France Advises Italy to Keep Hands Off Valencia—Masses Her Fleet

LONDON, June 24: (CP)—Rebuffed by Great Britain and France in the German demand for a naval demonstration by all four powers to "warn the Spanish government away from patrol warships," Nazi and Fascist states in concert yesterday abandoned active participation in the non-intervention control scheme off the coast of Spain and the four-power neutrality patrol.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden formally announced the German decision to the House of Commons. Count Dino Grandi, the Italian ambassador, then informed him of Italy's concurrence with Germany. German warships which had been assigned to Spanish waters moved eastward from the eastern or government-held coast of Spain to an unknown destination.

German Foreign Minister Konstantin von Neurath's informing of Foreign Secretary Eden of the recall of the German ships thus dispelled rumors that the Reich planned a naval demonstration of its own off government-held Valencia.

Eden Skeptical

Foreign Secretary Eden urged the House of Commons today to accept reports of German warship movements off Spain with "great reserve." He said that neither the European non-intervention committee nor the British patrol ships could confirm reports of Italian troops landing in Southern Spain.

"I would suggest to the House that reports of German warship movements eastward in the Mediterranean should be received with great reserve," Capt. Eden said. "Official information received" by the Admiralty does not confirm them.

In Berlin yesterday Sir Neville Henderson, the British ambassador, told the German government that the British government would take a serious view of any hostile action against Valencia.

In Paris today French officials declared that any Italo-German attempt to patrol the Spanish coast without authorization of the international non-intervention committee, from which both Germany and Italy withdrew their patrol units yesterday, would be regarded as a blockade and, therefore, an act of war against Spain. In such a situation, officials warned, France and Great Britain could not remain indifferent.

French Warships Move

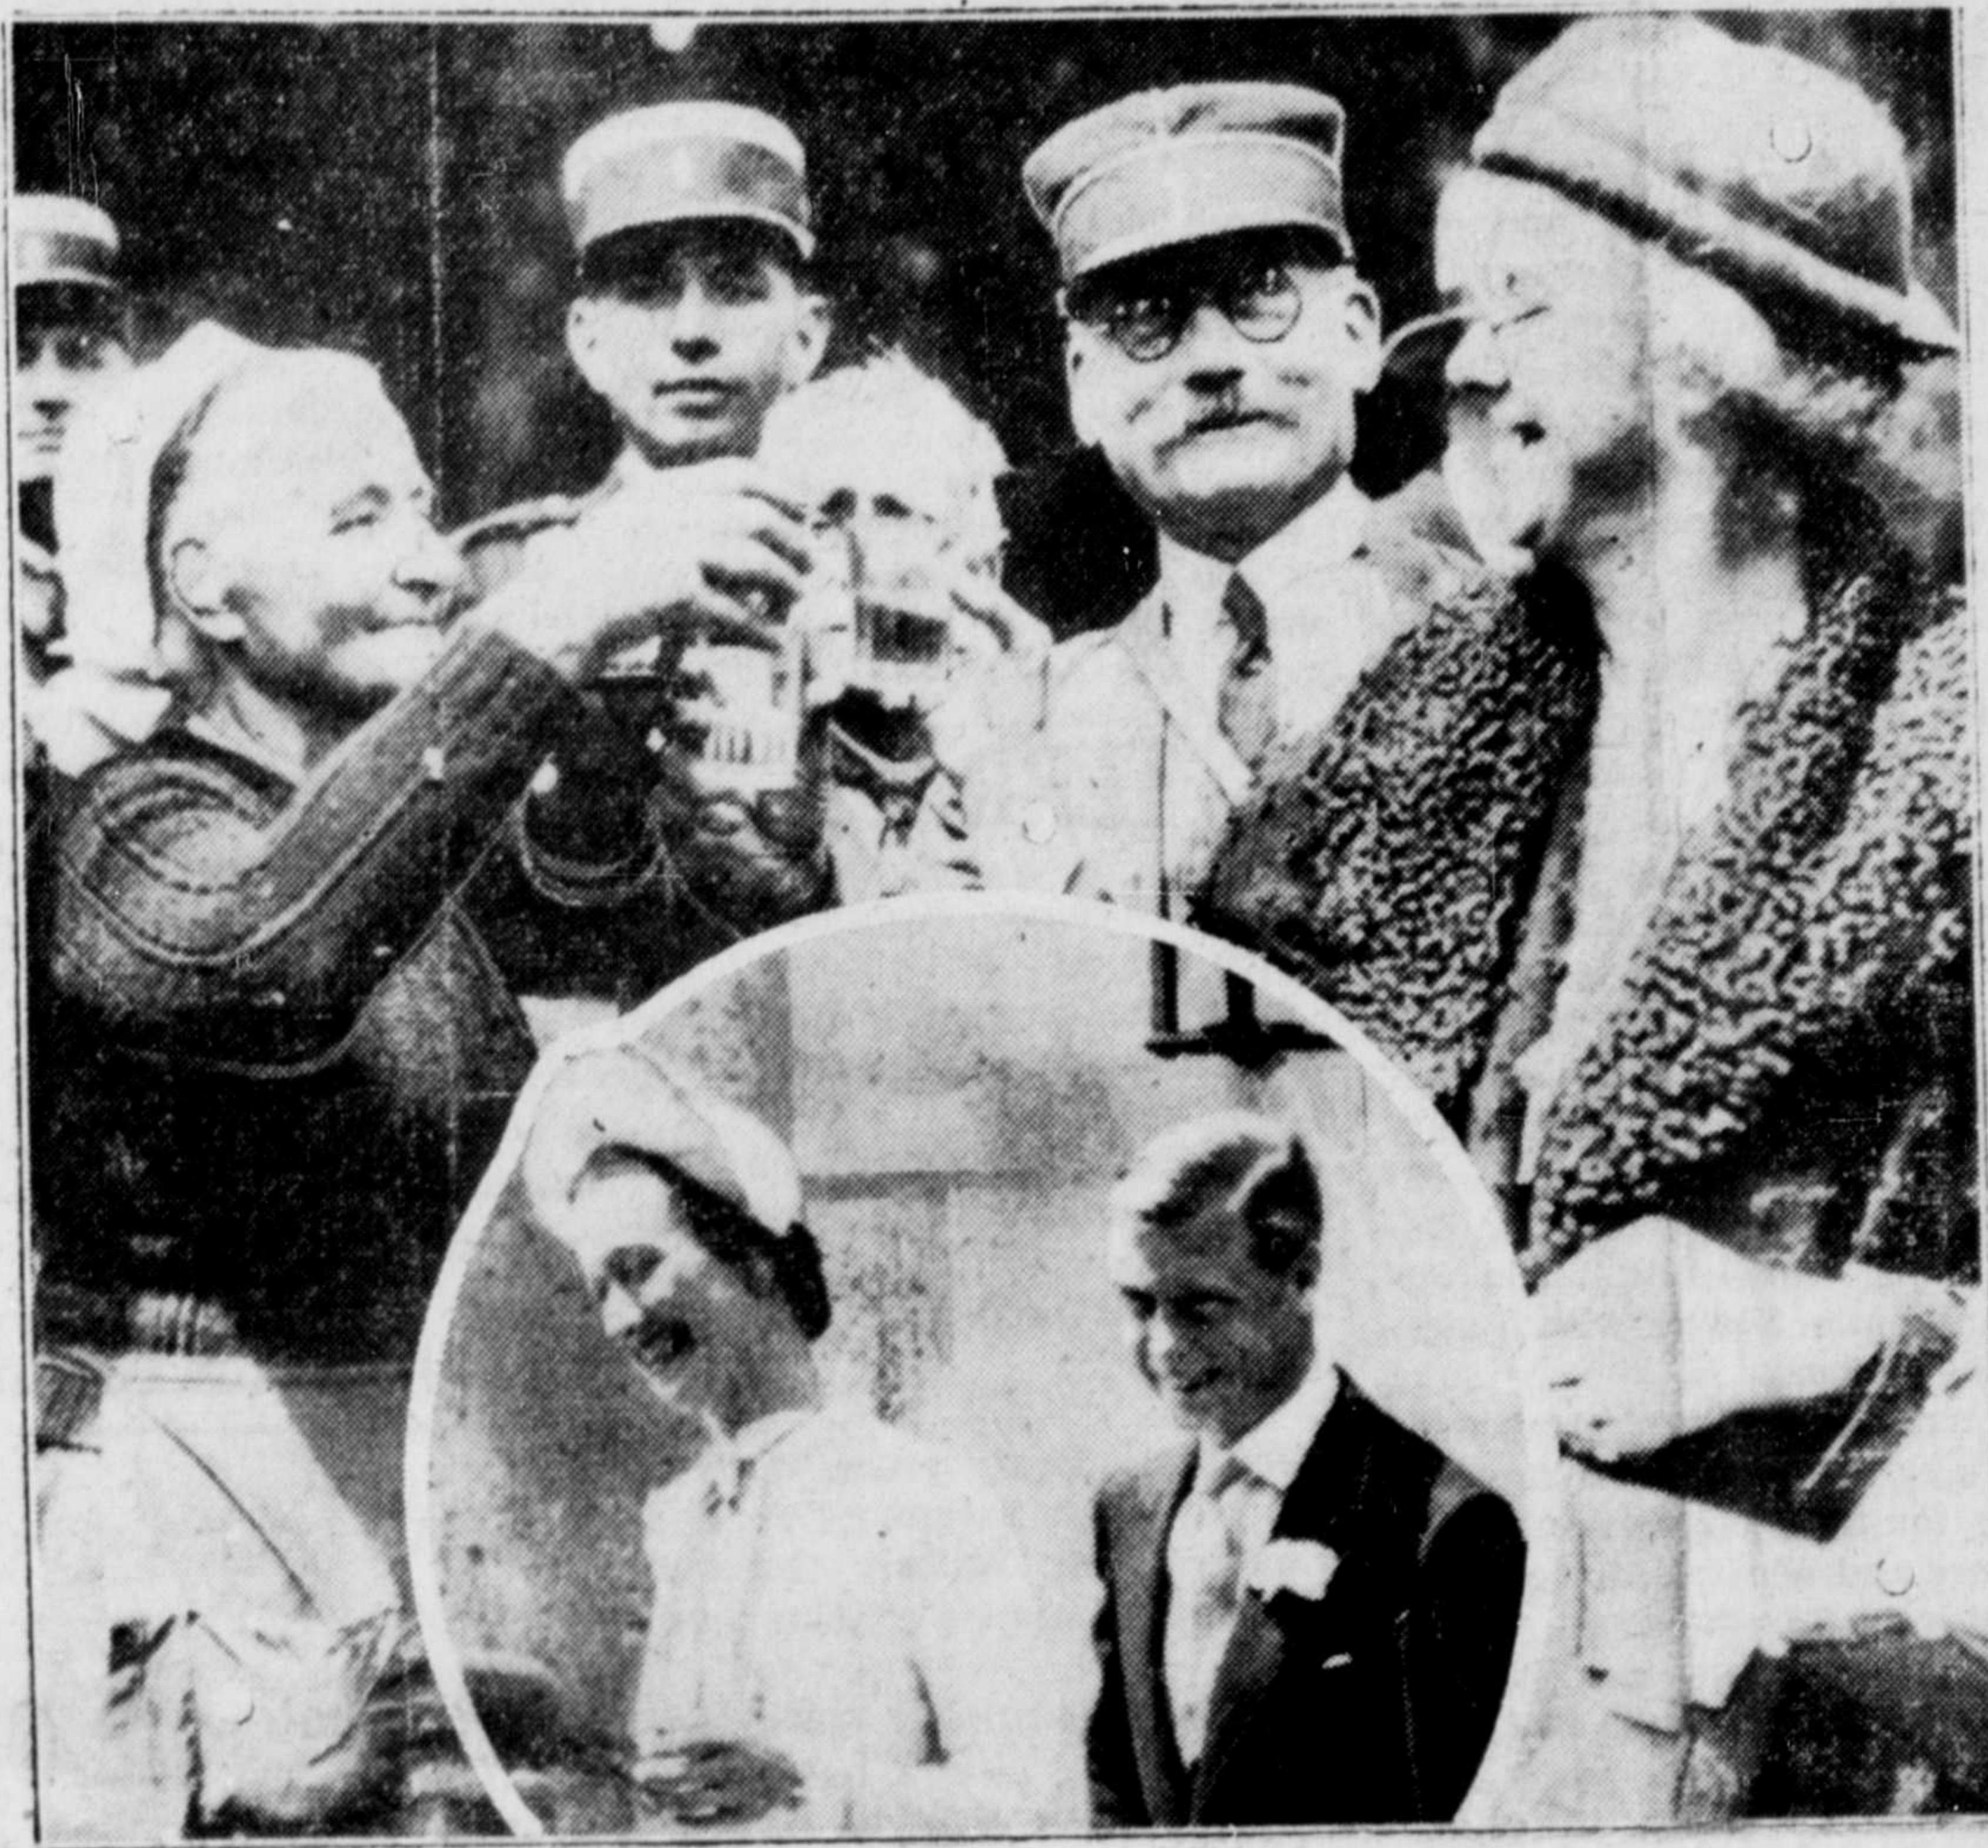

A French warship squadron anchored today at Bone, Algeria, due south of Italy's Mediterranean island of Sardinia. The squadron consisted of two heavy cruisers, four destroyers and five submarines, all units of the Mediterranean fleet.

Inset is the Duke and Duchess, each giving a hearty laugh at the newspaperman's quip. They were photographed as they were about to enter the chateau after posing for newspaper photographers.

COUNT IS GOING ON

Check-up of Absentee Voting Concluded — Announcement Of Result Expected Friday

Official count for Prince Rupert riding following the recent provincial election was continuing yesterday before Returning Officer W. D. Vance. It was expected that it would be completed by today. It has been found there will be no individual check-up of locally cast ballots, the various agents accepting the original count.

Today the count of absentee ballots was announced complete as follows:

Outside absentee—Colthurst, 0; Eviitt, 37; Pattullo, 62; Weaver, 29; rejected, 20. Absentee within the riding—Colthurst, 0; Eviitt, 23; Pattullo, 105; Weaver, 123; rejected and spoiled, 33.

The locally cast ballots will now be separated before the returning officer announces the final and official count, possibly tomorrow.

However, it is learned that some sort of compromise has been reached and the camp is to reopen very soon.

Arabs Have Benefitted Greatly By Jewish Migration and Jealousy Only Cause of Trouble

Gyro Speaker

Joseph Schwartz Heard in Interesting Talk Yesterday By Local Service Club

As a result of the settlement of the Jews in Palestine under British mandate, the Arabs have been greatly benefitted and are really much more happy and prosperous than they were before. Jealousy at seeing the great progress that has been made during the last twenty years since the Jewish migration in a country with which the Arabs were able to do little or nothing during two thousand years themselves is the only factor responsible for the unrest of the last few years. The Arabs have been solely responsible for this trouble and the Jews have only the kindest feeling towards them and are anxious to do everything they can to further improve them.

So declared Joseph Schwartz, manager of the Rupert People's Store, yesterday in an address at the weekly luncheon of the Prince Rupert Gyro Club on the subject of "Modern Jews in Modern Palestine." Mr. Schwartz's discourse proved both interesting and informative to his listeners. Dr. H. N. Brocklesby, president of the club, was in the chair and, in addition, club members W. O. Fulton, John Bulger and B. E. Bailey were present as guests.

Mr. Schwartz traced the history of Palestine with reference to the Jewish migration from November 2, 1917, when the Balfour declaration on Palestine and the Jews was made, leading up to the giving of a mandate to the British over Palestine by the League of Nations. Immediately after the Great War, the migration had started. First went in the pioneers who found the country neglected, barren and disease-ridden. There was nothing but rocks and swamps. Mosquitoes swarmed and the Arabs were in a deplorable condition, the majority being afflicted with disease such as trachoma, venereal malady and malaria. Their attempts at agriculture were most crude and with their primitive implements, the Arabs were able to produce barely enough to keep body and soul together. The first task of the Jews had been to clean up Palestine. At the outset medical service was provided with the setting up of hospitals and the bringing in of doctors and nurses. Night schools in agriculture were opened. Swamps were bought from the Arabs and made into orchards. Gardens and grain fields were started on the hills. Water, previously sold in small quantities by water carriers who got it anywhere it was to be found, was brought in from miles away. The Arabs were shown how to be clean and healthy. They were well satisfied and contented. Never before were they so well off.

Rise of Tel Aviv Outside of the port of Jaffa the Jews had purchased ten million square metres of sandy land. Here where there had been previously only six houses and a school house, had grown up the great community of which the progressive and modern city of Tel Aviv, with its 150,000 population, was today the centre. From what had been twenty (Continued on Page 6)

No Less Than Twenty-Six Alien Vessels In Wait Off Bristol Bay

Some Are Identified as Japanese—Declared to Have Been Within Three-Mile Limit—American Fishery Officers Not Welcomed

LIBBYVILLE, Alaska, June 24: (CP)—Two thousand American fishermen, preparing to shove off tomorrow for the Far North's salmon run, scanned Bristol Bay today and counted no less than twenty-six large foreign fishing boats and floating canneries concentrated down the bay awaiting the world's largest red salmon run.

A territorial official said he had identified some of the foreign boats as Japanese and further said that he had seen some of the vessels within the three-mile limit.

Michael Hatton of the Fisheries Bureau said that he drew up alongside one of the Japanese boats but was not welcomed.

"Foreign boats have been increasing yearly and, with the type of gear they are using, there will be no salmon in these Bristol Bay waters in five or six years," Hatton said.

CELEBRATED ANNIVERSARY

Family Reunion Dinner and "At Home" Features of Mr. and Mrs. Shenton's Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Shenton, 528 Eighth Avenue West, have been this week celebrating the golden anniversary of their wedding which took place fifty years ago June 20 in Staffordshire, Eng. All but one of their six children were here for the occasion as well as eight of fourteen grandchildren.

On Monday night there was a family reunion in the form of a dinner party at the home. Present with their parents were the daughters—Mrs. Harry Bryant of Courtenay, Mrs. Dyson Hirst of Nanaimo Mrs. Peter Hackett of Premier; Mrs. Joseph Ratchford of Prince Rupert, and George Shenton, also of Prince Rupert. The older son, Arthur Shenton of Princeton, was unable to be in attendance. A beautiful three-tier wedding cake, made and adorned by the daughters, was the feature of the festive board. It was duly cut by the bride of half a century ago. There were appropriate favors for the children.

On Tuesday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Shenton were at home to their many friends. The daughters, assisted their mother in receiving the callers. There have also been many visitors at the home at other times to offer hearty congratulations and best wishes for many more years of wedded bliss.

Numerous gifts testify to the esteem and popularity in which Mr. and Mrs. Shenton are held not only in this community but at other points where they have resided.

THE IRISH QUESTION

For years Ireland asked for freedom from British rule and it was denied, the idea being that it would be fatal to British security to have a possible enemy within a few miles of her coast. Much blood was spilled in an effort to break away from the old system of government and much ill-feeling engendered.

Times have changed, a new generation is growing up, and today nobody seems to care whether the Irish people stay in the Empire or leave. They are at liberty to do as they please about it. The result is that the Irish people, who always love a fight, are taking little interest in the matter. They are to vote on July 1 to decide what they will do about it and it is suggested that the majority either way is not likely to be large. At any rate the people of Ireland are not at all a unit for leaving the Empire and many thousands would prefer to remain as they are. Evidently nobody is sufficiently concerned as to what happens to cause even a broken head or a blackened eye.

WHAT WE WOULD LIKE

It almost goes without saying that the other parts of the British Empire would like the Irish Free State to remain as it is but it is not for us to say. Each Dominion or independent state has a right to withdraw from the Empire if it wishes and Ireland is no exception to the rule. However, England and Ireland are very closely allied by trade and other associations and it would seem to be much to the advantage of the smaller country to remain as she is rather than to set up as an absolutely independent state. The vote next Thursday will decide what they plan to do.

CAMILLE CHAUTEPS GOVERNMENT

Camille Chautemps has formed a cabinet to carry on the administration of French affairs along somewhat similar lines to that adopted by Leon Blum who for over a year was head of the administration. How Ming the new government will last nobody can tell for in France they do not have responsible government as we understand it in Canada. Here, if the government is defeated on a vital question in the House of Commons, an appeal may be made to the country in a general election unless the opposing party is willing to accept the responsibility of carrying on and can secure a majority of the House. In France they have frequent changes without any serious upset. Much seems to depend upon the ability of the leader to hold his followers together.

FUR FARMING VANDERHOOF

Successful Operation About Ten Miles South of Town Has 225 Animals at Present

During a recent visit to Vanderhoof by a Daily News representative, the question of fur farming was discussed at some length with Pergus Park, road superintendent and one of the owners of the most successful fur farm in that neighborhood. The ranch is situated on the shore of Nulka Lake, ten miles directly south of the town.

About 225 animals are kept on this farm, 50 of which are cross fox, 75 silver fox and around 100 mink. The farm was started in 1925 from a very small beginning and has since grown to where it is at the present time. Pens and buildings now occupy several acres of ground.

Fur pens are constructed almost entirely of wire, that is the sides, ends, top and bottom of pens are of 1 1/2-inch, 35-gauge wire, which is built around a frame made of two-by-four lumber. The fox pens are usually 12 feet wide, 16 feet long and six feet high. Inside this pen there is a kennel, which is about three feet wide and five feet long. Inside this kennel is a movable nest box, which is used only during the time that the female is nursing her young. The nest box is usually placed in the kennel about two weeks before whelping takes place.

Foxes average around three pups to the litter, in some cases there are as high as eight pups in a litter but the average throughout the herd will run around three pups.

Feeding of foxes is rather complicated. The individual fox must be watched almost daily to see that they are getting enough food, for at the same time they must not be overfed. The average fox will consume around eight to ten ounces of food per day. The food consists of home meat, beef hearts, tripe, some fish, a well cooked cereal and vegetables. The feed is all ground up with a power grinder and fed in a form similar to hamburger. Feeding takes place but once a day after the pups are two months old. The average cost of raising a fox to pelting age is around $18. The cost, of course, depends upon available food supply. If all feed were shipped in for some distance it would no doubt cost considerably more. But where one is able to get a supply of cheap fish or cheap meat of any description the cost will be considerably lower.

Fur pelts are very much in demand at present and have been for many years and no doubt will be for all time to come. Fur pelts will bring from $40 to $100 on the market of the world. Breeders should try to breed only the best. This can be done by proper feeding and proper breeding. The aggressive fur farmer will see to it that his pelts average around $50 to $100. There is no money to be made in poor quality pelts. It costs so much to raise a fox worth $100 that it does to raise one worth $25. Any breeder starting in with good foundation stock, feeding his way along and paying attention to his animals can make a very comfortable living and put money in the bank from a small herd of foxes.

Mink Raising

Mink are handled in much the same way as are foxes only the pens are much smaller and do not cost as much to construct. A pen four feet by eight feet by three feet high is quite suitable for a female with young. After the young are separated from the mother they are moved into pens about half this size and are kept there until pelting time. Mink are ready to pelt about November 15, or roughly at six months old.

The mink are fed on considerably more meat and fish than are foxes. Many breeders feed 80% fish to their mink with apparently good success. A mink will not consume more than four to six ounces per day.

Young mink are usually born about the middle of May and the number of young run from one to eight per litter. A good average would be four young to the litter. The young are weaned at about six weeks of age and are separated at that time, one mink to a pen in a good idea, this on account of their fighting instinct. Quite frequently if more than one mink is in the one pen they will fight to a finish.

Ranch mink pelts are very much in demand during the last few

Church Social At Hazelton In Couple's Honor

HAZELTON, June 24.—Last Wednesday a very interesting church social was held in the United Church to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Newick's coming to Hazelton. Mr. Newick came to Hazelton 25 years ago to manage the dry goods department of the Hudson Bay Co.'s store. Later he was manager of a drug store at Kamloops and afterwards conducted the drug store in Hazelton for Dr. H. C. Winnick.

On Wednesday evening a large crowd of citizens gathered in the United Church and watched the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Newick. Entertained by Miss Craig, matron of the local hospital, they entered the church while the audience sang "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows." This was followed by games and guessing competitions under the direction of the Ladies Aid. Several musical items were interspersed. Miss Laura Benson sang "The Voice," Mrs. Myrtle "What a Wonderful World It Would Be," and Miss Patricia Russell, "The Blush Rose."

An address of congratulations was given by Walter Hunter, a member of the church board. He spoke of the valuable service rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Newick in the church, hospital society and the social life of the community. Mrs. C. E. Barrie spoke.

Mrs. Chris Hinde read an address from the Ladies Aid and presented Mrs. Newick with a nicely filled purse.

Mr. and Mrs. Newick responded in a very nice way thanking the people for all their expressions of kindness and goodwill during their long stay in Hazelton.

Community singing was then led by the chairman, Rev. D. W. Moore, which was greatly enjoyed. Miss Wilson-Sumell acted at the organ. Delicious refreshments were served by the ladies, followed by the congratulations of their many friends who came from Smithers and New Hazelton.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with wild roses and other wild flowers. The white brims decorated in white and pink streamers.

It is many years since Hazelton has had such a celebration. All their friends wish Mr. and Mrs. Newick many more happy years in Hazelton.

years. Manufacturers usually prefer the ranch mink to the wild one. However, one must have the best stock available in order to command the top prices for the pelts. This past season ranch mink pelts brought as high as $50 each on the Montreal sales and also in London, Eng., and New York. This is rather a high price for this article and since the December and January sales the price has dropped a little. The price for good quality pelts still remains at from $20 to $25 each. The necessary qualities for good pelts is good dark color and of fine texture. A small dark silky pelt is of much more value than a large coarse pelt. Breeders should keep this in mind and secure only the best foundation stock. The difference between good stock and fair stock or poor stock is simply the difference between profit and loss while engaged in the fur industry.

"I have no hesitation in saying that the man who engages in the mink or fox business can not only make a comfortable living but can build up a splendid business for himself, providing he is willing to work and take an interest in his animals," declared Mr. Park.

In Bed For Weeks With Backache

Quick Relief With Kruschen

It was advice from her mother that led this woman to take Kruschen Salts for her backache, and before she had finished the first bottle she was feeling better. This is the letter she writes:—

"About this time last year I had severe pains in my back and was prostrate for three weeks. I could not even rise in bed. I tried several well-known remedies, but to no avail. I wrote to my mother telling her of my trouble. She wrote to me by return of post urging me to try Kruschen Salts. I immediately bought a bottle and I can truthfully say before I had taken the fifth dose I could sit up. I kept on taking them and in less than two weeks I was about again. I am never without Kruschen now." (Mrs.) A. G.

Unless the kidneys function properly, certain acid wastes, instead of being expelled, are allowed to pollute the blood-stream and produce troublesome symptoms: backache, rheumatism, and excessive fatigue. Kruschen Salts is an excellent diuretic or kidney aperient, valuable in assisting the kidneys to excrete acid impurities.

The Christian Youth Society held its regular fortnightly meeting last Monday evening. A devotional paper was read by Miss Edith Johnstone. During the short business period that followed Tom Johnstone and Ken Harding reported on the financial success of the recent picnic and dance.

On behalf of the society, the president, Wilfrid Hicks, wished Ken Harding, who is leaving for Kingston, Ont., "bon voyage" and success in his studies. The main feature of the evening was the presentation by the dramatic group of the play "Temporary Wife" which proved very entertaining. Those taking part were

Sir James Barrie Did Not Have To Struggle For Recognition—Many Great Works

LONDON, June 24: (AP)—Unlike many writers who, at the beginning, have had to struggle for recognition, the career of Sir James M. Barrie, who died Saturday, in the field of literature and drama was a pronounced success almost from the start, and reached its climax in 1922 when he was decorated with the Order of Merit, one of the most select and coveted of British orders. His early training as a writer before branching into literature was as a newspaperman in Nottingham, and later in London where he wrote for the St. James Gazette, the British Weekly, the Speaker and the National Observer.

Born in Kirriemuir, Scotland, May 9, 1860, Sir James was educated at Dumfries Academy and Edinburgh University. His first book, "Better Dead," a satire on London life, was published in 1887, and the next year he produced "Auld Licht Idylls" and "When a Man's Single." While these three books attracted some attention it was said that his genius as a writer was first recognized and acknowledged with the appearance of "A Window in Thrums" in 1889. There followed "My Lady Nicotine," and the best known of his early works, "The Little Minister," which when dramatized by Barrie, became one of the leading stage successes and later had several revivals.

His early works became better known than the man and thus Sir James amazed London when at a time he was being acclaimed he deserted the city for his little native town in Scotland. Modesty and shrinking from publicity were traits that characterized his entire life, and upon one occasion in 1909, when it was first rumored that he was to be knighted he dismissed an inquirer on the subject with "I don't go in for that sort of thing, you know."

After the stage success of "The Little Minister," Barrie produced many other notable successes including "Quality Street," "The Admirable Crichton," "Peter Pan," "Alice Sit-by-the-Fire" and "What Every Woman Knows."

The last named was produced in 1908 and was followed by the greatest disappointment in the life of Sir James, his marital troubles, culminating in divorcing his wife in October 1909. He married in 1895 Miss Mary Ansell, who had scored a success in his comedy "Walker, London," two years previously. The divorce proceedings came as a great surprise to the friends of both as they had appeared as a most devoted couple. It was said that the wonderful grasp of feminine characters which Barrie had shown in his books and plays had been inspired in some degree by his perfect agreement with his wife. The author had offered to forgive his wife and take her back, but she refused and the divorce proceedings and trial were said to have been the most trying ordeal of Sir James' life.

Well Known Works
Sir James' best known dramatic works of later years included "The Legend of Leonora," "The Will," "The Adored One," "Half an Hour," "Der Tag," "Rosy Rapture," "A Kiss For Cinderella," "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals," "Seven Women," "Dear Brutus," "Echoes of the War," "The Truth About the Russian Dancers," "Mary Rose."

Many of the stage successes of Barrie were produced in America by Charles Frohman, whom he author regarded as one of his closest friends. During Mr. Frohman's numerous visits to London the two were inseparable. Maude Adams starred in three of Barrie's plays in the United States, "The Little Minister," "Peter Pan" and "What Every Woman Knows."

A baronetcy was conferred upon Sir James on June 3, 1913, upon the occasion of King George's birthday anniversary, and the Order of Merit was conferred upon him for his service to literature and the drama in the distribution of New Year's honors in 1922.

Sir James was elected rector of St. Andrew's University to succeed Earl Haig November 1, 1919. Upon his installation he delivered an address on "Courage," which was characterized as one, the like of which had never before been heard by a body of students. He revealed that a fanciful, unruly person whom he called McConnachie, was his other self; that it was McConnachie who really wrote the plays and not the Sir James Barrie known to all.

McConnachie — his "writing half,"—he represented as an odd sort of person who was likely to do almost anything, and himself as a serious minded man bent upon jowling to the conventions. Concluding, he warned the students to beware of McConnachie.

"You will all have your McConnachie," he said, "luring you off the high road. Unless you are constantly on the watch you will find that he has slowly pushed you out of yourself and taken your place. He whispered to me just now that you elected him, not me, as your rector."

He succeeded as rector of St. Andrew's University by Ruydard Kipling, who was elected November 11, 1922.

While possessing the thrift of his native Scotland, Sir James was said to have cared little for money. He was not so much concerned about the financial returns from his writings as he was about their success with the reading public and theatre-goers. However, his work was successful financially as well as from the literary standpoint, and up to 1910 he was said to have earned upward of $3,000,000 and that his royalties from "The Little Minister," alone exceeded $450,000.

DOMINION DAY PLAY

Navy and Legion to Meet Tonight; Details of Tuesday Night's Game

Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve and Canadian Legion will meet tonight in the third preliminary play-off game of the Dominion Day Cup football series in which, so far, Legion has taken one victory from Vandinks 4 to 1 while Vandinks beat Navy 3 to 1 in the other. A win for the Legion tonight would put it in the final next week with Vandinks while a victory for the Navy would tie the teams up as far as games won and lost points are concerned.

In Tuesday night's game Vandinks put up their best showing so far this season. In the first half play seemed to be almost entirely for Vandinks although they were able to score but one goal in that period when, with about half a minute to go, Bill Ritchie, after running through, scored on Simonsen's pass.

After the resumption of play for the second half, there was give and take play on both sides. Navy got away and looked dangerous for a time but the day was saved and from a scrimmage near the goalmouth, Simonsen put Vandinks two up. Navy continued resolute and took the ball up the field on a breakaway with eight minutes to go, Johnny O'Neill putting a nice one in to put the Navy on the score sheet. The sailors continued to force the issue but Vandinks succeeded in getting away and with three minutes to go, Ritchie scored again to make it three to one. Navy pressed hard until the final whistle but was unable to find the net although Armstrong was dangerous in front of goal.

Darrow Gomez played a stout game at back and broke up many Navy plays. Ralph Smith played a hard attacking game for Navy. Alex Harvey refereed.

MONTREAL, June 24:—With record breaking aggregate score of 4783 out of a possible 5000, the St. Thomas, Ontario, No. 1 rifle team won the 1936-37 indoor shield of the Canadian National Railways small bore rifle league, it was announced today by W. WHIFFLETS From the Waterfront

With a capacity list of passengers, the large majority of whom were round trip tourists, C. N. R. steamer Prince George, making her first Alaska voyage of the season, arrived in port at 9:30 yesterday morning from Vancouver and sailed at 1 p.m. for Skagway. She is due back here next Monday south-bound.

Records of the International Fisheries Commission show that 11,084,720 pounds of halibut have been taken from Area No. 2 this season up to May 31 as compared with 10,091,700 pounds in a corresponding period last year. From Area No. 3 this season so far 7,419,329 pounds have been taken in comparison with 6,819,566 pounds a year ago. It is on this rate of landings that the Commission estimates that the attainment of the quota for the present year will be reached, resulting in the closing of Area No. 2 at an earlier date than in 1936.

The Ketchikan motorships Kingsmill and New Zora were in port last evening, bringing between them three carloads of fresh halibut for trans-shipment east over Canadian National Railways.

Members of the staff of the Armour Salvage Co. are engaged just now in making repairs to piling at the company's floats.

The Hon. J. H. Turner, who was Premier of British Columbia 1895-1898. He succeeded the Hon. Theodore Davie, who resigned leadership of his party to accept the office of Chief Justice of British Columbia. During his term of office the Hon. The Turner ministry was subjected to severe criticism on account of large grants of lands given to construction of the Columbia and Western Railway, a subsidiary of the C.P.R. The Turner ministry was subsequently dissolved by the Lieutenant-Governor, Thomas R. McInnes. Following this, there was a redistribution of members due to the rapid growth of Vancouver and the Kootenay mining area.

PEACEMAKER OF FRANCE

Gaston Doumergue Smiled His Way To Heights of Government

Averted Civil War

Came to Rescue When Country Seemed on Verge Of Revolution

PARIS, June 24: (AP)—Gaston Doumergue, former president and premier of France, who died at the week-end, smiled his way to the heights of government in one of the world's most difficult roles, political peacemaker of France.

Affable and benign "papa" to the French people, he had already served them 1924-31 as twelfth president of their third republic when he was called from retirement in Southern France to rescue the nation from the verge of civil war.

While rioting mobs swarmed the streets of Paris after the bloody night of February 6, 1934, the 70-year old "Gastounet" was drafted as premier to calm political passions, enflamed by the great Stavisky scandal with its ramifications in high places. His beaming countenance turned the trick.

He whipped together a "political truce" cabinet which included men from every parliamentary party, except the socialists and communists, soothed frayed nerves with paternal radio talks to the people and began to clean up the nation's sorely neglected affairs under dictatorial decree law powers granted by parliament.

His new authority was wielded firmly to save the gold-backed franc from depreciation in a world-off-gold by balancing the budget. France's foreign policy, at the same time, was stiffened, with blunt opposition to the rearmament demands of Hitlerite Germany.

His administration was not without its critics. Socialists and communists accused his government of fascist tendencies. Yet democracy had no stauncher friend in France than Doumergue and his faith in the destinies of the nation were unshakable.

For a bit more than nine months the affable premier held a tight grip on the government. Then he lost the support of the powerful radical socialist party headed by Edouard Herriot which refused to go along with him on proposed constitutional reforms strengthening the powers of the president and premier.

The particular issue which split the cabinet was a project which would have given the executives power to dissolve parliament without the consent of the senate. It was one of several similar proposed amendments to the basic law which would have put France closer in line with the English system. Doumergue argued that their acceptance would stabilize the republic and do away with the frequent changes in government but the cry of "dictator" proved too strong and he resigned on November 8.

There were threats of a recurrence of mob violence as he quit office and in a final appeal to the people he urged formation of a "union of peace." Then, a week later, to avoid the possibility of clashing demonstrations over his departure, he slipped quietly out of Paris at 4 a.m. and went back to his rural home in Southern France.

During the dark financial period after the world war he preached confidence in the eventual revaluation of the franc and he was the president who called Raymond Poincare to accomplish it in 1926.

It was under President Poincare that Doumergue first held the premiership for six months in 1913-14. His recall to the same post 20 years later thus made him twice head of the government. But he was often a minister in the cabinets of others, holding at various times the portfolios of foreign affairs, colonies, commerce, industry and labor.

Between cabinet posts he was active in parliament, where he served successively as a radical socialist member of the chamber of deputies and senate. Before his public career, he was a lawyer at Himes, 1885-90, and then for four years a magistrate in Indo-China and Algeria.

First Protestant President

Doumergue was a Protestant, the first to be elected president of the third republic. His religion was one

In Seven Days Fiery, Itching Skin Gets Sure Relief

Here is a surgeon's wonderful prescription now dispensed by chemists at trifling cost, that will do more toward helping you get rid of unsightly spots and skin diseases than anything you've ever used.

Not only does this great healing antiseptic oil promote rapid and healthy healing in open sores and wounds, but boils, abscesses and ulcers are almost immediately relieved and cleanly healed.

In skin diseases its action is little less than magical. The itching of Eczema is instantly stopped; the eruptions dry up and scale off in a very few days. The same is true of barbers' itch, salt rheum and other skin eruptions and inflammation.

You can obtain Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) in the original bottle at Ormes Ltd. or any modern drug store. It is safe to use, and failure in any of the ailments noted above is rare indeed.

STORY IS ABSORBING

Stark Drama in The Black Legion At Capitol Theatre This Mid-Week

An absorbing drama with the menacing activities of the fly-by-night secret order of the Black Legion which terrorized the city of Detroit and state of Michigan not long ago, "Black Legion," showing at the Capitol Theatre this mid-week, is a picture which commands and holds the interest. The picture is made even the more dramatic because it is based on fact. The havoc wrought in the families of the Black Legion victims as well as in the families of its members makes stark melodrama.

The main character in the screen play is a young mechanic who, because the job which he thought he deserved is given to the son of a foreigner, is deluded into the belief that it is a duty to take the law into his own hands. By doing so, he spoils a beautiful romance, utterly destroys the happiness of his neighbors and, in the end, kills his own best friend.

"Sea Devils," a story of the exploits of the United States Coast-guard with Victor McLaglen and Preston Foster in the leading roles is the week-end feature at the Capitol.

The arguments advanced in opposition to his candidacy in May, 1924, it being emphasized that sending a Protestant to the Elysee would break all precedents.

While the senators and deputies were in full caucus to choose an official candidate of the majority, news came to them of the nomination of Calvin Coolidge by the Republican party as its candidate for president of the United States. Thereupon one of the deputies, a supporter of Doumergue, turning to his opponents, said:

"Well, if the great republic of the United States has seen fit to nominate Calvin himself, I fail to see where France can be censured for electing a mere disciple of Calvin."

Doumergue was a bachelor until his sixty-seventh year, when he and a widow, Madame Jeanne Grave, were married 12 days before he left the Elysee Palace at the conclusion of his presidential term.

Son of a vineyard owner of moderate means at Algues-Vives, in the department of the Gard, where he was born August 1, 1863 and where he died, Doumergue's hobby always remained cultivation of the vine. After his retirement from the presidency, he was interested in the company that operates the Suez Canal but upon returning to office as premier he resigned the directorship to which he had been named in 1933 at an annual salary of more than 200,000 francs.

TELLS OF PALESTINE

ly years ago a barren waste was now exported large quantities of oranges and grapefruit, wine and brandy and other articles.

Another source of great wealth, being developed under Jewish initiative in Palestine Mr. Schwartz pointed to was the Dead Sea. Here it was estimated there was enough mineral wealth to be extracted to pay the entire international debt of Great Britain.

The Jews, in their intense loyalty to Great Britain, when it came to considering a monument to the memory of the late King George V, had decided to make not a monument of mere stone but something more lasting. They had struck upon the idea of taking a mountain and planting it with a million trees and naming it "King George V Jubilee Park." It was a labor of love and respect to which every Jew in the world was asked and expected to contribute.

Mr. Schwartz proceeded to outline some of the ways in which the Arabs had benefited as a result of the presence of the Jews. Their country had been improved for them, they had become more enlightened and instructed in modern ways. Now getting on their feet some of them felt resentful at the progress which had been made under the leadership of the Jews in a country with which they had been able to do nothing in two thousand years. They regretted that they had sold their ground to the Jews and were up in arms, demanding that the Jews be chased out.

The actual trouble, Mr. Schwartz explained, had commenced in October 1935 when two armed Arabs had waylaid eight Jewish workers on their way to their homes and shot them down without reason. In April 1936 guerrilla warfare had been started by the Arabs. Since then four score Jews had been slain. Great Britain had clung steadfastly to the mandate and had defended the Jews. As a result, the Arabs had turned against Great Britain. Now the Arabs claimed that Palestine was a part of Arabia which it had never been. They demanded some of their land back and that no more Jews be allowed in.

Difficult Task

It was a difficult task which Britain had to maintain peace between two nations who actually had no reason to hate each other, declared Mr. Schwartz. It was simply a matter of jealousy of the Arabs who knew that their great improvement had been due to the Jews. The Jews had never attacked the Arabs who had been treated fairly by Great Britain. Jews everywhere hoped that Great Britain would succeed in its mandate over Palestine.

President Brocklesby told of having attended a luncheon of the Vancouver Gyro Club last week and being in conference with Dick Pullen, president of that club. The local club and its activities were much in the limelight among other clubs, some of whom were considering following the example.
