REV. PRINCIPAL PATRICK DIES AT HIS OLD HOME

Rev. Principal of Manitoba College Had Gone to Scotland in Hope That it Would Restore His Health—Warm Tribute From Rev. F. W. Kerr

(Canadian Press Despatch)
Winnipeg, Sept. 29.—News received here this morning that Rev. Dr. Patrick, principal of Manitoba College, died early this morning at his old home at Kirkintilloch, Scotland, whither he had gone in hope of restoring his shattered health. The news of his death has caused profound regret in Winnipeg.

Tribute from Rev. F. W. Kerr
Speaking as an old student of Manitoba College, Rev. F. W. Kerr, when informed of the death of his late principal, said: "In the passing of Dr. Patrick, Canada loses one of her greatest men. I have known Dr. Patrick since 1902 when I first entered Manitoba College. The college had just entered upon an era of intellectual revival, owing to the arrival of two great Scottish scholars, Principal Patrick and Professor Kilpatrick.

"For over ten years Dr. Patrick has been principal. He was one of the foremost Greek scholars on the continent; in his college days he won the highest honors year after year, at the same time undimining his health. Ever since he has been an indefatigable student, working often in the acutest pain, but with determination unconquered. He has been a great scholar, but better still, he has been a moral hero.

"He came to Canada to be a Canadian. He believed in our

WILL TRY TO STOP THE JOHNSON-WELLS FIGHT

London Times and Spectator Supported by Clergy Are Endeavoring to Have Monday's Contest Prohibited Home Secretary Consulting the Law Officers

(Special to the Daily News)
London, Sept. 28.—Great opposition is being fomented in Great Britain against the forthcoming heavyweight boxing contest between Jack Johnson and Bombardier Wells, which is scheduled to take place next Monday.

"Times" Denounces Fight
The "Times" in an editorial, urges that in the Empire's interest the Johnson-Wells match ought to be stopped because it has no sporting justification. The spectator, says the "Times," will be attracted by a morbid and unwholesome interest in a struggle between a white man and a black man, and the contest itself, together with the showing of fight pictures, only can serve to promote or aggravate the color feeling throughout the entire country.

champion: 'You are brothers,' said Mr. Meyer.

It is reported that Winston Churchill, the home secretary, is consulting the law officers with regard to the legal aspects of the case.

Johnson is "Tetchy"

Johnson, when interviewed in Paris, said that he was "tetchy" because the English papers were saying everything bad about him, and that he was not getting fair play. The London fight, he said, was a matter of indifference to him, as there were dozens of other places which would not object to a match.

"It's just like this. You don't want me to win, and that's the truth," said Johnson. "But I am going to win. That's what I came here for. Longsdale is sore at me because I would not fight for $6,000 at the National Sporting club. Why should I fight for $6,000 when I can get $15,000? I am over here for the money. If the fight is stopped in London we can fight in Paris and get a bigger crowd."

Preachers are Busy

The fight was denounced by many preachers in their sermons last Sunday, the main speaker being Rev. Mr. Meyer, of the Regents park chapel, who started the movement against the proposed battle at Earls' Court.

Mr. Meyer protested that prize fighting was demoralizing and brutal and also that it would embitter the feeling of the whites against the blacks in America, South Africa and India. "Of course, I shan't do it, but I would dearly like to break into the ring and say to the big negro and the white

WAR IN TWENTY-FOUR HOURS

Turkey Last Night Rejected Italy's Ultimatum Asking For the Immediate Evacuation of Tripoli---Italian Fleet Will Probably Open Hostilities by Bombarding Tripoli Today

Constantinople, Sept. 29---Before the day is over a state of war will have come to pass between Italy and Turkey.

Last evening an ultimatum was received at the Porte from the Italian Government giving Turkey twenty-four hours in which to evacuate Tripoli and Renghasni. The ultimatum intimated that only an immediate evacuation would be acceptable to Italy.

The ultimatum caused consternation in public and government circles when it became known that a time limit of twenty-four hours had been set.

At 9.45 p.m. the Cabinet after consultation decided to reject the Italian demands as embodied in the ultimatum. An explanatory note was drawn up and addressed to the Powers, outlining Turkey's position.

WEDDING LAST NIGHT WAS CHARMING EVENT

Flower-strewn Pathway for Winsome Bride—Reception Followed Pretty Ceremony in Anglican Church—Hearty Send-off on Honeymoon

"Quite the most picturesque wedding Prince Rupert has ever seen," is the comment this morning on the marriage yesterday evening of Miss Emilie Lysle Craig to Mr. Duncan McTavish. The wedding took place in the Anglican Church of St. Andrew, Rev. W. James being the officiating clergyman.

Amid a profusion of beautiful flowers from the south the young couple were united. A feature of the church decorations were the Union Jack and "Old Glory" draped on either side. The bride looked winsome in a rich lace frock, with filmy bridal veil and orange blossom wreath. Her bridesmaids were Miss McTavish, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Morley, her friend. The bridegroom was supported by Mr. E. Wallace, the ushers being Mr. H. P. Wilson, Mr. Pitcairn and Mr. C. H. Kearns.

The bride was given away by her father Mr. Morte H. Craig.

Prominent members of Prince Rupert society thronged the church and the choir seats presented a specially bright appearance. Miss L. Elliot at the organ rendered the wedding march from Lohengrin and Mendelssohn's wedding march at the beginning and end of the ceremony. As bride and bridegroom came down the aisle their path to the church door was strewn with flowers and rose petals by Miss Dorothy Palmer and

ROCK FRAGMENTS FLEW ROUND CHILD AT PLAY

Shot on First Avenue Contract This Morning Damaged Dr. Kergin's House and Endangered His Wife and Little Girl—Roof Pierced—Glass Shattered

A blast shot on Camozzi's First avenue contract this morning scattered small rocks very badly, and was nearly the means of causing the death of Dr. Kergin's little girl who was at play behind the Naden block when the rocks fell. A large fragment whizzed by her and shattered a window close to her. The force of the rock's fall smashed part of the window frame, and had it struck the child would have killed her.

Another larger fragment of rock struck the roof of the building and smashed the shingles and framing piercing right through to the inner lining of the roof. Daylight was let clear into a wardrobe and the smaller fragments split shingles and rendered the roof non-weather proof at many places. Mrs. Kergin who was working in her kitchen at the time ran almost as great a risk as the little one. She had just passed across the line of the stone's fall an instant before the shot was fired.

What makes the matter serious is the fact that no warning was given to the inmates of houses here, to go into safety, or to take the children indoors. Men called "Fire," but it was evidently not imagined that the blast would carry as far as this did.

When it went off the sound of crashing stones sounded in all directions. Messrs. Fisher and Wharton were warned out of their office, but when the cry "all over" came Mr. Fisher was able jovially to shout to Mr. Wharton across Second avenue: "They've missed us again!"

A much larger blast fired the day before yesterday blew badly back onto Second avenue lots, but threw no high stones. Twelve cases of dynamite were used in this blast, and the residents near by were uneasy about its effects. Though safe enough after all, the shot was not satisfactory to the contractor, it is understood.

G. T. P. IN CALGARY THIS YEAR

W. P. Hinton Says Good Progress is Being Made

Winnipeg, Sept. 28.—W. P. Hinton, general passenger agent of the Grand Trunk Pacific, who returned from an inspection trip of the western lines on Saturday, stated that he expected the Edmonton-Calgary line of the Grand Trunk Pacific would be opened this year. The contractors have experienced considerable trouble in getting supplies, notably steel for the large bridge over the Red Deer river near Alix but now this bridge is finished and the structural steel gang has gone to a bridge on the Brazeau coal branch. Steel laying south of Alix is proceeding at the rate of about three miles a day and the grade is finished far enough toward Calgary to keep ahead of the track-layer.

GROWING A $2,500,000 MELON OVER NIGHT

At the close of last year the stock of Toronto Railway, at the then prevailing price, was worth about $9,600,000. One night this July it was worth $12,000,000. Next morning it was worth about $14,500,000. Nothing had happened in the meanwhile. The earnings of the company were excellent, as they could hardly help being in a city which has so far outgrown its car service that over-crowding is the regular thing. But the earnings were not astonishingly better than they were in December. The people of Toronto hate the Street Railway with the same deep and determined hatred. The expiration of the franchise is set for the same fateful day; but the day itself is six months nearer. The prospect of a satisfactory renewal is just as remote. What then was it all about?

It was all about this. A group of very astute, energetic, and able stock manipulators had noticed that the price of Toronto Railway was low in comparison with the rate of earnings and the dividend paid. Not low in comparison with the value of the enterprise, be it remembered, for there is no guarantee that when the franchise runs out in ten years the property can be made to realize anything like its present value, and there is every reason of morality and decency why it should not. But the public when properly handled can always be induced to forget what is going to happen in ten years—wherever expects to hold a stock for ten years anyhow?—and to value a stock solely by the percentage of return in the next few years. The earnings of Toronto Railway were enormous; they were enough to pay a very comfortable dividend and put aside a sinking fund that would have replaced the value of the franchise when the franchise ran out.

But that would have been of no interest to a stock manipulator. So instead of increasing sinking fund and depreciation charges, the dividend was raised, and instead of securing ordinary-priced capital for the extensions that are absolutely imperative, the money is to be provided by the present stock holders, who are to get eight per cent return for it. In addition to an increased dividend and the chance to get eight per cent on a new investment, the fortunate holders are to receive new stock to the extent of one-eighth of their present holding absolutely free gratis, and for nothing, thus giving them a personal claim to another one-eighth increase in their dividend earnings. The company will get two million dollars in new cash; it will undertake to pay out to its share holders $320,000 in new dividends per annum. That is all right at the present time; the company can pay it and pay it easily. It is at the fat end of its franchise. It is serving a city of nearly half a million people with the appliances suited to two hundred thousand, and the half-million have to ride and pay fares no matter what the accommodation may be. But in ten years there will be no franchise, and the Toronto people will want to start fresh. And then either the people of Toronto or the share holders of the Toronto railway will be "out" the expenses of the melon-cutting.

This Toronto episode affords one more proof that in the growing cities of a new country like Canada the fixed-franchise system is a grotesque injustice. The franchised corporations are administered uniformly upon the theory that when the franchise expires the people who granted it can be made either to renew it or to buy it back at its full earning value; so that the more a corporation is enabled to make out of the gift temporarily bestowed on it by the public, the more it is enabled to demand of the public for the surrender of that gift.

CASTLE TO CROSS ATLANTIC

W. R. Hearst Reported to Have Bought Historic Tattershall. To Be Re-erected on Long Island.

London, Sept. 27.—It was reported today that Tattershall castle, in Lincolnshire, has been purchased by William Randolph Hearst. The old castle will be pulled down and re-erected on Long Island. Tattershall castle has been prominently brought to public notice because of the attempts which have been made to save the famous mantelpieces contained in it from being taken out of the country.

Tattershall castle was erected by Lord Cromwell, lord treasurer to King Henry VI., about the years 1433-1443, and has been described as probably the finest specimen of medieval brickwork in the United Kingdom.

THE POPE LIKES TO WALK

Great Churchman is so Energetic His Doctors Can't Get Him to Rest.

The doctors attending the pope find some difficulty in persuading him to rest sufficiently. Pius X has been described as one of the most active occupants of the holy see. Since the death of Leo XIII the carriage in which the late pope used to ride about the grounds of the Vatican has never left the coach house. Every morning, unless ill health or pressure of business prevents him, Pius X takes a sharp walk for at least two hours.

During formal audiences he is obliged to be seated, but at the deceptions held nearly every evening, open to all members of the papal aid, the pope paces up and down one of the Vatican galleries, and those who wish to address him have to walk by his side.

A TENDERFOOT'S WOOLING

By Clive Phillips Wolley

(AUTHOR OF GOLD, GOLD IN CARIBOO, ETC.)

Jim's best friend was his worst advocate. It was just that ability to take care of himself which told against him with the woman he loved; just the helplessness and dependence of Anstruther which appealed to Kitty.

It almost seemed as if the quiet of the sick room had leaked through the log walls, and pervaded not only the whole ranch, but nature itself. Even the storm had quieted down after that one wild night.

As the house lay somewhat lower than the surrounding country, it was wrapped in a veil of mist, through and above which the rising fell showed, patched with thin snow, which emphasized the great distances, and the beggarliness of the November foothills.

It was the time of the year in which, to a girl like Kitty, the contrast between the sheltered life of the Old Country and the homelessness of the new would be most apparent, and as she dwelt upon this, looking hour after hour into the gloom outside, the only relief to her thoughts was the necessity for waiting upon the man who had become to her typical of England. To her, in the midst of her reverie, came Phon, the Chinese cook.

"Missy Rolt here?"
"No; isn't she with the Boss?"
"No can find her. Ole Mary come, want some clothes. Heap cold, and the Chinaman gave a sympathetic shiver. 'You go find Missy Rolt; me plenty busy cook him grub.'"
Kitty looked at Anstruther. Apparently he was asleep, so humoring the cook, she went down to the library, where Rolt and his wife were sitting.

"Poor old soul; what a day for her to come," was Mary Rolt's greeting of the message.
"Just the sort of day to make one want more clothes, dear. Have you anything to give her?" asked Rolt.
"I can find something, I expect. I am rather glad that she has come, aren't you, Dick? It looks as if the trouble with her people is blowing over."

"Perhaps; but the fact that an Indian begs of you means nothing. You know what cultus poltash means."

"A free gift, that is a fool's bargain. I know, but I think poor old Mary is grateful and really likes me."

Her husband smiled. "He was not quite certain which would be the greater miracle, that anyone should not like Mary Rolt, or that an Indian should be grateful. He had known Indians for a lifetime."

After his wife had left the room on her mission of charity, taking Kitty with her to "rummage" in the old clothes box, the Boss, for some time, smoking and thinking, and his thoughts were not cheerful ones.

A good many of his castles in the air had fallen since Anstruther's arrival, and without Jim's help he did not feel as sanguine of ultimate success on the Risky as he had done.

A sharp cry called him back from the future to the present.

"What is it," he called, opening his door.

"I don't know, dear, answered his wife from the lumber room. 'It must have been Mr. Anstruther who called. 'Where is Kitty?'"

"Here with me, looking out something for old Mary."

"She ought not to—"

But at this point he and his wife reached the sick room together, where Kitty was already bending over Anstruther.

"He has fainted again," she said, chafing his hands helplessly, but even as she spoke consciousness returned to him.

"I beg your pardon," he murmured, faintly. "I give you all so much trouble, but when I tried to call you, I got another nasty one, and went off. I suppose, as usual. It seems to me I can't do anything without fainting," and he closed his eyes wearily, almost as if he were going to illustrate his last words.

"What did you want, old fellow?" asked Rolt, kindly. "We won't leave you again. It was very careless of us to do so."

Anstruther lifted his hand in deprecating fashion.

"Nonsense. I don't want so much looking after, but when Kitty was away I thought that I saw someone in that little room."

"In my bath room?"

"Yes, Kitty sits there sometimes when she wants me to stop talking and sleep, and I thought that she had come back."

"There is no one there now," said Rolt, coming back from the room.

"Who did you think it was?"

"I don't know. I saw someone peering round the door at me. I thought it was an Indian when I sat up and called, you know what happened."

"Did you hear the man move?"

"No; I only saw the face, or thought that I did, but perhaps it was only a sick man's fancy."

"He is a fraud, Kitty," decided Rolt, with a good-humored laugh; he wanted you back, and invented this bogie as an excuse to bring you back. Better not leave your post again," and so saying he dismissed the subject, but nevertheless he went into the little bathroom and looked round it very carefully. On the table beneath his looking-glass lay a handful of small silver, with his studs and some old gold seals in a china tray, and his watch was hung on a nail in the window frame. These were the only small moveables of any value in the room, and neither they nor anything else in the room appeared to have been touched. As he went out of the room he noticed a damp patch upon the polished wood of the stairs, which a vivid imagination might have made into the outline of a wet moccasin, but the Boss disregarded it.

Five minutes later when he met his wife downstairs, he asked whether she had found anything for the old woman.

"Yes, I made up quite a bundle for her, a warm petticoat and all sorts of thick things, Kitty's and mine; but the silly old thing has gone without them."

Rolt looked grave.

"Oh, you need not worry, Dick. We were rather long, I know, but it is so hard to decide what one really has done with, and if the old woman didn't get her clothes today, she will get them next week when she comes to give the house its monthly scrubbing."

Rolt looked out over the darkening landscape. The November day was drawing rapidly to a close, and he knew that old Mary had seven miles to trudge back to her rancherie, but it was curious that she had not waited. He could see the trail which led to the gulch through which ran Mary's road home, but there was no sign of her. Old as she was she must have moved quickly to have gained the shelter of the gulch already, or she could not have waited long for those clothes.

A question which Rolt wanted to ask was suppressed before it left his lips. Instead he asked his wife how long it was since old Mary had given the house one of her "thorough scrubbing."

"More than a month, I'm afraid. But you know they have all been away from the rancherie. Why? Do any of the rooms want scrubbing very badly, old man?"

"Oh, no, not a bit. I make a good deal of mess with my boots in the bath room, but you and Kitty look after the top floor, don't you, little woman. It is always as clean as a new pin in spite of my efforts to the contrary."

"What a delightful old humbug you are, Dick, where I am concerned," she said fondly. "I did not know that you would miss old Mary's ministrations. She cleans the whole house once a month, upstairs and down, but we ought to have kept up appearances at any rate in her absence. I will go and see to it at once."

This was more than Rolt had bargained for. He had obtained the information he wanted without alarming her, but by suggesting a fault where he knew none existed.

However, he followed his wife to the room, and was relieved to be shown all sorts of dirt and disorder, which he himself would never have noticed, but no trace could he find of that for which he was looking.

Nothing had been touched; nothing that he could think of was missing. Even that damp outline on the boards had dried off now. He wished that he had examined it more carefully, but after all, it could not have been old Mary in his room, though she apparently did know the way to it.

He paused for a long minute, and went over everything carefully with his eye. By George! his Winchester had gone. No, it hadn't. There it was behind his oilskin, and there was absolutely nothing else which she could have wanted.

That face peering around the doorway must have been a sick man's fancy.

CHAPTER XVII.

In order to keep Anstruther amused and occupied, Mary Rolt had dinner served that night for the four of them in the bedroom, busying herself in making the pretty place as vivid a contrast as possible to the grim world outside.

A wood fire glowed merrily on the wide hearth, and the light of it was reflected by the silver and glass that nestled cozily in the folds of the rose-colored cretonne hangings.

"Do you want all the blinds drawn, Frank?" she asked with her hand on the top of the door.

"Not unless you wish it."

"Well, then, I'll leave this one undrawn. I always snuggle into bed more cosily when I can peep out into a bitter night like that. Can you see down the valley from where you lie without moving? A peep at it will make the fire feel warmer and the room more homelike."

"It always feels homelike where you are, Mrs. Rolt."

She curtsied to him with a laugh, and then, turning to Kitty, who had just entered the room, bade her be quick with the dinner.

"And see, my girl," she added, "that is not the way to lay a table," and then with a few deft touches rearranged some of the silver.

Kitty for the nonce had donned cap and apron, and Anstruther was not the first to discover more charm and coquetry in a maid's cap than in her mistress's toilette.

"Does the family expect to be waited on or does it stretch?" she asked, saucily.

"What do you mean, Katherine?"

"Where I was last, the family had to be waited on when it had a party, but when it was by itself it stretched like this," and reaching across the table she possessed herself of a salt cellar.

"You went as a lady-help, I suppose," retorted Mrs. Rolt, severely, "all lady and no help, like Miss Moran."

"What was her story?" asked Anstruther.

"Oh, she came out to help the poor dear, her brothers. They could not afford to hire any help, and just pigged until she came. At the end of a fortnight their sister had discovered exactly ninety-nine different things, each of which was, 'the only thing she never could do,' and actually, guessing who it was who cleaned the boots, she put hers outside her bedroom door every night."

"And?"

"And? Oh, and she married, of course, and her brothers do just as they did whilst she was with them, except that her husband cleans her boots now."

But Anstruther was not listening to Mrs. Rolt's libel on lady-helps. Instead, he was gazing intently through the uncurtained window at the foot of his bed, to which the others had their backs turned.

"Who would be camping down the valley to-night, Mrs. Rolt?" he asked.

"In the hay meadows? No one."

"Is not that a fire? Surely, my eyes are not playing me false again?"

The Boss turned lazily in his chair.

"Yes, that is a fire sure enough. There are two of them. Do you see that little one just beyond the first?"

Suddenly Rolt's face changed. He sprang to the window, took one searching glance down the valley, and then turned sharply to his wife, his face working with some feeling which he strove to control.

"Mary, dear, I want to speak to you for a moment. Will you excuse me?"

Frank? and laying his hand on Kitty's shoulder as he passed, he whispered, "Keep him quiet whatever happens. I rely on you," and then he followed his wife from the room.

Once outside the door, his manner changed. "It's our stacks, little woman. Those devils are firing our winter feed. Keep cool and run now and tell the men in the dining-room. I'm off to the mess house to get the half-breeds. Keep your heart up; we'll stop them before they can do much damage."

He was running downstairs as he spoke, and snatched a Winchester from its rack as he passed out of the hall.

Mary Rolt's heart sank as she saw him snatch the rifle, but she did his bidding as he would have had her do it, with the utmost coolness, and when the men had rushed out after their master, she went back to the sick room. There was no need for any explanation there.

Through the uncurtained window a glare of red light proclaimed the work that was on hand, even if the noise of saddling up and the hurrying of hoofs beneath the window and the short sharp sentences of the mounting men had not told the tale.

"Is it shoot, Al?" they heard someone ask.

"Shoot? Aye, shoot to kill, curse them. Git, you devil, and a clatter of hoofs told that the horse had 'got.'"

"Never mind the near stacks, boys; you can save them. Ride for all you are worth to the first that is not lighted and—"

The Boss's voice died out as he galloped away with his men.

Morris Versus Flynn Boxing Bout at New York was a Sorry Affair. Another "White Hope" Gone.

A sadder but a wiser man, Carl Morris awoke one morning last week and gazed on the wreckage of one of the best advertised white hopes in Jack Johnson's history. The debris was none other than Carl himself. Some of the casualties were:

One broken nose, one tightly closed eye, several missing teeth, cuts and bruises too numerous to mention, and one cheek puffed to twice its normal size.

Stuck It Gamely

Morris had a very terrifying experience. His ten-round bout with Jim Flynn at Madison Square Garden was the goriest New York has seen in many years. Morris supplying most of the gore.

The giant Oklahoman was at no time a match for his diminutive adversary, and was given an awful trouncing. It was generally conceded that as a white hope Morris is quite hopeless, but he has at least treated Gotham to as fine an exhibition of courage as it ever saw.

During the last few rounds the battle became so one-sided that hardened old fight fans at the ringside begged Morris to quit, but the big fellow was game to the core, and was right on the job to receive all Flynn could send. And Flynn hammered and hammered until the ring looked like a busy day at the stock yards.

Is No Scrapper

Morris, big as he was, showed little real power as a scrapper, and if Lil Artha could have seen him he would have probably exploded from mirth.

The giant is strong and willing, but is one of the most amateurish sluggers that ever aspired to Johnson's crown.

Some experts think he may improve with time, but for the most part those witnessing last night's mill believe him a has-been already. He only made a good showing in one round—the third.

In compliance with the present New York law the referee gave no formal decision. In this case, however, none was needed.

PLEASURE OF THE COURT

Camozzi Scrapping Case Leniently Dealt With by Magistrate Carrs. Decision Yesterday.

Decision in the mysterious Camozzi scrapping case was given out by Magistrate Carrs yesterday. Accused to go free until the pleasure of the court to administer sentence. This practically amounts to dismissal of the case unless the accused get scrapping again, but as the political warfare is less direct as formerly there is small chance of further fisticuffing. Conservative congratulations are in order.

= THE COSY CORNER =
DEVOTED PRINCIPALLY TO THE INTERESTS OF WOMEN

This is a little section of the paper, which from day to day will be devoted to subjects of special interest to women. Any and all of the ladies of Prince Rupert are invited to contribute to its columns, and to take part in its discussions. Suggestions and criticisms are invited by the editor. The hope is expressed that "The Cosy Corner" will fill a social need.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Coffee jelly, made with milk, is delicious.
Pure rain water is fine for the complexion.
Cauliflower cooks best with head downward.

A cloth moistened with alcohol will clean piano keys.
To break an apple, use a thread, pulled through it.

Ammonia will bring out the brilliancy of cut glass.
Clean linoleum with warm water and polish with milk.

Sterilize jars and all utensils before putting up fruit.
Use butter rather than milk, if potatoes need extra thinning.

Linoleum on the kitchen table will last longer than oil cloth.
When some one is burned or scalded, apply lime water and olive oil, half and half.

Peaches, stewed with pineapple, make one of the most delicious desserts of the season.
Decorated china plates should be put away with round pieces of cotton flannel between them.

The best way to keep rats away is to prevent any accumulation of garbage around the house.
Clean old glass by pouring strong ammonia on it; scrub well with a brush and rinse in cold water.

If a soft piece of home-made bread is rubbed on a scorch on woolish goods it will remove it entirely.
Mincd watercress and diced tart apples make a delicious salad with oil and vinegar for dressing.

A home-made specific for tan and sunburn consists of a paste made of magnesia and lemon juice.

Appetising Omelet

One cupful milk, tablespoonful butter, tablespoonful flour, two eggs, a little salt and pepper; put milk on to boil leaving a little out to mix with flour, then add with butter and cook a minute or so, stirring all the time. Let cool slightly; add pepper and salt, add eggs well beaten, put one teaspoonful butter in granite or tin dish and when hot pour in mixture; when it begins to brown put in hot oven till it sets.

Oatmeal Jam-Jams

One cupful lard, three-quarters cupful brown sugar, two and a half cupfuls oatmeal or rolled oats, nutmeg, one small teaspoonful baking soda dissolved in hot water, add sufficient warm water to mix; roll thin, cut in small squares, bake, and put together in twos with some kind of jam or jelly, after baking.

Ten Beauty Commandments

- First—Thou shalt take a warm bath nightly.
- Second—Thou shalt eat many greens.
- Third—Thou shalt drink much cool water.
- Fourth—Thou shalt take a brisk walk daily.
- Fifth—Thou shalt breathe by open windows.
- Sixth—Thou shalt brush thy hair thoroughly.
- Seventh—Thou shalt brush thy teeth thrice a day.
- Eighth—Thou shalt care for thy nails daily.
- Ninth—Thou shalt abjure tight shoes and clothing.
- Tenth—Thou shalt laugh well and heartily.

NEW ZEALAND GIRLS

So Many of Them Marry That There are None Left for Service.

The manager of a large business concern in Christchurch complained that although he was advertising all over New Zealand and Australia, he was still unable to obtain an adequate supply of girls for his factory. It was pointed out to him that girls will not go into domestic service, and that, according to his statements, they are now neglecting the factory, and he was asked where all the girls are going to. "Bless you," he said, "they're all getting married. We have no fewer than eight who are leaving us at the present time in order to get married. The trouble is that it is the best who go that way, a fact, of course, for which we can blame no one, least of all the young men."

Women and Strong Men

It is not an unwholesome thing in its way, this cry of society women for "strong men." Here is Miss Eleanor Sears declaring that she "despises a sissy," and that "only strong men who dare to do things are worthy of women." Here is Miss Madeline Force explaining that she "is going to marry Mr. Astor because he is not a society dude, but a real man, who has been a soldier and a man of action." And even Miss Julia French chose her chauffeur because of his manly appearance and manner.

Well, men are generally what women wish them to be, and if the cry of the softer sex is for stronger and more manly men the caliber of the race is likely to be improved.

ITEMS OF SPORT

The action of the promoters of the Bayley-Nelson match in making it free to the public last night was good business as well as a guarantee of their good faith to the public. It means an overflowing house for the next bout that is pulled off in the city.

The thanks of all who appreciated last night's entertainment are due to Mr. Casley who put up a considerable sum of money to make it possible for the lads to meet. Mr. Casley has put on some big matches in his time and is a good lover of the manly art.

There were lots of regrets that the end came so early, for both lads were strong and willing. It was anybody's fight up to the blow that settled it. It was a similar blow, but with less force that stopped Tommy Maher on the previous night.

Umpire William Evans hit one man, beat up another and was himself roughly handled after the Cleveland - Philadelphia baseball game at Cleveland the other day. A general fight resulted and a crowd of 2,000 spectators swarmed on the field and around the participants.

Eddie Duran, the Toronto sculler who defeated Jack Hackett at Rainy River the other day by eight lengths, will challenge Dick Arnst for the sculling championship of the world. Duran may also row Phil Haines the English professional sculler.

"So scared was George Hackenschmidt of Frank Gotch that it took $2,500 in cold cash a few minutes before the match to make him appear in the ring on the fateful recent Labor Day," says Dr. B. F. Roller, the Russian's former trainer, recently in Seattle.

"Hack was simply afraid," said Roller. "There was nothing else the matter with him, just a case of plain cowardice. For a week before the match he was in a state of terror, so scared he was unable to sleep. When we left England he was in the best possible shape and would have been at the match if he hadn't broken down and lost his heart."

JOE BAYLEY BEAT NELSON IN TWO LIGHTNING ROUNDS

Vancouver Lad Succumbed to a Right Swing on the Jaw While Going Strong—Bout Was Witnessed by a Crowd That Packed the Club to the Doors

Before a crowd that packed every inch of space in the Gymnasium of the Kaien Island Athletic Club, and extended out into the corridors, the much talked of 15-round match between Oscar Nelson, of Vancouver, and Joe Bayley, of Victoria, was pulled off last night. It did not last fifteen rounds. The end came very swiftly and ended disastrously for Nelson who succumbed to a right swing on the jaw early in the second round, and took the count.

Although the fight was of short duration, the boys managed to crowd about fifteen rounds into the two. They fought like wildcats from the first stroke of the gong, and made the crowd frantic. The events of the previous night, when comments had been made on Nelson's non-appearance in the ring had evidently stirred up a little feeling between them, for both started in to make a quick knock-out affair of it.

Both lads were in the fine shape, Bayley especially being in the pink of condition. He tipped the scale at 131 pounds, Nelson being 4 pounds heavier.

At the start Bayley jumped in to force the pace, putting in some very clever footwork. His nimbleness and jockey work with his shoulders did not rattle Nelson, however, who stood up and took advantage of one or two good openings, and rushed Bayley to the ropes. Bayley avenged himself with a swift upper cut and then the excitement began. Both lads started in to mix it, and kept Referee Nelson Dunn busy jumping between them in the clinches. Right up to the sound of the gong it was a swift give and take, with Bayley forcing the pace and Nelson doing some hard punching.

In the second round the pace seemed rather to be telling on Nelson but a repetition of the first round was begun, and hard slogging was done on both sides. In the interchange Bayley got in his winning blow, a right swing on the jaw that staggered Nelson. Bayley declined to follow it up but waited a second and then Nelson collapsed. Amid great excitement the referee tolled off the seconds and counted Nelson out.

The end came before most of the audience realised it. When Nelson came to half a minute later he looked round not knowing the fight was over. Both boys were cheered by the crowd who admired the swiftness and the fairness with which both lads fought.

As his spoils of victory Bayley took the $600 purse put up by the club. A collection taken up by the crowd for the loser amounted to $137.50. Mr. Casley had previously provided for his training expenses.

Already there is talk of matching Bayley to meet in Prince Rupert some of the star performers from San Francisco.

CAPTAIN KERR FOR DAWSON

Popular Salvation Army Officer Ordered to Northern Command This Winter.

Captain Kerr, of the Salvation Army Corps here, has received a telegram from Major Morris announcing his appointment to the command at Dawson, Yukon, the scene of Ensign Johnstone's successful Army work. Captain Kerr has only very short notice before acting upon his new orders, as the river traffic into Dawson will shortly close. He left today for Vancouver to have his eye-sight seen to before settling in Dawson out of reach of opticians able to do the work.

Captain Kerr expects to return north by the Princess Royal passing Prince Rupert, but regrets that time will not permit of his bidding a formal farewell to all his personal friends made during his army work here. He extends to them through this paper his good-bye message, and hopes to keep alive his relations with Rupert all the time he is in the North.

BRITISH TRADES CONGRESS

At Annual Meeting Over a Million and a Half Workers Were Represented.

New York, Sept. 28.—At the annual meeting of the Trades Union Congress of Great Britain held in Newcastle, Eng., 554 delegates were present, representing 1,667,000 members.

One of the principal propositions considered is the fusion of the various organizations into one grand national federation to be called the Labor Congress, with the object of furthering the solidarity of labor and more speedily introducing improvements in the labor world.

The American Federation of Labor was represented by Delegates McFarlane and Tobin.

BIG CONSIGNMENT OF FRUITS

A big consignment of plums, pears, peaches, green tomatoes, and all kinds of preserving fruits will arrive on the City of Seattle tonight and will be on display at Shruball's Market, Third avenue, tomorrow. This will be a good opportunity to get them fresh.

A NAPOLEON OF LABOR

The Unassuming Leader of the Great Labor Upheaval in England.

In a little flat, within a stone's throw of the Elephant and Castle, lives Mr. Harry Gosling, the chairman of the strike committee and general secretary of the National Union of Transport Workers, who was the central figure in the great upheaval on London. A wonderful man in many respects is this strike leader, who began life as a waterman to his father and knows every detail of the riverside business. His remarkable powers of organization is illustrated by the fact that he united the dockers, car men, coal porters, stevedores, lightermen, watermen, granary workers, corn porters, and the rest, and by bringing trade to a standstill obtained important concessions for the men.

U. S. MAIL BY AIR

First Experiment Tried in the United States with New Means of Transportation.

New York, Sept. 28.—The first United States mail ever transported by aeroplane was carried from the aviation field on Nassau Boulevard, Long Island, to Garden City, a distance of five miles, by Earle Ovington, in a Bleriot machine. His flight was the leading feature of the international meet's opening day.

Ovington took only one bag of mail and held it between his knees, and when he was over Garden City he dropped it on the signal of a man who waved a flag, as arranged. This bag contained about seventy-five pounds of letters and postcards.

LABOR LINE UP

I. W. W. Proposal Afoot to Organize C. N. R. Labor and Coast Loggers.

Calgary, Sept. 28.—According to Organizer Biscay the industrial workers of the world have lined up the railway laborers employed on the Canadian Northern, now under construction in the interior of British Columbia. It is reported, too, that an attempt will be made by the I. W. W. organizers to enlist the loggers of the Pacific Coast.

MR. WILLIAMS HAS NO CHINK

Witness in the Chinese Case Was a Long Way from the Truth.

Mr. W. E. Williams has called the News' attention to a statement reported in Wednesday's issue, where a witness named Lee Kee is alleged to have told the court that "Chun Yuen who works for Mr. Williams, the solicitor, had bribed Lee Kee," etc.

Mr. Williams has requested the News to formally deny the statement that Chun Yuen or any other Chinaman is in his employ, or has ever been in his employ.

"I have no fault to find with the News for its report, for I am informed that the witness did make such a statement in his evidence. But his statement was entirely without foundation. I have never employed a Chinaman," says Mr. Williams.

ST. ANDREWS SOCIETY

Business Meeting Called to Open Winter Season. Plan Social.

This day week, Friday 6th October, the St. Andrew Society will hold a business meeting to arrange the preliminaries for the coming winter season. The meeting will be held in the Carpenters' Hall at eight p.m., and all members of the society, and intending members are invited to come and take part in the discussion of matters relating to the increased activity and welfare of the Saint Andrew Society in Prince Rupert this winter. Amongst the first items of business to be considered is the proposal to hold an opening Social or At Home shortly. All interested in getting arrangements forward for a good time during the long evenings are requested to attend.

Mr. B. Wilson accompanied by his wife left this morning by the Prince Rupert. They will spend some time down below.

Prince Rupert Boy

A teacher, wishing to impress upon her pupils the population of China, said:

"The population of China is so great that every time you breathe two Chinamen die."

In a short time a little boy at the foot of the class was noticed by the teacher to be breathing and puffing vigorously. The teacher, alarmed at his actions, inquired:

"What is the matter? What on earth are you doing?"

"Killing Chinamen," was the quick reply. "I don't like these foreigners, so I'm getting rid of them as quick as I can."

News Agency Opens

Tomorrow the Canada Railway News Agency whose new stand occupies a central position on the G. T. P. wharf, will open up for business under the management of Mr. W. J. McLean. This new news stand will add greatly to the appearance of the wharf which is rapidly growing into a thoroughly busy waterfront section worthy of a coming big seaport like Prince Rupert.

Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Lee were passengers by the Prince Rupert today.

GOOD PRINTING

Is a Persistent "Influence" Exerted in Your Behalf?

Every bit of printing that goes out to serve you makes "Some Kind of an impression." Poor printing will leave a poor impression of its user as surely as poor clothes, or poor store or shop or office. "Good" printing will leave upon every mind an impression wholly favorable of its user. Even if but one in a thousand of these "Impressions" really tips the scales for business, for orders, for you "Good Printing" will have thus paid for itself!
