MOTOR CAR MAKES TRIP THROUGH THE INTERIOR

EXTENSIVE DEVELOPMENT WORK DONE AT THE KHATADA RIVER FALLS PLANT

Party of Thirty Men on Survey Work for the Prince Rupert Hydro-Electric Company—Will Construct Dam to Turn Two Lakes into One and Secure an Immense Water Power From It

While the city's hydro-electric scheme is progressing towards the contract letting stage for clearing the ground around Woodworth Lake great strides are being made by the much larger scheme of the Prince Rupert Hydro-electric Company at Khatada Falls some fifty miles from the city up the Skeena where the Khatada River joins it. At present there are thirty men employed at the survey work in progress there and the work is of a most extensive character taking the survey parties from the level of the falls to the summits of snow clad mountains and great glaciers. Ice axes and Alpine guides' equipment of extra strong and extra light rope are necessary in the work.

of water can be held back in the mountains thus, sufficient to provide for all drought or scarcity through frost. Though only one of the water-powers controlled by the Prince Rupert Hydro-electric Company this Khatada River Power is many times greater than that owned by the city. The fact that Prince Rupert City is to have a power of its own is regarded as an advantage even if the city were to use a great deal of the Khatada power as it is certain to do. In the event of a breakdown on the part of either power supply the other might be able to tide the industries of the rising Prince Rupert over for sufficient time to enable repairs to be made.

tions made continuously during the fall and winter so that abundance of data may be available. An effort is also being made to have a Government meteorological station placed at a point of vantage here so that meteorological data having a bearing upon the work as well as upon the district generally may be available.

GOLDEN WHEEL WINNER IS IN PRINCE RUPERT

P. E. Sands and Two Companions Completed Arduous Trip from Seattle to Hazelton in 20 h. p. Auto Securing Pacific Highway Assn. Award

First auto car to reach Hazelton by road and trail from Seattle and winner of the Pacific Highway Association's medal for the trip, the car "Studebaker, Flanders 20" is today in Prince Rupert. P. E. Sands, manager of the Studebaker agency for the Pacific Coast, drove the car through over the 1281 miles of the journey. Odds offered in favor of the auto's ever achieving the trip found no takers, and the feat ranks with the most difficult ever accomplished by auto.

sed before, and three hundred and seventy-five miles of the route had never been traversed by any self-propelled vehicle. For the most part the trip was along Telegraph trail, and log leaping was the regular order of the day after the car left the Cariboo Road. Best days travelling was 150 miles in one day on the Cariboo Road. Worst day was half a mile over something a shade worse than poor pack trail. Once the car toppled clean over crushing Mr. Sands below it. Fortunately he escaped with bruises and abrasions on hands and leg. Most

FINE NEW POWER BOAT ALL YELLOW CEDAR BUILT

Rufus Taylor's "Ptarmigan" is a Handsome Craft Built for Heavy Weather—Unique in Several Respects—Gulf of Mexico Model

Worth attention is the new power boat Ptarmigan now at the Rupert Marine wharf being engined. This launch, the pretty lines of which will at once distinguish her, is the first power boat ever constructed throughout of the famous Porcher Island yellow cedar which has been sent as far as the coast of Maine to be used in yacht building. The Ptarmigan belongs to Mr. Rufus Taylor, who practically built her himself. She is designed on the model of the Gulf of Mexico sailing boats, Mr. Taylor being a native of Florida. Her length over all is 36 ft., her beam 9 ft.

6 in., and she has 5 ft. 6 in. head room in her house forward. Built throughout to face real hard weather, the Ptarmigan is a seaworthy boat in appearance. Her polished cedar deck is very strong, and battened down with tight hatches she will ride through heavy seas in staunch trim. Her steering gear and engine levers are handled amidships, and she carries mast and sail. An 8 hp. Standard engine will give her a good working speed, and she will be used in fishing and hunting trips. Her value complete runs to about $1600. Her owner, Rufus Taylor, was for several years chief engineer to the B. C. Packers'

NEW MODERN COLD STORAGE PLANT IS NOW AT WORK ON WALES ISLAND

Mr. James Debrisay Has Installed a Water Driven Freezing Plant and is Shipping Frozen Halibut—An Interesting Process—Will Become Large Shipper Through Prince Rupert When Line is Completed

A new cold storage plant capable of treating thousands of tons of halibut has been opened this week by Mr. James Debrisay, the well known canner of Wales Island—one of the largest islands at the entrance to the Portland Canal. This has given great satisfaction to local fishermen, who now will have another market for all the halibut they can catch. Mr. Debrisay is very popular among the fishermen, for the reputation he has earned of being a fair and honorable business man.

Big Freezing Plant
Several years ago, before Wales Island was ceded to Canada by the Alaska award, the Debrisay family operated a cannery on the island, but after the island became Canadian territory, the Wales Island pack was declared dutiable in the United States, and the cannery was closed. Last year it was re-opened, and extensive additions made to the plant. An ammonia freezing plant with a capacity for turning out five tons of ice per day was installed as well as large cold storage rooms for the storage of the frozen fish.

Big Trade Coming
On Monday morning of this week the plant was put into operation, and is now actively at work freezing fish for the southern and eastern markets. By the time the G. T. P. is completed more enlargements will be added, and the plant will daily ship car loads of frozen halibut to the markets of the prairie provinces and Eastern Canada.

Frozen Like Logs
The halibut are caught on the banks off Durdes Island a few miles away, and after arrival at the cold storage plant are put into a cold oven and frozen stiff right through. Then they are carried on racks to the store-room and being frozen solid are piled like cord wood waiting shipment in cold storage steamer. In this way they reach the market as fresh as on the day they were caught.

The plant is driven by water power derived from a lake in the mountain over the cannery, and Mr. Debrisay is now engaged in boring a tunnel to greatly augment the available power.

Large Salmon Pack
In addition to the halibut trade, Mr. Debrisay has had a large pack of salmon this year. He was refused licenses to fish on the Naas River which is close to Wales Island, but his men managed to get a good catch of fish around the islands. A steamer load of salmon left the cannery last week, and the boats are still bringing in cohoes.

Two Long Lines of Transports Guarded by Battleships and Cruisers Left Italy for Tripoli Last Night

THREE TURKISH WARVESSELS SUNK

Turks and Arabs at Tripoli Make an Attempt to Recapture the Town But Are Repulsed by Italian Gunners—Great Britain Announces Her Neutrality in the War—Turkey Wants a Christian to Act as Foreign Minister

(Canadian Press Despatch)
Rome, Oct. 11.—All day yesterday the Italian expedition for Tripoli was busy completing its preparations, and at night sailed for Africa. All lights were extinguished on the transports, and the vessels proceeded in two lines, half a mile apart, flanked and followed by a strong force of battleships and cruisers. They were accompanied by a flotilla of small craft of all descriptions.

Britain's Declaration
Great Britain has formally given notice of her neutrality in the Italian Turkish war.

The firing continued for several hours till moonlight when the Turks retired in good order with heavy loss. The Italians whose losses were slight pursued the Turks for four hours.

Wants Christian Minister
According to a despatch from Constantinople, Turkey is very anxious to have a Christian accept the post of Foreign Minister and has urged several Armenians successively to accept the office without avail.

FIGHTING AT TRIPOLI
Tripoli, Oct. 11.—The Turks do not intend to abandon Tripoli to the Italians without further resistance. Yesterday 3,000 Turkish troops with field guns were discovered advancing in two columns with the evident intention of re-capturing the town. A large body of natives marched with the troops which presented a formidable array. The Italians were prepared however, and the Turks were met with a heavy fire to which they replied with energy.

TURKISH BOATS SUNK
London, Oct. 11.—A despatch to the London Agency from Pera says that the Turkish torpedo boats Tokat, Hamid Abad, Alpagut and Antillia while returning from the Ionian Sea were surprised by an Italian squadron near Mytilene on October ninth. A smart engagement followed in which three of the torpedo boats were damaged and sunk. The fourth escaped by hoisting a foreign flag.

Already the new launch boasts of a mascot in the shape of "Nigger" the fine black spangle belonging to Mr. Taylor. "Nigger" has not a single white hair on his body. He is a good-natured dog with a great sense of importance once aboard his master's boat which he is ready to guard against all intrusion unpermitted by his master. "Nigger" is a regular sea-dog. His first master died some time ago, but there was no keeping "Nigger" away from the boats. So Mr. Taylor gave him a berth aboard his boat, and now "Nigger" knows the ropes all right.

GOT A STRANGE DEEP SEA PLANT

Captain Fay of the Pilot, Brought up Queer Marine Growth from the Bottom of the Sea.

Captain Fay, of the gasoline sloop Pilot which arrived in the harbor on Monday with 3,000 lbs. of halibut on board, had with him a marine novelty in the shape of a deep sea vegetable growth. The plant, which came up on the end of a halibut hook in about 60 fathoms of water off Dundas Island, resembles an elk horn or moose horn in size and shape, but it is pliable in texture and has little sponge like growths at the tips. Local opinion has it that the plant is a type of sponge plant. It is white in color, and the root shows the shape of the stone or boulder to which it had been clinging when wrenched off by the Pilot's crew.

(Special to the Daily News)
Toronto Oct. 11.—Can a church be sued for damages for ringing the church bell to the annoyance of peaceably disposed residents near by? That is the question that is agitating both legal and ecclesiastical circles in Toronto owing to the action of Mr. W. Since his arrest Clark complained that his mail as well as Mr. Wormald's had been tampered with. Mr. Clark's defence was prepared by Messrs. Williams & Manson, who instructed Mr. S. S. Taylor, K. Mr. and Mrs. Brown are member of the Society of Friends and fond of peace and quietude.

The rector claims that in ordering the bell to be rung he is merely following out a regulation of the Anglican Church, which says in the prayer book: "And the Curate that ministereth in every Parish Church or Chapel, being at home and not being otherwise reasonably hindered. . . shall cause a Bell to be tolled thereunto a convenient time before he begin that the people may come to hear God's Word, and to pray with him."

GOVERNMENT BY COMMISSION FOR PRINCE RUPERT

On every hand among the progressive cities are evidences that government by commission is the most satisfactory method yet discovered for lifting civic control out of the mire of party spoils and placing it in the realm of business efficiency.

An incorporated city is virtually a joint stock corporation for the transaction of business. It is of rank at least with the million dollar corporations. Sometimes as in the case of Toronto the individual city has a greater revenue and expenditure than has its over-land province. It is incorporated to supply roads, water, light, etc. to the public. Its stock holders being its customers it gives its dividends in cheap and efficient service instead of in cash. The civic corporation is—or should be—a strictly business concern run in the economic interest of its shareholders.

The fallacy of the ward system and the council system can be easily realised by imagining that one owned the city as an estate, and having to go away for a term of years desired to leave it in the hands of administrators. In selecting those administrators no sensible man would select the indiscriminate and unqualified assortment that composes the average council. Instead he would engage at an adequate salary three or four competent experts and make each responsible for the efficient carrying on of the work of his special department. That in short is the plan known as "the commission system."

Had Prince Rupert from the outset been administered on strictly business lines by a commission of three or more experts—an expert engineer an expert financier and an expert business man for instance—our progress would have been greater and a united public spirit would have been evolved.

Before the city grows any older the citizens should stir themselves and insist on establishing a business-like government by commission. It is your time and your money and your welfare that is being wasted when incompetent and squabbling councils are in power.

PASSING COMMENT

Alderman Newton lost another golden opportunity on Monday night to bring up the question of abolishing the ward system. Talking about reforms and bringing them into being are two very different things.

The story told in a press despatch of the Quaker who is suing the rector of a Toronto parish for damages for annoyance caused by ringing the church bell calls for a revision of Tom Hood's punning rhyme to read:

"The parson told the sexton
And the sexton told the bell,
The Quaker told his lawyer
And the lawyer gave 'em Hail Columbia."

The wife of a St. Louis pastor has filed suit for a divorce because her husband taunts her on her deficiencies in education. As she was not able to comprehend a sermon which he preached on "The Psychology of the Intangible" he called her an idiot. Doubtless the sermon was quite as unintelligible to his congregation. St. Louis is making a bid for fame in having found a cure for insomnia.

A Toronto paper proudly displays a telegram of appreciation from David Marshall of Aylmer an M. P. and also a canner. What Mr. Marshall says is: "You have helped to retain Canada for the Canadians." What he means is: "You have helped to save Canada for the Canadian Cannery's Combine."

PROMOTION FOR CAPT. NEROUTSOS

Is Officially Appointed Marine Superintendent of the C. P. R. Coast Service.

Captain Cyril Neroutsos who has until a couple of weeks ago had command of the Princess Royal has received word of his official appointment to become marine superintendent of the C. P. R. coast service under Captain J. W. Troup at Victoria. He will look after the general routine of the fleet management at the capital.

Captain Neroutsos came to this coast in 1889 as chief officer of the steamer Garonne, brought out by Frank Waterhouse & Company to accommodate the rush to St. Michaels during the Klondike rush. He has since been in the service of the C. P. R. as chief officer, pilot and master successively of many of the steamers on the coast, the last vessel being the Princess Royal. His knowledge of marine law has made his presence in courts of marine investigation necessary in more than one instance.

STILL DISSATISFIED

Irreconcilable Joe Martin is Still "Agin the Government"

Hon. Joseph Martin continues to be against the government.

"I'll tell you what it will mean," he said. "It will mean that Borden will raise the Canadian tariff sky-high. Raising the tariff will be an injury to the country." "Then why did you support the Borden candidate in Vancouver?" the irrepressible Mr. Martin was asked.

Here, Mr. Martin took a last fling at the Laurier administration. "I chose the least of two evils," he said. "The Liberal party was corrupt. Increase in the tariff will be hard on the country. Political corruption would be a mighty sight harder. So, I am glad that the Grit party is down and out."

"One splendid result from the landslide of the other day," added Mr. Martin, "will be the coming to life again of the Liberal party in British Columbia."

NEW HELLO BOOK

Get Your New Phone in Now if You Want Your Name on the List.

In about a fortnight now a new telephone directory will be going to press. It is not decided yet whether the city will undertake the work of printing the directory or whether it will be placed in the hands of the firm which offered to do the work on special advertisements to re-occupy the grounds outside. The officers told off for the dangerous part of the job were Chief Inspector Arrow (afterwards appointed Chief of the Barcelona Police), Detective-Inspector Sweeney, and Sergeant-Inspector (afterwards Inspector) Badcock.

These were experienced men, and they laid their plans well. One went up to the door, disguised as a tradesman's assistant, and knocked. The other two were in hiding in the shrubbery near by. At the knock the door was opened ever so little, and before it could be closed again the three detectives were inside. Instantly a shrill whistle was sounded from within, and when the house was searched the Anarchist millionaire was apparently nowhere within it.

There were plenty of servants about, of both sexes, but they one and all professed to know nothing. The detectives searched high and low for nearly two hours, but their search was in vain. Yet that the wanted man was somewhere within the building was certain. Every exit was being watched by their colleagues outside, and these had made no sign.

The real estate market will be "dull" most of the time if you try to sell property without the help of the Daily News advertising.

THIS ANARCHIST A MILLIONAIRE

(A True Detective Story)

Scotland Yard differs on many subjects amongst itself, but it is agreed upon one point, and that is that the most dangerous, slippery, and remarkable "crook" it ever had to deal with was George Ferdinand Springmuhl von Weissenfeld.

They nicknamed him the Anarchist millionaire, partly because he devoted a considerable proportion of the money he acquired to a life of crime for furthering the Anarchist cause, and also because many of his chosen associates, both men and women, were revolutionary Anarchists of a pronounced type.

He came of a good family, and was exceedingly well educated, having graduated with high honours in science, medicine, and literature at one of the principal German universities. But he was a born criminal, and a dangerous one; a throw-back to the aboriginal savage.

A little matter of forgery and attempted murder made his native land too hot to hold him, and he fled to England. This was in 1880, and it did not take him long to blossom forth into a professional blackmailer and swindler of a peculiarly odious type.

He'd Never Be Taken Alive
Once he found himself in the clutches of the law, and received a well-merited sentence at the Old Bailey of twelve months' imprisonment with hard labor. His temper was not improved by his one taste of oakum-picking, and he vowed that he would never do another "stretch" (year's imprisonment), no matter what came. After this he always went armed.

His specialty about this time was bogus company promoting, and he did remarkably well out of it from his point of view. From one concern alone he netted $300,000. Another yielded him $225,000 in six weeks. He opened more than one hundred different banking accounts in as many different names, and he kept an album in which he entered his different aliases side by side with his own proper signature. This album is now preserved as a curiosity at Scotland Yard.

As has been intimated, he swore that he would never be taken alive, and although as a result of his colossal frauds the detectives in Europe were presently searching for him, it looked as if he would beat them all.

His cunning was almost super-human, and he took no chances. He employed a small army of private detectives to shadow the Scotland Yard detectives who were trying to shadow him. He rented a fine house—in an assumed name, of course—near Wembley Park, and spent thousands of pounds in constructing subterranean passages leading to secret exits, through which he could escape, if need be, when hard pressed.

Scotland Yard heard of the existence of this den, and raided it, but the bird had flown. Next he was heard of at another place near London, where he was engaged in printing and issuing vast numbers of books of a kind about which the less said the better.

Secret Chambers and Dark Tunnels
This house also was raided, but once more the wanted man had disappeared. The detectives found, however, evidence of his many-sided enterprises in the shape of six of the newest and most expensive kinds of linotype machines, together with many thousands of objectionable books, all ewly printed. These were destroyed on a magistrate's order.

The search for the master criminal was continued, and at last he was located in a large mansion in Cambridgeshire, known as "Edenfield." This house, which stood in its own grounds, had been chosen for its seclusion, like the one at Wembley Park, and, like it, too, it had been fitted with an elaborate system of sliding panels, secret chambers, and subterranean passages.

All this was known to the Yard, and it was known, too, that an armed and desperate man lurked within. Consequently, it was determined to send three of the best men available to enter the house and effect the actual arrest, while other plain-clothes officers were detailed to watch the various exits in the grounds outside.

The officers told off for the dangerous part of the job were Chief Inspector Arrow (afterwards appointed Chief of the Barcelona Police), Detective-Inspector Sweeney, and Sergeant-Inspector (afterwards Inspector) Badcock.

These were experienced men, and they laid their plans well. One went up to the door, disguised as a tradesman's assistant, and knocked. The other two were in hiding in the shrubbery near by. At the knock the door was opened ever so little, and before it could be closed again the three detectives were inside. Instantly a shrill whistle was sounded from within, and when the house was searched the Anarchist millionaire was apparently nowhere within it.

There were plenty of servants about, of both sexes, but they one and all professed to know nothing. The detectives searched high and low for nearly two hours, but their search was in vain. Yet that the wanted man was somewhere within the building was certain. Every exit was being watched by their colleagues outside, and these had made no sign.

Bearding the Lion in His Den
At length, just when they were on the verge of despair, a secret panel was discovered, and this, on being forced open, revealed a passage just broad enough to admit one man. It was pitch dark within, but out of the darkness came the sound of suppressed breathing.

Here, then, was their quarry. But which one of the three detectives was going to risk almost certain death by bearding him in his den now he was at bay?

The question in reality admitted but of one answer. It is an unwritten law of Scotland Yard that the post of danger shall be given to the junior, for that way lies promotion, and promotion is, of course, the most ardently desired thing amongst all branches of the Police service.

So to Sergeant-Inspector Badcock was assigned the duty of entering the secret passage so luckily discovered, and dragging thence into the light of day the worse than wild beast that lurked within.

Quietly, without the least trace of bravado, he accepted the mission. Stepping from the room into the cavern-like passage—being a tall man he was compelled to adopt a stooping posture—he called to the wanted man, telling him that he was a police officer, that the game was up, and that he had better surrender himself quietly.

The Fight for Life

No verbal answer was returned, but out of the darkness came the sharp click of a revolver being cocked. Badcock felt that life or death was a matter of moments only, and bounded swiftly forward, still keeping bent nearly double, both because the height of the passage did not admit of a perfectly erect posture being maintained, and also because by so doing he stood a better chance of not being shot if his assailant aimed high, as men fire when greatly excited usually do.

The passage ended in a door, and Badcock could hear his man fumbling at the handle inside. But he could not get out that way, for it had been locked from the outside by Inspector Arrow's orders prior to the raid.

Realizing this, the hunted man faced about, pointed his revolver at his pursuer, and tried to pull the trigger. But Badcock gripped his wrist with fingers of steel, and the weapon dropped with a clang on the stone floor.

It was a pitiful figure of a man that was dragged out into the light of day a few seconds later. His face was livid, his features were working convulsively.

"Water!" he gasped. "Give me water, servant ran and fetched some, but the glass slipped from his nerveless fingers, his jaw dropped, and a moment later he fell dying to the ground.

A coroner's jury said it was apoplexy. But was it?

The Anarchist millionaire, who was also, it must be remembered, a doctor, and a skilful chemist, had long had in his possession a gold signet ring in which was hidden a powerful poison.

When he was arrested this ring was on his hand, but the secret receptacle behind the seal which had contained the poison was empty.

Anyhow, he was dead, and the world was well rid of him.

Had he stood his trial, there would have been revealed the most remarkable criminal romance of modern times.

ITEMS OF SPORT

Frank Gotch will appear in Vancouver next month with Yussif Mahmoud as his wrestling partner and in view of that fact it is interesting to read the suggestion that Gotch took him on as wrestling partner in order to stave off challengers. This is what Ed. W. Smith, the well known sporting writer, has to say about it:

Displaying a wily trick of a class that won him several international matches of importance, Frank Gotch has formed an alliance with a man who might have caused him a lot of trouble if hooked up in some other fashion. Gotch has taken on Yussif Mahmoud as a wrestling partner, thus effectively removing the Bulgarian strong man from his path of the future.

Incidentally Gotch can use the Turk as the buffer. In case any dangerous-looking man comes along to challenge Gotch, Mahmoud steps into the breach, backed up by the champion's remark: "Beat my partner first before talking business to me!"

Catch the idea? Pretty foxy of Gotch and his manager, Emil Klank, wasn't it? Part of the scheme is here: Gotch won't have to wrestle any of them until they have beaten Mahmoud. And when you figure that none of them—or not more than one or two at the very outside—can trim the Mahmoud fellow, Gotch is in for a long period of peaceful idleness.

Down in his heart Gotch doesn't care much about wrestling any more. He loves his title, loves the big spotlight and relishes the coin that trots side by side with the honors. But that grind of training! Wow, but that's enough to stop any of them, especially when a champion gets along toward the seamy side athletically.

Gotch told me in Humboldt that he never suffered such torture in his life as he did training for the George Hackenschmidt bout. It isn't likely he will want to repeat the process in a hurry. Mahmoud certainly looks fine. He is bigger than ever and the assumption is that he is better. He weighs close to 225 pounds now and carries it well.

Antoine Pierre, despite the general wagging of heads of those "in the know," didn't come over with the Bulgarian this time. It was said last season that Mahmoud would shake off the yoke, i. e., Pierre, and be back in America in the spring with his old manager. Later it was said that other people were to manage the Turk. But it seems that Klank slipped in ahead of them all and grabbed the dangerous fellow. Pretty bright idea it was, too.

But now that Gotch and Mahmoud are going on a tour of the country that will carry them to the holidays and then will go abroad, it doesn't look possible that many important matches with either as a contestant will be arranged this winter.

CABINET TAKES OATH

Ceremony of Swearing in the Members Tomorrow at Noon

(Canadian Press Despatch)
Ottawa Oct. 10.—The Borden Cabinet will be sworn in tomorrow at noon after which Earl Grey must take a special train to catch his boat at Montreal. Personnel of Cabinet had not been officially announced at time of wiring and the latest rumor had it that Goodeve would be representative for British Columbia.

Renters of houses, or apartments are ad-answers. Not all of them—but the most desirable of them. For progressive people are—naturally—ad-readers. And, of course, they make the best tenants.

THE COSY CORNER

DEVOTED PRINCIPALLY TO THE INTERESTS OF WOMEN

This is a little section of the paper, which from day to day will be devoted to subjects of special interest to women. Any and all of the ladies of Prince Rupert are invited to contribute to its columns, and to take part in its discussions. Suggestions and criticisms are invited by the editor. The hope is expressed that "The Cosy Corner" will fill a social need.

THAT TIRED FEELING

What the Woman Worker Wants Most of All in the World is Rest.

Some woman has written a poem in which she said she hoped she would not get to heaven for a thousand years after she died—she wanted to rest. One of the greatest drawbacks to the thorough enjoyment of life is that we tire so easily—tire physically, mentally, spiritually. In these rushing times we grow tired of everything. "Nothing lasts but change," to quote a paradox. The author we read with so much pleasure yesterday today cloy us with his changeless style and mode of thought. The picture which appealed to us last year, we pronounce old-fashioned and out of date. Even the friend grows tedious after we have fathomed his thoughts and failings.

A brainy woman one day, speaking of a man who evidently had grown tired of his wife, put the idea in an epigram: "One cannot expect a man to keep on longing for what he already has." That is the kernel. As long as we have not attained, satiety is impossible, but when that for which we yearn is surely ours, our restless minds and desires ever go seeking something new. As this seems to be an inborn human trait, it looks as though the only way to escape that tired feeling is to make new angles from which to view our possessions, new channels in which to pour our enthusiasms and our work.

It can be done. Witness the people who have made success of life and who have remained happy, sweet and sympathetic to its close. One woman whose tired eyes ever are lighted with a smile of hope, put it tersely once, "Life will always be worth living while there are sunny afternoons." She knows there never would be enough of them to tire her, and from the monotony of life she always turned to Nature's antidote of ceaseless change.

Cream of Sweet Oranges (A Skin Food)

Sweet oil of almonds..... 2 ounces
Orange-flower water..... 2 ounces
White wax..... 2 drams
Oil of sweet oranges..... 1 dram
Spermaceti..... 2 drams

Half fill a saucupan with boiling water. Stand a jam jar in this. Shred the wax and spermaceti into the jar. Let it dissolve. Heat almond oil and add to the wax. Heat orange-flower water; add it half a teaspoonful at a time, stirring the mixture quickly. Lift the jar out of the saucupan. Beat mixture with the whisk. Heat and add oil of sweet orange. Whisk cream until it is cold. Put in pots and cover with parchment.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS

Formula for a Temporary Improvement of This Defect

Here is a recipe for getting rid of superfluous hair. Understand, however, that this preparation does not have a permanent effect:
Sulphide of soda or calcium sulphide..... 100 grains
Chalk..... 100 grains

Mix thoroughly and keep dry in well-corked bottle until wanted for use. Take enough to make a paste and add warm water to it until the proper consistency is secured. Spread over the hairy surface and allow to remain for from one to five minutes, according to the nature of the growth and the susceptibility of the skin; then scrape off with a blunt blade—a paper knife, for example. It should be removed, as in every case with a depilatory, when the burning sensation is produced. Too long contact with the skin should be avoided, and immediately after the hair has been removed the denuded surface should be gently washed with warm water and a cold cream or a bland oil applied to prevent irritation.

Cabbage a la Creme

Drain a boiled cabbage cut it up small and put it into a pan with 1 oz. of butter 1 gill of cream salt and pepper. Stir over the fire until hot and garnish with lightly fried croutons of bread.

Potato Croquettes

One pound of smoothly mashed potato and to this add 1 oz. of butter and sufficient milk or cream to make the potato soft but not too soft to form into balls. Add a tablespoonful of very finely chopped parsley and a little chopped chive (if liked) or a spoonful of cooked onion made into a pursee. Form into balls egg crumb and fry.

Stuffed Vegetable Marrow

Take a large young marrow scoop out the seeds, and rub in some salt. Take 1-2 lb. of savory rice (or the remains of a vegetable curry) lay inside the marrow, and tie together with wide tape. Cook gently. Serve covered with white sauce, or, if curry has been used, with curry sauce.

Savory Rice

For the stuffing of the marrow, or to be served as a separate dish when required: Chop half an onion very finely and fry it. Place 4 oz. of well-washed rice in a pan and half a pint of vegetable stock, add the cooked onion, and cook until all the stock is absorbed. Add 1 oz. of grated cheese, pepper and salt.

Keeps Figure Slim

Too much sleep will increase the flesh. If you wish to be slim you should not sleep more than seven or eight hours. Take off the hour or so in the morning rather than at night, for it will do twice as much good subtracted from the morning nap as from the hours of beauty sleep. Exercise freely and do not eat fat-forming foods.

Cures a Red Nose

Massage the nose and surrounding parts with the tips of the fingers night and morning. This stimulates the glands and promotes a healthy and vigorous action of the skin, the redness being invariably due to the lack of such action. If the skin is sensitive, it is advisable to apply a cream before massaging.

THIRTY KINDS OF KISSES

Lines of New Knowledge for Lovers

A few years ago Dr. Nyrop, a Danish university professor, wrote a whole volume about kissing. He noted that while even the stern Romans had three words for a kiss, according to the nature of the salute—oscula, basia and suavia—the sentimental English have one term for every sort of kiss. The Germans have over thirty different styles of kisses recognized by and entered in their dictionaries. As it is, most people can get along with kissing in the singular number but lovers may note the German word "nach kussen," which means making up for kisses which have been missed through absence.

Eggs au Gratin

Boil three or four eggs hard and when cold cut into thick slices. Lay in a well buttered fireproof dish. Sprinkle with grated cheese, fine bread crumbs, salt and pepper. Pour white sauce over. Strew rather thickly with brown crumbs, make thoroughly hot and brown with a salamander.

Some tenants will "age" your property ten years in one. Thus the careful tenant is worth advertising for.

Many M. P.'s in England Affect to Disdain the Salary They Now Receive.

The payment of members of parliament is now an established fact in England. Many of the Conservative members have ostentatiously declined to accept the cheques or have made them over to charities in their divisions.

"It is very commendable that rich men should desire to serve the public without fee or reward—in which case they can easily send their 'wages' to some deserving charity without making any fuss about it."

"Mr. Balfour has decided in the most earnest language that he desires to see a larger representation of the working classes in parliament."

"If that object is to be attained such members must be paid a salary, and it has a distinctly unchivalrous appearance when politicians who are more plentifully endowed with this world's goods go out of their way to proclaim that they will never soil their hands with a fee which is as old and as honorable as the House of Commons itself."

"These airs and graces of opulence are the worst obstacle to the efforts of intelligent Unionists to identify themselves with the interests and feeling of the workaday community."

New Cabinet Sworn in and Holds First Meeting—Earl Grey Leaves Ottawa—An Eventful Day.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, Oct. 11.—Canada again has an administration. On the same day the Borden Cabinet took oath of office it held its first meeting and Earl Grey quitted Ottawa to sail for England.

unique experience was shooting grouse from the car while travelling Mr Sands shot four in a few instants with a 22 repeater from the car seat when a covey rose.

Three weeks was the car's net travelling time roughly. Days were spent here and there bringing up the total time taken to rather longer than this. The party left Seattle on August 28th. At Hazelton a banquet was held in their honor, and a welcome on a big scale was given the party, which consisted of P. E. Sands, his mechanic, D. F. Batcheller, and photographer, Wm T. Curless. The trip was taken in the interests of the Pacific Coast Highway Association which plans a fine road extending from Tiajuana, Mexico, all the way to Hazelton. The medal won is a beautiful miniature auto wheel in solid gold 5 in. in diameter.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

In Fairness to Mr. Kerr

Sir,—In justification of my faith in the News, I wish to correct a misstatement. Your editorial of today stated that Rev. Kerr said war was a "God permitted feature of the world's life for the civilizing of peoples" and then scored boxing contests. After presenting that civilizing, and other similar arguments, he said, "These are the arguments offered by the supporters of the war doctrine."

I am a subscriber for the News and have always admired its spirit of fair play and although I do not agree with Mr. Kerr in regard to prize fights, I like to help uphold the reputation of the News for fairness, to friend and foe.

Yours respectfully, "A Reader of the News."

The News regrets if it has wrenched Mr. Kerr's statement out of its proper meaning.—Ed.

Wanted—Another Serial

Sir,—I think there must be many more who like myself felt awful sorry to see the story come to an end tonight. It happened so suddenly, just when we were all deeply interested in it.

Can't you get us another good story. I have read lots of serials but the "The Tenderfoot's Woing" is the best serial story I have ever read. The News deserves credit for obtaining and printing such a good story. But now you've started, you'll have to keep it up. A Lady Reader.

Alas, "Lady Reader" good serials all end abruptly, just when you are deeply interested in them. They wouldn't be good serials if they didn't have a whirlwind finish.

The News has anticipated your demands, however. Probably by tomorrow we will have an announcement to make that will please you.—Ed.
