TOLMIE WINS VICTORIA ELECTION

Former B.C. Premier Is Victor in Tight Contest; C.C.F. is Close Second

Less Than Three Hundred Votes Separated First Man From Last in Total of Nearly 18,000—Personal Popularity Deciding Factor

VICTORIA, June 9: (CP)—Hon. Dr. Simon Fraser Tolmie, former Premier of British Columbia, returns to the scene of his former political activities at Ottawa after winning the closest political battle in the history of this city. He was the high man in yesterday's federal by-election to choose a successor to the late D'Arcy Plunkett.

Although a total of nearly 18,000 votes was cast, less than three hundred separated the winner from the low man in the field of three. The vote was:

Dr. S. F. Tolmie, Conservative, 5,966.
 Prof. King Gordon, C. C. F., 5,869.
 C. F. McDowell, Liberal, 5,693.
 Dr. Tolmie's personal popularity conceded to have been the deciding factor in his victory despite the present eclipse of Conservatism, the vigorous and effective campaign put up by the C. C. F. and the prestige of Liberalism.

ARE LURED BY ARCTIC

Scientists Probe Mysteries in Various Quarters of Far North

WINNIPEG, June 9: (CP)—Lure of the Arctic, the uninhabited wastes of Baffin land and the Yukon, today beckoned to groups of scientists eager to study the geography and wild life of Canada's northern hinterland. At least three expeditions are under way and others will follow judging by requests for government permits.

Preceded by G. W. Rowley, 23-year old archaeologist-member of a British-Canadian Arctic expedition, members of the Royal Geographical Society plan a three-year exile on lonely Baffin Land. They will study geological formations, birds and the culture of three Eskimo tribes long extinct.

Collection of Arctic flora and rare wild life specie will occupy two smaller expeditions who will follow a labored course out of Vancouver, 1200 miles up Alaska's rugged coastline. Edward and Joe Lohbrunner of Victoria will comprise the first plant collecting party. J. Fletcher of Toronto and two companions will hunt glacial bear.

Four men make up the party due to arrive at Baffin Land next year. Manning and P. D. Baird, geologist, are the only members with previous experience in Canada's untracked Arctic interior. C. W. Rowley, archaeologist, and R. J. O. Bray, ornithologist, all Oxford and Cambridge graduates will accompany them.

From Churchill, on Hudson Bay they will travel to Southampton Island, 500 miles north, in a 30-foot gasoline-powered whaleboat. Mapping and nesting habits of the blue goose along the bleak north coast-line will engage the expedition for the first year. The next two will be spent surveying and mapping northwest Baffin Land.

Search for the remains of ancient Eskimo tribes will be the particular task of Rowley, pink-cheeked Cambridge graduate. The three groups to be studied are the Sedermites, the Thules and the Dorsets. If successful, description of what he finds will throw light on a debatable origin of the races.

The Sedermites were wiped out by an unknown disease 30 years ago. The Thules and Cape Dorset tribes became extinct more than 400 years ago. Remains of the later will be sought in little stone houses known to exist at strategic points right across the Arctic. Little is known of the Dorsets.

Up This Coast

Heading the second expedition: the Lohbrunner brothers will leave Victoria in mid-June for Skagway, 1000 north of Vancouver. From there they will travel by canoe and afoot, describing a circle that will take them to unglaciated areas where plant life has not been rubbed out by rivers of ice and where they hope to find rare specimens for the Royal Horticultural Society.

This is not their first botanical expedition. They have discovered numerous plants on Mount Arrowsmith, have searched for alpsines in the Cassiar and Alice Arm districts and have found the British (Continued on Page Two)

Advocates This in Event of Subsidies Being Increased—Would Benefit Railway—Improved Service To Australia Forecast

OTTAWA, June 9: (CP)—After Hon. W. D. Euler, minister of trade and commerce, had indicated that negotiations were afoot to bring about a better Canada-Australia trans-Pacific steamship service, Olof Hanson, M.P. for Skeena, urged before the House of Commons that, if subsidies were to be increased, provision be made for calls at Prince Rupert as well as at Vancouver.

Mr. Hanson said that encouragement given Prince Rupert would pay a dividend in increased Canadian National business through the development of Northern British Columbia.

NOT WHAT EXPECTED

Australian Rancher Expected To Find All Canadian Farmers Millionaires

EDMONTON, June 9: (CP)—"Keenly disappointed" over conditions in Canada where he expected to find "Canadian and especially Alberta farmers were practically millionaires," C. K. Hill, wealthy Australian rancher, paused here on a world tour long enough to contrast trade conditions in the Commonwealth with those in Canada as he observed them.

"All we hear at home is 'Canada, Canada, Canada,'" Mr. Hill said. "But you people are much worse off than we are. We have ample work for all our labor and only a few who never would work find it necessary to depend on relief for subsistence."

"We have fine highways and much work has been done on them. We have spent $500,000,000 on roads in the past 10 years. This has supplied work for our laborers and has provided us with a wonderful set of roads.

"Money is cheap. Farmers are not loaded with debts bearing heavy interest. The majority own their land by freehold and the title is clear of all encumbrances. The great increase in the woolen markets due to the entrance of Japan in the weaving trade has done much to better conditions of sheep raisers. The prices of wool has practically doubled within the last few years."

Mr. Hill said he was particularly impressed by the fact he had seen practically no sheep and very few cattle on his tour of Canada. In Australia, he said, a farmer raises, besides his crop, at least one sheep for every acre of land. The net result of this has placed wool in the category of leading export product. Last year exports were valued at $250,000,000.

WATER IS RECEDING

Start at Various Points Being Made on Repairing Railway Line

With a slight drop occurring since yesterday in high water conditions on the Skeena River, railway repair crews are able today to dig into the work of rehabilitating the line following the damaging floods of last week. The water was still too high to permit of good working conditions. Nor were there any new developments in the situation.

A new bridge 700 or 800 feet long is being put in at Mile 62 (just west of Salvus) where the first big wash-out on this end occurred. The necessity of turning a pile driver around under difficult conditions took some time in starting on this particular job.

An additional forty men went on the repair work today when two crews of twenty men each were sent out from Terrace—one to Usk and the other to Shames—to repair the tracks. All men who can be effectively used are being put to work.

Repair work is also proceeding from the Kitwanga end. A telegraph repair gang of ten men is arriving from Vancouver tomorrow to assist in restoring communications.

BIG FIRE AT ANYOX

Deserted Mining Camp in Path Of Advancing Flames, Steamer Reports

The town of Anyox was being menaced by a forest fire raging in dead timber on the hillside back of the coke plant and wharves, according to word brought to the city by the steamer Catala which called there last night.

According to officers of the Catala, which arrived this morning, the flames had assumed threatening proportions and the houses and buildings of the town, now to a large extent deserted, seemed to be almost in the path of the conflagration.

The Forest Branch was advised this morning that the fire was under control and that assistance was unnecessary. Nevertheless, Forest Ranger J. B. Scott was sent north with the departmental cruiser Lillian D, this morning to investigate.

According to the report to the Forest Branch, the fire was half a mile out of Anyox.

EXPANSION OF TRADE IS CEMENTING UPTREND; PRODUCTION IS MORE

President of C. M. A. Points to Factors Indicating Betterment in World Conditions and Steady Recovery in Empire

QUEBEC, June 9: (CP)—Continuance of improvement in most departments of activity in the greater part of the world was noted by W. S. Morden, K.C., of Toronto, in his presidential address at the sixty-fifth annual general meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association here. "As this gradual revival is now of three or four years' duration, it seems reasonable to hope that the world, as a whole, is gradually recovering from the great depression, which culminated in the progressive economic and trade disasters that followed and had their origin in, or were at least precipitated by, the dislocations of the war," the president said.

The latest available international statistics, continued, Mr. Morden, showed that world trade was expanding slightly, that industrial production had increased considerably and that about half of those unemployed at the worst period were now working.

Great Britain had led international recovery and contributed much of it and in this connection it was significant she had "thrown overboard her old policy of free trade, which had served her well under different conditions but had become futile in an increasingly protectionist world." Steady recovery was reported from other parts of the British Empire, particularly South Africa.

"The progress of the whole British Empire is gratifying to Canada as a unit of the Empire and also as a nation," declared Mr. Morden, "because of our intimate relations with the rest of the Empire. Material proof is furnished by the fact that last year 52% of all products that went out of Canada to all markets were bought by other Empire countries. The sound, well-ordered and steady progress of the British Empire, which includes one-fourth of the world's population and one-quarter of the earth's surface, has had a far-reaching and beneficial effect throughout the world."

Turning more particularly to Canadian conditions, Mr. Morden quoted index figures of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics to show this country's progress from the low point of the depression in 1933. The index of physical volume of business, based on the monthly average for the year 1926 as 100, had risen from 67.0 in February 1933, to 103.3 in March 1936; the index of industrial production from 60.9 to 104.1, and the index of manufacturing from 58.7 to 98.7. External trade had expanded from $887,097,541 in 1933 to $1,341,876,197 in the year ended March 1936.

Some Conditions Unfavorable After reviewing conditions in mining, lumbering and agriculture, Mr. Morden turned to some of the unfavorable factors that were retarding recovery. About one-eighth (Continued on Page Four)

KITKATLA HAS FIRE

Blaze in Brush Looked Bad For While But Was Brought Under Control

A bush fire which broke out in a small bay opposite the native village of Kitkatla on Sunday afternoon destroyed two small unoccupied buildings and, for a time, threatened the village as well as craft lying on the beach but, as a result of the efforts of fire fighters, was extinguished before it had done very serious damage.

On the sounding of the village fire alarm, men and women took to boats armed with fire fighting equipment. The flames in the two buildings were being fanned by a stiff breeze and were spreading rapidly in the direction of the main community and the beached boats. Finally success attended their efforts to bring the blaze under control.

The fire demonstrated the necessity of a tank for water storage in just such an emergency. This tank has been promised by the Department of Indian Affairs.

TOLMIE ELECTED

Many people throughout the province will be pleased to hear that former Premier Tolmie is elected member for Victoria. His election is undoubtedly due to his personal popularity and to general sympathy with him on his retirement from the leadership of the party nearly three years ago. At that time his government was so unpopular that he was unable to hold his own constituency of Saanich. The usual revulsion of public feeling has taken place and he is now one of the British Columbia representatives at Ottawa.

It was a close election, the electorate being divided into three almost equal parts. Without a C. C. F. in the field or with a weaker candidate than Professor King Gordon, the Liberals would probably have won and without a Liberal in the field, Professor Gordon would likely have been the winner.

We take pleasure in congratulating Dr. Tolmie on his victory. His arrival at Ottawa will make little difference to the line-up of the parties there except possibly to indicate that the electorate in the west is not very satisfied with the record of the Mackenzie King government so far. There is a feeling, justified or not, that the government is pussyfooting too much.

RADICAL FRENCH GOVERNMENT

France has a radical government led by Premier Leon Blum. Evidently it did not have the confidence of the French radicals because they had to take the unpleasant expedient of going on strike when the government took power in order to draw forcibly to their attention the fact that the people were determined to have radical legislation. Evidently they were accustomed to having politicians shift their ground after they were elected and they were taking no chances with Blum. Perhaps with some members of previous more or less conservative administrations in the government, it was very necessary that some demonstration should be made to enforce action.

It's interesting to know when reading the Daily News that the people of the whole district are doing the same.

TO ATTACK WADDINGTON

Canada-U. S. Join in Race—German Party Plans Climb

VANCOUVER, June 9: (CP)—Ace Alpinists of two countries will join forces this summer in an attempt to scale towering Mount Waddington, unscaled king-peak of the British Columbia coast range.

Veterans of the Sierra Club of San Francisco will represent the United States. Led by bespectacled Bestor Robinson the Californians were turned back in 1935 in a fourteenth attempt to wrest victory from the 13,260-foot peak. Details of the Canadian personnel will be announced this month.

A strong German party under the leadership of Fritz Weisner and including Elizabeth Woolsey and William P. House is also planning a journey into the area. They will devote three weeks to climbing in the Franklin Glacier district after which it is believed they will test ropes with "Old Waddy."

Weisner figured prominently in the first German assault on Nanga Parbat—famous "K-2"—closely linked with Mount Everest. With their entrance into the race the Vancouver-San Francisco expedition may be called upon to exert themselves to the utmost to claim the honor of first ascent.

Details of food and equipment are being worked out. It is planned to send in a large advance party to establish a base at Saffron Creek. From this point the mountainous peak is in full view, eight miles distant. One or more outpost camps may be set up beyond the base camp to leave the climbers fresh for the height-assault.

A proposal to make a high overnight stop for the climbers also is receiving consideration. Such a camp might be made at either the head of Dais Glacier, on the south wall, or on a tiny plateau just below the north peak at an altitude of 12,000 feet and where the Sierra men sheltered last year.

This would enable the party to come in light and escape heavy freighting which has tired all previous expeditions in their efforts to conquer forbidding ice wastes that bar the way to Waddington's grim summit.

Lady Rodney Visits Farm

EDMONTON, June 9: (CP)—Corisande Lady Rodney, mother of Lord Rodney, arrived at her son's home, Cottismore farm, Fort Saskatchewan, Alta., on May 25 for a one-month visit. Fort Saskatchewan is four miles east of Edmonton.

Travelling with Lady Rodney was Mrs. Gordon Ives, daughter of the dowager Lady Ridley and former member of Lady Bessborough's staff at Ottawa. Mrs. Ives continued her journey to eastern Canada where she will visit friends.

"England is the only prosperous country in the world at the moment, I believe," Lady Rodney said on her arrival at Edmonton. "I only hope we can keep it so by remaining at peace."

She remarked this would be her last visit to Cottismore Farm as she "minds" the journey too much. Lady Rodney felt that flying would be the future method of traversing long distances but she was quite sure she would not try flying herself.

To "bring 'em back alive" is the object of Fletcher's three-man hunt for glacial bears. Considered one of the rarest species, they will be sought at their haunts in the slopes near St. Elias, 1200 miles north of Vancouver on the Alaskan coast line. C. Roos of Toronto, photographer, and Terence Short of Winnipeg complete the party.

The glacial bear in many respects resembles the black bear and weighs from 350 to 400 pounds. In addition to gathering information concerning habits of the animal the party will endeavor to bring one back alive for presentation later to the Royal Ontario Museum. They expect to return next October.

NAVY WINS IN SOCCER

Defeats Dairy to Move into Tie With Legion in Stuart Shield Standing

Last night's football game between Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve and the Dominion Dairy resulted in a decisive win for the Navy by five goals to nil. There was a fair crowd in attendance but the quality of the play warranted a much better gate.

The Dairy had the hill in its favor and had the better of the opening exchanges but found the sailors' defence too hard to penetrate. Christison put the Navy a goal up after five minutes' play. Howe had hard lines when he struck the upright after breaking through. Vink and Moe were severely tested but were able to hold out the Navy sharpshooters until halftime.

The second half found the Navy attacking most of the time. Christison scored a second, Iverson headed a third from a corner kick and Christison scored the fourth from a penalty and later added the fifth and last goal. The strong sun was a handicap, particularly in the second half to the Dairy, which was playing uphill. Nice combination was shown by Howe, Calderone and Ritchie but they were unable to score although Howe hit the upright on two occasions. Pierce dived at one of Howe's shots which beat him but just rolled outside the upright.

George Dawes refereed and was assisted by Lokken and Andrews as linesmen.

Teams:
R.C.N.V.R.—Pierce; Davies, Eby, Veitch, Ronalds, Currie; Bryant, Iverson, Christison, Armstrong, McMeekin.

Dairy—Vink; Gomez, Moe; Gomez, Calderone, Ferguson; Carroll, Ritchie, Howe, J. McKay, Gillis.

As a result of the victory, the Navy moves into a tie with Canadian Legion for leadership in the Stuart Shield standing which, to date, is as follows:

	W.	D.	L.	F.	A.	P.
Legion	2	0	1	6	6	4
R.C.N.V.R.	2	0	1	10	4	4

Today is the birthday of Tommy Gorman, who hasn't got the Stanley Cup any more. He was born in Ottawa 46 years ago. Formerly coach of Ottawa Senators and New York Americans in the National Hockey League, Tommy took Chicago Black Hawks to a Stanley Cup championship in 1934, then returned to lead Montreal Maroons to the same heights in 1935. But Detroit conquered his Maroons this spring.

Tomorrow will be the birthday of Arthur Havers, one of England's veteran golf stars who stayed at the top long enough to beat Bobby Jones and Gene Sarazen. Born on June 10, 1898, he first qualified for the British open at the age of 18. He won the event in 1923 and the following year toured the United States, defeating both Jones and Sarazen in special matches.

Defeated Lambie & Stone 9 to 3 In City Softball League Last Evening

Canadian National Recreation Association scored a 9 to 3 victory last night over Lambie & Stone in the City Softball League. A new type of ball—smaller and harder—was used and this tended to liven up the play. Although a number of the regulars were absent, there were a number of good plays including one spectacular catch of a sizzling line drive which Freddie Calderone had to leap into the air to pick off. The game was somewhat one-sided as the score would indicate.

British-Israel Society Meets

Informal Discussion on World Events Last Evening

A small gathering of members of the British-Israel Society met at the Tote H Rooms last evening. There being no speaker, general discussions were entered into on present day world events. Articles in various papers, magazines and books were referred to and opinions given as to their bearing on the fulfilment of prophecy and the setting up of the Kingdom of God. So absorbing were the discussions that time went all too quickly and all agreed that an instructive and interesting evening had been spent. The society will meet again July 13.

Miss Dorothy Bingham, who has been identified with the work of the Japanese Mission of the Anglican Church here, sailed this afternoon on the Catala for a trip to Vancouver.

Timely Recipes

Strawberry Season

Housewives welcome this season and bring out their choicest strawberry recipes. To such collections we would add strawberry cream pie, strawberry ice cream, strawberry sherbet and strawberry refrigerator cake. These all look and taste like "company desserts," but are really very easy to make. Sweetened condensed milk is the basic ingredient which adds to the richness and smoothness of these dishes and, miraculously enough, cuts down on the work of preparing them. A delicious and satisfying dessert such as any one of the following recipes, tops off a light meal beautifully and, at the same time, adds valuable milk solids to the day's quota.

STRAWBERRY CREAM PIE

1 1-3 cups (1 can) sweetened condensed milk, 1/4 cup lemon juice, 1 cup sliced strawberries, 1/2 cup whipping cream, 2 tablespoons confectioner's sugar, Vanilla wafer or graham cracker pie crust. Blend together sweetened condensed milk and lemon juice. Fold in sliced strawberries. Pour into 9-inch pie plate lined with vanilla wafer or graham cracker pie crust. Cover with whipped cream sweetened with confectioner's sugar. Chill before serving.

EXPANSION OF TRADE IS CEMENTING UPRENT: PRODUCTION IS MORE

of the entire population was still on relief and when every seven persons were keeping an eighth the situation was not conducive to complacency. In the final resort the only effective method for getting people off relief was to find them work in normal economic activities and consequently policies and measures that would result in increasing production in industry, mining, agriculture, lumbering and fishing and in expanding trade and thereby furnishing more opportunities for employment in the ordinary fields of endeavor in which people had had previous training, offered the real and permanent cure for unemployment and relief.

While nearly all Canadians would agree with this general proposition, there were unfortunately many differences of opinion in regard to the methods which should be employed. It seemed desirable, in Mr. Morden's opinion, the position of industry should be stated and its place in the national economy described. During the lifetime of the association—65 years—the capital invested in Canadian manufacturing had increased from $77,964,020 to $4,703,917,730; the number of industrial employees from 187,942 to 545,162 and the annual gross value of products from $221,617,773 to $2,533,758,954.

Mr. Morden traced the rise of industry from primitive beginnings, showing that "balanced and diversified economy was gradually but definitely accepted as time went on by the great majority of the Canadian people in all walks of life as the most satisfactory policy for the country as a whole. Today Canada had one of the most modern industrial systems in the world. Approximately 83% of the production of Canadian factories was used in Canada and they had succeeded in finding markets in more than 100 other countries for the remaining 17%.

"It may be objected," said Mr. Morden, "that our industrial system does not prevent unemployment. In reply, it may be asked, what proportions unemployment would have reached in the absence of factories. At the depth of the depression, it is estimated that Canadian factories continued to find work for about 70% of the number usually employed. It should be remembered also that the United States is no longer a refuge for Canadians who cannot find work here and that, on the contrary, our unemployed ranks have been increased by many Canadians who have been obliged to return to their own country. Moreover, as a great share of taxes is obtained from industry, both directly and indirectly, where would the national revenue have been obtained if there had been no industry to tax?"

Mr. Morden said the view there was a cleavage of interest between manufacturing and primary producers could not be sustained under modern conditions of life and work. He instanced the interdependence of industry and agriculture. It was officially estimated that between 80% and 85% of farm products of Canada were used at home and between 15% and 20% exported. There was considerable concern, at times, over the problem of marketing the exportable surplus. "Consider what proportions this problem would assume if it were turned round the other way and markets had to be found for 80% to 85% of agricultural production or even for that portion used or consumed within the borders of the country by those engaged in and dependent upon industry."

Industry Is Vital

"In surveying the industrial system of Canada and what it means to all Canadians," declared Mr. Morden, "we are dealing with facts, not theories. The dependence of 2,500,000 Canadians on the salaries and wages they earn in Canadian factories, is a fact. The thousands of industrial establishments in cities, towns, villages and countryside, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, are facts. Modern machinery and equipment are facts. Market connections, developed at great trouble and expense, are facts. Invested capital, representing the savings of thousands of people, is a fact. All these facts represent the thought, planning and toil of three generations of Canadians. As it exists today, the industrial system of Canada is of tremendous and vital national concern to the future population."

As to the future, those who advocated a retrograde course for industry had failed to count the cost, the key word being the loss of employment and it was not a question of industrial employees only but of the myriad of other workers dependent on industry. It was idle to contend that the energies of this vast army of skilled and professional workers could be diverted from their present occupations to the more primitive occupations of three generations ago. External considerations were also involved.

If Canadians should decide to import a large proportion of the more than $2,000,000,000 output of their present industries, the means of payment would have to be carefully considered. There would be no difficulty in finding imports, as all that would be necessary would be to lower the bars sufficiently but in endeavoring to make a proportionate increase in exports, Canadians would not have the same world-wide co-operation. In view of this country's borrowings abroad, it was essential that there should be a favorable trade balance. And it was no longer feasible to borrow abroad to make up any deficiency. "The modern standard of living requires such a large diversified list of manufactured articles that more and more nations are coming to find that the easy method of borrowing money from the seller with which to buy his goods is becoming impracticable, and that if a fair standard of living for Canadians is to be maintained, the required articles as far as possible must be produced at home."

Essential Policies

Mr. Morden said that in putting forward a plea in favor of maintaining and encouraging industrial growth within proper limits suitable to the country's needs, it was not based on customs tariffs only, important as they were, but also included all essential policies and safeguards which experience in Canada and other countries had proved to be necessary for industrial peace and healthy development.

While it was proper to consider the material aspects of the economic problem it was essential that due stress be laid on the intangible moral factors. Good faith was the life-blood of the business system. National credit and the sanctity of contracts must be maintained. Bonds, mortgages, notes and other promises to pay had become cornerstones which supported the entire economic structure of the country and, if the foundation was impaired, the results would be very serious. Mr. Morden also stressed the need for Canadians to live within their income.
