NEGOTIATE FOR PEACE

May Settlement of Pacific Coast Strike—Atlantic Tie-up Not Complete

Local Effect

Marine Tie-up Bringing Business To Prince Rupert

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—The marine workers' strike on the Atlantic and Gulf Coast is by no means unanimous. Although sixty-five ships are tied up on account of the strike, a number are also moving. According to word from San Francisco, new peace negotiations are expected to be entered into soon with a view to ending the tie-up which, as far as Pacific Coast ports are concerned, is complete.

The tie-up of ships as a result of the Pacific Coast maritime workers' strike has left Alaska stranded for the time-being, at least, except for the steamship service of the Canadian Pacific Railway and aircraft. It has been announced, however, that negotiations for Alaska may be brought to Prince Rupert by rail and transported north by Alaska mail boats.

Yesterday morning at 9 o'clock the Alaska Air Transport seaplane from Juneau, piloted by Sheldon Simmons, arrived here from the north with three passengers who, otherwise, could not get south. The passengers were O. E. Layman of Tacoma, who had been at Fairbanks on automobile business and who is proceeding east from here by train this evening to Duluth, Minn.; A. Bertleson, proprietor of the Juneau Ironworks, who also leaves by train this evening for a visit to New York, and H. C. Bulle, from Haines, who is continuing tomorrow afternoon by the Catala to his home in Washington state. The plane, which took two days to get here from Juneau on account of unfavorable weather, which held it at Ketchikan, left soon after arrival on its return north, taking on board here James Rinehart, a company relief pilot, who had arrived here Saturday by steamer from Seattle. Aircraft are having a busy time in Alaska owing to the steamship tie-up and quite a volume of passengers have been moving from the westward into Juneau. It is probable that more passengers will be brought from Alaska here to catch steamers for the south or proceed east by rail.

ADVANCING IN MADRID

Spanish Capital is Now All But Taken by Insurgents

Revolt Within

Civil Guards Turn Over and Occupy Royal Palace

MADRID, Nov. 9: (CP)—The Spanish civil war appears to be entering a terrible climax today as the insurgent attackers advance through the suburbs from south and west following the flight of Premier Caballeros and his government to Valencia. Only the danger of ambush and surprise attacks by night prevented the rebels from entering the centre of the city proper and taking full possession of the capital late yesterday, the insurgent command stated. Fall of Madrid within twenty-four hours is expected as aerial and land bombardment continues.

The civil war will be by no means at an end with the capture of Madrid by the rebels, it is declared by loyalist authorities who state they intend to continue their resistance.

It was stated to be the intention of the defenders to destroy all important buildings in the capital before evacuating Madrid.

Twenty persons were killed and 300 injured by bombs dropped yesterday from insurgent fighting planes. Heavy artillery also bombarded the city, doing extensive damage.

Today the bombardment of the capital continued with Fascist aerial fleets spilling bombs on the city's fortifications in four assaults while insurgent shells from nearby artillery ripped the business streets and buildings.

Determined to open a path for Moorish rebels into the capital, legionnaires stopped by the last ditch defence of Madrid as six pursuit ships flew over the fortifications and bombed the western and southern rims of the city.

Red Cross officials said that at least twenty had been killed and many wounded in the latest assault.

Italians and French were reported to have clashed in the streets of the capital.

Civil guards revolted last night and occupied the Royal Palace.

May Help Government

LONDON, Nov. 9:—Premier Leon Blum, according to reports from Paris, said yesterday that France was ready, if Britain was willing, to scrap the Spanish non-intervention agreement and send arms and ammunition to the Spanish government. He justified the action of the government in delaying intervention, stating that, to have done so without the co-operation of Great Britain, would have left France and Russia against the rest of the world.

It is stated officially, however, that Premier Blum has not as yet made any representations to Britain suggesting that the embargo on arms to Spain should be lifted.

It is also stated that Great Britain intends to hold firm to the non-intervention policy.

Fire On British Boat

PERPIGNAN, France, Nov. 9: (CP)—Reuters Agency reported today that a motorboat from the British flotilla leader Grenville was fired upon from the Barcelona docks when entering the Spanish port to pick up consular mail despite the fact that the ship flew a white flag. The boat fled and was not struck.

Unemployment in B. C.

The movement toward solving the unemployment problem in British Columbia has not been rapid. Under conditions that presented themselves it could not be otherwise. However, good progress is being made. The chief difficulty seems to be in the influx of unemployed from other provinces keeping the labor market flooded. The minister of finance in his budget speech last week spoke as follows:

"The consideration of the transient unemployed together with our own, still constitutes a major problem. It is one that unquestionably calls for the utmost co-operation from the federal authorities if this province is to arrive at its ultimate goal, namely, the absorption of its own unemployed into private industry. That the transient unemployed aggravate our own problem is emphasized by the figures provided by the relief department, which show that officials have dealt with 14,709 transient single men since August 1934, and have given relief to 2,500 transient families during the same period.

"The figures of the department of labor also give some conception of the recovery which has taken place. Based on returns from slightly more than 4,000 firms, officials report that from January 1933 to December 1935, there has been an increase of 20,075 in the number of those employed in industry and in private business.

"While considering the matter of employment, it should be pointed out that in this province the payrolls have advanced from $99,126,653 in 1933 to $125,812,140 in 1935, an increase of $26,696,000 during the period of this administration.

"Gratifying as the results have been in the immediate past, I am convinced that the future holds still greater promise. Firm in this belief, Mr. Speaker, I wish to conclude by saying:

"Let us have confidence in our ability to solve our problems. Let us take hope from the progress of the past three years. Let us turn a deaf ear to monetary nostrums, and remember that only by economy and industry can we bring about that prosperity which should be ours by virtue of our vast resources."

JUNIOR FOOTBALL POSTPONED
Owing to the inclement weather, the Junior League football game, scheduled for Saturday afternoon between King Edward High School and Borden Street School, was postponed.

SPORT CHAT

Four games in particular in the English League, First Division, were watched Saturday by selectors of the English team for the international football game to be played at Stoke a week from next Wednesday with Ireland. If the English team against Ireland makes good, it will probably be kept intact for the international game with Hungary on December 2.

In one of the important English League games Saturday Sunderland beat Portsmouth 3 to 2. Sunderland has not been beaten on the home ground so far this season and looks like one of the strong contenders for the 1936-1937 league championship. Portsmouth is still in the lead at present with one point over Brentford and two ahead of Sunderland.

Dixie Dean had much to do with Everton's 4 to 2 victory over West Bromwich Albion Saturday. Arsenal, by beating Leeds United 4 to 1, went into thirteenth place. Derby County and Stoke, the fourth of Saturday's most watched games, went to a two-all draw.

HOPE RESTS WITH YOUTH

Rev. C. D. Clarke Delivers Remembrance Sunday Sermon To Local Veterans

Delivering a special Remembrance Sunday sermon Sunday morning before local ex-service men, who were on their annual church parade under the leadership of W. M. Brown, president of the Canadian Legion, Rev. C. D. Clarke, in First United Church, urged the listening veterans, for whom the torch of youthful idealism for permanent peace, cultural development, a world safe for democracy and autonomy for smaller nations had been extinguished by the stern experience of life and for whom the fight for self-preservation had eclipsed the old spirit of self-sacrifice, to stand aside and make way for youth and cheer them on as they took up the torch of peace, democracy, justice and a larger and fuller life for mankind.

Mr. Clarke said that he could go ahead and discuss things the world saw today such as Ethiopia, Spain and the race for armaments but that was not the purpose of the day. It was rather a day of Remembrance to recall the enthusiasm, the courage, the daring, the fearlessness of those who had gone forth twenty years ago to fight for ideals. For those who had fought those ideals were today but a memory. The torch of idealism—the idealism of youth—had gone out and all that was left was the charred stick. The idealism had faded in the stern experience of life. As men became older, they became more moderate. They thought of self-preservation rather than of self-sacrifice. This was true in politics and economics. The legislators of today were to a large extent old men. They were there because they were "safe" men and would not venture into the new sphere and endeavor to make idealism a reality. The same was true of the church. The recent council meeting of the United Church in Ottawa, which the speaker had attended, was a meeting of old men. They were afraid. They would not venture.

This passing of idealism as men became older seemed a natural thing, asserted Mr. Clarke. While Jesus himself had been sixty years old or even forty five, instead of thirty, the speaker wondered.

Hope Lies In Youth
In the idealism and venturesome spirit of youth lay the hope of the world, believed Mr. Clarke. While their own idealism and enthusiasm might have passed, the sacrifices of the comrades of the Great War had not been all in vain. The youth of today were ready and willing to take up the torch of idealism. The speaker referred to a recent international youth conference in Europe which said peace could be established. Young men of Oxford had said that under no consideration would they go to war. The youth were not responding to the present day movement for armament and war. If it were left to youth he believed there would be no more war.

"And what can we older men do?" concluded the preacher. "Let us stand aside and make way for youth. Our duty is to cheer them on as they carry the torch of peace, democracy, justice and a larger and fuller life for all mankind. God bless them."

Veterans to the number of about fifty paraded from Canadian Legion headquarters to the church for the service in which some ten members of the Women's Auxiliary joined at the conclusion of the service. "The Last Post" and "Reveille" were sounded by Bugler William Rance.

L. Rowe of this city. Very Rev. J. B. Gibson, dean of St. Andrew's Cathedral, officiating.

The bridesmaid, Miss Kaie Kurlock, wore pale green taffeta and carried a bouquet of carnations. Two sweet little flower girls, Kathleen and Hannah Sunberg, sisters of the bride, each in salmon pink crepe, carried bouquets.

JOE BROWN FILM HERE

Edward G. Robinson in "Bullets or Ballots" Also at Capitol Theatre

"Sons o' Guns," Joe E. Brown's latest comedy romance, and "Bullets or Ballots," a hard-boiled detective drama of New York with Edward G. Robinson, are the feature offerings of a double bill program at the Capitol Theatre the first of this week.

Besides the mirth-stirring antics of the wide-mouthed comedian, "Sons o' Guns" is spiced with famous martial airs of the original stage play, tuneful new songs and riotous dance numbers. The story is a rollicking comedy romance dealing with the humorous side of doughboy life in France during the World War. Between his distaste for army discipline and enemy shells on the one hand and timorous adventures with three jealous and aggressive sweethearts on the other, Joe finds life one nightmare after another. He is finally arrested as a spy and is about to be placed before the firing squad when a surprising turn of events untangles all his love troubles and makes him the hero of the hour.

Joan Blondell, Winifred Shaw and Beverley Roberts are Joe's three sweethearts while Eric Blore and Robert Barrat are also important members of the cast. Edward G. Robinson plays the part of the cold and hard-boiled detective in "Bullets or Ballots," a thrilling big city picture. Joan Blondell also has the leading feminine role in this picture.

Shooting of Dan McGrew Enacted At High School

"The shooting of Dan McGrew" was the presentation at the weekly meeting of the Literary and Dramatic Society of King Edward High School.

Sneering, jeering Dan McGrew was ably portrayed by Eric Berner with the aid of a handle-bar moustache and shoe-string tie. Margaret McLachlan played "The Lady That's Known as Lou" in a sumptuous gown of dazzling blue. The part of the "rag-time kid" was portrayed with much gusto by Kay Fortune. Peter Allen played the part of the tragic "man from the creeks." Jim Irvine was a pal of Dan's and Joe Landry was the bartender.

These students acted out the "mellodrammer" in pantomime with June Armour reciting this well-known poem of Service's.

The play came to a dramatic close as the entire cast sang "O Danny Boy! The Pipes, the Pipes are Calling..." over the prostrate form of the villain!
