THIRTEEN CHINESE WARSHIPS HOIST REBEL FLAG

C. N. R. IS RUSHING WORK ON ITS MOUNTAIN SECTION

Steel is Due at Athabasca Landing This Week—Will be Through to the Coast by the Fall of 1913

Practically all the supplies on the construction of the Canadian Northern main line west of the Yellowhead Pass will be taken in by way of Kamloops and the North Thompson river. The work of moving supplies this winter will be in connection with the Brazeau line west of the Peace River line north of Onoway. A. R. Mann, president of the Northern Construction Company, which has the contract in hand, says that the Athabasca Landing line will be completed this fall without fail. The grade will be ready for steel between Stony Creek and the landing by November 10. It will take about a month to lay the steel on the 50 mile stretch of grade between Stony Creek and the northern terminus, and the main line of the Canadian Northern railway will be completed through to the coast by the fall of 1913.

During the past week or more the graders on the main line of the Canadian Northern railway west of Edmonton and on the Peace River branch north of Onoway have been unable to do any work on account of frost being in the ground. The crust that forms on top of the grade every night, although it may not be very thick, makes it hard for the horses to haul the scraper and means a greater wear and tear on the machinery. The Canadian Northern is determined to have the line to Athabasca finished this fall, and the railway company have given orders to the contractors to use dynamite if necessary to remove the frozen earth on the grade. There is still considerable work to be done on the stretch of the main line grade between St. Albert and the Pembina river, although it is completed as far west as Lac Ste. Anne, and the steel laying on the completed section will commence within the next few days.

WILL SEWER MENACE SANITARY CONDITIONS

To have the temporary outlet of the Hays Creek Trunk Sewer so far away from tide water does not appeal to Ald. Morrissey as sanitary. He declared at last night's council meeting that the nuisance created would in a very few months become a source of danger. The City Engineer declared absolutely that so much greater would be the volume of clean water in the sewer to that of sewerage for several years, to come that there would be no nuisance. The Engineer's plans for the sewer was finally approved by the council.

BOTTLE LICENSES ARE BEAUTIFUL

City Solicitor Peters Says so, So There's No Doubt of It

Some time ago as a special courtesy the Mayor in his capacity as chairman of the License Commission allowed the city council to make a request to the City Solicitor for a report on the two bottle licenses in this city, those of J. A. Smith and Mr. Maynard, in view of the fact that the application of Mr. Sutherland for a bottle license had been refused. Mr. Peters reported the granting of the said licenses perfectly in order and repeated that the refusal of Sutherland's application was equally so. No discussion was permitted.

Test City Coal

C. W. Handasyde, Jr., suggested to the light committee by letter last night that the city should purchase a patent calorimeter for testing coal values at the light plant.

NO INQUEST

Whole Blame of Fatality at Mile 44 Rests With the Dead Man C. Berger

There will be no inquest on the body of Charles Berger who was instantly killed by the explosion yesterday at Mile 44. He was clearing out the shot hole with a metal rod, and as he was himself in charge of the work no blame attaches to anyone else.

THIRTY-FIVE ARE SNOWBOUND

Large Party of Surveyors and Timber Cruisers May be Suffering Privations.

For over a week now nothing has been heard of a party of about 35 surveyors and timber cruisers which was due at Mill Bay on the Naas to meet a launch sent up to bring them back. The party is evidently snowbound and maybe short of provisions by now. The party has been doing work for Chief Kelly who intends to make a search for the men unless they arrive by the Cetriana on her return trip.

BAND SUBSCRIPTION

Finance Committee Will Consider Suggestion of $500 Contribution.

The Finance Committee of the City Council will consider the request for $500 towards establishing a City Band.

John Scorns Councilmen

"J. S. C." What might the letters stand for? "John scorns councilmen," was the bright reply from a young member of the Baptist Brotherhood in the guessing contest at their social last evening in McIntyre Hall. Amid games, music and the refreshments which followed every one had a most enjoyable time. The committee were C. Rogers, L. Hanson, A. Gray, G. Johnson, R. Green.

CITY PRINTING PAP.

Journal Bi-Weekly Underbid Local Dailies for Daily Advertising of Local Improvement Schedule—Peculiar Business

The Prince Rupert Journal was last night awarded the contract for advertising the local Improvement Schedules to be published by the City according to law in a local paper issued daily. The two local daily papers were asked to bid, but when the tenders appeared on the council table there was one also from the local Bi-weekly which gets the work. Bids were as follows:

Prince Rupert Publishing Co., for the first contract, per line.....	.70c
For the Second contract per line.....	.70c
Empire Publishing Co., contract number one, per line.....	.90c
Contract number two, per line.....	.67 1-2c

Chief Kelly has come in from Moresby Island with a poisoned foot. He came in the schooner Princess Victoria for treatment.

ATLIN'S GLORY DEPARTING

Once Thriving Placer Gold Centre is Rapidly Falling Off in Population and Business.

Over the once busy placer gold camp of Atlin the word "Ichabod" may well be written for the glory of old time Atlin is departed. "The place is following the course of history of every placer mining camp—going back as hard as ever it can," says Frank Mobley, who has just returned from a summer spent up there looking after his business.

Yet that business of Mr. Mobley's has not yet started to go back with the district for Mr. Mobley in summing up the accounts of the firm there for the past season found that some $60,000 worth of business had been done there—"Not so bad for a little pea-nut stand," as he remarked.

Next year, however, the chances are that unless something happens in Atlin Frank Mobley's business will be close down to enable him to concentrate on Prince Rupert.

Prince Rupert is advancing as fast as Atlin is decaying, for Prince Rupert's prosperity depends on the wealth of whole tracts of country, not the mining, however rich, of a mere district.

MISSING MAN

Wife Seeks H. Harman Once Foreman For Foley Welch & Stewart

From Dover, England, through the Agent General for British Columbia enquiry comes to Chief Owen for H. Harman who was once foreman for Messrs. Foley, Welch & Stewart, here, but left in December, 1909, for Vancouver. He was last heard of there in February, 1910. Any news of him is welcomed.

Mr. Mann was last night appointed to the city engineers staff as extra stenographer and rod-man at a salary of $80 month

Lay Out Cemetery

It was reported last night that Mr. F. S. Clements is engaged to lay out the cemetery lots as soon as his work on the township lines is completed.

Another shipment Northway's Ladies' Suits, $25 to $35—Wallace's.

MOBLEY RESIDENCE

Work Will Not Proceed on This Handsome Building Till Spring.

Talking about his new residence on Fourth Ave., the solid concrete foundation of which is now complete and waiting for superstructure, Frank Mobley remarked that he had ordered construction to cease when he went away to Atlin this summer.

"I didn't want the building to go on in my absence," he remarked. "If I am putting six or seven thousand dollars into a building, I want to see what I am getting, especially since it is I who have to live in the house. Now that the wintery weather has set in, I guess I'll leave the house to be finished in March when I can rush it to completion and keep an eye on the building. Meanwhile the concrete basement is having a pretty thorough test, and proving itself the first class bit of work I intended it to be."

Broke His Leg

While unloading lumber from the Foley, Welch and Stewart scow at the tie wharf, Tom O'Brien had to choose between a jump into the sea or a blow from a swinging load of lumber. He chose the latter and lies in the hospital with a broken leg.

COUNCIL STILL UNDECIDED OVER THE COAL CONTRACT

Manager Love Says the Cheaper Coal is the Dearer and in the Interests of Economy Wants Dearer Coal

Although the City Council wrangled for nearly an hour over the awarding of the contract for the Light Plant Coal, and even held a special meeting after the aldermen had gone to the wharf and examined the coal, the situation has not by any means settled down yet.

The contract has been awarded (verbally) to the Union Transfer Company whose bid of $8.15 per long ton was lowest, but according to the report of E. A. Love, Plant Manager Kelley's coal is a costlier "juice-producer" than that supplied by Rogers & Black. He said it would cost 16 1-2c p. k.w. hr. at the plant. Juice is supplied at 12 1-2c p.k.w. in the city. These figures were substantiated by calculations noted by the Superintendent. These calculations on the motion of Ald. Morrissey are to be submitted in the form of a signed report by Mr. Love at next meeting of council before anything further can be done. Meanwhile Mr. Kelly is fulfilling his coal contract.

Bid Par Value
Messrs. Lynch Bros. and Olier Besner made offer to Council last night of par value for the issue of debentures to cover the cost of the proposed sidewalk on Second Avenue to the junction.

ALDERMEN MUZZLED BY MAYOR'S BY-LAW

A little billet-doux from the Mayor to each alderman reminding council members of the provisions of the Procedure By-law against impromptu enquiries, was laid on the table last night when the council sat.

Ald. Newton protested the enforcement of the clause requiring enquiries to be given in writing two days ahead of the council meeting unduly restricted liberty of investigation.

The Mayor, however, maintained that the council ought to be home and in bed before 12 p.m. these cold nights. He closed down sharply on Ald. Douglas, who was about to ask a question.

Ald. Newton remarked vexatiously to the mayor: Well, Mr. Mayor, it just means that I must remain silent from now to the end of the session if you enforce this closure upon the right of free discussions of questions.

Later, when Ald. Douglas began to expostulate over the bottle licences, Ald. Newton reminded the redoubtable Douglas with savage emphasis that it was no good attempting to open discussion on the matter.

Later on Ald. Newton asked the Mayor to excuse him from public attendance at Council. The Mayor regretted he could not give any such permission.

NEW FIRE HALL

Rapid Progress Now Being Made With Building

The new fire hall begins now to take more substantial proportions. A roomy tower for storing the hose and as belfry is being roofed and the hall for the housing of the "Red Devil" is being warmly lined. The present housing for the auto hose waggon is bitterly cold in spite of stoves this weather, and this is neither good for man nor machine.

In the basement of the Fire Hall the spacious accommodation for the City tools, and the machinery for the Public Works Department is making fast progress, and may be complete and ready for occupation before the rest of the fire hall.

The funeral of the late Ludger Roy will take place tomorrow at 10 a.m. from the Catholic church.

ANOTHER CANADIAN WHO "MADE GOOD" IN THE BRITISH HOUSE OF COMMONS

Sir Thos. J. Macnamara, Secretary to the Admiralty, a Soldier's Son, Ex-Schoolmaster and Ex-Editor Who Has Risen to the Top of the Political Ladder in England.

Among the recent recipients of Coronation honors was Sir Thos. J. Macnamara, Bart, parliamentary secretary to the Admiralty, who first saw the light in Montreal in 1861, but only remained there long enough to carry away with him Canadian instincts and first impressions, for his father, who was in the old 47th Regiment (now Loyal North Lancashire) returned to the old country when the boy was two years old.

Macnamara, after being educated at Exeter, went to a teachers' training college in London, and taught school in Bristol and Huddersfield. He was an elementary school teacher, and threw himself with great energy into the forward policy outlined by the National Union of Teachers, which today represents 60,000 primary school teachers. Of this body, he was resident in 1899.

Journalism called "Mac" from the schoolroom, and for several years he stood for Deptford—which he lost in 1895, and more successfully for Camberwell North in 1900, he had the support of thousands of London's teachers. In parliamentary life he soon displayed the fact that he was not a man of one idea only, and his knowledge of social conditions fitted him for the parliamentary secretaryship of the Local Government Board. With the reshuffling of the cards last elections, Dr. Macnamara was sent to the Admiralty.

THE COUNCIL GETS A MOVE ON

Old Aesop used to tell a fable entitled "The Traveller, the wind and the sun." It told how the elements wanted the traveller to shed his cloak. So the wind blew with all his vigor. It was all in vain. The more the wind blew the closer did the traveller wrap his cloak about him. Then the sun tried a change of treatment. He let his gentle genial rays fall upon the traveller, who first unloosened, then cast aside his cloak.

In Prince Rupert the fable has been repeated with a difference. The City Council has been cajoled, implored, and pleaded with by the News to "get a move on." It has been all in vain. The more we urged, the stolider they sat. It remained for Jack Frost to accomplish what we failed to do. Last night the Council got a move on.

The long table at which the aldermen were wont to sit at while in session has been moved over to the back of the hall. The big red stove at which the Mayor was wont to warm himself has been moved over nearer to the door. About five miles of stove-pipe, more or less, circumnavigates the room. The old order changeth giving place to the new. The bewildered habitue, could only gasp last night and murmur "Change (but without decay) on every hand I see."

A RETROGRADE GOVERNMENT

All modern governments, save one, are raising taxation in their populous districts in order to develop the unpopulated districts. The one exception is the Government of British Columbia. It is raising taxation in the unpopulated districts in order to aggrandize the capital and swell the sums that the Provincial Treasurer has on deposit with the banks.

In the Queen Charlotte Islands last year the Provincial Government raised from its various sources of revenue a sum estimated to exceed $700,000. All it returned to the people was a few days work at election time, on the roads and trails. Ninety-five per cent. of all it took from the Islands went to swell the Treasury. Practically no attempt was made at development.

Business foresight would prompt a progressive government to raise revenues in the cities in order to develop the wealth of the Queen Charlottes. Ordinary fair play would prompt a government to see that it placed back into the great work of developing the potential wealth of the outer districts all the revenue that it raised therein.

The simple and eloquent fact remains that the McBride Government pocketed nineteen-twentieths of all the revenues it raised on the Queen Charlotte Islands and entered upon no programme of development. A small portion of the surplus thus raised will be used to keep the press of the Province quiet, the rest will go to swell the Treasury at Victoria to build a Provincial Museum at Victoria, or the University at Point Grey and other works that are intended to aggrandize the southern portion of the Province.

The government is deceived if it concludes from the silence of its own press that the voters of the north are blind to the fact that the government instead of nurturing and developing the district is merely milking it for its revenues.

THE Pillar of Light

By Louis Tracy

"I think there is no one like him in all the world. We are so happy at home that sometimes I fear it cannot last. Yet that God there is no excuse for such night-mare terrors." Mrs. Vansittart cooed in her gentle way. "Indeed you have my earnest good wishes in that respect," she said. "Do we not owe our lives to you? That is an excellent reason for gratitude. If a selfish one! But, some day soon, you will be getting married and leaving the parental roof."

"I do not wish to die an old maid," laughed Constance. "yet I have not discovered a better name than my own up to the present." She fancied that Mrs. Vansittart winced a little at this remark. Deceiving her visitor to be a bundle of nerves rather than addressing Constance, she said: "You would not be fearful of matrimony? You would not read an omen of ill luck into this dramatic interruption of all your plans? After many years of widowhood I am about to be married again to a man who is admirable in every way. He is rich, distinguished in manner and appearance, a person of note not only in the States but on the Continent. No woman of my years might desire a better match. Why could not the way be made smooth for me? Why should the poor Chinook out of the hundreds of mail-steamer which cross the Atlantic be picked out for utter disaster? It is a warning—a threat from the gods!"

CHAPTER XII PREPARATIONS

Pyne found Enid rosy-red and inclined to be fearful. The dying light of day was still strong enough in the service-room to permit these things to be seen. "No bad news, I hope?" he inquired through the sight of Stephen Brand, seated at a desk and placidly writing, was reassuring. The question steadied her to an extent. "It is nothing of any consequence," she said and darted past him. Brand looked up from his journal. He smiled, though the American thought there was a hint of pain in his eyes.

"I am going to lose one of my girls," he said. "Oh, no, this is not a loss by death but by marriage. If I were a Frenchman, I would describe it as gaining a son. Enid has just received what is tantamount to a proposal." "By flag-wagging?" Pyne was naturally astounded. "Yes, you would not expect one of the people from the Chinook to be so enterprising?" "I don't know," said Pyne, punctuating each word with a deliberate nod. "Well, in any case, I would not have forwarded the application after an acquaintance of eighteen hours," observed Brand, with equal deliberation. "They're two powerful fine girls," said Pyne, steering clear of the point. "They have just been telling me how Miss Enid happened along. It reads like a fairy tale."

"He was given to me by the winds and waves, yet she is dear to me as my own child. I shall miss her greatly—if all goes well here." "I've cottoned on to both of them something wonderful. But, if I am not intruding into private affairs, how comes it that Miss Enid is being telegraphed for? Of course I can understand the gentleman being in a hurry. I would feel that way myself if the conditions were favorable." Pyne could be as stolid as a red Indian when the occasion demanded it. Brand found no hint in his face of the hidden thought in his words. "Have they said anything to you of a man named Stanhope?" inquired the lighthouse-keeper, resuming the entry in his diary after a sharp glance upwards. "Yes. They pointed him out to me this morning. In the navy, I think. Follow with a title, and that sort of thing."

settled matters on his own account. "I may be mistaken, of course." How do you interpret this?" He closed the journal and handed to Pyne a memorandum taken down letter by letter by a sailor as Brand read the signal: "Mother sends her love to Enid." "Did mother ever convey her love to Enid before?" asked Pyne. "No." "Then I call that neat. I take off my hat to Stanhope. He and mamma have had a heart-to-heart talk."

Brand leaned his head on his hands, stretched fists covering his ears. There was a period of silence until the lighthouse-keeper rose to light the lamp. Pyne watched him narrowly. "I may be trespassing on delicate ground," he said at last. "If I am, you are not the sort of man to stand on ceremony in the States, you know when the authorities want to preserve a park section they don't say: 'Please do not walk on the grass.' They put up a board which reads: 'Keep off. We never kick. We're used to it.'"

"My notice-board, if required, will be less curt, at any rate," replied Brand, and they faced each other. Though their words were light, no pleasant conceit lurked in their minds. There was a question to be asked and answered, and it held the issues of life and death. "What did you mean just now by saying, 'If all goes well here'?" Is there any special reason why things should not go well?" The young Philadelphian might have been hazarding an inquiry about a matter of trivial interest, so calm was he, so smooth his utterance. But Brand had made no mistake in estimating this youngster's force of character, nor did he seek to temporize. He extended an arm towards the reef. "You hear that?" he said. "Yes." "It may be all right for weeks." "So I have been told."

"Mr. Emmett told me." "Ah! He and I have discussed the matter already. Yet I imagine that neither he, nor any other man in the place save myself, grasps the true meaning of the fact." "It occurred to me that this light is here for amusement?" He looked up at the lamp and smiled. The pillar, in those days must have been a haunt of illusions for Brand, like Constance and Pyne himself in the case of Mrs. Vansittart thought he caught an expression familiar to his eyes long before he had seen that clear-cut, splendidly intelligent face.

"But there was no time for idle speculation. He glanced into the well of the stars to make sure that no one was ascending. Then he approached nearer to Pyne and said in an intense whisper: "Regret! I am not regretting. But I have reasoned this thing out. Now I will tell you what I have decided. I will take the watch from eight until twelve. At twelve you will relieve me, and I will go below to secure provisions and water sufficient to maintain the lives of my daughters and myself, for a few hours long or short as the weather may be. I will follow the rules I have promised to obey. I alone should live. That is impossible. A Spartan might do it, but I cannot abandon my girls and yet retain my senses. I trust you because I must have a confederate. If the watch does not break before to-morrow night, I will hand over the stairs—and fight—if necessary."

His face was drawn and haggard as his eyes blazed. He shook as one in the first throes of fever. He seemed to await his companion's verdict with an over-powering dread lest any attempt should be made to question the justice of his course. "Yes, I figured it out that way, too," said Pyne. "It's queer, isn't it, to be in such a fix when there's all sorts of help within call, so to speak. We might as well be in a mine closed up by an explosion. And, I'll tell you what—I'm real sorry for you." Brand, clasping under the strain, sank into a chair. "It is an awful thing," he moaned, "to condemn so many men, women and children, to such a death."

score desperate men boxed up down below. When they begin to diet on polka there will be trouble. A few of us, ready to take chances, will be helpful. Some of them may have to die quick, you know." Brand closed his eyes in sheer affliction. In that way he tried to shut out a vision. "Be it so," he gasped. "May the Lord help us." It was the responsibility that mastered him. Judges on the bench often break down when they sentence a criminal to death, but what judges, humane, tender-hearted and God-fearing, ever pronounced the doom of seventy-eight people snatched from a merciful death to be steeped in horrors.

At last his iron will predominated. The knowledge that the path of duty lay straight before him cheered his tortured soul. No man could say he erred in trying to save his children. That was trust as solemn as any conferred by the Elder Brethren of the Trinity. He placed a hand on Pyne's shoulder, for this youngster had become dear to him. "Had I a son," he said, "I should wish him to be like you. Let us strive to forget the evils that threaten us. Brooding is useless. If need be, you will take charge of the lower deck. There is starvation allowance for some more days at the worst. But I hate the thought of starting the new scale to-morrow."

"It may not be necessary." "Candidly, I fear it will. I know the Cornish coast too well. When bad weather sets in from the southwest at this season it holds for a week at the lowest computation." "Is there no other way? Can nothing be done out there?" "Able men, the best of sailors, the most experienced of engineers have striven for half a century to devise a method of communication with a rock lighthouse placed as this is. They have failed. There is none." "That's good," cried Pyne quite pleasantly. "Where is your pouch? I feel like a smoke. If I hadn't fired that question at you I should have wasted a lot of time in hard thinking."

Brand had to scheme that night to reach the store-room unobserved. The Falcon, steaming valiantly to her observation post near the buoy, aided him considerably. He permitted the night watch to gather in the service-room, and stationed the officer on the gallery to observe the trawler in case she showed any signal lights. Since the attempt on the lock Constance gave the key to her father after each visit. For the rest, the inmates of the pillar were sunk in the lethargy of a satisfied hunger. Constance and Enid, utterly worn out with fatigue, were sound asleep in the kitchen, and the tears coursed down the man's face as he acted the part of a thief in securing the measured allowance of flour and bacon for one meal. The diet of one hungry meal for eighty-one people gave twenty-seven hungry meals for three. He ought to have taken more, but he set his teeth and refused the ungrateful task.

It is oft-times easy for a man to decide upon a set course, but hard to follow it. "A week!" he murmured. "Perhaps ten days! That is all. Pray Heaven I don't get out before they die!" Pyne, watching the light, knew that Brand had succeeded. The Falcon went; gradually the watch dispersed. "Where is the board?" asked Pyne, making believe that they were playing some comedy. "Hidden in the kitchen lockers. I could obtain only distilled water. You must persuade the girls in the morning to do something went wrong with the apparatus."

As opportunity offered, Brand transferred the tins to the lockers of the service-room. Pyne, who missed nothing, shook his head when it became evident that the last consignment was safely stored away. "Not much there," he commented. "I will take no more!" was the fierce cry. "You ought to." "I tell you! Don't torture me further." "Any chance of a row in the morning? The purser and Mr. Emmett mount guard when the store-room is opened."

FIRST: "CATCH YOUR PRINTER"

DIRECTIONS FOR COOKING A HARE: FIRST—"CATCH YOUR HARE"

To produce good printing you must "first catch your printer. . . You can't get good printing from a poor printer, even if he work with never so good an equipment. If he lacks the "knack," the trained taste, the single-minded fondness for his work which real printers have, he will do poor printing for you. If he has all of these, and in addition to them adequate modern equipment, your printing will have distinction, salesmanship, the lure of type-beauty.

As this office produces good printing you may infer the presence of a good printer—who is "catchable."

THE COSY CORNER

DEVOTED PRINCIPALLY TO THE INTERESTS OF WOMEN

This is a little section of the paper, which from day to day will be devoted to subjects of special interest to women. Any and all of the ladies of Prince Rupert are invited to contribute to its columns, and to take part in its discussions. Suggestions and criticisms are invited by the editor. The hope is expressed that "The Cosy Corner" will fill a social need.

"WORRY LINES"

The Bane of the Business Girl—How to Get Rid of Them

Worry lines come before you are aware of their approach. Watch closely for the "experience" lines between the eyes and just over the temples. When a business woman does much thinking she gets these lines, and they are hard to remove. Rub well with cold cream and, if impossible to remove, arrange the hair so it will cover them. Hairpin curls are of great value to the business woman who does not have time to wave her hair or make frequent trips to the hairdresser. These little adjuncts to the coiffure can be pinned in front or on the sides of the face, and give that needed softness to the hair line that is so earnestly sought after by all attractive women.

SUFFRAGETTES ATTEND FIGHT

Just to Show the Equality of the Sexes They Attended a Boxing Match—and Liked It, Too.

A few nights ago in New York the Long Acre Athletic club gave a boxing exhibition, the chief feature of which did not centre on the contests between the pugilists so much as in the presence of a large number of women. It was "Suffragette Night" at the club, and there were fully as many women as men present. The women applauded efforts of the pugilists as vigorously as the men, and did not seem at all uneasy over bloody noses and solar plexus "wallops" that occasionally landed a boxer on the floor with a resounding thud.

Mrs. Gus Ruhlman, wife of the prize fighter, was mistress of ceremonies. It had been announced that no suffragettes would be admitted unless accompanied by an escort, but several of the more militant ones came in groups and virtually took the door tenders by storm. The women were given the best seats about the ring-side. One of the suffragettes made

MONEY FROM SEWAGE

English Town of Bradford Makes the Garbage Help Pay the Taxes

The city of Bradford, England, is treating 15,000,000 gallons of sewage daily. The grease is extracted, the moisture dried out and the remainder is pressed into cakes for shipping. This material contains about two per cent of nitrogen, small quantities of potash, and sells at $3 to $4.50 a ton. The cakes are ground into fertilizer. Some of this sewage cake is to be sent to Florida for growing truck. Bradford is said to be the only place where such work is done. In this country millions of dollars worth of plant food runs to waste through the sewers. At the mouth of the Hudson, including the flow from the Passaic Valley in New Jersey, over $10,000,000 worth of plant food is wasted annually! No process has yet been devised which would utilize this great waste economically. If this English town has discovered such a process it has conferred a blessing upon humanity.

NICE IN COLD WEATHER

Try This Recipe For Making Some Hot Potato Biscuits

As a good hot bread try potato biscuit. On the preceding evening mix together one pint of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one scant teaspoonful of salt, then rub in two large tablespoonfuls of shortening. Pare sufficient potatoes to make one pint when mashed. The next morning boil the potatoes (which may be cut small to cook quickly,) mash and beat until light. Mix them with the prepared flour and add sufficient sweet milk to make a soft dough. Turn on a floured board, roll out an inch thick, cut in rounds, place slightly apart on buttered pans and bake in a quick oven. These are more tender than the plain milk biscuit.

FREE TRIP ROUND THE WORLD

We have just arranged with one of our clients to place forty-two lots on the market under exceptional advantages to the purchasers. The lots are some of the best in Sections 7 and 8. The prices are as low as any on the market, and the terms so easy—monthly—that anyone can buy. Along with this exceptional offer, each lot admits the purchaser to a drawing for a FREE TRIP ROUND THE WORLD. If you hold the lucky ticket the trip is yours; or you can surrender it for a cash consideration. The chances are good—one in forty-two. Come in and investigate.

BOGUS BILL SKILL

Secoundring Took Ingenious Way of Getting Bogus Bill Cashed

Paris, Nov. 14.—The detective force of Passy is at present investigating the origin of a false 500-franc note which was handed in to the police office by the keeper of a wine shop, who had a strange story to tell about it. A well-dressed man walked down the Rue de Passy stepped aside sharply to allow a lady to pass, and in doing so broke the plate glass window of a wine shop with his elbow. The keeper of the wine shop was outside in an instant, and asked the man to give him compensation there and then. The man discussed the matter, and then said that he could not pay at once, but would pay in installments.

By this time a crowd had gathered, and onlookers took sides. One of them shouted to the wine shop keeper: "Why not search him to make sure if he cannot pay at once?" The man was thereupon dragged into the shop, his pocket-case was seized, and the wine shop keeper gleefully held up a 500-franc note. The shop keeper quickly hunted about for change, and handed the man 450 francs, saying: "I am charging you only 50 francs for the plate glass, and you can think yourself lucky at that."

The man went away, complaining all the while, and hissed by some of the crowd. A few minutes later the wine shop keeper took the note to the bank. To his amazement the bank clerk refused it, and said it was a forged note.

Polander Is Dead

Early this morning there died at the hospital Mike Thacuk, aged 19, a native of Poland, who has been ill for the past two months with an internal disease. The young fellow is survived by his brother who lives in the city. The body is at E. L. Fisher's undertaking parlors, awaiting interment.

Death Notice

Chas Berger, aged 36, of Swedish nationality, died November 13' by accidental death at Mile 44, on No. 2 drift. Interment at Garden Island. Funeral arrangements in charge of Hayner Bros.

A Clever Rescue

Astoria, Oregon, Nov. 14.—The tug Tatoosh rescued the schooner Washington and fifty lives in a storm on Sunday off Peacock Spit.

Applications will be received up to November 25th, 1911, by the Board of Directors of the Prince Rupert General Hospital Association from women wishing to take a full course of training in nursing.
