Olof Hanson Will Not Let Aching Tooth Get Best Of Him; Pulls It With Pliers

"North of 53 the people like their political leaders to be tough," writes Editor C. H. Sawle in the Omineca Herald. "They have a tough one in the person of Olof Hanson, the federal member for Skeena, and in Ed. Kenney, the provincial member for Skeena, they have one who can supply the goods."

One day recently, while visiting at Terrace, Hansn went into Kenney's hardware store and asked the latter if he could borrow a pair of long pointed pliers and a looking glass. The implements were produced and the federal member went to work, explaining: "I've had a bad tooth and last night didn't sleep at all. I just went to see the doctor but he's out so here's where I draw that tooth myself and do him out of a couple of bucks."

TONE IMPROVING

There was a time when residents of Prince Rupert were doubtful about the wisdom of bringing up boys in the city. There was a tendency for them to take to drinking habits and become anything but model citizens. The general tone of the city has improved since those days. Today we find; many young men cutting clear of the wild crowd and taking up serious studies and interesting themselves in those things which make for the betterment of the community. It is a honeful sign and deserves the encouragement of all right thinking people. There is no reason why a healthy environment cannot be created in Prince Rupert.

A young man does not necessarily have to be religious or sanctimonious in order to be decent. He does not have to be a prig. What is needed is a healthy sentiment in which the elders might do well to lead the way.
