Mary With Edward As He Gave Farewell Address to His Subjects - "Saddest Decision" Of His Life

Leaves England

To Take Up Temporary Residence In Basle - New King Being Proclaimed

LONDON, Dec. 12: (CP)—Queen Mary was at the side of her eldest son, Edward VIII, as he spoke from Windsor Castle last night, bidding his moving "Good Bye" to home, Empire and 500,000,000 people who live in it so that he might turn "to the woman I love."

"I have made this saddest decision of my life," said Edward in his farewell broadcast to the farthest corners of the globe "only upon the single thought of what would in the end, be the best for all."

Edward pledged his allegiance to his brother, the new King George VI, who "had one blessing enjoyed by so many of you and not bestowed upon me, a happy home and his wife and children."

In the course of his address, Edward declared that for twenty-five years, first as Prince of Wales and for the short time as King, the service of country and Empire had been ever uppermost in his mind.

The abdication King's speech lasted for seven minutes. It was a sad family gathering with undisguised tears at Windsor Castle last evening as the members of the Royal Family sat down to a dinner of farewell to the abdicated King who had ignored the pleadings of them all to take a different course and renounce Mrs. Simpson instead of His Throne.

Late last night Edward sailed from Portsmouth aboard the destroyer Fury accompanied by the Enchantress, another warship. His destination was Basle, Switzerland. He left the warship at Boulogne, France, and proceeded to Basle by express train. It is considered possible Edward may later return to England.

Formalities in connection with the accession of King George VII, including the proclamation ceremonies, commenced today. They are exactly the same as were observed in January on the accession of King Edward VIII. The full pageantry was observed with the Earl Marshal, Lord Mayor and other dignitaries participating, blare of trumpets, processions and gun salutes for the new monarch.

King George VI will be crowned on May 12 next year in the coronation ceremonies originally planned for his brother, the former King Edward, it is officially announced.

Is "Duke of Windsor" The new King today conferred upon Edward the title of "His Royal Highness, the Duke of Windsor."

SUB-ZERO WEATHER STOPS MADRID WAR

QUEEN MARY EXPRESSES HER GRATIFICATION FOR SYMPATHY OF PEOPLE

LONDON, Dec. 12:—In a statement yesterday, Queen Mary, "thanking the British people for sympathy which had been extended her," asked "a grateful remembrance" for Edward and "a full measure of generous loyalty" for King George. Queen Mary, wife of one King and mother of two others, watched the colorful scene in connection with the proclamation of King George VI outside St. James Palace, from an upstairs window in Marlborough House. The crowds, recognizing the stately grey-haired Queen, cheered her heartily time after time.

PROCLAIM NEW KING

Colorful Ceremonies in Connection With Accession Of George VI

LONDON, Dec. 12: (CP)—The new King, George VI in the ceremony of proclamation of investiture today, wore the uniform of Admiral of the Fleet. He hurried down the steps of his modest home at 145 Piccadilly at 11:25 a.m. and got into a waiting automobile. Only a police sergeant and two patrolmen, soon to be replaced by royal sentries, with fixed bayonets, guarded the trip to St. James Palace where he received official notification of the start of his reign.

At the conclusion of the ceremonies which included a Privy Council meeting, the new King walked down the grand stair case of St. James, out of the palace door and re-entered his car. He smiled in acknowledgement as crowds cheered the royal automobile as it carried him along the Mall to Buckingham Palace. The Dukes of Gloucester and Kent attended the ceremonies.

The new King sent a personal message to each of the three fighting services—the Navy, Army and Air Force.

Irish Free State Favors Abdication

Agrees to Let Edward VIII Go And Remains in Empire Under New Monarch

DUBLIN, Dec. 12: (CP)—As anticipated the Dail Eireann, Parliament of the Irish Free State, called into special session by President Eamon de Valera, accepted the abdication of King Edward VIII and approved the accession of George VI.

The Dail approved the second reading of the bill ratifying the accession of King George VI today with Labor members opposing it.

President de Valera pressed for final reading today after his government last night abolished the office of Governor General in the Free States.

Under the terms of the accession bill, the crown's duties are limited to representing the Free State in conduct of foreign affairs. De Valera emphasized that there would be no break from the British Commonwealth of Nations. "As long as the King is the symbol of the Empire and recognized as such he will be recognized by the Irish Free State," de Valera said.

COUNTERS WAR TALK

League Society Organizes Local Groups to Urge Political Action

OTTAWA, Dec. 12: (CP)—With establishment of Peace Action Councils in every centre of population in Canada as an objective, the League of Nations Society in Canada, describing itself as a Society for Peace Action, has called its workers to the most ambitious program of its history, according to Robert Inch, national secretary.

The councils, consisting of local organizations participating in the society as corporate members and of delegates of local individual members, are to have three principal functions: to co-ordinate local peace forces; provide a forum for the discussion of international affairs and formulate political action policy.

Several Peace Action Councils have already been established. The Montreal and London branches have approved in principle, and are now preparing plans for establishment. The representative of the society in the Maritime provinces has accepted the program as its first and principal objective. A similar program for Eastern Ontario has been envisaged in the appointment of Miss Grace Foley of New York City, as secretary for Ottawa and district.

As part of the preparations for the next national conference of the society, each local council and branch is being invited to prepare a draft program of political action, outlining the action which in its view the government of Canada should be taking. These will be the basis of discussion on one of the items on the national conference agenda.

Organization Growing The society hopes to make the next meeting of its national conference the most important peace action conference ever held in Canada. For the first time, it may be held outside Ottawa. Montreal, Toronto and Hamilton have been mentioned. More than 300 organizations are now eligible to participate in the conference and the society expects this number will be doubled by the time the conference is held.

The society is busy organizing junior branches for children of ages eight to 16. Their activities include regular meetings, production of plays and puppet shows, collection of stamps, keeping of scrap books, study and correspondence with children of other countries.

To the challenge of the present international outlook, the society has responded with a doubling of staff and an intensification of work in all programs.

BIDS FOR RECOVERY

New Zealand Tries Minimum Wage And Maximum Week

New Deal

British Dominions in South Seas Changes Laws and Watches Result

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Dec. 12: (CP)—New Zealand has bid for prosperity with a plan for maximum hours, minimum wages, compulsory collective bargaining and rigid conditions of labor.

Such social reform measures here are not new; the first step along that line was taken more than 44 years ago with an investigation into sweat-shop conditions. The capstone of the work was considered by many to be the recent decision of the New Zealand arbitration court establishing minimum wages of £3 16s ($19) for men and £1 16s ($9) for women for a 40-hour week.

The first Industrial Conciliation and Arbitration Act was passed January 1, 1895, and the present law of the same name was enacted in 1925 with the wage provision set by the arbitration court under an amendment passed June 3, 1936.

In fixing the wage the court was empowered by law to take under consideration "the general economic and financial conditions then affecting trade and industry in New Zealand, the cost of living and any fluctuations in the cost of living."

It was added: "The basic rate of wages for adult male workers fixed under the authority of this section shall be such a rate as would, in the opinion of the court, be sufficient to enable a man to maintain a wife and three children in a fair and reasonable standard of comfort."

Unionizing Workers Other sections of the law provide for unionization of workers, in some cases compulsory unionization, and sets up a system for the arbitration of industrial disputes.

In reducing hours to 40 a week the court was asked to increase hourly or piece-work wages so the total pay envelope of the employee would be just as large as under the longer work week. An attempt was made to limit, so far as possible, work on Saturdays.

In the long and bitter debate over the bill, one member of parliament in defending higher wages declared: "As the volume of production increases so must the spending power of the people to purchase and consume goods." One member asked: "Must the people of New Zealand go hungry for no other reason than that there is too much for them to eat?"

Manufacturers contended higher wages and shorter hours would increase costs so much that prices would be forced up, thereby lowering the purchasing power of the workers' wages.

Members of parliament from farming communities pleaded that farmers could not meet additional costs. Said a member: "The farming community can pass none of these costs on in spite of what has been said to the contrary over and over again in this House. We know that world parity fixes our prices absolutely. Let prices rise in this country above that parity and the market is glutted with primary produce withheld from export and awaiting sale."

But the law was passed, and both those who were for and against it sat back and awaited the economic result of their planning.

Becoming a Stalemate

The civil war in Spain seems like becoming a stalemate and should be stopped by the neighboring countries. We refuse to allow a cock fight or a prize fight with bare knuckles yet we allow this war to drag on needlessly, causing intense suffering and hardship to women and children, destruction of property and general horror and brutality. As long as it is allowed to continue there is danger of the trouble spreading and causing a general European conflict. At the present rate the war might drag on for years. The European powers, if they act as a unit, can have everything settled by Christmas. It would be a reasonable gesture for Christian nations who are about to celebrate the birth of the Prince of Peace.

All Gone Crazy

The Spanish people seem to be all gone crazy with hate and blood lust. Karl H. von Wiegand, war correspondent on the Spanish front, feels that this war may be the first in which political ideals instead of national aims are the dominant influence. His idea of it is similar to that of Walter Lippmann, who the other day called it "a spectacular dress rehearsal for the universal class war which lunatics talk about so glibly."

Of this war, the eighth he has covered, Von Wiegand says: "For sheer savagery and cruelty it has no comparison in the last hundred years—except in Spain itself. The massacre of the Armenians by the Turks pales into insignificance beside this struggle of extermination in which the horrible deeds committed by both sides go almost beyond description."

"The Ethiopian savages in Abyssinia, whom I watched for several months, were noblemen and knights of chivalry in comparison with some of the Reds as well as White in Spain. All the inhuman ferocity of Pizarro in Peru, the fiendish cruelty of Cortez in Mexico and the tortures of the Inquisition under Torquemada come to the surface again."

The cost to Spain of the first two months of civil war he estimates in the current Cosmopolitan Magazine as exceeding the four hundred million dollars gold reserve in the Bank of Spain, and the looting, plundering and destruction in the churches, monasteries, convents and in private homes of the wealthy is enormous.

GLASSEY REVIEWS

Atlin Gold Commissioner Tells Of Mining Activity in His District

Atlin's production of placer gold during the past season is estimated at $419,960, compared with $390,900 in 1935, according to H. F. Glassey, gold commissioner, who was a recent visitor to Prince Rupert.

It is estimated also that during the season hundreds of men were engaged on 152 operations, ranging from the large ones down to two-man developments.

The largest operations in the district were on Spruce Creek. The "bein" visitor, who has spent thirty-three years in the north the past three years as gold commissioner, summarizes the season's work as follows:

Spruce Creek—Columbia Development Limited—backed by Kaufman Rubber interests of Kitchener, Ont., operated with steam shovel and was managed by James Eastman. Sixty men were employed. Also on Spruce Creek the Colpe Mining Co. of San Francisco, under direction of C. H. Colpe, with sixty-eight men conducted a drifting operation. Spruce Creek is eight miles from the town of Atlin.

Boulder Creek—Boulder Creek, fourteen miles from Atlin—Consolidated Mining & Smelting Company was engaged in a successful hydraulic mining operation. The dam was improved and greater success is expected to be met during the 1937 season. The plant has been moved to the upper reaches of the creek. MacLeod White is in charge of the work.

McKee Creek, ten miles—This ground is owned by Vancouver interests but during the past two seasons has been operated by George Adams. It is a hydraulic operation working into the main channel that was encountered and lost below. This work is expected to result in production next season.

Wilson Creek, twenty miles—Six men during the season were prospecting at various places along Wilson Creek and results indicate good possibilities. It is a drifting proposition. Principal operators on the creek are C. Nord, Albert Genn and Mrs. Jennie Bender. The latter is 70 years of age and has placer mined on Wilson for the past quarter century.

O'Donnell River, thirty-one miles from Atlin—Twenty operators and prospectors were employed in this area during the season. The largest operation was by Nathan Murphy, who was drifting on the high rim. Good values came from the work and the district holds high promise for next season.

Slate Creek, tributary of O'Donnell—J. Smith, an old-timer, and his partner, Husselbee, were prospecting this ground and sluicing. They took twelve ounces gold from a small ditch and expect better returns from a larger ditch next season.

Otter Creek—Otter Creek, fourteen miles from Atlin—Here a French company has been operating for several years, but during the past two seasons development has been under agreement with Walter Sweet, Neil Forbes and partners.

Ruby Creek, twenty-two miles—The district's gold production was increased by the work of Peter Malson and partners, who are hydraulic mining.

Birch Creek—Twelve miles—Ten men made good wages throughout the season by ground sluicing and drifting.

Pine Creek, six miles—This is where the first gold in Atlin district was discovered. Much work has been done and the possibilities are described as still wonderful. The Guggenheim interests some years ago worked out one portion of the area, but prospecting results are encouraging in other parts, where bedrock is eighty to twenty-seven feet deep.

Generally speaking, the northern gold commissioner holds out high hopes for upper Spruce Creek, where John Noland is sinking a shaft. The ground below him runs five to eight ounces of gold to the set. (A set is 4x10x6 feet). There are better values here than on lower Spruce and the operation is less costly, as the distance to bedrock is comparatively shallow. The Noland operation adjoins the Colpe, the latter having recently acquired the holdings of Morris, McKechnie and Bratt.

JULIANA'S WEDDING

Two Marriages For Royal Dutch But Thrifty Queen Watches Expenses

THE HAGUE, Holland, Dec. 12: (CP)—Royal wedding costs may drop to a new low when Princess Juliana marries in January but already Holland is getting ready for a big national celebration.

Persons close to the court predict Juliana's marriage to Prince Bernhard of Lippe-Biesterfeld will be one of the cheapest and most dignified royal weddings in a long time.

Queen Wilhelmina, the bride's mother who is nimble with the thimble, artist's paint brush and the royal household account book is personally supervising all details and there are few signs at the two-storey white and yellow royal palace that the heiress to the throne is soon to be married.

But a million subjects—one-eighth of Holland's population—are expected in the capital city on January 7 to see Juliana take a Prince Consort. Hotels in The Hague were booked to capacity early in November and reservations already were being made in Amsterdam, Rotterdam, Delft and Leyden—all miles away.

Queen Wilhelmina dislikes show and pageantry and has decreed that the wedding be stripped of pomp. Like the humblest of her mother's subjects who wish a religious ceremony, the heiress to throne of the Netherlands will be married twice in the same day—first by the state and then by the church.

The religious part will be performed in the 14th century Gothic court church, the "Grote Kerk" (great church), otherwise known as St. Jacob's, which, with its 1,600 seats, is the largest in The Hague. The court pastor, Dr. H. T. Obbink will officiate during the Dutch Reformed Church ceremony.

The "Grote Kerk" is in the centre of The Hague, a quarter of a mile from the royal palace. Beside it is the town hall where the Princess and Prince must make a stop before going to the church across the narrow street. Here the civil ceremony will be performed by the mayor, S. J. R. de Monchy, in the first class wedding chamber. There are two such rooms, used according to the amount of money paid.

Details Of Wedding

Many details of the wedding the Queen intends to let the people find out for themselves.

"The only way you will find out about the Princess' trousseau," her secretary said, "is to go to the wedding and see for yourself."

Prince Bernhard is expected to wear the uniform of the Blue Hussars, the first of four cavalry regiments the officers of which are all blue bloods. It is assumed he will be named an officer on the day of his wedding so he can wear the uniform.

As for wedding gifts, 100,000 women in Rotterdam are making four stitches each in a carpet, the city of The Hague is giving a golden goose feather, school children in Friesland are giving pennies for a writing desk set, another town is giving an oil painting, Indian housewives are sending silverwork bowls, and the gift of the state is to be a yacht.

Army Officer Tells of Need

Major of Local Corps Outlines Some Purposes For Which Money is Used

Often there are inquiries as to how the Salvation Army relief funds are used. The local senior officer explains some of the purposes. She says:

"With the approach of winter comes evidence that success does not always smile on enterprise. Transients, some with a stiff upper lip, continue hopeful in pursuit of employment when a bed and meal is provided. Some, with courage gone, hope deferred or spirits dashed, are truly none the less grateful for the meal ticket, the half worn shoes and clothing from the relief room as they listlessly continue their way in pursuit of employment.

"The resident who has again, or for the first time met with adversity, makes application not so much for food as fuel and clothing.

"Through response to the Christmas appeal deserving cases are able to enjoy the 'few extras' during the festive season. Throughout the winter months new clothing for the ill-clad child can be purchased, fuel placed where the need is greatest and meal tickets provided to the transient.

"Since November 6, 1936, 62 articles of clothing, one bed and three mattresses have been distributed. Eighteen meal tickets and nine beds have been given to single men in addition to groceries sent to families."

Later the major will tell of some of the special cases coming to her notice.

Education Drops Mortality Rate

The More One Knows About Cancer, the Less Fatal it Is

NEW YORK, Dec. 12: (CP)—Dr. John C. Gerster, chairman of the New York City Cancer Committee, reports a decrease in cancer mortality among women in the city, which he said could be attributed in part to increased alertness as a result of cancer education. His statement was based on a comparison of 3,293 deaths from cancer among women reported in the first nine months of 1936, with the 3,870 deaths estimated to represent 75 percent of the cancer deaths reported among women last year.

Although cancer statistics could not be considered 100 percent reliable, it seemed of definite interest that nearly 600 fewer women died of cancer in the first nine months of 1936 than in an estimated similar period in 1935, Dr. Gerster said.

PLANNING HOSPITAL

Set of Plans For New Building Received From Provincial Architect—Finance Problem

The board of directors of the Prince Rupert General Hospital had before it at last night's regular monthly meeting a set of preliminary plans prepared by Henry Whittaker, chief architect of the province, for a new 70-bed hospital building at Prince Rupert. No estimate of cost accompanied the plans but the general understanding was that they involved the expenditure of around $175,000 or $200,000.

The plans, which were examined by members of the board, provide for a modern designed and equipped building three storeys in height in addition to an operating room cupola. The dimensions are about 140 by 80 feet and the proposed site is on Fifth Avenue immediately to the east of the present hospital building with which there would be connection.

City Commissioner W. J. Alder brought forth the suggestion of a possible curtailment of the new hospital project whereby a new $100,000 unit might be built which, together with using a portion of the old building, would possibly meet the requirements of the immediate future. Mr. Alder thought that, with the financial support for the project now in sight, there might be a possibility of embarking next year upon a $100,000 project. The province had already voted $25,000, another $25,000 might be anticipated next year and there was reason to believe that $20,000 might be available locally. The remaining $30,000 might be financed possibly through the contractors. Mr. Alder again stressed the idea of making a community drive of the whole new hospital undertaking.

After some further discussion, Mr. Alder was asked to go into the matter, particularly the financial phases, more fully with Mr. Whittaker at Victoria. The commissioner will be leaving on Thursday of next week for a visit in the capital.

HOMES ARE REBUILDING

Bow Valley Ranchers in Alberta Rising Out of Ashes

CALGARY, Dec. 12: (CP)—One week after forest flames had destroyed ranch homes and buildings, causing loss of $200,000 to Bow Valley ranchers, rehabilitation plans moved ahead rapidly.

Aided by a newspaper relief fund, lumber was obtained and transported here to the disaster-stricken district and an immediate start made on the re-building of destroyed homes.

The fire swept a 100,000-acre district Thursday, November 19. On November 26 timbers for the first home had been placed early in the morning and, with volunteer carpenters and joiners at work, by nightfall walls had been started.

By mutual agreement the ranchers, in a race against wintry weather, agreed the home of Arthur Coelon, 10 miles southwest of Cochrane, should be re-built first. Other homes will be started shortly.

Coelon, who with his wife and 12-year old twin sons, had a narrow escape when the flames raged across his ranch, suffered a property loss of $9,000.

"I can hardly believe it's true," he said as he busied himself with hammer and saw aiding the volunteer carpenters. "It looked like a hopeless proposition. Today our new home is under way and best of all it won't have a mortgage on it."

Was Like Ware

The wall of flame which raced down Bow Valley, which he witnessed from a hillside, brought back rare memories to Coelon, a veteran of the Tenth Battalion Canadian Expeditionary Force. "It reminded me of the barrage that was put over on the morning of April 9, 1917, when we took Vimy Ridge except that the noise of guns was absent," he said. "I got my family in the old car. Three miles away we stopped and looked back. Our house and barn were in flames."

The cash fund has grown to more than $2,000. Lumber companies have given a generous price reduction and transportation companies supplied trucks without charge for the 35 mile trip from Calgary. Furniture, bedding and kitchen utensils were also donated in large quantity.

Detroit Red Wings, as a result of their 2 to 1 victory over Montreal Canadiens Thursday night, went back into first place in the American Section of the National Hockey League ahead of the idle New York Rangers. Advise Bible For Dramatics

No Dramatic Situations Better Than These in Holy Writ

TORONTO, Dec. 12: (CP)—Nancy Pyper, director of Hart House Theatre, agrees with the choice of Ethel Barrymore, who has selected the Bible as a "first textbook" for aspiring actors, as reported from New York.

"I can't think of anything better," she says. "The dramatic situations in the Bible are excellent. I have often wondered why more ministers don't study acting and drama. The Bible affords great opportunity for one to use one's voice. The language of the Book is so simple and plain. The pictures given are so fine one just sees them all the time."

The New Threat to Pacific Coast Halibut Fisheries — Final Inspection Of Fishermen's Floats New Work — Two C. P. R. Boats In

The threatened entry of the Pacific Coast halibut banks by the Norwegian deepsea fishing vessel Thorland, now reported to be outfitting as Oslo for a trip to the British Columbia coast to catch halibut for the British market, has been the cause of a great deal of speculation and discussion just recently in Prince Rupert fishing circles. The widespread effects upon the industry as it is now operated through the presence of a great cold storage storage vessel of this nature in local fishing waters can be readily visualized. There, quite possibly, might not be a single phase of the industry which would not be affected adversely. It might easily prove a disastrous blow to the port of Prince Rupert. The operation of the international treaty in regard to the halibut fisheries between Canada and the United States would, undoubtedly, also be seriously affected. Negotiations which have been instituted by various interests to head off the move will be followed with more than usual interest at Prince Rupert.

Two Canadian Pacific coastal liners were in port last evening. The Princess Adelaide, Capt. Henry Anderson, arrived at 6 p.m. from the south and sailed at 10 p.m. on her return to Vancouver. Running more than a day late, the steamer Princess Louise, Capt. S. K. Gray, after a stormy special voyage to Alaska, arrived in port at 7:15 from Skagway with a large list of passengers and sailed at 9 p.m. for Vancouver.

C. F. P. Faulkner, assistant district engineer for the federal department of public works, after spending the past few days here making a final check up in connection with recent improvements at the fishermen's floats, sailed by the Prince Rupert Thursday night on his return to Vancouver. The value of the breakwater and dredging work just recently carried out was amply demonstrated by the storms which have shaken the local waterfront up during the past week or so. Craft moored there were quite secure.

Union steamer Cardena, Capt. John Boden, arrived in port at 9 o'clock last evening from the south and sailed at 10:30 p.m. on her return to Vancouver and way-points.

CO-OP HAS ANNUAL MEETING

Government Asked to Issue No More Fish Trap Licences

The Prince Rupert Fishermen's Co-operative Association's annual general meeting was held in the C. C. F. Hall last Monday.

President F. Keith opened the meeting at 10:30 a.m. It was attended by practically every member of the Co-operative in the vicinity of Prince Rupert.

Gustav Normann was elected as chairman, and opened the meeting. After the routine business of the reading and disposing of the minutes of the last annual general meeting, the reports of the directors and manager were presented to the meeting.

There were three new directors elected—Gustav Normann, H. Hansen, J. Petersen, and one director, M. Haapala was re-elected. The auditors elected for forthcoming year were W. D. Vance and M. Anderson.

After some discussion, two recommendations to the Fisheries Department, were endorsed:

1.—That in view of the fact that there are no fish traps allowed to operate in the State of Washington, the Fisheries Department be approached to discontinue the issuance of fish trap licences in the Province of British Columbia.

2.—That the Department of Fisheries be approached to amend the Fisheries Act, to the effect that it will be illegal to expose for sale any Spring salmon less than twenty-six inches in length, the same as in effect in Alaska.

It was unanimously decided to have a special general meeting in the spring, before the fishing season commences, to discuss the problems relative to the season's activities.

The meeting gave the Board of Directors the power to purchase packers for the forthcoming season.

It was agreed that the Co-operative should have some distinguishing mark or sign on the members' boats, whereby boats travelling and fishing in areas serviced by other Co-operatives could be easily identified.

The members instructed the board of directors to approach the North Island Co-operative, with the view to affiliation of the two organizations and closer co-operation between them.

The meeting was marked from start to finish by intense interest and a spirit of good fellowship on the part of the members and everyone agreed it was one of the best trappers' meetings ever held in Prince Rupert.

Seasonal Program At Story Hour

Chapter II of the year's serial story, told by Mrs. Hollingworth, headed the program at the children's story hour this morning. "Beautiful Joe," narrated by Kay Watson, illustrated the spirit of kindness and thereby led into a Christmas theme introduced by Mrs. Hollingworth through telling the origin of the carol "Silent Night." This carol was then presented by Major Laycock, accompanied by the guitar, just as it was first given to the world in a little town in Germany.

Eileen Hamblin carried on the seasonal theme in telling the humorous Christmas legend "Fulfilled." The program was climaxed by a playlet in which Merry Christmas cast her spell of good will over two strangers and the Big Bad Wolf, resulting in the distribution of gifts to all. Those participating in the cast included Phyllis Hamblin (violinist), Mrs. Hollingworth, S. D. Johnston, Denny Allen and Dr. Mandy.

Next week's story hour, for children between the ages of four and eight, will be in charge of Mrs. R. Cameron, Mrs. J. A. Barry and Mrs. Phil Linzey.

NEW MATTRESSES AND BEDS ARE NEEDED BY HOSPITAL, ANNOUNCED

Miss Jean Harrison R.N., lady superintendent, informed the hospital board at its meeting last night that it would not be long before it would be necessary for her to ask the board to provide some fifty new mattresses. As the mattresses cost upwards of $20 each, the expenditure will be in the neighborhood of $1000. New beds are also being required. This will be a matter with which next year's board will have to deal.
