Sound Financing Is Canada's Need, Jasper Convention Hears

Progress Made

Industry Now Moves Ahead Rapidly President Tells Investment Dealers

JASPER, Alta., June 20: (CP)—Confidence in Canada's future was never more justified than at the present time J. E. Savard of Montreal told delegates to the annual convention of the Investment Dealer's Association of Canada in his presidential address here.

Industries throughout the Dominion almost without exception have moved ahead with rapid strides. In many cases, he said, they are operating at all-time peak levels. Continuation of easy money conditions in bond markets and strengthening of equity and earning power behind corporation securities were cited as favorable factors.

Agriculture reflected the upward movement with prospects for a more normal wheat carry-over at the end of the present crop year. In mining, Canada had advanced within five years from an unimportant position in the gold industry to the world's third largest producer. Hydro-electric industry and the newsprint output, he said, were running at high levels.

Sounding a note for careful financing and economy in government the president referred to "unfavorable factors experienced in the past year" as "chiefly of a political nature of which Canada had more than her share."

"The year 1936 has been far more serene as far as political disturbances are concerned and I think we can look forward to a period from now on in which there will be a greater understanding of the far-reaching effects of even a suggestion of repudiation."

Money rates in the Dominion have followed the world downward movement, in evidence since 1932. Bank interest on savings deposits declined from three percent, in May, 1933, to 1½ percent in June of this year. The decline, however, coupled with the federal government's "easy money policies" had proved a good foundation for an extended period of easy money conditions in Canada.

Development of a loan council for the western provinces, expansion of private enterprise in the construction industry and solution of unemployment through the National Employment Commission were referred to as problems pressing for immediate solution.

The low level to which commercial loans have fallen and the high level of deposits indicates industry has been well supplied with funds to carry on business, he said. Commercial loans in April totalled $725,425,000, lowest level in years. Demand deposits increased to $2,157,900,000.

SAYS CHINA IS UNITED

Occupied With Reconstruction Despite Pressure From Outside

WINNIPEG, June 20: (CP)—Despite exterior pressure from Japan seeking control of five provinces south of Manchukuo, China was never more united than today in the opinion of Captain A. J. Brace, explorer and missionary. The 60-year old Ontario-born adventurer passed through here on furlough after 21 years' intermittent service in the Orient.

"To weaken the moral and physical fibre of China's downtrodden population Japan has 400 narcotic stations in Northern China," he said. "These distribute opium and other habit-forming drugs. If you cannot pay for the first few doses they will give it to you free—just to get you started."

Short, stocky and ruddy of complexion Captain Brace has been a physical instructor all his life. At Chengtu, where he was Young Men's Christian Association secretary, he has been teaching pupils in 30 government schools the rudiments of swimming, wrestling and boxing.

Born at Markham, Ont., he is a graduate of Victoria College, Toronto, was made a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society for his exploration work in Tibet, and organized a battalion of six-footers from Shantung province for service in France during the world war.

He is the eldest of five living brothers including Phillip Brace, D.D., retired United Church minister of Toronto and Dr. Wm. D., of Biggar, Sask. Just now he is on a year's furlough but would like to go back next month. He speaks Chinese fluently and often studies in that language rather than English.

China is "breathlessly" going ahead with a program under the leadership of General Chiang Kai Shek, nationalistic army chief, he said—motorizing its army and building new airways. The country, however, is being stampeded out of its pacifist policy."

Thirty-two people were cooped up temporarily in the schoolhouse at Usk at the time the letter was written.

While there was plenty of damage, the letter observes cheerfully that there was no loss of life or injury.

QUEBEC POLITICS

There is an election campaign going on in Quebec and the situation is a difficult one for the western Canadian to understand. The province has had a Liberal government for over forty years and Premier Taschereau had held office for several terms and evidently a good many people had become rich while holding public office, causing suspicions to arise. The wealthiest of them all was the prime minister, who was director of banks, insurance companies and dozens of other concerns, most of which were making money.

The chief opposition to the government came from a group of young Liberals led by Paul Gouin who have been gradually growing in strength. One of the leaders was bought over a few years ago but Gouin refused all offers and prior to the last election made a working alliance with the small Conservative group to fight that election and with the Conservative leader in line for the leadership if Taschereau were defeated. The coalition did not win but the government was so weakened that it began to crumble and when the public accounts committee of the legislature began to unearth possible scandals, Premier Taschereau resigned, it was said in order to stop further investigation.

In the meantime representations were made to Gouin by a number of Liberal individuals and groups, that they were ready to support him but would not support a Conservative leader. This evidently caused the young Liberal party, known officially as "L'Action Liberale Nationale" to sever its connection with the Conservatives and go before the electors as another Liberal party with a strong advanced Liberal policy.

That Gouin will win is an accepted fact. Taschereau's temporary successor is not an outstanding man and he carries with him all the odium of his former leader without the glamor that went with the former leadership. Quebec will still be Liberal, much more Liberal than it has been in the past ten years. Phoenix-like Liberalism has taken on a new birth from the brain of the parent stock, carrying on the principles of Liberalism with all the virility of youth.

DECORATION DAY

Tomorrow is Decoration Day when citizens gather at the cemetery after placing a wreath on the Cenotaph. There will be a short service with the Canadian Legion and the Daughters of the Empire uniting in arrangements.

Many people will wish to attend this simple gesture of remembrance of those who fought overseas in the service of the Empire. Those who are unable to attend will remember the sacrifices made twenty years ago or more by the men of our own home town.

mission with his dynamite-packed right hand in the following rounds, finally ending the agony with a right hand clout in the twelfth. The finish was dramatic. The badly battered and crippled Bomber, his left cheek swollen to twice its natural size, both thumbs sprained and aching all over, all but crumbled after taking two pulverizing rights to the head. His eyes blinking, he staggered to the ropes. There Schmeling fired another right that barely connected. Joe's legs sagged and he crumpled to the floor on his back. He stared at the sky with glassy eyes as the timekeeper droned the count. As nine was reached, his body jerked convulsively and he rolled over on his stomach to hear the count of ten. They got him to his feet and out of the ring but he collapsed after a few steps and had to be carried into the dressing room. Louis' managers attributed his defeat to sprained thumbs which took the steam out of his punches. Louis said later that he had fought in a fog from the fourth round on. The masterful Schmeling was in good shape at the end. His main difficulty had been with his eye which was almost shut.

American Landings Very Light This Week—Movement of Indians By Long Route to Canneries On

American halibut landings fell off almost to the disappearing point at Prince Rupert during the past week, but this is believed to have been due to a general scarcity of American landings on the coast rather than to the railway tie-up at Prince Rupert. Landings at Seattle during the week were also light, although a good deal heavier than at Prince Rupert. Prices at Seattle moved up sharply while at Prince Rupert there was little change in prices. Only three small American boats landed catches at Prince Rupert this week. The catches totaled but 35,000 pounds and the price range was from 7c and 6c to 7.3c and 6c. Canadian landings for the week totalled 228,300 pounds from eighteen boats. The grand total of halibut landings at Prince Rupert up to and including yesterday was 4,766,000 pounds of which 2,555,500 pounds was from Canadian vessels and 2,210,500 pounds from American.

Halibut landings in Seattle yesterday totalled 160,000 pounds, prices being 8c and 6c and upward.

The movement having started yesterday with the arrival of upwards of one hundred aboard the steamer Prince Rupert and about a dozen or so last evening on the Princess Adelaide, the migration of Indians from Hazelton and Kitwanga Indian villages via Jasper Park and Vancouver to the canneries at the mouth of the Skeena River for summer employment is now well under way. All boats arriving from the south during the next week will be carrying all the natives they can handle. About 700 in all are being transported, coming the long way around owing to the railway tie-up due to flood damage on the lower Skeena. The steamer Catala is bringing up a party of about fifty whom she will drop at Claxton and Cassiar canneries before arriving here from the south tomorrow evening.

If science has its way, Nova Scotia saltbankers will no longer enter port with their flags at halfmast for dorymen strayed from their ships and offshore fishermen will have no fear of being lost on the wide wastes of the Atlantic. It is all because of a new radio device, little bigger than a cigar box. The invention is patterned after the "homer" used to guide airplanes to their destination. With accuracy that is almost uncanny, the "homer" placed in a dory will instantly point to the mother ship in fair weather or foul. Each year, schooners report dorymen lost at sea after a sudden blizzard or fog bank came up and hid their ship from them. The dory "homer" is a four-tube radio receiver, which, with its batteries, is contained inside a directional aerial. It is enclosed in a waterproof wooden box and is for use if a sudden snow squall or fog blots out sight of the mother ship. The doryman picks up his "homer," snaps the lid back, places the receiver to his ear and begins to tune in. Immediately he hears the transmitter on the schooner. He dials until the sound of the transmitter can be heard no longer. When he has reached that position, an arrow fixed on the top of the "homer" points directly to the ship. The apparatus also enables the men aboard the schooner to communicate with the dorymen but the latter cannot answer. The invention has already been demonstrated to Nova Scotia fishermen.

A fishing record is claimed for the Newfoundland banker Ethel M. Petite which has brought in more than 4,000 quintals since she commenced her first season early in March. The fishing schooner is skippered by her owner, Captain Jerry Petite, jr.

Southbound from Skagway to Vancouver with tourist passengers on board, C. P. R. steamer Princess Charlotte, Capt. William Palmer, is due in port at 3:30 this afternoon from the north and will sail south a couple of hours later.
