SINO-JAPANESE CRISIS IS TENSE AGAIN; FEAR OF CONFLICT IS FELT

Tokyo Takes Bristling Attitude—Makes Demands And Is Ready to Enforce Them—Untoward Incidents Becoming General

SHANGHAI, Sept. 24.—The Sino-Japanese situation is still tense today following the renewal during the past few days of incidents supposedly the result of an increased anti-Japanese sentiment throughout Nationalist China. With the Japanese preparing for further military activity ostensibly on the grounds of keeping order, some observers believe there is possibility of another conflict such as that in 1933 when thousands were killed in open warfare.

Another incident yesterday was the murder of a Japanese druggist in Canton. This followed the shooting of three Japanese marines, one fatally, in the international settlement here yesterday and the killing of a Japanese policeman in Hankow a few days ago.

The Japanese foreign office has formally sent a list of four demands to China. One is that the five northern provinces be created a buffer state.

Japanese warships are standing by ready to land further marines unless satisfaction is given the demands.

Chinese authorities are stated to be conducting a house-to-house search for suspicious characters in connection with the killing of the Hankow Japanese consular policeman.

Protests Disregarded
Japanese officials, backed by marines patrolling the area which was placed under martial law yesterday, today curtly rejected protests against the invasion of the Chinese settlement, warning the entire city to keep cool.

Armed Japanese have surrounded the entire international settlement on the grounds of self defence following the killing of the one marine and the wounding of two others.

Major questions of internal economy, including the filling of important secretarial posts, come to an issue at the General Council session. The General Council meets biennially.

Merging of several theological colleges, revisions of plans for ministerial settlement, report of remit on the place of women in the ministry and a new alignment in foreign missions are among the projects leading up to decisions by the council.

Among the women commissioners elected were Dr. Victoria Cheung of South China; Miss Anne Fountain, girl's work secretary for British Columbia and Mrs. Geo. F. Bryce, missionary to Central India.

EXPERIMENT WITH CARS

Scientist Tells Gyro Club of Transcontinental Trip With Two Types of Railway Freezers

New One Best

William Balagno Charms Luncheon Audience With Violin Solos—Hoedown Committees

The Prince Rupert Gyro Club, at its regular weekly luncheon yesterday, heard an interesting talk by Otto Young, mechanical engineer, of the Prince Rupert Fisheries Experimental Station, describing a recent experimental trip across the continent from Vancouver to Montreal with a new type of refrigerator car designed at the local station. In addition to Mr. Young's discourse, members of the club and visitors of the day were treated to violin solos by William Balagno, formerly of Prince Rupert and now prominent in Seattle musical circles.

Mr. Young gave a humorous preface to his address by describing the physical experiences of the transcontinental trip across Canada aboard a long Canadian Pacific freight train to which the experimental car had been attached. The bumpiness of the ride was something which would never be forgotten but the discomfort was fully compensated for by the beauty of the scenery and the learning at first hand of how freight traffic was handled. During the trip Mr. Young lived in the caboose of the freight train.

Object of Trip

The speaker explained that the object of the trip had been to test the efficiency of overhead cooling in refrigerator cars as compared with the ordinary end cooling system which was now in vogue. The car with which the test had been made was one rebuilt to accommodate overhead brine tanks. It was about the same size as an ordinary car but had greater loading capacity resulting from the discarding of the end tanks. The head room was slightly reduced. The specifications of the new refrigeration equipment were explained in some detail.

The first test had consisted of the shipment of a carload of frozen salmon and halibut from Vancouver to Winnipeg commencing on July 16 when the weather on the prairies was at its hottest—so hot, in fact, that the consignees in Winnipeg were fearful that nothing could prevent the fish from becoming defrosted enroute. The fish were loaded at a temperature of about seventeen degrees.

MAKING THEMSELVES A JOB

The over-organization of the country is due to a large extent to the efforts of some people to make themselves jobs. Usually the person most active in formation of an organization is the one who gets a salary out of it sooner or later. This comes to mind from the receipt of a circular telling of the reorganization of the Union of Canadian Municipalities. The union is asking for $10,000 a year from the member municipalities in order that they may keep open an office at Ottawa for the purpose of influencing the government along lines favorable to the municipalities. In other words it is planned to institute a powerful "lobby."

We see no useful purpose in such an organization as a union of municipalities especially a union so large as to cover the whole of Canada with its multitude of interests and differing plans of organization. No central body can speak for all of these. For example a town cannot become a city in Ontario unless it has a population of 10,000 people but in British Columbia a city may have a population of only a few hundred people, at any rate less than a thousand. Each province has its own set-up. It is almost impossible to keep all the municipal officials informed of the outstanding problems throughout the country from Prince Edward Island to Vancouver Island and including the French section of the country which is at present at least one-third of the population.

All it means is that a few people will get jobs, the post office will get a little larger mail, and a few municipalities, not very many, will pay into the coffers of the organization. Usually these organizations eventually become political and then lose any influence they have had when they first started.

DANGER OF PRICE SETTING

The wheat growers of Canada insist upon having a minimum price set on their product and, of course, if the world price is lower than the minimum price the rest of us will have to make up the difference by increased taxation. We do not mind that so much as the political effect of the minimum price. The farmers of the country will, quite naturally, vote for the party that is willing to set the highest price. That sets the political parties bidding against each other for political favor with consequent increase in the taxes.

We all want to see the farmers do well but it would not be good for the country to have a farmers' party in the House of Commons followed by other similar parties. Neither do we want to see the farmers rolling in wealth while the rest of us pay the bill.

SPARK PLUG OF YANKEES

Young Italian Player From Coast Important Cog in Gotham's Machine For World Series

NEW YORK, Sept. 24: (CP)—When the New York Yankees, 1936 World Series contenders, acquired young Joe Di Maggio from the San Francisco Seals for $75,000 or more, few suspected they were buying the sparkplug for a pennant drive.

Rather, the Yankee partisans figured the Italian youngster from the coast came to the Yankees merely as a batting wonder who would be a one-man show with a ball club going nowhere.

That, or the nucleus for a new Yankee ball club that must be built after the last remnants of old Murderers' Row were gone from the Stadium.

Manager Joe McCarthy, needing to fill the old spot from which Babe Ruth poled his homers, dropped the comparatively inexperienced youngster in there—and presto! he had another fire-eating ball club that is called Murderers' Row just like the slambang gang of the Ruthian era.

Di Maggio got away to a bad start. Training camp injuries kept him benched as the season began with the Yanks showing little power.

But when Joe arrived, the club began hitting and went through the American League on a home-run and extra-base-hit spree that rivals the best years of old Murderers' Row and may surpass the best efforts of those Ruth-paced outfits.

Lazzeri Important

While Joe was still getting the feel of the big league willows and learning from roommate Frankie Crosetti about the opposition pitchers, old Tony Lazzeri, the other member of the Yanks' Italian triumvirate, came through in the pinch.

Since then, Tony's batting has fallen off again and he isn't so spry afield as he used to be, but he's still an important cog in the infield combination of Gehrig, first base, Lazzeri, second base, Crosetti, short-stop and Red Rolfe third base.

One Broadway fan has the success of the Yankees figured as purely a Di Maggio-Gehrig affair, disregarding largely the fact that the Yanks' power all up and down the line is the main factor.

Di Maggio, except for a slump that set in with his hitless performance in the inter-league all-star game at Boston and another that attacked him and the other Yankees, as well, at the turn into the September stretch, would get on base 50 percent of the time.

If he singled, or walked, the opposition first-baseman would be drawn to the bag and Gehrig, next up, as likely as not, would put one right down the alley to right field. Some of these hits might have been fielded for put-outs had the first sacker been free to play his position with out the prancing Di Maggio to worry him around the base.

But the psychological effect silent Di Maggio had on the phlegmatic Gehrig was supposed to carry the real payoff.

Altogether, the Yankees are a smoothly-operating ball club built around a rookie who bats where Ruth used to.

Skeena River Having Big Run of Cohoes This Week — Halibut Travels Over Four Hundred Miles in Ten Year

The Skeena River is having its best run of cohoes of the season this week, according to George Frizzell, who is in town today from Port Essington. Many gillnetters are busy fishing and Inverness, Claxton and Carlisle canneries, the last canneries on the river to keep open, are getting plenty of fish. Seining is over and trolling is poor. The salmon fishing and canning season ends this week-end as far as the Skeena River is concerned.

Northland Transportation Co's motorship Northland, Capt. Len Williams, arrived in port at 2 o'clock this morning from Ketchikan and, after discharging two carloads of frozen fish for trans-shipment East over Canadian National Railways, sailed in continuation of her voyage to Seattle.

Indian Agent W. E. Collison and Dominion Constable A. J. Watkinson are on a trip today to Kitkatla aboard the departmental cruiser, Naskeena.

C. N. R. steamer Prince Charles, Capt. Dan McKinnon, arrived in port at 9 o'clock last night from Vancouver via the Queen Charlotte Islands with passengers, mail and freight. After discharging, the Prince Charles will move to the local dry dock to be tied up for the winter. The steamer Prince John, Capt. James Watt, arriving at midnight last night from Vancouver takes over the Islands service in place of the Prince Charles with the scheduled sailing on Friday night. The Prince John has been engaged in general freighting during the past summer.

The halibut schooner Attu landed at Seattle this week a halibut which was tagged in 1926 by scientists of the International Fisheries Commission from the schooner Scandia. The fish was tagged and released southwest of Kodiak and was caught 430 miles to the northwest from the point of tagging. When tagged it weighed 25 pounds and when caught by the Attu it weighed 50 pounds.

Three vessels sold 114,000 pounds of halibut in Seattle yesterday as follows: Eldorado, 39,000 pounds, Whiz, 11 1/2¢ and 10 1/2¢; Seattle, 39,000, Sebastian, 10 1/2¢ and 10¢; Sun-set, 36,000, Washington, 11 1/2¢ and 10¢. The Eureka sold 6,000 pounds of sablefish and 200 pounds of mixed cod at 4¢ and 3 1/2¢ to Booth and the Thelma J. disposed of 11,500 pounds of sablefish and 200 pounds cod to Booth at 4 1/2¢ and 4¢.

No boats being in with catches, there was no sale of halibut on the local fish exchange this morning.

Experiment With Cars

degrees Fahrenheit. It took four and a half days to reach Winnipeg and, during that time, the car was thrice re-iced. The temperature was above ninety each day and on one day reached 105. The temperature in the car never went above 23 at the warmest point and the coldest point was about fifteen at the same time, giving a mean temperature of nineteen. The results were just about what had been expected from experience with the miniature car model with which experiments had been made at the local station.

From Winnipeg two carloads of fresh beef were consigned to Montreal—one the experimental car with overhead cooling system and the other an ordinary end bunker type. The comparative results obtained were most interesting, conclusively showing the superiority of overhead cooling. The temperature range in the overhead bunker car was 33 to 37 and in the end bunker car from 29 to 39. The former was cooled with 6 1/2% sale concentrate mixture and the latter with 11% mixture. The end tank car required three re-icings between Winnipeg and Montreal, the other having had to have only one partial refilling.

Net Result

The net result was the ascertaining that, with overhead cooling, more uniform temperature could be obtained with lower mean temperatures for a given salt concentration and less ice was required. Strangely enough, however, the peculiar temperature distribution in the ordinary refrigerator car lent itself well to the unloading technique at present in vogue for fresh beef. In the overhead bunker car a sweating developed after the doors were opened. This condensation or drip factor, however, was a problem which could be easily solved by the development, possibly, of a dry air tunnel. Mr. Young was confident that something would come from the overhead bunker idea, the results of which had been so convincing.

The ideal refrigerator car as visualized by Mr. Young would be constructed of light alloys metal throughout including the insulation and sheeting and would be cooled overhead, either mechanically or by means of cooling mixtures such as ice and salt, eutectic ices or even solid CO2. The use of aluminum foil as insulation would reduce the weight of the car about two and a half tons and the use of metal sheeting would result in greater space for the insulation, necessitated by demand for lower temperature in the cars. The exterior surfaces of the car could also be polished to cut down the amount of heat absorbed and radiated. It had been proven that the nature of these exterior surfaces was an important factor.

Dr. R. G. Large, president of the club, was in the chair and thanked Mr. Young for his interesting talk.
