Shopping Was Done Early This Year-Trade Up To Expectations

Christmas Eve

Due, undoubtedly, to Prince Rupert people having accepted the advice this year to shop early, the downtown Christmas Eve rush was possibly not quite as marked as usual. Christmas trade generally was reported by the most of merchants, however, to have been quite up to expectations.

The city was orderly and the police had no exceptional cases to deal with. There was a good deal of jollification but all of a goodnatured and harmless nature.

Boxing Day Quiet In Prince Rupert

Business Practically Suspended In Prince Rupert Yesterday

With stores, offices, banks and even newspapers closed, Boxing Day was quiet in Prince Rupert with a minimum of stir on the streets except for a while in the The Ladies' Orange Benevolent morning there were still some ham-afternoon when the matinee at the Association held its Christmas Tree pers available.
