FATAL ACCIDENT OCCURS UP LINE THIS MORNING

VALUABLE DOCUMENTS ARE DESTROYED AT VICTORIA

Fire Which Broke Out in the Hibben Building on Government Street Destroys all Manuscripts and Records of the Native Sons—Loss $140,000

Victoria, Nov. 13.—A fire originating in an overheated furnace in the basement, gutted the four-storey building of the T. N. Hibben Co. on Government Street shortly before 6 o'clock last night. The loss is about $140,000.

The stock of the company is valued at about $140,000 and included the Christmas stock. The insurance was $35,000.

The upper storeys included a number of offices, rooms of the Conservative Club and the Native Sons, in which were valuable manuscripts, photographs and records of the British Columbia pioneers, all of which were lost. This is the fourth fire in the building in four years.

Winnipeg, Nov. 13.—(Special)—The Duke of Connaught has consented to open the annual exhibition at Winnipeg next summer.

WANT TAX RELIEF.

Party of Churchmen Interview the Taxation Commission at Victoria.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)
Victoria, Nov. 13.—At the final sitting of the Taxation Commission on Saturday Bishop MacDonald of the British Columbia Cathedral and various other clergymen, put forth a plea for the legislative relief of their property from municipal taxation.

INDIANS IN TROUBLE.

"Hooch" Plays Havoc With Native Morals Over the Week-End.

Jim Auriol, an Indian lad, was this morning found guilty of having been drunk himself, and of supplying Eric Bates, another Indian, with liquor. He was fined $25, with the alternative of twenty days. Jim said he got the liquor from Joe Corasco on the Princess May. It was in a flask with a gorgeous McIntosh tartan label. Police investigation revealed numerous other bottles in Jim's room, but these, he said, had been there before he came to the room. Bates was fined $10 or ten days.

BUILDS NEW HOME.

Residence for Indian Agent C. C. Perry to Go Up at Metlakatla.

Indian Agent C. C. Perry is having a new residence built at Metlakatla. Bert Greer is to do the building, and the preliminary stages were entered upon today. The residence will be a substantial one, in keeping with the needs of an Indian agency, and is expected to be complete in about six weeks.

Blizzard in Manitoba.

St. Paul, Nov. 13.—Manitoba and the Middle West is in the grip of a blizzard. Five feet of snow has fallen.

BONAR LAW WILL SUCCEED BALFOUR

Canadian Born Tariff Reformer Will Be Elected Today to Lead Unionist Party in Britain.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)
London, Nov. 13.—At a meeting of the Unionist members, to be held in the Carlton Club tonight, Hor. Walter Long will propose and Austen Chamberlain will second the nomination of Andrew Bonar Law as the leader of the Unionist party in the House of Commons to succeed Hon. A. J. Balfour.

Bonar Law's election is assured. He is a Canadian, having been born in New Brunswick fifty-three years ago. He is an advanced tariff reformer.

Toronto Is Pleased.

Toronto, Nov. 13.—The announcement of the selection of Bonar Law as the Unionist leader in Great Britain has caused great satisfaction to prominent Canadians here and throughout Canada. Many expressions of approval have been received.

GOT PAST THE CUSTOMS.

B. C. Lumbermen Score a Point in Tariff War as Result of Protest at Ottawa.

Ottawa, Nov. 13.—A complaint made by a delegation of British Columbia lumbermen, that American lumber is entering Canada free of duty when not entitled to, has been investigated by the customs board, who find that certain products of United States mill not entitled to free entry have been passed by customs officials.

WANTS CLEARANCE PAPERS.

Owners of the Sealer Pesawha Are Likely to Get a Disappointment.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)
Victoria, Nov. 13.—An application has been made for the clearance of the sealing schooner Pesawha. As the new treaty forbidding sealing for the next fifteen years comes into effect on December 15, it is likely to be denied.

STOOD FOR FAIR PLAY.

Alderman George Kerr Seconded a Motion of Alderman Douglas Last Week.

In connection with recent debate in the City Council over the award of the trunk sewer bylaw advertising, to which the News was not invited to tender mention was not made in our columns of the fact that Alderman Kerr seconded the motion of Alderman Douglas, that the advertising be divided between the three local newspapers. In justice to the stand for fair play taken by Alderman Kerr on the occasion, the News makes special mention of the matter.

LINER IS WRECKED OFF JAPANESE COAST

Steamer Minnesota Is Ashore 400 Miles South of Yokohama—Feared That Her Plight Is Serious.

Tokio, Nov. 13.—The steamer Minnesota of the Great Northern line has gone ashore near the Island Shikoku, 400 miles south of Yokohama. It is feared that her plight is serious.

Wireless communication with the liner was suddenly broken off before details of the mishap could be ascertained.

TO APPROACH COUNCIL FOR CITY BAND FUNDS

Successful Meeting of Bandsmen and Those Interested Held Yesterday—Will Petition Council Tonight for $500—City Representation Discussed

Active steps are being taken to organize a regular city band in Prince Rupert. The Prince Rupert orchestra has done excellent work on several notable occasions, but with every Indian village boasting of an instrumental band, Prince Rupert will get busy along lines to secure a city band worth having. And this is being done.

Tonight the City Council will be approached for a grant of $500 towards the purchase of instruments, and later, as the action of the city fathers may direct, arrangements will possibly be made for the representation of the City Council officially upon the band executive. This subject came up for considerable discussion at the meeting of the prospective bandsmen and those interested, which was held yesterday afternoon in the police court room. At this meeting, which was very well attended, Mr. Godson was appointed president (pro tem) and Lee Baker secretary. Names were taken in support of a petition to the City Council for the funds requested, all those signing being experienced instrumentalists willing to spend time in practices for the work of the band without fee, and to serve in all other ways to further the success of the plan.

Fully eighteen names are available of experienced bandsmen, and those of many others interested. It is proposed to raise funds for the purchase of band instruments, including two drums, three cornets, several melliphones, trombones, etc. A first rate city band is projected, and will certainly result in success if the citizens get in and help the plan along. Then we'll have a real band wagon to ride in when there's anything lively doing.

"CACHE RIFLING A CRIME" SAYS JUDGE YOUNG TODAY

Suspended Sentence, However, in Case of Steve Sweitzer Who Has Seventeen Steppots in His Camp—"Must be Watched," Says the Judge

Steve Sweitzer, accused of rifling a cache on the trail beyond Stewart, in the Bear River country, was found technically guilty of taking a rubber tarpaulin not his own from the cache, but was let go on suspended sentence by Judge Young this morning, as it was by no means clear that he had been really guilty of the serious offence of stealing with felonious intent from the cache. His explanation was that a drenching rain compelled him to take the tarpaulin, which was covering only some cooking utensils. He did not take any of the other things in the cache.

Judge Young laid very strong emphasis on the seriousness of the offence of cache-rifling in this northern country, where men's lives depend often on their finding again supplies left on the trail for their return trip. "Do not by any means suppose that I am letting this man go on suspended sentence because I think the charge of cache-rifling a trivial matter," said the judge. "I see many here in court whom I know to be men from Stewart, who know more about trail-law and the customs of the northern country than most. Let them impress on all whom it may concern that I personally know a little about the customs of the trail, and I do not consider cache-rifling a light offence. Any one found guilty of it would be most severely sentenced by me, at all events."

The accused was ordered to replace the rubber tarpaulin taken with one similar or $5 within three weeks, and warned that any further suspicion against him in future might result in his serving a long sentence.

Two amusing little aspects of the case came out in court. It was claimed that mice might have eaten or stolen some of the grub alleged to have been stolen by the accused. "Pooh!" said W. E. Fisher, for Howard Porter, the complainant. "Mice don't eat frying pans."

"I am putting you on suspended sentence," said Judge Young to the accused, "because evidence shows that you have seventeen steppots in your camp, and I think a man who has seventeen steppots ought to be watched. (Laughter.)"

PALESTINE IS SUFFERING FROM MISRULE OF THE TURK

So Declares Rev. F. W. Kerr in His Address on His Recent Trip Through the Holy Land—Land is Full of Evidences of its Past Greatness

A country of grave Turkish misrule and lawlessness, a country of ruins of past splendor, but above all a country of great memory and inspiration is Palestine, according to Rev. F. W. Kerr, who last night lectured to the Presbyterian congregation on his trip to the Holy Land. Rev. Mr. Kerr had unusual opportunity for coming into touch with the real life of Palestine. He was one of a small party of four students—one from Harvard, one from Yale, one from Basle, Switzerland, and himself, from Manitoba College—who, under Prof. Kent, made a journey. They avoided as far as possible the tourist routes, and in an extended visit traversed the whole length of Palestine, and followed the recorded wanderings of Jesus from Bethany to Calvary.

The splendid ruins, bringing into vivid contrast the glory of the past with the poverty and misery of the present, especially impressed the lecturer. When he caught his first glimpse of the Sea of Galilee it was deserted. Not a sail gleaned on its bosom. Only a few ruined villages were to be seen on its banks. It was a contrast from the busy scenes in the days of Jesus. Today, Palestine has less than 300,000 people. Then it had half as many as the population as the Dominion of Canada. Magnificent pillars still standing on broad streets are all that tell of the ten great cities, with their temples and aqueducts and great arenas that Herod the Builder founded.

Some striking incidents were narrated by Mr. Kerr in illustration of the condition of misrule that exists under the Turks. The Jew in Palestine, he said, is not to be recognised by the virile, aggressive people of Scriptural days, nor by the virile, aggressive types who are known in America and Canada. The Jew at Jerusalem is poverty stricken and leprous, a picture of grief and woe.

This fall from grandeur to poverty, the preacher attributed to the curse that had befallen the land for rejecting Jesus, who would have become their great leader had he been accepted.

THE WEST IS SUFFERING FROM THE INTENSE COLD

Terrible Tornado Sweeps Over Middle West States and a Blizzard in Manitoba—Traffic is All Tied up in the Kootenay District

(Canadian Press Despatch.)
Seattle, Nov. 13.—Despatches this morning from Illinois, Wisconsin and Missouri tell of a terrible storm that is sweeping over the face of the Middle West. Terrible havoc is being wrought, to life as well as to property, by the hurricane.

Nine definite instances of death from the storm have been reported, and many others are referred to where the particulars are not given. Following the course of the tornado, the hospitals are full of injured persons who have suffered.

Cold in Kootenay.

Nelson, Nov. 13.—The Kootenay district is experiencing the coldest weather in ten years. All traffic has been demoralized by the intense frost and heavy snowfall.

JOY! OH, JOY!

Seattle Assures Us This Is the Coldest Wave for Twenty Years at Least.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)
Seattle, Nov. 13.—That the present cold wave is the coldest at this time of the year since the establishment of the weather bureau, twenty year ago, is the statement made by the official weather reporter here.

A Doll Baby.

Wingham, Ont., Nov. 13.—(Special)—The smallest boy ever born in Huron County has been left by the stork at the home of Ernest Ancell and wife. The boy weighs one and a quarter pounds. His hands are no larger than a man's thumb nail. Aside from his diminutiveness he is a normal, healthy child.

GERMANS ANGRY WITH FRANCE AND BRITAIN

At the Opening of the Reichstag, the Franco-German Agreement Was Soundly Condemned in Consequence.

Berlin, Nov. 13.—Hostility toward the chancellor and disapproval of the Franco-German agreement was the dominant note in the Reichstag on Saturday. Many speakers voiced their indignation against Great Britain and gave it as their opinion that the agreement would bring Germany one step nearer to France in matters of friendship.

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT AT MILE 44 TODAY

One Man, Charlie Burger, a Swede, Was Instantly Killed by Explosion While Cleaning Out a Blast Hole—Max Satich is Badly Injured—Hurried in to City

A sad tragedy occurred early this morning at Mile 44 where the big tunnel is being constructed. While engaged in cleaning out a blast hole an unexploded charge of powder went off killing one of the men, Charles Burger, and badly injuring several others. One of the men is now at the hospital having his injuries attended to.

WAS KILLED INSTANTLY

Burger who is a powder man received the full force of the blast and was instantly killed by the flying rock. Of his two companions, one, Satich, the man now in the hospital, had his leg broken, and the other was injured about the hands.

DEAD MAN A SWEDE

Supt. W. McInnes, who is in charge of the contract, immediately had a special train sent for and accompanied the injured men into town. Burger is said to be a Swede and Satich a Bulgarian. Satich's injuries are being looked after by Dr. Eggert.

ON SPECIAL TRAIN

Immediately after the accident a special train was secured and the injured man and the dead body of Burger were placed on board and hurried into town. The injured man was rushed with all speed to the hospital.

TURKS REPULSED AT TRIPOLI AFTER AN ALL DAY FIGHT

Tripoli, Nov. 12—Strong forces of Turkish Arabs supported by artillery today delivered a determined attack on the Italians all along the line between Hamidich and Boumeliana, but were repulsed.

Beginning in early morning with some serious skirmishes, the fighting about noon took on the character of a general action. As usual the Turks displayed desperate courage, but were unable to withstand the tremendous combined fire from the trenches, the field artillery and the guns of the armored cruiser, Carlo Alberto, which lay at anchor in the roadstead.

While the Italians were attacking the fort at Hamidich, which had been stormed on the previous night, they were suddenly taken on the flank by a large force of Arabs hidden in some palm and olive groves. Heavy losses were sustained by the Italians before the enemy were beaten off.

POPULATION OF NANKING MASSACRED BY SOLDIERS

Imperial Chinese Troops Break Loose and Attack Inhabitants—Snake-Like Procession of Humanity is Fleeing for Safety—City is in Ruins

(Canadian Press Despatch.)
Nanking, Nov. 13.—Nanking is desolate tonight. Fully a thousand of its inhabitants lie massacred, and the business houses and dwellings are all looted or burned. Seventy thousand persons have fled from the city. Down the railway from the city a great, snake-like line of humanity is struggling in search of safety. It was the hand of the Manchus that brought this devastation. While the Republicans were in camp awaiting reinforcements and ammunition, the Manchus began the work of carnage. Men, women and children were alike slaughtered.

Pekin, Nov. 13.—Again all is quiet within the capitol at Tientsin today. There is no sign of the revolutionary advance that has been expected for days. In Pekin, those around the throne are engaged in trying to end the revolution. Today there seems to be some foundation for the hope that the government will be able to regain the allegiance of the general in charge at Sao Tien.

LOOKS A WHITE MAN.

Fred Dudward, Indian Chief's Son, Charged With Liquor Trouble Has Thoroughbred Pedigree but—

With all the appearance of a white man, and speaking excellent English, Fred Dudward, son of the chief of the Port Simpson Tsimpseans, went into various hotels on Saturday and was freely supplied with the liquor he ordered.

Asked if he was not a full-blooded Indian, he replied that he was supposed to be one, but considered himself a halfbreed when he ordered liquor. Appearances being so strongly in favor of the latter idea, Dudward got off with the usual D & D fine, $5 or seven days.

DAILY EDITION.

MONDAY, NOV. 13

AN APOLOGETIC WORD TO OUR READERS.

A good husband never takes his business troubles home to the bosom of his family. A good editor never takes his troubles to his readers, who in this case correspond to the bosom of his family. But at the present moment, it is due to Daily News readers and to the public at large to explain that the late appearance of the News has made on the streets of recent afternoons has been due to some mechanical difficulties, which have caused the entire staff a great deal of overwork and vexation—not to put too fine a point on it. Every day many items of local news that have been faithfully reported and written up have failed to see type. We have received no complaints from readers, but we fear that the non-appearance of certain items of local news on several occasions may have caused annoyance. They have caused double annoyance to the staff, who have had the mortification of failing to see in print, news that had been faithfully reported.

As the doctors well know, the work of getting out a daily newspaper ranks among the most physically exacting of all occupations. Even under the most favorable conditions, the grind and pressure of striving each day to excel the work of the previous day, makes the lot of the active newspaperman an arduous one. To have, as on Saturday, frozen plumbing, and a broken valve on our engine, in addition to the mechanical difficulties which have hampered the work of the News staff during the past month, made the task quite an heroic one. In this connection the News wishes to acknowledge its indebtedness to the Journal for aid in emergency, which made possible the issuing of Saturday's paper.

As we said at the beginning, neither good husbands nor good editors advertise their troubles, even at the family fireside. We would not have broken silence even now, were it not for information received by telegram from San Francisco that the new typesetting equipment especially built for the Daily News, is now on its way north, and in the ordinary course of events will be installed and in working order within a week or so. The plant comprises the latest and most complete multiple linotype machine to be made, the first of its kind to enter the Province of British Columbia.

The staff are all praying for the safety of the ship that is racing along with the News' new linotype machine. After it arrives there will be no occasion for apologies.

THE Pillar of Light

By Louis Tracy

To cook and supply for eighty-one persons with utensils intended for the use of three, to give each separate individual an utterly inadequate portion, so skilfully distributed that none should have cause to grumble at his or her neighbor's better fortune—here were culinary problems at once complex.

By adopting fantastic devices, bringing into service empty jam-pots and sardine-tins, they found it was possible to feed twenty at a time. This meant the preparation of four distinct meals, each requiring an hour's work. Long before the last batch, which included themselves, was dished, the absurd discrepancy between appetite and antidote in the shape of any thing to eat, the first was ravenous again.

The women complained the least. In the occupants of the two bedrooms the girls encountered a passive fortitude which was admirable. It was an extraordinary scene which met their eyes when they entered either of the stuffy apartments. Many of the rescued ladies had not given a thought to changing the demi-toilette of evening wear on board ship for more serviceable clothing when the hurricane overtook the vessel. They all, it is true, possessed cloaks or wraps of some sort, but these garments were still sodden with salt water and therefore unwearable, even if the oppressive warmth in each room rendered such a thing possible. Their elegant costumes of muslin, cotton, silk or satin, were utterly ruined. Lucky were the few whose blouses or bodices had not been rent into tatters.

Some of the worst sufferers in this respect were now the best provided. Blankets and sheets had been ruthlessly torn up and roughly stitched into articles of clothing. Mrs. Vansittart, for instance, who first suggested this via media, wore an exquisite Paris gown and a loose dressing-jacket arrangement of yellow blanket, the component parts of which she persuaded two other women to sew together on the model provided by her own elegant figure.

A few quick-witted ones who followed her example exhausted the available stock, and pillow-cases and rugs would have undergone metamorphosis in the same way had not Constance come to the rescue by impounding them, declaring that they must be reserved for the use of those sufferers who needed warmth and rest. The men passed their time in smoking, singing, yarning and speculating on the chance of the weather clearing. Ultimately, when the banging of the waves again made the column feel unsafe, a small section began to plan petty attempts to pilfer the provisions. It is the queer mixture of philistine and beast in the average human being that makes it possible for the same man, in one mood, to risk his life quite voluntarily to save others, and in another, to organize selfish theft.

After an ingenious seaman had been detected in the attempt to pick the store-room lock, and when a tray of cold ham was deliberately upset whilst a football scrimmage took place for the pieces, Mr. Emmett stopped these ebullitions by arming the watch with assorted weapons from the workshop and issuing stern orders as to their use in case of need.

Here, again, the warring elements which form the human clay were admirably displayed. On duty, under the bonds of discipline, the coarse-grained foreman who had gobbled up a surreptitious lump of fat pig during the first successful scuffle, would brain the daring rascal who tried to better his condition by a similar trick a second time. Discipline, sometimes, converts a skulker into a hero.

When the state of the tide permitted, store-keepers were opened and the draught of air allowed to enter through the door. Then all hands eyed the sea with anxiety. The wind was strong and piercing, and the reef maintained its ceaseless roaring. Wherever a window opened towards the land there was a small crowd waiting to peep through it. At last, the sense of urgency gradually permeating the inmates of the lighthouse actually resulted in the formation of queues, with stated intervals for moving on. There was a momentary relief in looking at the land. The cliffs, the solitary white houses, the little hamlets half hidden in cozy nooks, seemed to be so absurdly near. It was difficult to imagine that help could long be deferred. The seaward passing of a steamer, carrying flowers from the Scilly Isles to Penzance for Covent Garden, caused a flutter, but the sight of a Penzance fishing-smack scudding under jib and close-reefed foresail between the rock and Guttenberg Point created intense excitement. Noah, gazing across the flood for the return of the dove with the olive branch, could not be more pleased than these castaways in their granite ark when the brown-sailed boat came within their view.

The window in the coal-cellar opened fair towards the Land's End, and the grimy occupants of the compartment could look their fill at the messenger of life. A rich New Yorker in vain offered a hundred dollars to any man who gave up his place in the line after he himself, by the operation of the time-limit, was remorselessly sent away from the narrow loop-hole. Dollars and pounds sterling have a curiously depreciated value under such circumstances.

The men of the watch were always questioned for news by the unemployed majority. They related the comings and goings of the Falcon, carried sympathetic inquiries from story to story—promiscuous passing to and fro being forbidden owing to the narrowness of the stairs—and seized every trifling pretext on their own part to reach the topmost height and feast their eyes on the extensive panorama visible from the storm-rigged gallery. Had they watched the coastline less and the reef more their observations would have had value.

Quite early in the day, the purser handed to the occupants of each room a full list of passengers and crew, with the survivors grouped separately. In only three instances were husband and wife both saved. The awful scene in the saloon accounted for this seeming discrepancy. Dazed men and senseless women were writhed on each other's clasp either by the overwhelming seas or during the final fight for life at the head of the companionway. A wreck, a fire in the theatre, pays little heed to the marriage tie.

The third and last meal of the day was eaten in silence and gloom. All the spare lamps were diverted to the kitchen, because Brand, during a further detailed survey of the stores, made in company with Mr. Emmett and the purser, discovered that there was an alarming deficit of fresh water in the cistern.

In the hurry of the earlier hours a serious miscalculation had been made in transmitting cubic feet into gallons. It became an instant necessity to use every heating appliance at command and start the distillation of a drinkable fluid.

The Gulf Rock Light did not possess a proper apparatus. The only method that could be adopted was to improvise a coil from canvas sewn into a tube. The exterior was varnished and wrapped in wet cloths to assist the condensation of the steam. Hence, every kettle and pot being requisitioned for this paramount need, cocoa could be supplied to the women alone, whilst the taste of the water, even thus disguised, was nauseating. No more potatoes could be boiled. Raw, they were almost uneatable. And potatoes happened to be the food most plentiful.

The genuine fresh water, reduced to a minimum in the cistern, was only a little better in condition unless it was filtered, and Brand decided that it ought to be retained for the exclusive use of those seriously ill. Patients were multiplying so rapidly that the hospital was crowded; and all fresh cases, as they occurred, perforce remained where they were.

Neither Constance nor Enid felt the time hang heavily on their hands. The ordinary routine of the new ordinance regarding the food supply transferred their attention from active cooking to the replenishing of utensils which must be kept full of salt water at boiling-point.

Pyne was an invaluable assistant.

In the adjustment of refractory canvas tubes over hot spouts, in the manipulation of the condensing plant so that it might act efficiently, in the trimming of lamps, and the stocking of the solitary coal fire, he insisted on taking to himself the lion's share of the work.

He always had a pleasant quip or funny story to brighten their talk. "You can conquer trouble with a grin," he said. "Worry doesn't cut ice."

Enid, of course chafed him about his American accent, which, she protested, she would acquire after a week's practice.

"It is quaint to our ears," she went on. "I never before grasped the reason why Mark Twain makes me laugh. All he does is to act as a phonograph. Every American is a born humorist."

"There's something in that," admitted Pyne. "We do try to disguise a joke. Say, have you girls ever heard how an English professor explained the Yankee drawl?"

"No," they cried.

"He said it represented the effort of an uneducated man to make a speech. Every time his vocabulary gave out he lifted his voice to show he wasn't half through with his ideas."

"Oh," said Constance, "that is neither kind nor true, surely."

"Well," agreed Pyne, slowly, "that is the view of a friend of mine took of the remark. So he asked the professor if he had a nice agreeable sort of definition, all ready for use, of the way Englishmen clipped their syllables. The other fellow allowed that he hadn't pondered on it. 'I guess,' said my friend, 'it represents the effort of an educated ass to talk English.'"

Though the laugh was against them they were forced to snigger approval. "I think," said Constance, "that our chief national failing is pomposity, and your story hits it off evenly. In one of our small Cornish towns we have a stout little Mayor who made money in cheese and bacon. He went to see the Paris Exhibition, and an Exeter man, meeting him unexpectedly at the foot of the Eiffel Tower, hailed him with delight. 'Hello, Mr. Mayor,' he began. 'Hush,' said the mayor, glancing around mysteriously. 'I'm ere incog.'"

None who heard these light-hearted young people yelling with merriment would have imagined that they had just dined off a piece of hard-baked bread made without yeast and washed down with water tasting of tar and turpentine.

"Now, Miss Enid, your turn," cried Pyne.

Her eyes danced mischievously. "Unfortunately," by the accident of birth, I am deprived of the sense of humor," she said.

"It seems to be in the family all right," he hazarded, looking at Constance.

"Alas!" said Enid, "I am an American."

"I'll smile now, if that is all," said Pyne.

"But, please, I am not joking a little bit. When you go ashore you will probably hear all about me, so I may as well take the wind out of the sails of gossip. I am a mere waif, who came sailing in out of the West one day in a little boat which must have come from the New World as no one appeared to have lost either me or it in the Old. Dad picked us both up and adopted me."

Pyne did not know whether to take her seriously or not, until he sought confirmation in a pair of twinkling eyes which he gazed into at every opportunity.

"Is quite true," said Constance, gravely. "I suppose that the mysterious affinity between parents and long-lost children which exists in story-books is all nonsense in reality. No family could be more united and devoted to each other than we are, yet Enid is not my sister, and my father is her's only by adoption. He found her half-dying, drifting past this very rock, and before he could reach her he fought and killed a dreadful shark. We are very proud of dad, Mr. Pyne. You see, he is our only relation. Enid knows neither her father nor mother, and my mother died when I was a baby."

"That Scott!" cried Pyne.

"He turned quickly towards the door. Mrs. Vansittart, very pale, with eyes that looked unnaturally large in the faint light, stood there. For an instant he was startled. He had not seen Mrs. Vansittart since they came to the rock, and he was shocked by the change in her appearance. He did not like her. His alert intelligence distrusted her. But it was not his business in life to select a wife for his uncle, as he put it, and he had always treated her with respectful politeness. Now, owing to some fleeting aspect which he could not account for, some vague resemblance to another which he did not remember having noticed before, he viewed her with a certain expectant curiosity that was equally unintelligible to him.

She held out a scrap of paper. "Mr. Trull is here," she said quietly. "Here!" he repeated, wondering what she meant, and perplexed by her icy, self-contained tone, whilst he thought it passing strange that she had no other greeting for him.

"Well," she said, "that is the best word I can find. He is near to us, as near as a steamer can bring him. Mr. Brand has received a signalled message, he wrote it out and sent it to me by a man. I inquired where he was, and was told you were engaged in the kitchen."

For some reason Mrs. Vansittart seemed to be greatly perturbed. Her presence put an end to the gaiety of the place quite effectually.

The young man took the paper in silence.

He read: "Dear Madam—a signal just received from the Falcon runs as follows:—Mr. Cyrus J. Trull is on board and sends his love to Etta and Charlie. He will make every preparation for their comfort ashore and trusts they are bearing up well under inevitable hardships. Yours faithfully, Stephen Brand."

Pyne strode to the door. "I must see if I can't get Mr. Brand to answer the old boy," he cried. "Perhaps you have attended to that already."

She did not make way for him to pass. "No," she said. "I came to seek you on that account. If not too late, will you tell your uncle that I do not wish to delay a moment in Penzance. He will please me most by arranging for a special train to await our arrival at the station."

"What's the hurry?" he demanded. "A woman's whim, if you like, but a fixed resolve, nevertheless."

"Will you travel in that rig-out?" he asked quizzically.

"It is an easy matter to call at a shop if we reach shore by daylight. I can purchase a cloak and hat to serve my needs. Otherwise, it is no matter how I am attired. Will you do this?"

"Why, certainly."

She gave a little gasp of relief. In another instant Pyne would have gone, but Enid, who happened to glance through the window which opened towards the northwest, detained him.

"There's no hurry now for sure," she said. "The Falcon is half way to Carn du by this time. I do not suppose she will return until it is too dark to do more than signal important news very briefly."

"But this is important," cried Mrs. Vansittart shrilly. "It is of the utmost importance to me."

"Fraid it can't be helped ma'am," said Pyne civilly. "Anyhow we're not there yet, and I can't see that any time will be wasted."

The electric bell jangled in the room, causing Mrs. Vansittart to jump visibly.

"Oh, what is it?" she screamed.

"My father is calling one of us up," explained Constance. "It may be a message from Jack. You go, Enid."

Enid hurried away. She had scarcely reached the next floor before Mrs. Vansittart, who seemed to have moods in full compass, said sweetly: "Convey my deep obligations to Mr. Brand, won't you, Charlie. Indeed, you might go now and write out the text of my message to your uncle. Some early opportunity of despatching it may offer."

"All right," he said in the calm way which so effectually concealed his feelings. "Shall I escort you to your room?"

"By no means. I came here quite unassisted. Miss Brand and I can chat for a little while. It is most wearying to be pent all day and all night in one little room. Even the change to another little room is grateful."

Pyne bowed, and they heard his steady tread as he ascended the stairs.

"Quite a nice boy, Charlie," said Mrs. Vansittart, coming forward into the kitchen, with its medley of queer-looking, hissing, steaming contrivances.

"Yes, we think he is exceedingly nice," said Constance. She wondered why the other woman seemed always to stand in the shadow, by choice. The strongest light in the darkened chamber came from the grate, and Mrs. Vansittart deliberately turned away from it.

"If all goes well he will soon be my nephew by marriage," went on the other. "I quit my New York yesterday week in order to marry his uncle in Paris. Rather a disastrous beginning to a new career, is it not?"

"I hope not, indeed. Perhaps you are surmounting difficulties at the commencement rather than at the end."

"It may be. I am so much older than you that I am less optimistic. But you did not grasp the significance of my words. I said I was to be married in Paris."

"Yes," said Constance, still at a loss to catch the drift of an announcement which Mrs. Vansittart seemed so anxious to thrust upon her.

"Well, the Chinook was wrecked last night, or rather early this morning. The name of the ship was not made known throughout the world until long after daylight. It is quite impossible that Mr. Trull should have reached this remote corner of England from Paris in the interval."

For one moment the girl was puzzled. Then a ready solution occurred to her.

"Oh, of course, that is very simple. Mr. Trull was awaiting your arrival in Southampton, thinking to take you by surprise no doubt. That is sure to be the explanation. What a shock the first telegram must have given him!"

"How did he ascertain that his nephew and I were alive?"

"The very first thing father did was to telegraph the names of all the survivors. I know that is so because I saw the message."

"He is a man of method, I suppose. You are proud of him, I heard you say."

DEVOTED PRINCIPALLY TO THE INTERESTS OF WOMEN

This is a little section of the paper, which from day to day will be devoted to subjects of special interest to women. Any and all of the ladies of Prince Rupert are invited to contribute to its columns, and to take part in its discussions. Suggestions and criticisms are invited by the editor. The hope is expressed that "The Cosy Corner" will fill a social need.

CORRECT FORM CALLING

Points in the Etiquette Which Well-Bred Women Will Remember.

If you have declined an invitation to a dinner or a dance, you should make a call afterward. It is a slight and has only one interpretation, if you neglect to do so. A hostess has a right to feel offended and to understand that you wish to discontinue her friendship.

A hostess should always call on a new acquaintance before offering to entertain her.

If, through the influence of a friend or relative, a person has received an invitation, he should pay a call upon his hostess whether the extended invitation was accepted or not.

When a member of a family is ill for a season, the calls made on her may be returned by a daughter or sister chosen for this duty. A call should be made and explained if the daughter be unknown to her mother's friends. She should introduce herself and explain her purpose in a courteous, gracious way.

When going on a journey, a card on which P.P.C. is written can be left or posted. It is a French phrase and means "To take leave."

If calling on a friend who is visiting one who you do not know, a card should be left for the mistress of the house, and it is for this person that you should ask. It is not permissible to call upon a friend who is visiting a family with whom you are an enemy.

It is your duty to call upon a visitor of friends if the guest's presence in the town has been announced. This should be done before including the stranger in any entertainment of the season.

Calls of condolence or congratulation are made with no reference to the regular visits paid or received. They are formal little ways of being thoughtful in time of trouble. Cards are left both before and after the funeral.

It is necessary for one who has been a bridesmaid, a maid of honor or a matron of honor to call upon the mother or the bride shortly after the wedding. The mother is the hostess, you will remember, and you should acknowledge her entertainment by calling.

CLEANLINESS IS BEAUTY.

Proper Care With Underclothes Save Proper Care With Underclothes Saves Health and Good Looks.

After using each time, the washcloth must be thoroughly washed, well rinsed and hung up to dry. But this is not sufficient; once every week all washcloths must be sent to the laundry to be boiled, thus insuring the destroying of any germs that may lurk in the cloth. If it is possible for her to reinfest herself after the disease has apparently become cured. Further, each member of the family should have his or her own individual towels, soap and washcloths. Aside from all sanitary questions, in a matter so intimate as the bath, there is something repulsive in the thought of having your toilet articles used by anyone else.

Sweet Potato Pudding.

Peel and grate enough raw sweet potatoes to weigh a half pound. Cream together six ounces of butter and a half pound of sugar; add alternately eight well beaten eggs and the grated potato; then add the juice and grated rind of one orange and one lemon, one-quarter of a teaspoonful of mace, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful of salt, two tablespoonfuls of brandy and one gill of sherry. Beat hard, pour into a buttered dish and bake in a moderate oven for about three quarters of an hour.

Fried Carrots.

Scrape good sized carrots and boil in slightly salted water until tender. Cut in slices, either round or long, according to preference. Melt one tablespoonful of butter or dripping in a saucepan. When very hot spread in the carrots. Sprinkle them with salt, pepper and plenty of sugar and fry slowly until well browned, turning and browning on the other side. When in the hot dish sprinkle with chopped parsley.

Mother's Prayer.

While the boy is away with a gun, his mother declares that if the Good Lord will bring him back alive, she will never let him go again.

Leave It to Him.

When a boy is whipped at school, and his mother sends him out into the yard to get a stick of the size the teacher used, to show visitors, the case against the teacher is pretty bad.

Note for Husbands.
A woman cannot keep moths out of a few old duds in a single closet; but think of the genius of men, who keep moths out of clothing stores!

For Husband, Too.

A well behaved, patient man never knows whether his wife loves him or not. But let him shoot somebody, or forge a note, and his wife stands by him in a manner to attract the attention of everybody.

BABY WAS DEAD.

But Nursemaid Never Noticed It for Three Hours.

A nursemaid wheeled the dead body of a year-old baby up and down a New York boulevard for three hours the other night thinking that the child was sleeping peacefully. Then she patted the cheek of the baby and noticed that the cheeks were cold. The called to the mother in her apartment window that the child had caught cold. The mother hurried to the street and lifted the baby from the carriage, then fainted when she realized that the child was dead. An ambulance surgeon said death was due to malnutrition.

SPORT!

Aspiring to become a "preacher with a punch," Eddy Young of San Jose, well known in California as a featherweight pugilist, has announced that he will enter the ministry and later become an evangelist. "Religion needs man who can put a kick in it," said Young. "I'm there with the kick, and now you can sit back and watch me slip the devil some of the old sleep-drops." Young addressed the Young Men's Christian Association at San Francisco Sunday afternoon. He will go to Chicago to study at the Moody Evangelical Institute.

Harry Wolverton, manager of the Oakland Coast League baseball team, may succeed Hal Chase as manager of the New York Americans next year, according to current report. Ban Johnson, president of the American League and President Frank Farrell of the New York Americans have united in their efforts to secure a good manager to succeed Chase, whom, it is claimed, while playing brilliant individual ball, has not had success in handling his players. They are now hot on the trail of Wolverton, whose executive ability has been strongly recommended to them, and in communication with Coast League magnates in regard to the matter. Wolverton has already signed a contract with the Oaks for next year and if they wish to do so, the Oakland club can hold him strictly to his contract.

Baseball fans are interested in the movements of their different idols of the New York Giant National League champions, several of whom are already making their plans for the winter. Christy Mathewson is planning a trip to the wilds of Canada to see if his mighty right arm is as true with the rifle and shotgun as it is in "putting 'em over," and he expects to establish a new strike-out record among the moose and caribou in the land of non-reciprocity. Rube Marquard, the sensational southpaw, is burning up the Gotham roads in a new automobile, which he has just purchased, while Otis Crandall, the thrifty, is investing the earnings of his pitching arm in Indiana farm lands. Chief Meyers, the Indian catcher, will pursue his horticultural ambitions in sunny California, where he has purchased a ranch. Fred Merkle also realizes that first basemen come and first basemen go and is laying up for a rainy day. He aspires to become a "peach king" when he has to quit the diamond and has made a start by purchasing a peach orchard in Montana.

Following is the McGraw's, the Giant's boss, choice of an all-star team from all players:

Pitchers—John Clarkson, Amos Rusie, C. Mathewson, Nap Rucker, Mordecai Brown.

Catchers—Mike Kelly, Buck Ewing, Wilbert Robinson, Roger Bresnahan.

First base—Fred Merkle.

Second base—Napoleon Lajoie.

Third base—Jimmy Collins.

Shortstop—Hans Wagner.

Utility infield—Hugh Jennings.

FREE TRIP ROUND THE WORLD

We have just arranged with one of our clients to place forty-two lots on the market under exceptional advantages to the purchasers. The lots are some of the best in Sections 7 and 8. The prices are as low as any on the market, and the terms so easy—monthly—that anyone can buy. Along with this exceptional offer, each lot admits the purchaser to a drawing for a FREE TRIP ROUND THE WORLD. If you hold the lucky ticket the trip is yours; or you can surrender it for a cash consideration. The chances are good—one in forty-two. Come in and investigate.

CAPT. GEO. ROBERTSON DEAD.

Veteran Mariner Brought Out the Steamer Islander From Scotland in 1888.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)
Vancouver, Nov. 13.—Death occurred here today of Captain George Robertson, aged 66. He came here in charge of the steamship Islander from Scotland on the steamer's maiden voyage, in 1888.

There will be a big time at the Baptist Brotherhood Social in the McIntyre Hall, Monday night. Everyone welcome.

AT THE THEATRE.

Sherman-Cleveland Musical Comedy Company Makes Good on Second Visit—"A Stubborn Cinderella" Proves a Peach.

Notwithstanding the weather outside, there was nothing of a frost about the presentation of "A Stubborn Cinderella" on the Empress stage on Saturday night by the Sherman-Cleveland Musical Comedy Company. But a few hours landed from the Princess May, just in from the North, the company had their arrangements made so completely as to be able to put on an elaborate show at the regulation hour with never a hitch, and a packed house greatly enjoyed the comedy.

Prince Rupert has, of course, old friends in the Sherman-Cleveland Company. Harry B. Cleveland, for instance, whose good-looking and inimitably humorous "Mac" was a first favorite. Miss Drena Mack, charmingly dressed, sang and acted with the same excellent effect which has won her so many friends in Prince Rupert. Jack Westerman, as "Skeeter," and Frank Snyder, as "Fat," scored again, as did Elton Ralston, and Miss Josephine Gerrish.

Mr. George Perkins, who, it will be remembered, was the hero of what was very nearly a tragedy in real life, when he fell into a crevasse one of the great glaciers of Alaska, appeared as "Professor" and "Engineer," a double role to which he did entire justice. Evidently his icy experience has not impaired his histrionic ability. William Darling, in the triple role of "Officer," "Marble Worker" and "Hotel Manager," hit off his funny turns admirably, and all the other members of the company worked hard and effectively as ever, particularly that indefatigable chorus, whose support in the feature songs was always given with a will, and just as willingly in response to the last as to the first encore.

Tonight the company puts on "The Time, The Place and The Girl," and there can be no doubt that in spite of the wintry atmosphere outside the Empress Theatre will be aglow with warmth, and light and merriment, as always with this popular company on the boards.

Applications will be received up to November 25th, 1911, by the Board of Directors of the Prince Rupert General Hospital Association from women wishing to take a full course of training in nursing.

THE LATEST "WHITE HOPE."

The Wags Are Mentioning the Name of a Prince Rupert Alderman.

Some of the local wags are trying out a new one on the innocents. They are talking blandly of the new "white hope" in Prince Rupert. When the curious inquire who he is, they mention without a smile the name of a certain Prince Rupert alderman.

We would mention the alderman's name, only it's years since we had the gloves on. It isn't Alderman Douglas, at any rate.

NEW WAREHOUSE FOR WATERFRONT

Messrs. W. McMillan & Co., Wholesale Grocers, to Build Next to Percy Morris' Premises.

Another large warehouse is planned for the waterfront wholesale district of Prince Rupert. A two-story building with spacious accommodation and construction similar to that of the Kelly-Douglas and Percy Morris buildings is to be erected on the space next to the Percy Morris building, to the east. Messrs. W. J. McMillan & Co., wholesale grocers, gave instructions to W. L. Barker, architect, to prepare plans, and this morning contracts were let for the building. Carpenter work will be done by Messrs. Mitchell, Currie & Watt. Roofing and sheet metal sheathing of the entire building is in the hands of Messrs. Smith & Mallet. The plans provide for a building opening on to the wharf side, served with temporary hand elevators until power is available and suitable for the class of goods handled. Premises opening onto First Avenue are contemplated for erection later. They will, it is understood, be of concrete.

SCHOONER DAMAGED.

Accident at Wharfside to Princess Victoria—Fouled Kingsway and Carried Away Mast.

Considerable damage was done on Sunday morning to the schooner Princess Victoria, which was moored near to the trawler Kingsway at the new Davis wharf. The schooner broke away from her moorings, and fouled the trawler, smashing in her own bulwarks and carrying away her mainmast.

The Princess Victoria is a 66-foot boat, and was built at Masset in 1905 by Captain Stanley for sealing. In this work, however, she was never used, but plied between Prince Rupert and Masset with passengers and freight. Bought recently by F. Clark of this city, she has just been sold to the Pacific Fish and Fertilizer Co., owners of the Kingsway, to extend their fishing business. The Princess Victoria was sunk the same night at the Cottage City, off Helmenken Island, but was successfully salvaged.

SAD DEATH TODAY.

Mrs. Thomas Reid Leaves Husband and Two Little Ones—Widower is Well Known Old-Timer.

This morning the death occurred, after three weeks' illness, of Mrs. Thomas Reid, at her home on Seventh Avenue East. The circumstances of the deaths are particularly sad, and there two other little children left, a boy and girl, aged six and four years old respectively. Their father, Mr. Thomas Reid, is very well known in the city. He is one of the first old-timers of Prince Rupert, well known to local business for his skill in taxidermy. He is himself a good hunter and trapper, and was employed as official trapper for Prince Rupert. Much sympathy is extended to him, now a widower left with two little ones in care for.

Friends and acquaintances are respectfully invited to attend the funeral, which will take place at E. L. Fisher's funeral chapel Tuesday evening at 7:30 p.m. Rev. James officiating; after which the body will lie in state until Wednesday morning, when it will be removed to Garden Island for interment.

For Section Two Buyers.

Intending purchasers in Section Two will find it worth while to study the large map just prepared by J. H. Pillsbury, which will enable them to figure pretty closely on the cost of excavation. This map, which is advertised in another column, gives the street levels, lot grades and other valuable information.

Just a Question.

Was it Alderman Clayton or the Empire's energetic representative who suggested the real reason for the alteration of the city hall interior furnishings, which leaves such a grand clear space in the centre of the floor, with room for a ring of excited onlookers all round?

T. S. Boat in.

With extra freight, left over by the passenger steamships of her line, the American steamer Meteor, flying the same flag as the City of Seattle, State of California, etc., came in this morning.
