TAFT IS DISAPPOINTED

Upon Receipt of News That Reciprocity Was Defeated the Prices of Foodstuffs on the Chicago Market Started to Soar-Increased Prices on Foodstuffs Sure to Follow

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Halifax, September 22.-Mr. R. L. Borden, leader of the Conservatives, has dictated the following statement, following morning papers expressed great his victory:

"In rejecting reciprocity, Canada has amply affirmed her adherence to the policy of national development which she has pursued for many years. The Government, without a mandate from the people, undertook to reverse that policy and upon submitting their action to the people were defeated.

"The verdict was in no wise dictated by a spirit of unfriendliness to the great neighboring republic. No such spirit exists. My conception of friendly relations can be best maintained if each country preserves complete and entire control over its own tariff and enters into no entangling agreements which might THE COUNTRY HAS SPOKEN AND impair and effect that control."

President Taft Disappointed

Kalamazoo, Mich., September 22.-President Taft received most of the returns of the Canadian elections by wire last night. As the bulletins indicated the defeat of the Government and of reciprocity, the President expressed his bitter disappointment.

At Washington the utterances of Champ Clark when he referred to the annexation is attributed to a great extent, the result of the polling.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Chicago, September 22.-Prices of all foodstuffs rose sharply today as a result of the defeat of reciprocity by the Canadian voters. Wheat, oats, flour and barley are soaring. Increased prices to consumers on all the food supply is sure to follow.

Winnipeg, September 22.-Great disappointment was felt in many households in Western Canada today at the defeat reciprocity. To the average family reciprocity meant a saving of $100 a year on table provisions. It would have put more spending money in the pockets of the farmers by the reduced cost of American hams, canned goods, meats, vegetables and

THE FRENCH NATIONALIST IN POLITICS

Now that the heat of the election campaign is over, newspaper writers will be able to devote themselves to the discussion of subjects which the erstwhile excitement precluded. One of these-and the most important by far in its possible effect on the future of Canadian history-is the French Nationalist movement.

With the coalition between the Conservative party and the French Nationalist party, the Nationalist party now becomes a recognised force in Canadian politics. With the Nationalists holding the balance ship owner of Baltimore, who today of power in the new House, they achieve an importance far beyond is in San Francisco. Baker will their numbers. They can tip the scales which way they will. It will make a hurried trip along the not be surprising to find the French Nationalist party in Canada, canal, studying meantime confollowing much the same tactics, with much the same results as that ditions, after which he will hasten of the Irish party in the British House, a party which in national to Washington, D. C., to complete passion, in racial ideals, in religion, in temperament, and in natural the organization of his company brilliancy and aptitude for political strife they much resemble.

In the far West, we are apt to underestimate and badly misjudge a movement which is removed from us not merely by three thousand miles of space but which finds its expression in another language. An usually well-informed Prince Rupert man was overheard recently to refer contemptuously to the Nationalist movement. Henri Bourassa, its leader, he referred to as "a little upstart." The speaker was very far from the facts. In point of physique, Mr. Bourassa may not be large, but he is not an "upstart." He is the truest aristocrat in America. The bluest of blue blood is his. He is a grand seigneur in his own country, sprung from a race of grand seigneurs. He numbers the great Papineau among his ancestors. And blood counts in Quebec.

Bourassa has not only blood and all that goes with it, he has great wealth, and above all great genius. His is a trinity of power. And that trinity of power is being laid on the altar of the French Nationalist movement with all the fervency of religious zeal.

At heart the Nationalist movement is a religious movement. Its seed was sown when Champlain founding Quebec, placed the new colony under the aegis of the Most High. It must be remembered that the ancestors of Henri Bourassa and his like were not traders seeking commerce across the seas. They were the flower of Catholic France. Wherever they set foot to raise the fleur-de-lis in the new land, they planted the cross also. And as we have said, blood counts.

The French Nationalists do not conceal their aim. Says Armand

Lavergne in Le Nationaliste:

"When we shall be sufficiently numerous and strong for information leading the Franco-American race will also wing its flight, independent and unmixed, to play in the new world the glorious and sublime role played in Europe by France."

Omer Heroux, the brilliant editor of Le Devoir, writing in La Verite expressed the same ideal in language, less verbose and more direct. He says:

"We believe the constitution of an autonomous French

State is our logical destiny." Henri Lemay in the Revue Canadienne for 1910-a journal published by a group of professors in Laval University, and representative of educated French Canadian opinion-says:

""There will appear some fine day in the heaven of nations family of the deceased. a new star of the first magnitude and of unprecedented brilliancythe star of Canada, thrown off by the momentum of liberty from the constellation of which it had hitherto been compelled, by the ever-increasing force of necessity, to be the satellite.

"When will it happen? It is very difficult to say precisely. But it is reasonable to suppose that the men of our generation will be the witnesses of it."

Mr. Lemay frankly states his belief that the larger birth rate among the French Canadians (42 per 1000, as compared with 22 per 1000 for the rest of Canada) is an evidence of Divine favor, and calculates that by natural increase the French Canadians will grow from 2,000,000 mediate release; wants poet's adto 40,000,000 within the century. 40,000,000 he significantly points out is the present population of France.

To a movement that is calling the best of the youth of French bars a cage.'-Address Country Canada by its patriotic appeal, and that sees the finger of God in Jail." the battle on the Plains of Abraham equally with Carillon and Montmorency, "causing us to escape the terrible and sombre days of the Revolution and the Empire in France, and allowing our faith to continue to develop freely on this soil," the events of September 21st must be propitious. The history of Canada may be starting a new chapter today.
