COMMISSION GOVERNMENT MENTIONED IN COUNCIL

Progressive-Minded Alderman Morrissey Introduces the Subject While Ward System is Discussed—City Will Send Delegate to Convention of Municipalities at Victoria

After an evening session of the city council particularly fruitful in unfruitful discussions and wrangling over coal buying, etc., it seemed peculiarly appropriate that last night the first mention should be made before a Prince Rupert city council of municipal government by commission.

To Alderman Morrissey belongs the honor of introducing the progressive idea. It came up in connection with the proposal to take a plebiscite on the abolition of the ward system put forward by Alderman Newton.

"There seems to be a general feeling throughout Canada," said Alderman Morrissey, "that not only the ward system should be abolished but that government by council should be abolished also."

"In Vancouver at present a strong move is being made for commission government, and I think that we should send a representative to the Union of Municipalities Conference soon to be held, who is instructed to speak along these lines. If I remember rightly Mr. Mayor, you yourself were strongly in favor of government by commission at the time our municipal charter was drawn up."

This idea the Mayor hastily deprecated, but the decision was made to later that a representative appointed by the Mayor should be sent to the Conference of the Union of Municipal Bodies to be held at Victoria on the 15th to 16th inst. and that he should be prepared to talk on commission government with other municipal matters.

Over the ward system and its abolition there was a good deal of fruitless talk. Alderman Newton endeavored to have a plebiscite taken at the time the vote is taken on the Hays Creek Trunk Sewer By-law to save expense. He suggested that the vote take the form of simple "Yes" or "No" answers by the electors to the question: "Are you, or are you not in favor of the abolition of the present ward system?" The Mayor did not seem enthusiastically in support of this and Alderman Clayton moved an amendment to Alderman Newton's motion that the city be divided into three wards. Alderman Hilditch moved an amendment to the amendment that the City Solicitor be asked to show the advantages of having three wards, but found no seconder. Both motion and amendment were lost. The ayes for the amendment being Aldermen Kirkpatrick, Clayton, Morrissey and the Mayor. Hays were Alderman Newton, Hilditch, Douglas and Kerr.

Alderman Kerr suggested that the matter be put to the vote in January next, and Alderman Newton was ready to agree to this provided that meantime no effort was made to create a third ward for the city.

and more time was wasted. The Mayor discovered that the matter could not be reconsidered until next meeting of the council. However, to expedite matters an agreement was come to by which enough coal will be purchased to carry the plant until they can decide who is to get the coal contract.

There the matter ended pro tem. The Mayor saying that they could not talk about it all night.

IS IT FAIR PLAY OR FAVORITISM?

City Council Decides to Hand Over Latest Slice of Printing Patronage to their Particular Pet Paper.

Over the matter of advertising the by-law for the Hays Creek Trunk Sewer as required by law the council had some discussion last night, the matter ending in the decision that the whole advertising be given to the Journal. Alderman Douglas endeavored in two amendments to have part at least of the advertising done by the two daily papers of Prince Rupert. His amendments suggested first that an equal share of the work be given to the Journal, Empire and Daily News and when that was lost, that the Journal should have $44 worth and the News and Empire $22 each. This also was lost, so the whole job goes to the Journal.

Alderman Douglas who maintained that the by-law should appear in all the papers to give the public a fair chance to consider it, made some enquiry of the City Clerk regarding the method he had taken to find out the rates of the various papers for advertising, this by-law. Mr. Woods said he had asked the Journal and the Empire, but had not approached the News at all. His excuse was that he had not had time to ask the News' price for this work until after the News office was closed that evening.

AGED MAN SENTENCED TO IMPRISONMENT FOR LIFE

Farquhar McRae, Who Killed a Man in Trouble Arising Out of Ne Temere Decree, Found Guilty of Manslaughter—Judges Plea for Toleration in Religion

Cornwall, Ont., Nov. 8.—Farquhar McRae, the aged Lancaster county farmer who was found guilty of shooting Frank Shaw, a Carp druggist, during a struggle for possession of a child, has been removed to Kingston Penitentiary to serve out a life sentence. The jury which composed was of four Roman Catholics and eight Protestants brought in a verdict of manslaughter.

The case aroused more than usual attention, as the trouble arose out of the ne temere decree. McRae's daughter, who was a Catholic had married Dr. Magee, who is a Methodist. After the birth of her child she refused to live with her husband, owing to religious differences, arising out of the marriage. When her husband and his friends sought to take away the child by force, the grandfather drove them away with a gun. As the party left in their motor car, McRae fired after them, and the shot killed Shaw.

In his charge to the jury, Mr. Justice Sutherland said that the father had acted in an illegal and high handed manner in forcing their way into the McRae home, although the common law gave him the right to the child and the right to supervise its religious training. He said that in a country like ours composed of so many races and religions it was most essential that there should be religious toleration.

OLD TIMER RETURNS

Mr. Charles E. Evitt, Popular Young Bank Employee, Has Been Home to England.

By the Prince Rupert this morning there returned to the city one of Rupert's popular old timers. Mr. Charles E. He was an employee of the Union Bank when here in the early days of Prince Rupert, and is a popular old-timer who will be warmly welcomed back.

SHIPPING INTELLIGENCE

Civic Sniff Yacht is Adrift a Derelict on the High Seas. Broke Away from Tug Last Night.

News to hand this morning on the waterfront is of a serious shipping disaster. The civic sniff yacht hauled out to sea yesterday to discharge cargo in deep water, was on her return trip in tow of the Davis launch taking the contract for the work, when heavy weather arose, and the yacht became unmanageable. For the safety of the commodore and men in charge of the launch she had to be allowed to break loose and today she is adrift on the high seas, while all the waterfront misses her fragrant and familiar presence.

COMMODORE'S PERIL

Sniff Yacht's Intrepid Admiral was in Real Peril and Suffered Considerable Privations.

Details of the mishap to the civic sniff yacht just to hand are thrilling. The yacht is aground on the shore some distance from the harbor. She drifted there in a stiff gale which got up while the Knox which had her in tow was making for harbor. For hours the crew and commodore toiled to make headway, but the lumbering sniff yacht only drifted worse and worse dragging the launch with it on to the lee shore. Then it was found that the Knox had carried away her rudder, and was helplessly at the sea's mercy. Efforts were made to steer with an oar, but the sniff yacht had to be cut adrift and left to her fate. After an all night struggle without food, and in considerable danger, the Knox got safely to harbor, but the Commodore though he says little has had a tough time of it. The sniff yacht will be salvaged this afternoon.

PRUDHOMME WINS IN APPEAL

Man Whose License Was Taken Away From Him by the Present License Board is Upheld by Highest Court in Province

MAY NOW ENTER ACTION FOR DAMAGES

The Appeal Against Mr. Justice Clements' Decision in the Supreme Court Was Fought With City Funds—Mr. Prudhomme Has Been Successful in His Lone Fight in Every Court—Has Been Driven into Bankruptcy as a Consequence of the License Board's Action

(Special to the Daily News) Victoria, Nov. 8.—The Court of Appeal has announced its decision today in favor of A. J. Prudhomme in the Savoy License appeal by the city of Prince Rupert.

History of the Case

The above despatch from Victoria this morning and confirmed by a private telegram to Messrs. Williams & Manson, solicitors for A. J. Prudhomme, will be read with great interest as announcing the opinion of the final court of appeal in the famous Savoy Hotel case. It is understood that, backed with the decisions of both the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals, Mr. Prudhomme, who has been driven into bankruptcy as the result of the License Commissioners' treatment, will immediately launch an action for substantial damages against the Commissioners.

Election Incident

The case arose at the time of the last municipal elections in Prince Rupert. Mr. Prudhomme who ran for alderman against Mr. Manson's ticket was then owner and licensee of the Savoy Hotel, into the construction of which he had placed the savings of a lifetime. The hotel was recognized as the best conducted hotel in the city. License Commissioners Smith and Merryfield refused to renew the license on the pretext that it had been improperly granted by Chairman Stork, and at the first meeting of the License Board of 1911, composed of Mayor Manson, and Messrs. Smith and Merryfield, the license was finally refused.

Allegations Were Made

Allegations were freely made that the License Board's action was actuated by a desire to please members of the Carpenters' Union, who had quarreled with Mr. Prudhomme over the building of the hotel. This view of the case was taken by Mr. Justice Clements of the Supreme Court, who in ordering the license to be renewed said: "There is no doubt in my mind that the refusal to grant the renewal was for reasons other than that claimed on behalf of the commissioners."

Council Plunges In

At this stage, the city council came to the aid of the License Commissioners with the city funds in their fight against Mr. Justice Clements' ruling. City Solicitor Peters entered an appeal with the Court of Appeals, and city money was wired to Victoria lawyers to fight the case in the Victoria courts.

The Court's Decision

The despatch to hand this morning shows that the Court of Appeals has decided against City Solicitor Peters, the License Board and the city council, and in favor of Mr. Prudhomme, who in the meantime has been driven into bankruptcy, as a result of the License Board's action in taking away his license.

WORK FOR WINTER

What the City Engineer Plans for Woodworth Scheme Apart from Bush Clearing at the Upper Lake.

Asked by Alderman Newton last night what work in connection with the Woodworth Lake scheme could possibly be carried on during the winter months seeing that the lakeside clearing is likely to be held over longer the City Engineer replied that he could have specifications ready within a week for the following work: The completion of the reservoir on Acropolis Hill. The rock trenching between Shawatlans Passage and the reservoir and the blasting out of the rapids at Shawatlans Lake. All this work may be undertaken this winter.

PLANT BURNS LAST COAL WHILE COUNCIL SCRAPS

Light Committee and Council Quarrel Over Who Shall Get Coal Contract—After an Hour's Wrangling No Decision is Arrived at

Coal supply for the light plant caused much unprofitable discussion at the city council meeting last night. The light committee proposed the acceptance of the tender for the supply of 250 tons of coal from Lindsay's Transfer Company at a rate 60 cents higher than that of the Kelly Transfer Company. It was stated that the coal would be sacked or boxed as delivered this being a system of measurement explained by the Mayor.

The question before the council was whether it was worth while paying the extra 60 cents per ton for the special coal of the Lindsay Company. Alderman Clayton thought it was, but Alderman Morrissey wanted to be convinced. Alderman Clayton said that if Alderman Morrissey's wife were here he would soon be convinced. It seemed that shipments of the Lindsay coal had proved good for the plant and economical while other qualities sold had proved bad. Discussion followed between the two factions of the council. Alderman Clayton, Hilditch, and Kerr were in favor of ordering the Lindsay coal. Alderman Morrissey, Alderman Newton, and Alderman Kirkpatrick were in favor of ordering a sample quantity sufficient for a test run from Kelly's firm just to see if it were all right. Alderman Douglas was at first neutral; later sided with the light committee.

The sample idea gave rise to much trouble—the light committee refusing if it were carried to have anything to do with the ordering of the coal. After the council had turned down the light committee's plan and decided to try a sample shipment from Kelly's the evident disapproval of the light committee suggested reconsideration. Matters now got badly mixed, and much time was wasted. While the council wrangled it came out that there was only enough coal at the light plant to carry the plant for one night.

Before reconsideration was possible the Mayor had to consult the Procedure By-law to see how the council could get on to the rails for reconsideration. Time,

WILL REBUILD KASAAN CANNERY

New Structure to be Built of Concrete—Big Plant has been Thrice Destroyed by Fire.

According to Mr. T. J. Gorman, president of Gorman & Co., owners of the Kasaan Cannery on Prince of Wales Island which was destroyed by fire last week causing a loss of $150,000, the company will at once rebuild the plant using concrete. This is the third time the plant has burned. The cannery just destroyed was built this year. It was a two-line plant, with a capacity of 2,500 cases a day. The pack this year was 74,000 cases, of which 44,000 cases had been shipped out. The warehouses containing 30,000 cases on hand are a total loss.

The Kasaan Cannery was burned in 1906, and again in 1910.

CITY WILL HIRE LUMBER EXPERT FOR WOODWORTH

Clearing Work Will Not be Awarded for Some Time Yet—New Tenders Will be Called for a Third Time After Expert's Investigation

For some time longer the Woodworth Lake waterworks clearing will be held up. City Engineer Davis reported to the council last night to the effect that it was most advisable to have further and fuller information on the details of the clearing of the area to be submerged and particularly on the building of the stave pipe. It was uncertain whether it would be better to manufacture it on the spot, or order it from below. Consulting Engineer Thompson favors red cedar for the pipe staves, but Colonel Davis considers the red cedar around the lake of doubtful quality for the purpose.

Colonel Davis recommended the employment of an expert lumber man and saw-miller to give an estimate of the cost to the city of the work of milling lumber, logging, etc., for the work on the spot as well as on the quality of the timber available and Alderman Newton suggested that the same expert if employed should give an estimate on the cost of the work by days' labor.

City Solicitor Peters noticing that the consulting engineer had reported favoring the leaving all timber standing around the lake except such as required for the stave pipe and dam, said he had knowledge to the effect that the Government would not stand for this but would demand grubbing as well as close cutting rather than let the trees be left standing.

The City Engineer's report was carried, and after some further talk it was agreed that the City Engineer should endeavor to locate a lumber expert in accordance with his report. Alderman Douglas was anxious that the man be secured in Rupert, and to this both council and engineer were agreeable so far as may be possible.

VANCOUVER AND COMMISSION GOVERNMENT

Vancouver, which is famous abroad for its lead in embodying the principle of the single tax in civic affairs, is also keeping well abreast of the advancing times by appointing a charter committee to consider the commission form of government, and draw up the necessary amendments to the city charter.

These have just been submitted to the Mayor and Council and a special session of the Finance Committee has been called to discuss the proposed amendments. The proposal is made that Vancouver should pass from council government to commission government at the end of the ensuing year.

The amendments provide for the abolition of all wards and the election at large of a mayor and four councilmen at the January election in 1913, the mayor and two councilmen having the highest number of votes to hold office for four years, the other two councilmen to hold office for two years, and thereafter two councilmen to be elected every two years, the mayor and councilmen to have the same qualifications as now prescribed.

The various affairs of the city administration are to be divided up among the five members, each to be the head of a department or a number of departments, for which he is responsible, and to devote their time and attention to city work.

Daily executive sessions are to be held, taking up the work now done by the council committees, and weekly legislative sessions, taking up the work now done by the council in session.

The salary of the mayor is fixed at $10,000 a year and the councilmen at $7500 each to give bonds, in a surety company, for $25,000.

Nominations for mayor and councilmen are to be made at a mass meeting to be held in the city hall, any number of candidates being allowed. On the ballot first, second and third choice is provided for.

The initiative, referendum and recall are provided for. A petition signed by 25 per cent of the electors voting for mayor at the last election, proposing any law, shall compel the council to pass that law within 40 days or put it up to a vote referendum of the people, and a 15 per cent petition shall likewise put the question up to a vote of the people, but not call a special election for that purpose, the matter being taken up at the regular election.

By-laws passed by the council shall not take effect for ten days after passage, and if within the ten days a petition signed by 25 per cent of the voters protest, then the matter shall be submitted to a vote of the people, or the law be repealed by the council. The council may also submit any by-law without such petition.

On a petition signed by 25 per cent of the electors voting at the last election, or 12 1-2 per cent of the voters' list, to recall a member, on grounds stated in the petition, the council shall order a special election, at which the incumbent shall be a candidate unless he voluntarily withdraws, and other candidates may come in and the election be conducted as in the case of regular elections. Not more than one election shall be held in any six months.

PASSING COMMENT

The comedy of the Council and the City Solicitor engaged in a mutual admiration over the hydro-electric by-law is one of the funniest things in municipal history. It was calculated to impress the ignorant.

The true nature of the by-law is seen in the fact that it requires a private bill to validate it. At present it is not valid.

The bank's solicitor showed his opinion of the real nature of the by-law, when he made the provision that if the Executive Council should withdraw their promise to pass special legislation ratifying the by-law, that the bank should have a petition of right.

After moving a special vote of thanks to the City Solicitor for getting his hydro-electric by-law tinkered up, the Council should move a vote of thanks to the City Treasurer and the City Collector for not decamping with the city funds, while the Council is neglecting to get fidelity bonds for them.

THE Pillar of Light

By Louis Tracy

"Now, Mr. Pyne, you next," cried the chief officer, addressing the young Philadelphian, who, mirabile dictu, had found and lighted a cigar.

"Up with him," shouted the captain, fiercely, himself helping to loop Pyne to the fourth officer.

"All others had gone. The officers were leaving the ship in order of seniority, the juniors first. Just as the quartette were about to swing clear of the ship the captain grasped Pyne's hand.

"Thank you, lad," he said, and away they went.

There were left on the vessel the third, second, and first officers, the purser, and the captain. The others wanted the captain to come with them. He resisted, held out for his right to be the last to quit a ship he had commanded for more than twenty years, and hoarsely forbade any further argument.

He was unwillingly, they left him hauling alone at the rope, though their predecessors, knowing the need of it, helped vigorously from the gallery. Indeed, it was with difficulty that Pyne was held back from returning with the descending rope. They told him he was mad to dream of such a piece of folly, and perforce he desisted.

But when the captain deliberately cast off the deck-pulley from which the rope had been manipulated they knew that the boy had read his soul. The now useless cordage dangling from the gallery was caught by the wind and sea and sent whipping off to leeward.

Brand, brought from the lantern by the hubbub of shouting, came out, followed by Constance. He suggested, as a last resource, that they should endeavor to fire a line across the vessel by means of a rocket.

feet as they climbed down the top-most flight. "If I fall," he assured her, "you will be the chief sufferer."

"All the more reason why you should not fall. Wait here a moment. I must have a look at the hospital."

The visiting-officer's room, which also served the purposes of a library and recreation room in normal times, now held fourteen injured persons, including two women, one of them a stewardess, and a little girl.

Most of the sufferers had received their wounds either in the saloon by collision with the cornice of the lighthouse. The worst accident was a broken arm, the most alarming a case of cerebral concussion. Other injuries consisted, for the most part, of cuts and bruises.

Unfortunately, when the ship struck, the surgeon had gone aft to attend to an engineer whose hand was crushed as the result of some frantic lurch caused by the hurricane; hence the doctor was lost with the first batch of victims. Enid discovered that among the few steerage passengers saved was a man who had gained some experience in a field-hospital during the campaign in Cuba. Aided by the plain directions supplied with the medicine chest of the lighthouse, the ex-hospital orderly had done wonders already.

"All I want, miss," he explained, in answer to Constance's question, "is some water and some linen for bandages. The lint outfit in the chest is not half sufficient."

She vanished, to return quickly with a sheet and a pair of scissors.

"Now," she said to Mr. Pyne, "if you come with me I will send you back with a pair of water."

"She took him to the kitchen where Enid, aided by a sailor, pressed into service, was dispensing elegant and biscuits. Pyne, who remained in the stairway, went off with the water and Constance's lantern. The interior of the lighthouse was utterly dark. To move without a light, and with no prior knowledge of its internal arrangements, was positively dangerous.

All to top, there were seven lamps of various sizes available. Brand had one, four were distributed throughout the apartments tenanted by the survivors of the wreck, two were retained for transit purposes, and the men shivering in the entrance passage had no light at all.

Constance took Enid's lantern in order to discover the whereabouts of Mr. Emmett, the first officer, the tray-carrying sailor offering to guide her to him.

When Pyne came back he found Enid in the dark and mistook her for Constance.

"They want some more," he cried at the door.

"On some more what?" she demanded. It seemed no time for elegant diction. Her heart jumped each time she sprang at the rock. It seemed to be so much worse in the dark.

"Water," said he.

"Dear me, I should have thought everybody would be fully satisfied in that respect."

"Well, that's curious," he cried. "I imagined you were the other young lady. The water is needed in the hospital."

"Why didn't you say so?" she snapped, being in reality very angry with herself for her flippancy. She gave him a full and hearty salute.

"Constance, having delivered her father's message to Mr. Emmett, was greeted with a tart question when she re-entered the kitchen: "Why on earth didn't you tell me that young man was attending to the injured people? Is he a doctor?"

"The end of the ship," he said. "The captain has gone with her."

ELOPED WITH A MINER
Daughter of Montana Millionaire Ran Off and Was Married

Helena, Mont., Nov. 8.—At the risk, her friends claim, of being disinherited by her father, Thomas Cruz, Miss Marie Cruz, who a few months ago obtained a divorce from Alvar O'Brien, a New York society leader, on the grounds of non-support, has eloped with Harry C. Cotter, a Butte miner, and was married at Boulder, a pleasure resort near Helena.

ITEMS OF SPORT

Jack Johnson is not an uncouth and unscrupulous fighter of the Battling Nelson or Wolgast type. But the way in which he uses his great strength (with the possible exception of Gunner Moir he is the strongest of living pugilists—even Jeffries, that mountainous man, could not outwrestle him) in the clinches and does not commend itself to those spectators who are able to see what is happening.

He has a trick of knocking down the upper arm muscle of an opponent, which is worthy of the cleverest exponent of the jujitsu, and, depending as it does on an exact knowledge of the spots where the nerves approach the surface, not only irritates his opponent, but also speedily destroys the elasticity of his biceps. Then, again, he has always made adroit use of his tongue in championship contests. His bitter-sweet taunts, uttered in a purring voice and with an infantile smile, caused Burns to lose his temper and even impaired the imperturbability of Jeffries.

As regards the rest of his system of tactics, subtlety—amounting to obsequy—is perhaps the characteristic feature. Speed without haste and an unerring judgment of distance—qualities which distinguish the artist from the artisan in the boxer's abbreviated sphere of activity—are always apparent in his actions. So much is manifest—but all the rest is so veiled in obscurity that those who are accustomed to the plain, straightforward tactics of the English style cannot grasp the secrets of his effectiveness.

They say, for example, that he has not a punch in either hand. That is because they do not see how the shifting of his weight from one foot to the other supplies all the force required for the leisurely lightning of his hooks and jabs. Again, like all the best American champions and unlike our English champions, he knows that two or three comparatively light blows to the same useful spot may do more to break down an opponent's resisting power than the most spectacular punch.

For this and other reasons it is customary to say that his style is essentially defensive. The description is correct, no doubt, in so far as it implies that he leaves the bulk of the leading to his opponent. The boxer who leads must always leave himself open to some extent, and if the defender anticipates the form of the attack and delivers his counter-stroke quickly enough he gains an advantage which may, of course, prove decisive.

A certain power of physical mimicry (as though he could see into the other man's brain-pan) and an extraordinary swiftness of co-operation between eye and hand enable the negro champion to gain this advantage more often than any other heavyweight boxer the writer has seen. It is astonishing how often his counter gets home before his opponent's lead; herein lies the veiled effectiveness and obscure distinction of his style. His favorite counter is an accurate and abstruse right uppercut; a blow that apparently comes out of the nowhere into the here, and, as Burns knows only too well, is so forcible that no gu d can prevent it from jarring terribly.

The one weak point in his physique seems to be his stomach, that instrument of unaccustomed pleasures for a colored Texan brought up on the nutritious but unenlivening corn cake. Johnson would have us believe that he rather likes a good stiff jolt in that particular place. But he takes such pains—even in exhibition bouts—to protect it with his elbows that we must decline to regard the evidence of our eyes as a malicious libel.

FREE TRIP ROUND THE WORLD

We have just arranged with one of our clients to place forty-two lots on the market under exceptional advantages to the purchasers. The lots are some of the best in Sections 7 and 8. The prices are as low as any on the market, and the terms so easy—monthly—that anyone can buy. Along with this exceptional offer, each lot admits the purchaser to a drawing for a FREE TRIP ROUND THE WORLD. If you hold the lucky ticket the trip is yours; or you can surrender it for a cash consideration. The chances are good—one in forty-two. Come in and investigate.

SECOND AVENUE SIDEWALK

Obstruction Near New Theatre Complained of by M. K. Rogers.

M. K. Rogers made application to the council last night for some arrangement by which a sidewalk should be made available along Second Avenue on the city side between Fifth and Sixth streets. He had made efforts to get some sort of convenience laid there by the Westholme Lumber Company whose work on the new theatre is the cause of the sidewalks being torn up. This sidewalk was laid at the expense of Mr. Rogers and other property owners there.

"This Westholme Company seems to think it owns the town," said City Solicitor Peters. "They must be brought to time. Refer the matter to me and I'll see to it." This was done on the motion of Alderman Douglas, seconded by Alderman Newton.

SMALL HALIBUT CATCHES

Seattle Fishers are Explaining That Their Grounds are Fished Out

Seattle, Nov. 6.—The fishing vessel Commonwealth with only a fair catch of fish from the Alaska banks reports the failing of the fishing banks about Hecate Straits. Up to last year in spite of frequent spells of rough weather which kept the fishing vessels from the Sound and B. C. ports, out many days over their usual time, good catches of halibut and cod were common.

This year, however, the fish seem to be scarce, or else they have deserted the old banks and as a result both the American vessels and the New England Fishing Company's fleet of Vancouver, are practically depending on the banks off Southeastern Alaska for their fish supply.

REPORTER RUNS RECKLESS RISK

Was Challenged to Personal Combat by an Alderman at the City Hall Last Night. He Had Suggested the Alderman Should Boil His Head.

Reckless risks are often taken by reporters in the pursuit of their arduous calling, but the happy-go-lucky fraternity of the fourth estate seem ever ready to beard the lion in his den or the alderman in his hall, regardless of personal peril. Last night, however, a reporter at the City Hall took quite a desperate chance, and took it with a smile.

He was challenged by a fierce untamed alderman, challenged to come right out of the warm City Hall to do battle with fists to a finish on the cold snow outside. To his credit be it said that only the demands of duty prevented his instant acceptance of the aldermanic challenge.

It all sprang from a jocular suggestion that the said alderman, who figured prominently in the coal dispute, should go and boil his head. The suggestion scribbled on a scrap of paper was chucked across the table to another reporter who most wickedly addressed it to the alderman in question, and handed it to the City Clerk. Then the fat was in the fire.

No sooner had the coal dispute come to an end than the alderman left the board, came round to the press table, and with the dire threat that he would smash the reporter into small pieces demanded if he had written that "letter" to him. The reporter replied that the note was a personal matter between himself and his colleague who had so culpably mishandled it.

But the bellicose alderman, taking off his glasses, and clenching his little fists, would not be balked of his prey by such a diversion of the casus belli. "Come outside right now, and be pulverised," he remarked, or words to that effect. The council was discussing another matter, the reporter was faithfully noting proceedings. "After adjournment," he hissed eyeing the alderman defiantly. For a moment the two glared at each other with real wrath in their eyes. Then the aldermanic fists unclenched, and he returned to his place at the board. The combat is still to come. Marquis of Queensberry rules, date and place to be arranged.
