Questions were asked by G. P. Lyons, W. H. Brett, Trevor Williams, George Anderson and Captain Tony Martinusen, and answered by Mr. Thompson.

Dr. Thompson, in theorizing on why halibut did not seem to bite! at Goose Island during the winter, stated that this was possibly due to the fact that they were not eating. When water was cold, it was found that fish did not grow much and did not eat much. This was possibly why Goose Island PHONE-957 chickens did not take bait much in 29°C winter. George Anderson asked why then had halibut taken bait LC at Goose Bay before there had ever been a close season. If the fish Pot Roast-4 C would not bite, it was not necessary to have a close season.
