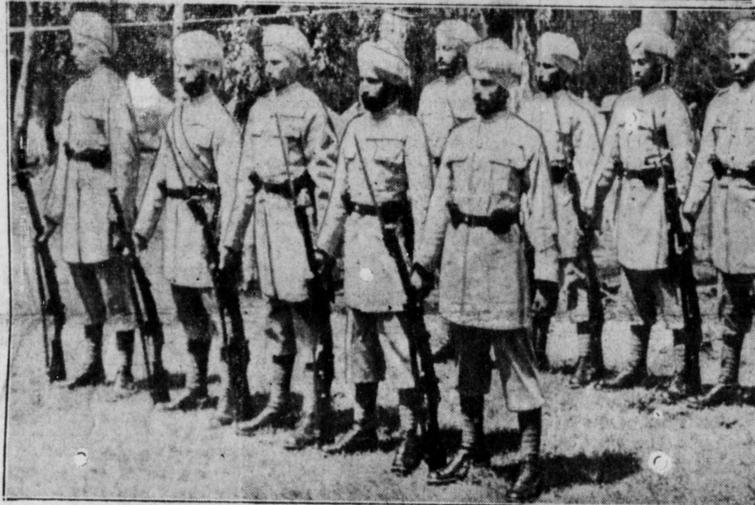

He was chairman of England's labor party, succeeding Ramsay MacDonald, and for the moment it must have seemed the collapse of a lifetime's hard work. His illness prevented further public appearances in England for many weeks, and he went to the south of France to recuperate. For some time it was known an operation would be necessary.

Known from Land's End to John o' Groats as genial, smiling expansive—almost an impersonation of the well known figure of John Bull—Henderson's face was haggard, drawn with suffering and deeply creased when the Geneva conference met. But despite the bitter campaign which had sprung up in England against his keeping the post of chairman, he did so. Certainly this told something of his tenacity of character.

Born in Glasgow He was born in Glasgow September 13, 1863, into a poor family. As a youth he was apprenticed to the iron workers' trade in Newcastle and it was through his trade union that he climbed into national politics and prominence.

By 1903 he was mayor of Newcastle. The next year he was elected to Parliament, holding the seat

British Isles Swept By Gale

Two Deaths at Least Caused And Considerable Damage Done—Ship's Crew Missing

LONDON, Oct. 21: (CP)—A gale, raging as high as 100 miles per hour in some sections of Scotland swept the British Isles on Saturday and continued over the week-end, disrupting shipping and causing two deaths. Many small boats on the Clyde in Scotland were smashed and sunk. At least two steamers had to be abandoned in the North Sea but there was no loss of life.

In the face of the gales, the most severe in a score of years, eight ships were searching the Northern Atlantic Ocean today for thirty-seven members of the crew of the Donaldson liner Vardulia which was abandoned in the storm off the Hebrides late Saturday. The captain wireless that he was abandoning ship and taking to the lifeboats but no trace of the ship or the small boats was found.

GERRY MAY BE THERE

Evidently there is yet a chance that G. G. McGeer may be elected in Vancouver-Burrard. Many people of all parties hope he is elected in order that he may have a chance to demonstrate his ability to make a mark or otherwise in the House of Commons at Ottawa. It is evidently the supreme test in politics. He made quite a stir with his addresses on finance when in the east but it is quite a different matter speaking before a couple of hundred seasoned politicians. The result of the Vancouver count will be a matter of great interest everywhere in the province.

THE ENEMY

The Liberal leader who is to become Prime Minister of Canada in a few days made a statement on election night in regard to the enemies of the party. He said: "Poverty and adversity, want and misery, are the enemies which Liberalism will seek to banish from our land. We take up at once, as our supreme task, the endeavor to end poverty in the midst of plenty, starvation and unnecessary suffering in a land of abundance; discontent and distress in a country more blessed by providence than any other on the face of the globe, and to gain for individual lives and for the nation as a whole that 'health and peace and sweet content' which is the rightful heritage of all."

BOOTH IN EASY WIN

Defeated Borden Street Six to Nil in Junior Football Game

Booth Memorial School, with the advantage of experience and weight, won from Borden Street School in Saturday's Junior Football League game by six clear goals.

With the wind and hill in their favor, Booth early attacked but McLeod and Scherk cleared. Nelson saved from Ritchie and McKay. Kihara and Smith held the Booth forwards off but, after Nelson saved from Ritchie, Cameron scored. Currie then broke away but Dybhavn saved his shot splendidly. Gomez centred to Ritchie who passed to McKay for the latter to add a second with a fine drive. Ritchie added a third when he lobbed the ball over the back's head and just inside the upright. Schubert made a fine run and centre. Currie was stopped by Beynon. Ormiston stopped Judge and Kihara.

Booth still had the better of the game. Smith and Scherk were strong in defence and McLeod very safe. From Cameron's well taken corner Ritchie added a fourth and, within five minutes, added a fifth from an identical corner also taken by Cameron. Borden now took up the attack and McLean had to be on the job to stop Currie. Beynon and Anderson were safe, however. Judge tried out Dybhavn who cleared and then later kicked clear from Schubert. Borden forced two corners but they were cleared. Ormiston had a try which was high but Ritchie added the last goal with a high shot.

Borden—Nelson; McLeod, Parlow; A. Smith, Scherk, Morse, Schubert, Wong, Currie, Kihara, Judge.
Booth—Dybhavn; Beynon, Anderson; Franks, McLean, Ormiston; Cameron, McKay, Ritchie, Geary, Gomez.

A Horne refereed very efficiently. D. Fitch and R. Smith were linesmen.

Nelson, McLeod, A. Smith, Scherk, Schubert, Kihara and Judge were best for Borden which was handicapped by Roma's absence.

Dybhavn did well to save Currie's shot. Beynon, Ormiston, McLean, Franks, Cameron, Ritchie and McKay were the pick of Booth players.

The league standing to date is as follows:

	W.	D.	L.	F.	A.	P.
High	2	1	0	10	2	5
Booth	2	1	1	12	6	5

Passing of Henderson

until 1918. He was defeated in the "khaki" election of that year along with most of the other labor party candidates. But he came back in 1922.

Henderson was first made chairman of the labor party in 1908 and in 1914, when pacifism forced Ramsay MacDonald out of politics, he again took the reins. Joining the war-time coalition government, he became president of the board of education. In 1916 he was paymaster general and labor adviser to the government.

Went To Russia

The next year the cabinet sent him on the first British mission to Russia, with authority to stay there as ambassador at $40,000 a year if he thought it the thing to do. In Lloyd George's war cabinet he was minister without portfolio until, annoyed by the Welshman's tactics, he resigned. He was home secretary in the first labor government and secretary of state for foreign affairs and a world figure in the 1929-31 labor cabinet.

Most of Labor's triumphs in this, its second government, came in the foreign field—which is to say that Arthur Henderson did a good job. One of his maxims was that nothing was more vital to world stability and peace than an understanding between Britain and America.

His other preoccupation in the foreign field was disarmament and he spent no little of his health in its behalf. He was married in 1888, but Mrs. Henderson kept quietly in the background. They had three sons and one daughter.

guarantee all British rights in Africa and full protection of all British interests and property, stating that he has no intention of menacing or attacking Egypt and that his whole plan is one of peaceful penetration to give Italy an outlet for emigration and a source of natural resources which she needs. Even in the face of the sanctions, Mussolini is said to nurse only the best of intentions towards England. Renewal of discussions between Great Britain, France and Italy are hoped to bring about a basis for a peaceful settlement of the whole crisis.

It was said here, however, that Great Britain intends to maintain her fleet in the Mediterranean despite the easing of the Italo-British tension and the definite understanding with France for support in case of the British fleet being attacked by Italy.

After having been on the local dry dock for three weeks following a stranding in Grenville Channel as a result of which considerable damage had to be repaired, Frank Watehouse freighter Northholm went off the pontoons on Saturday and sailed over the week-end for Vancouver to be recommissioned in service. Capt. A. W. Ogden, who stood by the ship while she was being repaired, is still in command.

GARDEN 'NOTEBOOK

The sharp frost last night cut back most of the flowers in some parts of the city. Chrysanthemums stand considerable frost so have not yet been injured. With the prospect of frost tonight it is possible that some of the following notes in regard to moving annuals may not apply except for gardens near the waterfront.

Any time within the next six weeks would be suitable for the planting of tulips, daffodils, narcissi, crocuses or lilies. The difficulty is to get a time when the soil is dry enough to cultivate.

Modern planting of bulbs shows a tendency to get away from the straight rows. It is easier to plant in rows than in such a way as to give the flowers a natural appearance. Nature abhors straight lines. I have seen a number of pictures lately where the tulips looked as if the bulbs had been thrown a bowlful at a time and had been planted just as they were found on the ground. Of course that would not do for formal beds but in gardens where an attempt is made to secure a natural landscape feature, straight rows should be avoided.

Numbers of local people are now digging up small annuals which may not have bloomed outdoors and are taking them inside. They have to be lifted carefully and it is best to keep them in a very cool place until they have got over the shock of moving else they will wilt and will not recover. The other day I lifted a small dahlia plant that was covered with buds. I kept it in the open porch for a few days and although it showed a very slight wilt the first day, it soon recovered and today looks as if it has been grown in the small tub.

Winter and spring bulbs may yet be planted in boxes, pots, tubs,

FINE PREACHER

Editor, Daily News:
On Saturday you were kind enough to publish some impressions of Professor J. King Gordon's lecture on "Christian Ethics." Today, Monday, these impressions remain unchanged. But today, Monday, we know there are two Mr. Gordons. There is Professor J. King Gordon who lectured on "Christian Ethics," and there is the Reverend J. King Gordon who preached Christ's Gospel.

The Professor was not so hot, at least on Friday, but the preacher on Sunday was in the front rank. Were more preachers like him, our churches would be full. Then our lecture halls could well remain empty.

Should the Rev. Mr. Gordon return to Prince Rupert, even I, "Chicot," would turn out seven nights a week to hear him preach. And more, I would bring my friends!

Last night's full church may show that Christ's Gospel makes a wider and deeper and, in the long run, more effective appeal than denunciation of the existing social or economic system. The whole is greater than the part. Preach the Gospel, Mr. Gordon! That's the one thing God gave you the ability to do. You won't be forgotten here soon.

them as people are realizing that formality is not to be desired in the garden.

On the first suitable day the gladiolus bulbs should be lifted, dried and stored out of reach of frost or rats. Dahlias will soon have to be taken up and dried but in some parts of the city they are still blooming and everyone will want to get the last possible bloom.

I have a number of gladiolus in bud which are not yet showing color. I am hoping they may yet come out. Once they show color I pick them and let the flowers open indoors.—H. F. P.

A Lovely Healthy Boy

We received yesterday a letter from a mother up-country who has a wonderful baby boy that is being raised upon Pacific Milk.

"We used Pacific Milk exclusively after the first month," she writes. "The baby at six months weighed 22 1/2 lbs. and measured 26 to 27 inches and in spite of a fair share of hot weather he has had no trouble of any kind."

The lady closes her letter with a strong endorsement of Pacific Milk as a food for babies.

SHOW HAS BIG BILL

Two Feature Pictures and Three-Quarters of an Hour of Vaudeville at Capitol

The Capitol Theatre is presenting to its patrons at the first of this week a large and especially interesting program of entertainment. First there is a stirring pulse-pounding drama "The Informer," starring the powerful Victor McLaglen, then a lavish and brilliant new musical production "Hooray For Love," featuring Ann Sothern and Gene Raymond with catchy tunes and snappy dances, and a forty-five minute stage attraction with Dick Drakelow, ventriloquist, mentalist and magician, and "One Lung," Chinese impersonator and one-string fiddler, who is often heard on radio stations CJOR and CKMO of Vancouver.

A great character study and absorbing story, "The Informer" affords McLaglen what he himself considers the finest role of his entire career. While the drama centres closely around one character, roles of power and human quality are carried by Margot Grahame, Preston Foster, Heather Angel, Wallace Ford, Una O'Connor and J. M. Kerrigan. Dublin is the locale and the period, the troubled years after the World War.

"Hooray For Love" is the story of two ambitious youngsters who set out to win in the toughest game in the world—the theatre. It is a spectacular and tunesome picture with a good story and plenty of comedy.
