SIR HENRY THORNTON MEMORIAL

Unveiling of Local Plaque Takes Place Co-Incident With Ceremony at Other Principal Points Along System

In honor of the memory of the late Sir Henry Thornton, president and chairman of the board of directors of the Canadian National Railways from 1922 to 1932, the unveiling took place last evening in the local depot of a handsome bronze plaque erected by the employees of the company. The local ceremony coincided with one being carried out in Ottawa as well as at most of the principal terminal points of the railway system from coast to coast. The local plaque is placed in the ticket vestibule of the local depot. Many local employees of the company were on hand to witness the unveiling and honor the memory of their late lamented and highly esteemed chief.

Hugh Forrest, president of the local Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees, presided over the ceremonies and made the address in connection therewith. He was introduced by F. A. Rogers, who was chairman of the local committee which had charge of the provision and erection of the plaque. The plaque, measuring 22 by 28 inches, has at the top a bust reproduction of the late Sir Henry Thornton surrounded by maple leaves. The inscription is as follows: "In memory of Sir Henry W. Thornton K.B.E., chairman and president of the Canadian National Railways, 1922 to 1932, died March 14, 1933. This tablet is erected by the employees of the Canadian National Railways."

Unveiling Address
 Mr. Forrest's unveiling address was as follows: "We are gathered here for the purpose of hearing and participating in a ceremony of tribute to the memory of the late Sir Henry W. Thornton. Sir Henry was chairman of the board of directors and president of the Canadian National Railways in the ten years between 1922 and 1932. "We are gathered here on this occasion—an auspicious occasion—to share with the large family of Canadian National employees throughout the Dominion of Canada this tribute to the memory of the man who was our beloved chief in those years. "The ceremony is to take the form of an unveiling ceremony originating in Ottawa, the capital city of the Dominion which is being carried throughout Canada over the facilities of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. We are indebted to J. Bulger, official time-keeper of the Canadian National Railways at Prince Rupert, for the use of a radio for the purpose of hearing this broadcast. "I should like at the outset to express my very deep appreciation of the honor done me by the local C. N. R. employees in asking

SALT LAKE CITY, Dec. 18.—Search for the Western Air Express air liner, missing since Monday on a flight from Los Vegas, Nevada to Salt Lake City, with four passengers and three of a crew on board, became even more intensive today. Twenty-five planes were sent out to look from the air while hundreds of ground searchers were assigned to sectors.

Yesterday's searching proved fruitless but Alvin Adams, president of Western Air Express, who is directing operations, said the quest would continue indefinitely.

Canadian Labor Body Urges Government To Get Soviet on Trial

Would Have Canada Get Geneva to Take Action in View Of Alleged Dissemination of Communistic Propaganda in Commercial Channels

OTTAWA, Dec. 18: (CP)—Recommendation that Canada, as a member of the League of Nations, cause Soviet Russia to be tried at Geneva on a charge of disseminating Communistic propaganda through commercial channels featured representations made today by one of the three leading labor federations in Canada before the government. The Confederation of Catholic Workers urged that Russia be tried by the League and, if found guilty, Canada should move for her removal from the League and ask member nations to break off commercial relations with the Soviet.

The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada and All Canadian Congress of Labor made recommendations for legislative action to improve the lot of the working class.

Premier King told the Catholic workers that, in the face of problems now confronting the world, it was no time to set one nation against another or class against class. He said, however, the representations would be considered.

Must Be Active

The normal human being must be active all the time. The person without any object in life will be pretty sure to get into mischief sooner or later. People who have no aim but to eat and drink and make merry soon cease to make merry and seek other sensations. It is natural for the human mind to seek new experiences and if they are rightly directed there is no trouble. Without direction there is apt to be a tendency to stray into the by-paths of life.

Plenty Of Opportunities

There are plenty of opportunities for doing things in this life. We may develop our own minds by study and then we may express ourselves by writing or drawing or painting or carving. Often reading becomes an excuse for laziness or seeking for thrills in the latest new books. That is not study nor does it indicate a literary bent. The person who debauches himself or herself by reading thrillers all the time is simply wasting what might otherwise have been a useful life.

The Negative Life

There are many people who conform with all the rules of conduct, attend church, pray and sing hymns and yet whose lives are of little value to God or devil and who might almost as well have not been born. The passive person never does anything in the world. He or she lives a negative life which is another name for a useless life. That kind of life is of little value here and it does not inspire anyone for the future. David was a man after God's own heart, not because he was a perfect man or a perfect king, not because he lived a saintly life. He did many wrong things—we do not know how many—but he was active, emotional, keen, full of life. In fact he was the kind of person that had the power within himself of evolving to something higher. Action was the keynote of his life right from the time when he single-handedly killed the lion that attacked the flocks that were in his care. That was why he was the man after God's own heart.

Just now we are about to celebrate Christmas. This is a great opportunity for action. The opportunity to carry the Christmas spirit into the homes of the people around is open to all. Some cannot do this but all have an opportunity to make life a little happier for someone. There is only a brief time but it is long enough for the active person, the man after God's own heart.

R. S. White, Publisher of Montreal Gazette, Passes Away After Six Weeks' Illness

MONTREAL, Dec. 13: (CP) — Senator Robert Smeaton White, aged 71, publisher of the Montreal Gazette, passed away last night after a six weeks' illness.

Mr. White was in his time the dean of journalists associated with Canadian daily newspapers and the doyen of the House of Commons. Of him it was once written that he was born with a line of type in his hand, while his association with Parliament at Ottawa went back to 1888. His political life was interrupted for 3 years when he held the position of Collector of Customs of the Port of Montreal and during a return to newspaper work before he was elected in 1925 to represent Mount Royal at Ottawa.

Mr. White was born at Peterboro', Ont., March 15, 1866, the son of Hon. Thomas White and Esther Vine. Mr. White was associated with newspapers from his earliest days, "because his father owned the Peterboro Review and later, with his brother Richard, the Hamilton Spectator and the Montreal Gazette. R. S. White was educated at the public schools in Hamilton and Montreal. While his leanings were always toward journalism because of his familiarity with newspaper offices his father urged him to try a business career. Mr. White worked in the office of Gault Brothers, drygoods firm, in Montreal, and later in the Bank of Montreal. The training he received in these different lines gave him a most valuable insight into commerce and finance and the moment he felt sure of himself Mr. White graduated to a newspaper office, becoming a "cub" reporter on the Montreal Gazette at the age of 18, in 1874. He was appointed commercial and financial editorial writer of that paper in 1876 and in 1882 became editorial writer. Three years later his father, who had been editor-in-chief of the paper, entered the Cabinet of Sir John A. Macdonald as minister of the interior and Mr. White succeeded him in the editor's chair. He also represented the Gazette at Ottawa during the parliamentary sessions and was President of the Press Gallery in 1884.

Started Young

Mr. White inherited not only his love of printer's ink but also his father's political ambitions, because it was not long before he was found speaking at campaign meetings. His first appearance was always remembered by him. It took place in the county of Drummond, Que., in 1876. Hon. Wilfrid (afterward Sir Wilfrid) Laurier, prime minister of Canada, was running as Liberal candidate and one meeting was made uncomfortable by a gang of urchins who pelted the speakers with green apples through the door. The leads were quite impartial and both White and Laurier were kept busy dodging the apples while they were speaking.

Mr. White's father sat for Cardwell, Ont., and when he died in 1882 his son was elected to succeed him. He sat in the House of Commons until 1895 when he was appointed Collector of Customs at Montreal, an office he held with distinction until 1917, when he resigned and returned to journalism as editor-in-chief of the Montreal Gazette.

In 1925 when the new constituency of Mount Royal, which took in Westmount where Mr. White resided, was created, Conservatives asked him to be their standard bearer. He was then 60 years old, but such was his physical strength and alert mind that he organized his campaign himself and addressed 28 meetings. He won the seat by more than 9,000 majority. He was re-elected in the general election of the following year. Upon re-entry to the House of Commons he dropped his journalistic activities for the most part.

Was Versatile

As a journalist Mr. White's contributions to the Gazette covered a wide range of subjects, but he wrote with the greatest authority on financial matters. For years he contributed the leading editorial in the Gazette on the budget, while at Ottawa he was one of the chief critics, on the Conservative side, of financial measures. Both as a writer and speaker Mr. White relied upon lucid analyses to make his points. While possessed of a ready wit, which got into full play in minor affairs, notably dinners and similar functions, when dealing with public matters he was always serious, imperturbable and logical. It was said of him he would have made an ideal minister of finance.

When Mr. White returned to the House of Commons in 1925 he was to find everything changed. The old chamber had gone in the fire of 1916, not a member he sat with in 1895 was there, and all the attendants at the house were different. But he fitted into the new surroundings without effort and his first speech showed him as much at home as he had been 30 years before.

Mr. White married in 1888 Annie Helen, daughter of Captain Barclay of Montreal.

Satisfactory Returns From Trail On Silver Pick Shipment

SMITHERS, Dec. 13:—Returns have just been received from the smelter at Trail for the shipment of ore made a short time ago from the Silver Pick Group mineral claims on Babine Mountain.

These returns proved to be very satisfactory and showed that the shipment of ten tons averaged 326 ounces silver and nearly three quarters of an ounce of gold per ton with gross returns of just over $150 per ton.

The Silver Pick property was leased to a syndicate from Grand Forks late in the summer by the owners, Thomas King and Martin Kain of Smithers, and it was the intention of the new operators to carry on work all winter. They were a little too late in getting started, however, and had not been able to make preparations for the winter and so were obliged to quit when the heavy snow arrived in the hills. They brought out what ore they had produced in the short time they were working and shipped it to the smelter with the above mentioned gratifying results.

It is expected that the lessees will be getting an early start on the property in the spring.

Messrs. King and Kain made a shipment of 7½ tons from the same property a year ago and got even better results than those just received as their shipment netted over $150 per ton after paying all transportation and smelter charges.

A great deal of Babine Mountain covered by a number of different groups produces very high grade silver and assays of over 2000 ounces have been received by some of the owners there.

This district gives every promise of early activity and with a fair price for silver large returns can be expected from the majority of the properties of that district.

Anthony Zorich of Ketchikan will be here aboard the Princess Adelaide tomorrow morning going through to Vancouver enroute to New York where he will meet his mother who is returning from a trip to her native home in Jugoslavia.

PENS LASTING IMPRESSION OF 1936 OLYMPIAD; VIVID PICTURE BY MISS MEAGHER

Description of Great Gathering of Nation's Youth Written by Outstanding Canadian Athlete

(By Aileen Meagher, holder of the Crowe Memorial Medal and the Springfield Trophy, acknowledged by the Amateur Athletic Union as Canada's leading athlete, 1935)

Opening day of the Olympic Games, the youth of 53 nations assemble together in the huge Maifield near the Stadium. Faces that will soon be grim and strained in competition are smiling; a little Jap grins up at a husky Australian, a soft Hungarian plume waves next to a pale blue Indian turban, a Canadian in crimson blazer links arms with the British blue. Then at a signal everyone lines up behind his own flag. Down the avenue of flags comes Hitler—Der Fuehrer. In the towers of the Marathon gate high above the crowd, trumpeters ring out a welcoming fanfare. Hitler enters the stadium and we hear the thunderous "Heil," and then the gentle, almost sighing sound of Germany's national anthem, "Deutschland," "Deutschland." The flags of all the nations are slowly raised and fly out far above the stadium.

The huge Olympic bell rings out and, answering its call, the youth of the world, moving with beauty and strength, enter the stadium and stand in the field. Soon the green of the grass is almost hidden by the bright blazers and uniforms of the competitors. Over the loud speakers come the stirring words of Baron de Coubertin, first organizer of the modern Olympics:

"The important thing in the Olympic Games is not winning, but taking part. The essential thing in life is not conquering, but fighting well!"

Der Fuehrer then proclaims the Games open and the Olympic flag, five interlocked rings, representing the continents, goes up. Salutes are fired, carrier pigeons wheel overhead, the great zeppelin, Hindenburg, cruises slowly by and the blare of the trumpets is almost unheard in the roar of a hundred thousand voices. Then the huge well of sound is no longer thunderous with applause, but resonant with the deep solemnity of the Olympic hymn, inspiring composition of Richard Strauss. As the last ringing notes fade, the torch bearer appears dramatically at the head of a flight of steps, carrying in his upflung hand the fire that has been brought by runners from far away Olympia in Greece. He runs the length of the stadium and kindles the flaming torch that will flare against the skyline all during the games. The flags of the nations advance and are lowered while the captain of the German team pronounces the Olympic oath for all the competitors, and then with the glory of Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus" still ringing in their ears, the athletes parade out again.

Helmeted Heads

The Games last two weeks, fourteen vivid days of varying impressions—the strange solemnity of placing a wreath on the grave of the Unknown Soldier, and the half-conscious twinge of fear evoked by the guard of honor, whose helmeted heads were so grimly similar to those soldiers of twenty years ago—laughter and clumsy shuffling over the beautiful floors of a palace at Potsdam, where the visitors must wear protective carpet slippers before being permitted to walk over the polished surfaces—the intriguing chains of small medals and wide ribbons of honor mingling with the pale blue blazers of India, the green of Australia, blue of Britain and crimson of Canada at the British Embassy reception—the oneness of the crowd that rises like a huge wave as the competitors near the finish line—a victorious German girl, laurel crowned, carried home on the shoulders of her team mates, and let down to pass through a gate of flowers, stands excited and flushed while her companions dance and sing around her—the tense hush and releasing sigh of the crowd as the pole vaulter goes up, up and over without touching the bar—a little daschund puppy who looks gravely at his master grasping a long sausage in one hand and a frothing stein in the other, and then waddles over to make friends—the pale smiles and courageous joking of athletes tensely waiting to be called for their events—quiet groups of women patiently bending and picking up the paper and scraps strewn about by a heedless crowd—the wall of black-shirted guards that holds back the pushing throng of spectators as Herr Hitler steps into his car—the rays of searchlights like weaving northern lights that silhouette the German pines against the sky and finally focus above the stadium, where a mistily clad figure is doing the dance of the fates—two white clad, heavily masked fencers who stab and lunge with lightning quickness, and after the bout she who seemed so fierce takes off her mask and shows herself an angelic faced little blonde—a wistful faced old lady asking in broken English if perhaps we have been to Utah where her son is—and most impressive and stirring of all, the solemn hush as the crowd stands and the flags of the laurel-wreathed victors slowly rise, wave a brief moment against the sky—then down again.

WINNER OF FIRST HALF

Grotto Upsets Hoop Dope With Victory Over Lambie & Stone

Fighting a thrilling uphill battle all the way and finishing off with a flurry of baskets that left the opposition flat-footed, the Grotto last night upset the highly-touted Lambie & Stone squad 33 to 30 to tuck away the championship of the first half of the City Basketball League. The Tobaccoists deserved full credit for their win as they were behind six or eight points practically the whole game until three minutes from the end.

With the score standing 23 to 30 for Lambie & Stone, a time-out was called and the Grotto took advantage of this to make a last-minute change in their line-up, moving Morgan to the forward line and putting Smith on guard. This bit of hoop strategy won the game. MacPhee flipped one in from the side and Ratchford followed with a long shot to bring the score to 30 to 27 for the Clothiers. The latter had several lovely chances to jump ahead but muffed their shots. With the fans on their feet and howling themselves hoarse, the Grotto responded and MacPhee, who had been playing inspired ball all night, looped in another side shot and Stalker gave them a one-point lead shortly after. With only seconds to go, Morgan delivered the goods with one of his pet "hook" shots to cinch victory for the Tobaccoists.

Lindsay, sniping wizard of the Clothiers, was limited to one field goal but Santerbane, a point-getter when he plays ball, spent too much time in dirty tactics to be of much use to his team.

Brick Skinner handled the whistle and kept the game well in check. Grotto—MacPhee (13), Morgan (6), Smith (4), Stalker (4), Ratchford (6); total, 33.

Lambie & Stone—Calderone (8), Santerbane (9), Lindsay (2), Johnson (5), Arney (6); total, 30.

Intermediate League
In the Intermediate opener, Ben's Newsies turned back the Regiment 31 to 27 in a fast wide-open game. Viereck, for the Newsies, pulled down 13 points and Davis, for the Army, collected 11.

Ben's—Brown (1), Palmer (6), Viereck (13), Suehiro (4), Winslow (6), McMeekin (1), Blake, total, 31.
Regiment—Allen (2), Nelson (6), Burnett, Cross, Gillis (2), Comadina (2), Davis (11), Miller (2), Johnson (2); total, 27.

SPORT CHAT

Harold W. Jordan, clerk at Moose Jaw police headquarters, is the holder of the "silver king," representing the Dominion championship of the Canadian Correspondence Chess association as the result of matches lasting four years and two months. The decision was reached only after two ties had been played off, Mr. Jordan defeating a Toronto and a Winnipeg man in the finals. Now Mr. Jordan is playing 40 different games by correspondence with competitors in various parts of the world. In the letters in which the players mark their moves long discussions on every conceivable topic are carried on. Telepathy, psychology and politics are among topics discussed by the chess enthusiasts.

In the game Mr. Jordan is playing with a Christchurch, N.Z., man it takes three months for one move each, or four complete moves a year. In four years Jordan has made six moves. But the modern idea of speed and more speed is creeping in. In another match with a competitor in Drustie, Latvia, 14 moves have been made in seven months. The largest number of games Jordan has played at one time was 83, and he figures he has spent $1,500 in postage. He has played "over the board" in Bel-me to officiate at this function, particularly so as I do not happen to be of the organization which first conceived the idea of this form of tribute and the manner of carrying it out. I realize the great responsibility in this matter and my own limitations with respect to it and I am equally aware of the inadequacy of words wherewith to express the sentiments of these employees.

"Perhaps it might be well at this juncture to outline how this proposal first came about and its eventual crystallization, culminating in the ceremony arranged for this broadcast. The idea was first conceived by a number of employees, who are members of the standard international labor organizations. Under pressure from them the matter was considered and arrangements were made for the distribution of the necessary lists to secure the funds required to give the proposal effect. It was soon seen that the idea met with a very general reception with the result that other organizations asked to be included and the arrangements were accordingly widened. Again there were requests from officers and other employees who, by reason of the particularity of their status, are not members of these organizations. In this way the idea became more universal with the result that the final contributions took in all employees and officers of the railway.

General Contribution

"Here in Prince Rupert that was much so. At first this point was not one of those chosen for the erection of a plaque, which is the form which this tribute has taken. It was first decided that one plaque would be erected in each province of the Dominion. However, by persistence and with the co-operation of the local press, each of which papers published our views in the matter, the desire to have a plaque here also was emphasized and finally conceded. The plaque erected here is similar to those arranged for the other points, all being struck from one mold.

"Of he in whose memory these plaques are erected much has been written and not always with understanding or in the proper estimation of his true worth. I feel that we best know him who worked for him, were aware alike of his strengths and his weaknesses and were able to measure the one in relation to the other.

"Sir Henry was a great organizer, and a great executive. In these capacities there is much with which to measure him. These are his accomplishments which extended to three countries in the course of his ever expanding career. In each of these his record is testament to his capacity to achieve.

"In leadership he towered over his associates, physically and mentally he was a big man—a leader in his capacity to conceive and to carry out.

Unfortunate End

"We know the unfortunate circumstances which terminated his career with the railway with which we too are associated. I make mention of it here in passing that it may be known, as it is known to each one of us, and the injustice of it serves to deepen our respect to his memory and the love and affection that we had and have for him. His enemies cut him down and, if we believe aright, they did so by reason of his capacity to achieve. Time will make evident the truths that are at present hidden and will remain hidden in the fog that accompanied his going from the service which later broke his spirit and brought about his untimely end. At a time when the opportunity of an even larger field appeared open to him in which he would have had an even greater opportunity to exercise his talents, he was already fated.

"His critics and his enemies might have dealt more charitably with him, certainly less viciously with him, in view of the greatness of his contribution to the life and progress of Canada and the surety of the success of the Canadian National System which he established.

"Time will soften the passion in which their criticism was conceived and proper perspective which time only can supply will bring proper judgment of the man and his achievement.

"Of these things we do not need to speak extensively nor does he need our defence but passing mention thus touching all phases of

GAME HEAD WAS HEARD

James Cunningham Speaker At Annual Banquet of Local Rod And Gun Club

James Cunningham of Vancouver, Game Commissioner for the Province of British Columbia, was the principal speaker last night at the annual banquet of the Prince Rupert Rod and Gun Club in the Knox Hotel. There were between ninety and one hundred nimrods and anglers in attendance with President Don Grear in the chair and the affair was highly successful.

Mr. Cunningham discussed game and hunting matters. After speaking of deer and wolves, in the course of which he declared that the authorities had no intention, as rumored, of putting wolves on the Queen Charlotte Islands, Mr. Cunningham went on to speak of the migratory bird regulations which he explained were governed by the Dominion. It was felt by the province that the present regulations were not satisfactory and every effort was being made to bring about adjustments. After Mr. Cunningham's address numerous questions were asked, these being answered by the Commissioner.

District Game Warden T. Van Jyk of Prince George spoke briefly and humorously.

City Commissioner W. J. Alder gave reminiscences of younger days when he was a devotee of angling and wished the club every success.

The evening's program included songs by Andrew Horne and illuminated club swinging by Ted Anslow.

Filled to capacity with Alaskans going south, C. P. R. steamer Princess Norah, Capt. William Palmer, was in port from 2:30 to 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon southbound from Skagway to Vancouver. A large portion of the passengers were from Juneau and Ketchikan. Eleven persons disembarked from the vessel here while only one boarded her here—for Vancouver. D. McCrauld has returned to his duties as chief engineer on the Princess Norah after having been off for a month's vacation during which he made a trip to California.

his railway life where it was inter-lent with our own merely show that we are aware of these circumstances, which do not lessen the faith in him that was and is ours.

"Shining out brilliantly through all these circumstances of misfortune, yes of imposition, is the real man we had come to know, and whom we shall always remember—the friend."

Having been delayed a couple of days by exceptionally bad weather conditions, C. N. R. steamer Prince John, Capt. Neil McLean, is due in port at 5 o'clock this evening from Vancouver via the Queen Charlotte Islands. The vessel is scheduled to sail at 10 o'clock tonight on her return south via the Islands but will not likely get away at that time.

Railwayman At Smithers Hurt

Roadmaster Davidson Hit by Rock And Is In Hospital

SMITHERS, Dec. 18.—Robert C. Davidson, popular Canadian National Railways roadmaster at Smithers, met with quite a serious mishap while attending the rock work being carried out on the line near Cedarvale.

While standing near a carload of broken rock the car was suddenly dumped, taking Mr. Davidson down the side of the grade with it. He suffered bruises to his shoulder and leg and was rushed to Smithers Hospital where he is resting as comfortably as can be expected. His many friends hope that his injuries are not serious and that he will be able to attend to his curling this winter with the same enthusiasm that he has always displayed for the "roar-in game."

man and president of the Canadian National Railways and a railroad executive who stood very high in the estimation of every employee of that system, the general chairman of the international standard railroad labor organizations received from their members many demands for some action to perpetuate the memory of the man who had done so much for the Canadian National system and its employees. As a result, the general chairman decided, with the assistance of their respective membership and friends, to erect bronze memorial plaques to honor Sir Henry's memory, at certain places across the Dominion of Canada.

"We are now gathered in Ottawa, the capital city of this Dominion, to unveil the first of these memorials. At the same time, in other places, similar ceremonies are taking place.

"These ceremonies are being carried out by representatives and members of the seventeen standard railroad labor organizations. The cost of the plaques has been met by members of these organizations and their friends who are employees of the Canadian National system on behalf of the committee. I wish to thank all whose assistance made it possible for this project to be carried to a successful conclusion. I desire at this time also to express to the Canadian Radio Broadcasting Corporation the appreciation and sincere thanks of the committee for their assistance and co-operation in providing the facilities through which this broadcast is being brought to the employees of the Canadian National Railways and to the people of Canada."

The plaques which were unveiled are of bronze. At the top is a portrait of the late Sir Henry Thornton in raised profile, surrounded by a garland of maple leaves.

Salvation Army Home League Of Metlakatla Sale

The Home League of the Salvation Army at Metlakatla held its annual sale of work recently. It was a very successful affair. The sum of $58.40 was realized from the sale of foodstuffs and needlework. It would have been much more had the weatherman been more agreeable. As it was, a good time was enjoyed by those who attended the sale. J. S. Ryan proved himself an able auctioneer. The proceeds will go towards the expenses of lighting and heating the Salvation Army Hall during the winter months.

C. P. R. steamer Princess Adelaide, is due in port at 3:30 this afternoon from the south and will sail at 5 p.m. on a special trip to Kekelecan to pick up a large party of passengers there for the south. On her way back to Vancouver, the Princess Adelaide is due here tomorrow morning.

Bluenose Woman Braves Storms With Fishermen

Mrs. Kilson Atwood is Dory Mate Of Her Husband on the Nova Scotia Banks

THE HAWK, Cape Sable Island, N.S., Dec. 18. (CP)—Women nowadays are taking part in most of the occupations the male sex once claimed for itself—but few have ever been willing to attempt one of the toughest jobs going, deep sea fishing.

There is only one in Nova Scotia, as far as the records go. She is Mrs. Kilson Atwood, hardy daughter of this storm-swept island just off the southern tip of the province.

Regularly, in fair weather or foul, she dons the uniform of the Nova Scotia fishing fleet—ungainly oilskins and sou'-wester—and puts out to the fishing grounds near here with her husband and other members of this community.

The boat in which she goes is an open 30-footer. In rough weather waves break over the craft's bow and spray and wind lash the faces of the crew.

Once on the grounds, nets or trawls, depending on the type of fish for which they are trying, are lowered. About two hours later they are lifted from the sea, heavy, if fishing is good, with scores of twisting shapes.

Mrs. Atwood was brought up in a fishing village and knew all the methods of catching fish long before she ever took part in the work herself. She says the hardest part of the whole thing was persuading her husband to allow her to go to the banks with him.
"I enjoy it all," she smiled the other day, shortly after she had made up her "bounty," a total catch of 2,500 pounds. She likes "drailing" for pollock best.

HOW OTHERS KEEP XMAS

Dr. Mandy Tells Rotary Club Experiences of Other Days In Africa, Germany, Holland U. S. and England

"Christmas in Many Lands" was the title of an intensely interesting address given yesterday by Dr. J. T. Mandy to the Prince Rupert Rotary Club at its regular mid-week luncheon in the Commodore Cafe, C. V. Eviatt presiding. The information conveyed was the result of personal observation of Christmases spent in South Africa, the land of his birth, Germany, the land of his university days and also of Denmark, United States and Canada, the last mentioned being the experience of Christmas in his own home, the best of all.

Dr. Mandy spoke of the influence of St. Nicholas, the patron saint of virgins, seafarers and children. In this country the name has been corrupted into Santa Claus but it exemplifies the same spirit, no matter under what name it is known and the spirit of Christmas is everywhere shown through the medium of gifts.

The speaker told of his first remembrance of Christmas on an ostrich farm near Port Elizabeth in South Africa. He remembered the beautiful ostriches, the black natives, the snakes, scorpions and tarantulas. His nurse was a black boy whom his father had brought with him from Matabele Land. He was as true and faithful as the most jealous dog. His name was Euclid. This first Christmas that he remembered was the hottest day in the whole year. Santa Claus, as they knew him was a mysterious old gentleman. They never saw him although he was very real. On that Christmas eve he was lying awake trying to keep from going to sleep so that he might possibly see Santa Claus when he heard a terrific din and the whole household was awakened. Outside the jackals could be heard and it was evident that a herd of elephants was visiting their place. His father and the other men on the place had to get up and go out and drive them off or they would break down the fences and damage the crops if allowed to remain.

Later across the Atlantic in England he found Christmas celebrated by the eating of plum puddings, the decorating of Christmas trees and of course the giving of gifts.

In Germany during his university days, Dr. Mandy said he found possibly the truest idea of Christmas. This was during the Hohenzollern times. They had a wonderful organization that sought out all the poor and needy and saw that they had a happy Christmas. Funds for this purpose were provided by the municipal authorities. There was no plum pudding like there was in England but instead they had gingerbread of many kinds and shapes.

St. Nicholas appeared in person in Germany with a sack and birch rod. The children had to appear before him and recite the bad things they had done during the year and for this they were reprimanded and received a slight chastisement with the rod. It was not the chastisement that hurt but the shame of having to confess to the wrong things they had done or said. Then St. Nicholas put his hand down into his bag and drew out presents to reward for the good things they had done.

The custom of hanging up stockings seemed to be general everywhere, but in Saxony they hung up their boots and usually got the largest pair of long boots they could find.

In Denmark, the home of Hans Christian Anderson and his fables, all class barriers were broken at Christmas time. The old traditional customs were still carried out. All the residents on an estate

"The Gorgeous Hussy" With Joan Crawford and Robert Taylor, Here This Week-end

With an outstanding cast which includes such headliners as Joan Crawford, Robert Taylor, Lionel Barrymore, Franchot Tone, Melvyn Douglas and James Stewart, "The Gorgeous Hussy" comes as the feature offering to the screen of the Capitol Theatre this week-end. The gathered in the big hall on Christmas eve and danced together, the head of the house dancing with the poorest of the servants. Merriem was general.

The speaker touched lightly on the number of Christmas seasons spent in the United States and in Eastern Canada where family reunions were the feature of the annual occasions, grandpa and grandma being the greatest personalities.

Concluding, Dr. Mandy said it was in Western Canada where a realization of the value of a home became greatest. The flavor of the new world was over everything. While he had enjoyed Christmas in all parts of the country, his own home was the most inspiring place.

acting together of Miss Crawford and Robert Taylor is said to give the story many poignant and unforgettable moments. Also outstanding is the characterization of Lionel Barrymore as Andrew Jackson, seventh president of the United States. It is said to be one of the greatest achievements of his career.

The story of "The Gorgeous Hussy" deals with the tempestuous Peggy O'Neill, tavern-keeper's daughter, who shocked the staid society of Washington at the age of fifteen and continued through a startling career which led her into the centre of life on Capitol Hill. It is one of the most ambitious roles Miss Crawford has ever had.

The picture is crammed with dramatic excitement, humorous interludes and emotional intensity. During her reign in Washington Peggy wrecks a cabinet and sets the tongues of Washington wagging over her reckless activities.
