RAILWAY TO BE BUILT FROM THE NAAS RIVER

WILL BUILD A RAILWAY INTO GROUNDHOG COUNTRY

News of Mr. R. Campbell Johnstone's Great Find of Anthracite Coal Creates Interest in Vancouver—Company to Build Railway from Naas

(Canadian Press Despatch)
Vancouver, Nov. 11.—The announcement of the discovery of great anthracite coal fields so immense that the output will only be governed by the demand, and of a quality second to none on the American Continent, has created great interest in the find of Mr. R. Campbell Johnstone, the mining engineer, who has returned here after spending five months exploring the headwaters of the Skeena, the Stikine and the Naas rivers.

A company has been incorporated to secure a charter to construct a railway from the coal area to Naasago Gulf, at the mouth of the Naas River. A start will be made on surveying on the line next spring.

WHO WILL BE OUR NEXT MAYOR?

There are Lots of "Possibilities" Spoken of, But so Far They are Very Shy of Making any Definite Announcement

INTERVIEWS WITH LIKELY CONTESTANTS

Ald. Clayton Says He Has No Intention Unless the Public Invite Him—Ald. Hilditch Wants to Know Who the Council Will Be First—Statements Made by Messrs. C. D. Newton, P. I. Palmer and Dr. W. S. Hall—Alderman Newton is Still the Only Definite Candidate

Who is going to be the next Mayor of Prince Rupert? That is the engrossing topic in club circles, and wherever two or three citizens gather together.

A large number of names have already been mentioned, all of whom have a more or less claim on the position. Up till today none of those who have any outstanding claim on the position have made any definite announcement, with the exception of Alderman S. A. Newton, who some time ago announced that he would stand for office as Mayor as a protest against the alleged ring rule of his colleagues on Mayor Manson's ticket.

Lots of Candidates.
Owing to the very sharply defined divisions among the various classes who compose the voting strength—the property owners, the labor organizations, and the political clubs—it is quite possible that a plethora of candidates will be found on nomination day.

Among those whose names have been mentioned are Alderman Douglas, W. H. Montgomery of the Longshoremen's Union, Mr. P. I. Palmer, ex-Alderman Frank Mobley, Mr. Cy Peck, Mr. W. S. Benson, Alderman John Hilditch, Alderman Clayton, Dr. W. S. Hall, Mr. A. J. Morris, Mr.

C. D. Newton and, of course Alderman Newton.

Three Out of Town.

Of these, Mr. Frank Mobley, who was the defeated candidate last year, is at present out of town, looking after his private interests in Atlin. Mr. A. J. Morris is also out of the question, as he is away on a business trip to New York, and will not return to the city until the elections are over. In any event, his duties as president of the Board of Trade already make considerable inroads on his time. Mr. W. S. Benson is also out of town at present. He is considered by many to be the "dark horse" of the business men, his banking experience being urged as a special qualification for next year, when the Council will have to undertake the floating of a debenture issue.

What the Men Say.
With the exception of Mr. W. H. Montgomery, whom the News was unable to locate, the following indicate the feeling of the various gentlemen whose names have so far been suggested for the honor.

No Intention.

C. D. Newton: "No, I have no intention of running this year for any office whatever."

Long Time Yet.
P. I. Palmer: "It's a long time between now and the election, and I have nothing to say on the matter meantime."

No Intention—As Yet.

Dr. Clayton: "I have certainly had the matter proposed to me, but have never considered it for an instant. I have at present no intention of running. As I understand it, the matter should come before a convention of citizens, whose choice would be the candidate put up. Apart from such a proceeding, I would not consider it."

Had Been Approached.

Dr. W. S. Hall: "Yes, I have certainly been approached by a certain party in this city in regard to the forthcoming mayoralty contest, but I have nothing to say for publication on the matter yet."

Among those whom the News was unable to obtain a statement from this morning, but who have made a statement during the past few days, are the following:

Only a Rumor.

Cy Peck: "If they've got me down for a mayoralty candidate, I haven't heard of it, and you can safely deny it as only a rumor. Someone's got to run, of course, but the only def-

HAS LORD SHOLTO DOUGLAS ENDED LIFE BY SUICIDE?

New York Despatches Say so, but the Marquis of Queensbury Declares That His Brother is in West—Well Known Figure in Kootenay

(Canadian Press Despatch)
New York, Nov. 10.—It was announced late today that the man registered as Maurice S uart' who committed suicide on Monday at the Hotel Astor, has been identified as Lord Sholto Douglas, brother of the Marquis of Queensbury. The Marquis of Queensbury who is in Chicago today emphatically denied that the man who committed suicide at the Astor Hotel is his brother. He says he is in the far west, and had a letter from him only two days ago.

Vancouver, Nov. 10.—The Lord Douglas referred to in the New York despatch refers to Lord Sholto Douglas who for some time was a resident of the Kootenay districts in B. C., and who early last year was tried at Nelson on a charge of having shot, and wounded a man at Creston. Since then he is believed to have left the country. According to Seattle despatches, Douglas was there at the end of last month.

Brisk Scene at Wharf Round One P. M. Today.

SKATING IN CITY.

Boys Are Cutting Eighties Near the Sash and Door Factory.

Hard frost for the past week has given a smooth sheet of ice on the large pond near the Sash and Door Factory, and the boys are having the time of their lives there today. Certain enterprising and energetic laddies have swept and cleared a specially good portion of the pond, and are proposing to levy a charge on those who avail themselves of it. There's the makings of millionaires in our Prince Rupert boys, all right.

DANGER AVERTED.

Substantial Railing Placed Along Second Avenue New Sidewalk.

Since completion of the fine new seventeen-foot sidewalk on Second Avenue opposite the Government buildings a good many people have remarked on the serious risk to passersby of a very bad fall over the unprotected side of the walk towards the G. T. P. reserve, a distance down of about ten or fifteen feet on to a rough grade rock pile. Chief of Police W. H. Vickers drew the attention of the city engineer to the matter, and was informed that proper protection was planned for this point, but lumber supplies had run short; hence the delay. The railing is now completed, and forms good protection for grown-ups, but it might be improved, perhaps, by a low railing to keep small children from falling over.

Messrs. C. Embleton and J. Carmichael of the Royal Hotel Staff have purchased the Exchange Grill and will open a first class restaurant there in about ten days. The club rooms upstairs, it is expected, will be rented.

Mr. Carmichael is an old-timer in the city, having arrived here in 1908 from Victoria. At that time the Exchange Grill was running in a small tent on Rupert Road, with George Milner as cook and Frank Bowness proprietor.

WILL SACK CITY COAL.

Frank Kelly Is Determined to Make Sure of His Conditions of Contract This Time.

Owing to the opposition of a certain section of the City Council, the Light Committee's recommendations have been disregarded regarding the purchase of a higher priced coal than that supplied by the Union Transfer Co. and offered the city by tender recently. The Union Transfer Co. now gets the contract as lowest bidder, but in order that there may be no possible misunderstanding regarding specifications or anything else, Mr. Frank Kelly, manager of the company, intends to have every ton of the coal delivered properly weighed and sacked, and for each ton will get the city's due receipt at the plant. There was trouble over the weight of coal delivered by Mr. Kelly's firm before, and he is determined that there shall be no more of it. Regarding the quality of the coal, Mr. Kelly claims to have proof from figures by members of the Light Committee that 200 tons of his coal lasted the plant three and a half months, when 300 tons of another firm's coal lasted the plant only two and a half months.

OPERA COMPANY ARRIVES

Sherman-Cleveland Company Is Back From Its Northern Trip—Opens Tonight in Empress Theatre.

On board the Princess May today was the Sherman-Cleveland Opera Company, which is just returning from its long tour of the Yukon country. Mr. Cleveland, manager, expressed himself as being delighted with the trip and expects to bring the company up to the country next summer. The opening bill tonight will be "A Stubborn Cinderella," a lyric which gives the company ample scope for the display of its talents.

On Monday night the opera will be "The Time, Place and Girl." The engagement is for one week. The repertoire will include several of the latest musical comedies and the special scenery, together with the electrical and costuming paraphernalia, will make of each production a satisfying rendition.

HUDGERS ROY'S LIFESTORY READS LIKE A PAGE FROM SOME ROMANCE

Veteran French Canadian Who Died in Prince Rupert Yesterday Had Made Fortunes on the Pack Trails of White Horse Pass—The Hardships of His Life in the Frozen North Had Aged Him—Died When He Had Reached Life of Comfort

A veteran of the old Yukon days, the tough, hard times of the gold rush to the Klondike, as well as a pioneer of earliest Prince Rupert, Ludger Roy, passed away yesterday in the General Hospital. His was one of the most interesting of lives, full of incident and romance, only the romance was of the kind that is only romantic to the onlooker. To him it was real life, and real hard at that.

An Old Packer.

Ludger Roy was the first man to organize any sort of systematic means of conveying supplies over the White and Chilcot Passes into the Klondike. Oxen, a pair of white oxen, imported at fabulous cost, but earning fabulous revenue, were his means of transportation. Many and many a time they toiled over the frozen ground, their own feed costing a fortune, but the supplies they brought to the hungry mining camp bringing for their own more than a fortune than even the most profitable of gold mines. It was estimated that during the time he was thus employed in packing goods over the trail with his oxen, Ludger Roy earned upwards of $250,000. Investment in various profitable claims increased Roy's fortune.

Had a Free Hand.

He used to grubstake prospectors, and made a good deal this way. All his gains vanished, however, because of his freehanded way of lending without security or even bond. Those who could repay no doubt did so, but many failed to make good themselves and still owe the money. Roy was seen more than once to hand over sum of from $1,000 to $2,500 absolutely on the face value of the borrower.

Life of Hardship.

The white oxen which made him his first money died on the trail, and were themselves eaten, say some reports. But imbued with the conviction that the gold mine lay not in the ground but all along the trail, Roy kept on the enterprise. Remembering the times when he and his oxen were besieged by miners why stripped the packs to the leather

A TALK TO NEWS READERS

Your Favorite Paper is Again Enlarging Its Equipment

Readers of the Daily News will be interested to learn that within a few days there will be installed in the Daily News Office the most complete and up-to-date linotype machine in the whole Province. The News has been waiting for several months to secure one of the first of the newest types of multiple typesetting machines and will have the honor of having the first of the new multiple linotypes to enter British Columbia—and of course the only one in Prince Rupert.

This will be in addition to our present monotype system which will continue to be used in our job department.

The new machine will enable the Daily News to give more news and later news, and enable the paper to be in the hands of our readers earlier than before.

The citizens of Prince Rupert are assured that the plant of the Daily News and the News Job Department will be kept up-to-date to cope with the growth of the city.

thongs, and paid him in golds and bills his own prices for the food-stuffs, $100 for a few pounds of flour, $25 a dozen for eggs, $100 for a pound or so of sugar or salt, the persistent French-Canadian went still further. He invested in a steamer for the Yukon River, and long before the famous Five Finger Rapids were blasted out, he tried to shoot the falls with a laden steamer. He failed. The frame and machinery of the vessel lie now under the frozen Yukon. Roy escaped with his life, but nothing daunted, he purchased another steamer. Once more he made the attempt to navigate the rapids. Once more he failed, and the bones of his second boat lie beside those of his first.

Earned a Quarter-Million

Competition now came in in the packing business, and Roy, after taking the cream of the profits of the early days, pulled out of the business, not so very much the richer owing to losses. He became fire chief after a time at White Horse, and was well known there for most of the interesting time at that city. But it was with hardly any ready, and a good many debts, that Ludger Roy reached Prince Rupert, in the earliest days of all.

Life in Prince Rupert.

His first venture was The Dominion boarding house, which proved profitable, and paved the way for the Dominion picture show, which proved more so. But Roy was meanwhile paying off debts which, had others paid him what they owed, would never have been incurred. He did not make more than a living out of the picture show. Later he started up the Owl restaurant, and was just getting "out of the hole," as the saying goes, when his death, accelerated by the privations of his early struggles in the Yukon, took place. He was only 52 years old, though he looked far old.

A Son of Quebec.

Ludger Roy was born in Durham, Quebec, and his life's experience had "Better leave it to me, and I will see that they clear the sidewalk. Camosun Made a Special Trip to Ocean Falls on Her Way North—Arrived at 6:30 Today.

Those citizens who have been in the habit of setting their watches by the time the Camosun blew her whistle on entering the harbor on Friday nights, have been much upset today. The whistle did not sound until nearly daybreak this morning. The explanation is that the old reliable had taken a load of machinery to the new pulp mill at Ocean Falls on the way north.

She left for Stewart again shortly before 11 a. m., after discharging a goodly cargo at Prince Rupert.

Interesting Topic to Be Subject of Rev. F. W. Kerr's Address.

"A Visit to the Holy Land"—On Sunday evening at 7:30 the regular Presbyterian services will be held in the Empress Theatre. The pastor, Rev. F. W. Kerr, will give an address on the Holy Land.

During the early part of last year, Mr. Kerr was one of a party of four students taken by Prof. C. F. Dent of Yale University on a tour through Palestine. This will be the first address given by Mr. Kerr on this subject.

The morning service, at 11 o'clock, is held in the church hall on Fourth Avenue.

The club meets Wednesday evening, when three would-be candidates for mayor will give characteristic addresses. Everyone cordially invited.

O. L. will furnish the evening's entertainment. Coffee, cake and sandwiches will be served at the close of the programme. The admission will be 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children.

"CLUB" NOT "ASSOCIATION"

Daily News Gave the Credit for Fistic Encounter to the Wrong Party. Association Meets Wednesday.

Several members of the Conservative Association have drawn the News' attention to the fact that undue honor was given them in yesterday's report of the fistic argument between two well known local Conservatives. The honor was due to the ConServative Club, not the Conservative Association.

The members of the Conservative Association, which is the recognized Conservative body in Prince Rupert, do not officially recognize the Conservatives Club, though some leading ConServatives are apparently members of both groups.

In regretting the confusion of titles in yesterday's report, the Daily News mentions that next Wednesday will be held the meeting of the Conservative Association proper. It is understood that the Conservative Club met last Wednesday with the association's meeting in view, for the purpose of nominating members of the executive, over which considerable difference of opinion exists between members of the bodies.

DAILY EDITION.

SATURDAY, NOV. 11

OF INTEREST TO SECTION ONE LOT OWNERS.

Upon the pretext that it wanted to reserve them for "public purposes," the Government held back most of its Section One lots at the time of the sale. How real were its intentions to favor the city with sites for public buildings is seen in the fact that it recently asked $25,000 for a city hall site, although at the present time it is holding 112 lots in Section One for "public purposes."

Probably the real meaning of the withholding of the one hundred and twelve lots in Section One is due to the near approach of the fixing of the improvement by-law assessments. The million or more that the local improvements will total up, are to be assessed to the various lot-owners in Section One very shortly. The lots owned by the Provincial Government cannot be assessed, because they are owned by the Government. Every lot-owner will therefore have to pay his own share, and a proportionate share for the 112 lots owned by the Government. After the lots are assessed, the payments will be arbitrarily fixed for a term of fifty years.

The Government lots will be free from assessment taxes. The existing lot-owners will have to pay it all. The Government will then be free to sell its lots at a very high price, because they will not be subject to improvement assessments, or it will be free to hold the lots free of taxation in the hope of getting a still larger price.

The Provincial Government is using its prerogative to hinder development and to enrich itself at the expense of the lot-owners in Section One. A year ago the Premier visited Prince Rupert and promised that the Government lots in Section One should be put on the market, in order that the burden of taxation should be equalized over the whole section. Possibly it was one of the Premier's famous "diplomatic promises," and was never meant to be kept. The fact is that it has never been kept. In the meantime a conspiracy of silence is keeping the Section One lot-owners in the dark as to the true state of affairs.

HURRY UP WITH THE AMBULANCE.

Now that Alderman Clayton and a member of the Empire staff have set an example by having a fistic set-to before the members of the Conservative Club, that ambulance from Montreal cannot be hurried along too fast.

It is common knowledge that Alderman Clayton is intending to announce his candidature for Mayor, and will therefore have to hold public meetings and arrange public discussions. This makes it very imperative that the ambulance be got ready with all speed.

When it arrives, it will be a good idea to build a little lean-to shed at the back of the City Hall to store the ambulance. On Council nights, or when the Conservative Club is meeting, it could be hitched up, and kept in readiness outside the hall. A little forethought like this might save somebody's life.

During election time, when there will be frequent political discussions, it would be wise to fix up an extra bed on top of the ambulance roof. The Council could pass a by-law reserving the inside for Conservative debaters, and the outside for Liberal spokesmen. This would not only show Liberalism as belonging to the higher strata of thought, but would typify how at present the Liberals are out in the cold, so to speak.

In a case where, as on Thursday night, the leaders of debate were both Conservatives, an extra ambulance might be ordered, or a rule passed that only one gentleman was to be hurt at a time.

For Wednesday next, when a mock mayoralty contest is to take place in the Presbyterian Church, it might be wiser to move the church over onto a vacant lot close to the hospital, or to chloroform some of the speakers before the discussion warms up.

In the meantime, an urgent message should be sent to Montreal to rush work on the civic ambulance.

THE Pillar of Light

By Louis Tracy

"Jack is his front name, I suppose," went on Pyne, breathing on the copper disc in his hands to test its clearness. "We will introduce you, even at this distance," said Constance, airily. "Mr. Pyne—this is Lieutenant John Percival Stanhope, only son of the late Sir Charles and Lady Margaret Stanhope, of Tregarthen Lodge, Penzance, one of the best and dearest of fellows who ever lived."

"It must be nice to be a friend of yours, Miss Brand, if you always talk about the favored person in that way," said Pyne, rubbing industriously. "End, to whom the mere sight of the steamer had restored all her vitality, giggled joyously."

"You know, Mr. Pyne, we all love Jack, as the song says. It was a mere accident that he did not accompany us to the rock yesterday. Connie would not let him come."

"Ah," said Pyne. "I forbade him," explained Constance, "because he has only three days' leave from his ship, and I thought he should give the first afternoon to his mother instead of playing poodle for End."

"How dare you call Jack a poodle?" was the indignant exclamation.

"Allow me," drawled Pyne. "I'm very glad you classified him."

Constance suddenly felt her neck and face aflame. Pyne was standing on her left, End on her right. The quiet jubilation of Pyne's voice was so unmistakable that End, for one instant, withdrew her eyes from the distant ship. A retort was quick on her lips, until she thought her that the American's statement might have two meanings.

Being tactful withal, she chose her words whilst she bubbled forth:

"He promised to take us for a drive today. That is the dot and dash alibi he has given me. I am sure Jack did require all the dots I'm sure Jack is monopolizing the dashes. He must be furious about this game."

Constance, who wanted to pinch End severely, had reverted to her normal healthy hue by this time. She dropped her glasses.

"We are shamefully wasting precious minutes here," she said. "End, you and I ought to be in the kitchen."

Then she glanced with cold self-possession at Pyne, who was whistling softly between his teeth as he plied the duster.

"As for you," she said, "I never saw anyone work so hard with less need."

He critically examined the shining burr.

"We Americans are taught to be strenuous," he said smilingly. "That is the only way you can cut in ahead of the other fellow nowadays, Miss Brand."

She almost resigned the contest. That unhappy explanation had delivered her bound into his hands. Yet she strove desperately to keep up the pretence that their spoken words had no ulterior significance.

"Such energy must be very wearing," she said.

"It is for the other man."

"But in your case it is unnecessary. My father believes we will be here at least forty-eight hours." Then she came conscious that again she had not said exactly what she meant to say.

"So you, at any rate, need not wear your fingers to the bone," she added, hurriedly.

"Guess it must be a national vice," he said with irritating complacency. "Just now I feel I have a regular 'steak on'."

"Your example equals your precepts. End, tear yourself from the attractive spectacle. There are eighty-one ravenous people to be fed."

"Sorry you haven't hit upon the real reason of my abounding industry," said Pyne, who skipped down the ladder first to give the girls a helping hand as they descended.

"Please tell us. It may be inspiring," said Constance.

"I'm going to ask the boss if I can't take a turn as scullery-maid when I'm through here."

"Then I veto the idea now," she answered. "End and I have had a most comfortable nap, and I am certain you have not closed your eyes all night. I will make it my personal business to see that both my father and you lie down for a couple of hours immediately after breakfast."

"Or else there will be a mutiny in the kitchen," chimed in End.

"Connie," she whispered, when they were safely out of hearing from the service-room, "I never saw a worse case. Talk about the young men suddenly coming out of novels—"

Her sister whirled around.

"How can you be so silly?" she blazed forth.

"Why did you label Jack so readily?" muttered End. The other, utterly routed, went on in dignified silence. She did not speak again until they surveyed the store apportioned for the coming feast.

"Eighty-one!" she murmured. "What a monstrous deal of people for a half-penny worth of bread!"

"What is the use of repining?" sang End, with a fortissimo accent on the penultimate syllable. "For where there's a will there's a way. Tomorrow the sun will be shining, although it is cloudy to-day."

But Constance was not to be drawn a second time. Her clear brain was troubled by a formless shadow. It banished from her mind all thought of a harmless flirtation with the good-looking youngster who had brought a blush of momentary embarrassment to her fair face.

How dreadful it would be to meet hunger with refusals—perhaps there were worse things in the world than the midnight ordeal of an angry sea. Indeed, when Pyne did join them in accord with his intention, he soon perceived the extent of the new danger. The stress of the night had only enhanced the need of an ample supply of food. Everybody—even the inmates of the hospital—was outrageously hungry, and the common allotment was half a cup of tea and half a ship's biscuit.

THE DAILY NEWS

For the midday meal there would be two ounces of meat or bacon, one potato, and another half biscuit. For supper the allowance was half a cup of cocoa and two ounces of bread. Not much to be baked during the day. Not quite starvation, this menu, but far from satisfying to strong men and worn-out women.

The Falcon, knowing the uselessness of attempting to creep nearer to the Gulf Rock, had gone off with her budget to startle two continents. Stanhope's last message was one of assurance. He would do all that lay in man's power. The lighthouse soon quieted down to a state of passive resistance. Pyne, refusing to be served earlier, carried his own and Brand's scanty meal on a tray to the service-room.

The unwearied lighthouse-keeper was on the balcony, answering a kindly signal from the Land's end, where the coast-guards were not yet in possession of the news from Penzance.

He placed the tray on the writing-desk and contemplated its contents ruefully.

"I guess that banquet won't spoil for keeping," he said to himself. "I'll just lay around and look at it until the boss quits making speeches by the yard."

A couple of minutes passed. Brand was hoisting the last line of flags, when the American heard faltering footsteps on the stairs.

"Don't follow so close, Mamie," said a child's voice. "My arm hurts 'till 'nuff for anything when I move."

A towed head of golden hair emerged into the light. It was one of the two little girls, whom Pyne had not seen since they were swung aloft from the sloping deck of the Chinook.

Their astonishment was muted. The child, aged about eight, recognized in him a playmate of the fine days on board ship. She turned with confident cry.

"I told you so, Mamie. It was up. You said down. Here's the big glass house—and Mr. Pyne."

She quickened her speed though her left arm was in a sling. Pyne, dreading lest she should fall, hastened to help her.

"See all right, Mr. Pyne," she announced with air of great dignity. "I make one step at a time. Then I catch the rail. See?"

"You've got it down to a fine point, Elsie," he said. "But what in the world are those women-folk thinking of to let you and Mamie run loose about the place?"

Elsie did not answer until Mamie stood by her side. Judged by appearances, Mamie was a year younger. Apart from the nasty bruise on Elsie's left arm and shoulder, the children had escaped from the horrors of the wreck almost unscathed in body and certainly untroubled in mind.

"Mamie came to my room for breakfast," explained Elsie at last. "We've awful hungry, an' when we axed for 'nother bixit Mrs. Taylor she began to cry. An' when I said we'd go and find mamma she cried some more."

"Yes, we've awful hungry," agreed Mamie. "An' please, where's mamma?"

Pyne needed no further explanation. The little ones had lost their mother; her disfigured body, broken out of all recognition, was tossing about somewhere in the under-currents of the channel. None of the women dared to tell the children the truth, and it was a heart-rending task to deny them food.

So, they were permitted to leave their refuge, with the kindly belief that they would come to no harm and perchance obtain a further supply from one of those sweet-faced girls who explained so gently that the ration must run short for the common good.

Pyne glanced up at the lantern. Outside he could see Brand hauling down the signal. He sprang to the tray and secured his half biscuit and tea cup.

"Come along, Elsie," he said, crooking his left arm for her. "Follow close, Mamie. Mind you don't fall."

"Your mamma is asleep," he assured them in a whisper on the next landing. "She just can't be woken up for quite a long time."

Then he navigated them to the door of the second bedroom, where Mrs. Taylor was. He broke the hard biscuit in two pieces and gave one to each child.

"Here, Mamie, you carry the cup, and go shares in the tea."

"I don't like tea," protested Mamie. "If I can't have coffee I want some milk."

"Well, now you wait a little bit, and you'll be tickled to death to see what I'll bring you. But drink the tea. It's good an' hot. Skip inside, both of you."

He held the door partly open and they vanished. He heard Mrs. Taylor say:

"Didn't I tell you those two little dears would do their own business best?"

He regained the service-room to find Brand steeping the remains of his biscuit in an almost empty cup. The lighthouse-keeper greeted his young friend with a smile.

"I suppose that you like the rest of us, never had such an appetite in all your days?" he said.

"Oh, I'm pretty well fixed," said Pyne, with responsive grin.

"There you are fortunate. There is usually a wretched little fiend in a man's inner consciousness which prompts him to desire the unattainable. Now, I am a poor eater as a rule, yet this morning I feel I could tackle the toughest steak ever cut off a super-annuated cow."

"I don't deny," admitted Pyne, "that the idea of a steak sounds good. That is, you know," he went on languidly, "it might sort of appeal to me about one o'clock."

"I should have thought you could do with one now, especially after that hard night we have gone through. Perhaps you are a believer in the French system, and prefer a light breakfast."

Brand finished the morsel of biscuit and drank the cup dry.

"It's a first-rate proposition—when you are accustomed to it," said Pyne. "But talking about eating when there's little to eat is poor business, any way. Don't you find that?"

"I do indeed."

Brand rose and tapped the barometer, adjusting the sliding scale to read the tenths.

"Slightly better," he announced. "If only the wind would go down, or even change to the norrard!"

"What good would a change of wind do?" inquired Pyne, greatly relieved himself by the change of topic.

"It would beat down the sea to some extent and then they might be able to drift a buoy, with a rope attached, close enough to the rock at low tide to enable us to reach it with a cast of a grappling iron."

"Do you mean that we could be ferried to the steamer by that means?" "That is absolutely out of the question until the weather moderates to a far greater extent than I dare hope at present. But, once we had the line, we could rig up a running tackle and obtain some stores."

"Is it as bad as all that?" said the younger man, after a pause. They looked at each other. The knowledge that all true men have of their kind leaped from eye to eye.

"Quite that bad," answered Brand. Pyne moistened his lips. He produced a case containing two cigars. He held one.

"Let us go shares in consolation," he said.

Brand accepted the gift, and affected a livelier mood.

"By lucky chance I have an ample supply of tobacco. It will keep the men quiet," he said. "By the way, and he lifted a quick glance at Pyne, "do you know anything about chemists?"

"Well—er—I went through a course at Yale."

"Can colza oil be converted into a food?"

"It contains certain fats," admitted Pyne, taking dubious stock of the question.

"But the process of conversion, the chemical reaction, that is the difficulty."

"Bi-sulphide of carbon is a solvent, and the fatty acids of most vegetable oils can be isolated by treatment with steam super-heated to about 600 degrees Fahrenheit."

Brand threw out his hands with a little gesture of helplessness; just then Constance appeared.

"Dad," she cried, "did not Mr. Pyne tell you of my threat?"

"No, dear one. I am not living in terror of you, to my knowledge."

"You must please go to sleep, both of you, at least until ten or eleven o'clock. Mr. Emmett is sending a man to keep watch here. He will not disturb you. He is bringing some rugs and pillows, which you can arrange on the floor. I have collected them for your special benefit."

"At this hour! Impossible, Connie."

"But it is not impossible, and you know quite well that the Falcon will return tonight, and you must rest, you know."

She bustled about, with the air of a housewife who understood the whole art of looking after her family. But something puzzled her.

"Mr. Pyne," she inquired, "where is your cup?"

"I—er—took it down," he explained. "For some reason, Constance felt instantly that she had turned the tables on him since their last rencontre. She did not know why. He looked content for one thing; he was not so glib in speech, for another."

"Down where?" she demanded. "Not to the kitchen. I have been there since you brought up your breakfast and dad's on the same tray."

"I breakfasted alone," remarked Brand calmly. "Mr. Pyne had feasted earlier."

"But he had not," persisted Constance. "I wanted him to—"

She stopped. This impudent American had actually dared to wink at her, said plainly: "Please don't trouble about me."

"You gave your tea and biscuit to somebody," she cried suddenly. "Now, who was it? Confess!"

"Well," he said weakly, "I did not feel—particularly hungry, so when I met those two little girls loafing about on an extra supply, I—er—thought nobody would mind if—"

"Father!" said Constance. "He has not had a mouthful."

"Then take him downstairs and give him one. You must have found my conversation interesting. Mr. Pyne, whilst I was eating. But before you go, let me add a word in season. There must be no further discrimination between persons. Stand or fall—each must abide by the common rule."

Pyne, with the guilty feeling of a detected villain, explained to Constance how the cup might be rescued.

"I shall keep a close eye on you in the future," she announced as they went below.

"Do," he said. "That is all I ask for."

"I am a very strict person," she went on. "Dad always encouraged us in the sailor's idea of implicit obedience."

"Kick me. It will make me feel good," he answered.

Entering the second bedroom, where Elsie and Mamie were seated contentedly on the floor, she stooped and kissed them. And not a word did she say to End as to the reason why Mr. Pyne should be served with a second breakfast. She knew that any parade of his unselfishness would hurt him, and he, on his part, gave her unspoken thanks for her thought.

Conversation without words is an art understood only by master-minds and lovers, so these two were either exceptionally clever persons or developing traits of a more common genus—perhaps both.

CHAPTER XI.

MRS. VANSITTART'S FEAR

The tribulations which clustered, in bee-line swarm, in and around the Gulf Rock Lighthouse during those weary hours were many and various. Damp clothing, insufficiency of food, interior temperatures ranging from the chill draught of the entrance passage and stair-ways to the partial suffocation of rooms with windows closed owing to the incursions of the rising tide—this unpleasant aggregate of physical misery was seriously augmented by an ever-increasing list of sick people, an almost total absence of any mental comforts, and a growing knowledge on the part of those not too despondent to think that their ultimate relief might be deferred for days rather than hours.

No mere man can understand, and a woman of ordinary experience can but dimly imagine, the difficulty and arduousness of the task undertaken by Constance and End.

To cook and supply for eighty-one persons with utensils intended for the individual use of each separate individual, so skilfully distributed, that should have cause to grumble at his or her neighbor's better fortune—here were culinary problems at once complex.

Baseball players in the major leagues will not be permitted to go into vaudeville during the off-season, neither will they be allowed to do newspaper work on world's baseball games, if a resolution prepared by August Nerrman, chairman of the national commission, passes that body. At the next meeting of the commission he will introduce the resolution. He believes that criticism by fellow players for newspapers has had a bad effect on the game, because of the ill feeling aroused by such criticism.

Lightweight Champion Ad Wolgast and Matt Wells, lightweight champion of England, are not likely to engage in a boxing contest according to a message received from Tom Jones, Wolgast's manager. Here is what Jones has to say on the subject: "After much wrangling and a trip to New York, I am at last convinced that Matt Wells, English lightweight champion, does not want any of Wolgast's game. I conceded every point to him, weight, etc., also accepted terms of two clubs in New York, but they could not induce Wells to listen to any reasonable proposition, which plain shows us he don't want to meet Wolgast. We will pay no more attention to Wells but will be ready to meet Packey McFarland or any one the public may select."

London, Nov. 10.—The home secretary, Reginald McKenna, has laid down the law that any boxing match decided by a knockout shall be illegal in Great Britain. The announcement is the result of a question put to the home office by Mr. Burgoyne, who sought to allay the nervousness of proprietors of halls who had refused to take on the Wells-Moir fight because of the experience of the lessee of Earl's Court in the Wells-Johnson affair. The home secretary said his position was affected less by any action on the part of Winston Churchill, his predecessor, in the Earl's Court case than by the action of the high court in the matter. The law was, "If the object and intent of the combatants be to subdue each other by violent blows until one could endure it no longer the contest was illegal. On the other hand a sparring match wherein the object was to win by skill and not by severity of injuries inflicted, was lawful." The difficulty was in ascertaining whether any contest could be kept within the law. This depended, not merely upon the rules for the fight, but the manner in which it was conducted. A match arranged under legal rules might degenerate into a prize fight and in view of court's decision in the Earl's Court case the landlords were well advised to take steps to protect themselves.

FROST AND WATER MAINS

Colonel Davis Assures Citizens That Mains and Hydrants are not Frozen, and are Fully Protected.

City Engineer Davis wishes to remove from the minds of residents across Hays Creek, and of citizens generally, the misapprehension that "the mains are frozen." This is not the case. The city engineer has had his water officials on the job long before the sudden frost spell, and has their assurance now that not a single water main all over the city, nor any hydrant is sealed by frost. As for the stand pipes over the creek, which some residents there complain are frozen, the city engineer has ascertained that no levy of any kind has been made upon these residents for three stand pipes, and the leats the citizens using them might do is to protect them from the frost. The city engineer is certain that no mains will freeze this winter owing to the extra precautions he has taken.

HAYS CREEK SEWER

Scheme Proposed is not Complete Trunk Sewer Yet. Will be After Dry Dock is Further Advanced.

Plans of the proposed new trunk sewer to be constructed along the line of Hays Creek are on view at the City Hall today. The work which is to cost $75,000 involves the building of sewers from a point near No. 8 Comox avenue, to the temporary outfall not far from where the salt water meets fresh in Hays Creek. Later on the plans include the laying of sewers from that temporary outfall to the sea, but until the new dry dock and ship yards are more advanced in construction this part of the work must be deferred. There is also an extension provided for landwards along Comox avenue a good deal farther than the present planned construction goes.

DEVOTED PRINCIPALLY TO THE INTERESTS OF WOMEN

This is a little section of the paper, which from day to day will be devoted to subjects of special interest to women. Any and all of the ladies of Prince Rupert are invited to contribute to its columns, and to take part in its discussions. Suggestions and criticisms are invited by the editor. The hope is expressed that "The Cosy Corner" will fill a social need.

A RAINY DAY OUTFIT

Hardly Needed of Course in Prince Rupert, but Handy to Know About.

Every girl who goes daily to business should possess a rainy day outfit—that is, a special raincoat and skirt that she wears only when the weather is hopelessly wet.

The rainy day skirt, of course, is short and quite plain, whatever the prevailing fashion may be.

With it is worn a neat white shirtwaist.

Instead of petticoats a pair of bloomers are more convenient.

The raincoat can be made at home from a good pattern, and must have as its material a cravenette waterproof cloth.

This, with care, should last for at least four years.

For the skirt, buy a remnant of serge—either black or some dark shade and band the hem with leather, which can be bought to match the shade of the fabric.

If rubbers are objected to on the score of ugliness, very nice sandals or overshoes are to be had at little cost.

The nicest gloves to wear on rainy days are thick cotton ones that look like shamoi.

With this outfit choose a plain little toque or felt, and wear over it a washable motor veil, which will help to keep the hair tidy in

To remove stubborn rust spots from steel, put oil and quicklime on and leave it on for several days. Then rub with oil and rotten tstone. A good cleanser for hardwood is to wash it with a clean flannel wet in turpentine and rub lightly afterward with boiled linseed oil.

Arrowroot is excellent for thickening sauces made of fruit juices, as it neight clouds the mixture nor destroys the flavor of the fruit.

Most modern brasswars is lacquered and needs only to be wiped off with a damp cloth. Work quickly and do not let the surface get wet.

A perforated rubber mat is almost an essential when the drain board of the sink is of porcelain. It saves many an ugly chip on the fine china.

Bric-a-brac should be carefully dusted before being washed in hot water or soapsuds, in which a little ammonia has been dissolved.

A little muriatic acid added to the rinsing water after a blue or white fire rug is scrubbed with soap and water will help to restore the color.

The small jars in which candy sometimes comes should be saved for picnic use and lunches, as they are excellent for carrying salad and sauces.

Do not wash colored fabrics in the same water with white ones. This especially holds good if one happens to have table linen with colored borders.

place. Shoes are preferable to ties in rainy weather, but if ties are worn a pair of gaiters serve to guard the ankles from wet.

Cake Icing

A delightful icing for cakes can be easily made by melting one-fourth of a cake of chocolate in four tablespoonfuls of sweet milk. When cool work in one cup of powdered sugar which has been sifted twice. This icing will keep moist.

Mock Angel Food

One cup milk, one cup flour, one cup sugar, two teaspoons baking powder, pinch salt, whites of two eggs, beaten stiff. Heat the milk to boiling point, stir other ingredients together several times (four or five) and stir into hot milk, then fold into this the whites of two eggs, already beaten. Do not flavor cakes or grease pan, but flavor icing.

Potato Puffs

Take cold potatoes, mash, season with melted butter, salt, pepper and a little onion; omit onion if not liked. Roll in little balls and then in beaten egg and then in cracker crumbs, put in wire basket and hold in boiling liquid a minute, or just long enough to brown; put in oven a few minutes and they puff up and are delicious. Garnish with parsley.

Date Cake

One pound dates stoned and shredded, one-half pound English walnuts, three eggs, one cup flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one cup sugar, one teaspoon vanilla. Beat eggs separately, then together, add sugar, vanilla, and flour then dates and nuts. Bake forty minutes in moderate oven.

Tested, Tried, and Found Reliable

To reduce the noise of dishwashing have a piece of heavy Turkish towelling put on the drain board for the dishes to drain upon.

Have on hand plenty of boiling water, washing soda and a good disinfectant to wash all toilet articles and to pour down drains.

The soft, velvet cushion, such as is used to keep a man's silk hat in condition, is equally satisfactory for a woman's hat, whether velvet or felt.

BIG STEAMER IS DAMAGED

The Bessie Dollar Struck a Rock When Leaving the Harbor of Everett—Has to Put into Victoria.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Victoria, Nov. 11.—Divers are to be sent down tomorrow to examine the hull of the British steamer Bessie Dollar which struck a rock when leaving Everett, with 4,000,000 feet of lumber for Manila. The steamer put in here, listed heavily to starboard, after loading her bunkers with coal at Comox. It is feared the steamer is seriously damaged.

WHO WILL BE NEXT MAYOR?

inite announcement I've heard yet is Alderman Newton's.

Ready to Be Asked.

Alderman H. Douglas: "Well, I ran before, and I might again, but I am not going to announce myself as early as this. It's up to the people, of course, to approach the men they want, and the idea has been put up to me more than once, but so far I am not considering it. There seems to be more mayoral candidates than aldermanic as far as it goes at present."

Knows Nothing of It.

W. S. Benson: "I haven't heard anything about it yet, and the rumor may very well be denied."

Depends on Aldermen.

Alderman Hilditch: "Yes, people have got me down on the list for mayor, I believe, but without any authority that I can see. It is not a thing I would dream of considering without knowing the sort of council I was to work with. If men like Bill Lynch were running for council there would be some class to running for mayor."

Mr. Sawle, it is understood, will go into business at Hazelton, where his brother, Mr. C. H. Sawle, is now running the Omicra Herald. Mr. Warner will continue to work for the new firm in the meantime.

Applications will be received up to November 25th, 1911, by the Board of Directors of the Prince Rupert General Hospital Association from women wishing to take a full course of training in nursing. 12t

FIRST: "CATCH YOUR PRINTER"

DIRECTIONS FOR COOKING A HARE:
FIRST:—"CATCH YOUR HARE"

To produce good printing you must "first catch your good printer. . . You can't get good printing from a poor printer, even if he work with never so good an equipment. If he lacks the "knack," the trained taste, the single-minded fondness for his work which real printers have, he will do poor printing for you. If he has all of these, and in addition to them adequate modern equipment, your printing will have distinction, salesmanship, the lure of type-beauty.

As this office produces good printing you may infer the presence of a good printer—who is "catchable."
