Girl Canoeist's Arduous Feat

Betty Lowman Rows Into Prince Rupert; Cast Up Three Days

Had Hectic Experience After Her Frail Craft Swamped In Douglas Channel—Three Days Without Food On Rocky Cliff

With nothing in her possession but her canoe and the clothes in which she stood after having lost all her equipment including her paddles, cameras, charts, log book and other effects as a result of her frail craft having swamped and been cast up for three days on the rocky shore of Douglas Channel, Betty Lowman, Anacortes, Washington, college girl, arrived in Prince Rupert yesterday afternoon.

Miss Lowman left Seattle on June 16 and her trip was an uneventful one, except for such experiences as might be anticipated on such an undertaking, until a week ago Tuesday. Miss Lowman had been at Butedale and decided to make a side trip up Douglas Channel to Klitmaat.

Soon after leaving Klitmaat she encountered heavy rain, making it necessary for her to bail her boat. She was heading for Drum Lummon mine where she had been told there was a cabin in which she could stay.

It had been becoming more stormy and, as she was rounding Drum Lummon Point, she ran into a backwash which swamped her boat, dumping all its contents. Resolutely she swam to shore, towing the small craft which was filled with water and she was finally able to perch herself on a rocky ledge, balancing the canoe on a projection.

Her dilemma was complete. She could neither get up or down. At low tide she was perched eighteen feet above the water on the side of the cliff. "I just about went crazy watching the sea," she said. A forestry boat, which she had met before leaving Klitmaat and which had offered to give her a tow, which offer she had declined, passed by. "I screamed and shouted," she said, "but it passed without hearing me."

Finally, in desperation, she pulled off an old log for use as a rough paddle and let the canoe slide into the water, meaning to hold it with the rope after which she would scramble down herself. However, the canoe dropped but she held on grimly even though it pulled her in. "And I think I pulled all the barnacles off that rock as I went down," she said smilingly. Finally she got settled in the canoe and set out for a point about twenty miles down Douglas Channel where she had been informed there were some handloggers.

CO-OPERATION IN EMPIRE CONCERN OF CONFERENCE TO BE HELD YEAR HENCE

Unofficial Imperial Conference Announced for Australia Next Year—Canadians Participate

TORONTO, Aug. 12: (CP)—Announcement the second unofficial British Commonwealth Relations Conference will be held in Sydney, Australia, in September 1938, is made by the Canadian Institute of International Affairs.

The first of these round table conferences of British and Dominion leaders was held at Hart House, University of Toronto, in 1933. The agenda for next year's conference adopted recently at London by an agenda committee on which every country in the Empire was represented, provides for a fresh and realistic approach to the problems of the British Commonwealth.

The Dominions can no longer be assumed to form a group with common problems, the agenda committee remarked. "During the period when the Dominions were developing into autonomous states it was natural to think of them as a group, and the central problem of the commonwealth as that of adjusting the constitutional relations of the Dominions with Great Britain. It was also natural to discuss that problem in terms of the formal and historic unity of the Commonwealth with the result that possibly undue emphasis came to be laid on the centrifugal character of recent developments.

"The problem now is to attain the maximum of mutually advantageous co-operation among a number of autonomous and equal nations. In this phase the Dominions can no longer be assumed to form a group with common problems. The problems of the several nations of the Commonwealth are in many ways distinct, and upon the respective (Continued on Page Four)

SANGUINE CONFLICT

Japanese Troops Occupy Nankow Railway Area—Peace Conference Fails

SHANGHAI, Aug. 12: (Canadian Press)—Japanese troops occupied the Nankow railway station area tonight, it was reported, after a major battle forty miles northwest of here as the Japanese Army counter-attacked to oust the Chinese 89th Division from the Great Wall. A heavy artillery attack had been launched on the railway before dawn. Almost at the same time Japanese infantry attacked Changping, ten miles from Nankow. At Shanghai Japanese blue jackets moved into battle position facing Chinese regulars tonight. A peace conference intended to ease the tension had failed. Twenty-one Japanese battleships were at wharves after landing over five thousand bluejackets. It was reliably reported tonight that British, United States, French and German ambassadors had dispatched a joint communication to the Chinese and Japanese governments asking that foreign property in Shanghai be duly protected.

GOOD APPOINTMENT

The appointment of L. W. Patmore to the International Halibut Commission in place of George J. Alexander is one that will meet general approval on the waterfront here. Mr. Patmore knows the problems of the fishermen and will undoubtedly do his part toward securing for them such amendments to the regulations as it is possible for one to influence.

SCIENTIFIC FLIGHTS

While, from a scientific point of view, the flights made by Russian aviators over the North Pole may be valuable, such flights can hardly be looked upon yet as a commercial practicability. For the past week or two a third plane has been waiting a favorable opportunity to take off and finally got off today for New York via Fairbanks, Edmonton and Chicago.

The fact that the route is open for only a few weeks in the middle of summer makes it impossible for general purposes and of little value for war purposes. Possibly, as Arctic flying develops, this route may be of value but, for the present, it does not seem to be suited for anything but scientific work.

A SILLY DISCUSSION

Following a court decision in Hamilton in which a man was said to be right in chastising his wife, a Victoria newspaper has been interviewing many people with a view to finding out what was the local opinion on the subject. We suggest that, for the dog days, the subject may be allowed but it should be relegated to a humor department. No matter what the common law of England, modern common sense will prevail in such matters. To discuss them seriously is to be extremely silly.

LIKE MARKETING CONTROL

The people who come under the Marketing Act seem to like it. By insuring a steady market for farm produce instead of glutting the market at times and then having a period of scarcity the growers and the people of the province should benefit. While there are objections to interfering with the liberty of the individual, it has been shown that there are times when this liberty may be curbed with benefit to the whole community. Many of us have disliked this interference with personal liberty but it is in line with the spirit of the age and may eventually develop into a general scheme which will benefit the whole country.

MANY WILL PLAY GOLF

Looks Like Record Entry List For Jasper Park Totem Trophy

JASPER PARK, Aug. 12: — "We have more than seventy reservations already for the annual Totem Pole Golf tournament to be played here September 5 to 11 and these reservations, coming so far in advance of former years, lead us to believe that our tournament this year will assume record-breaking proportions," declared Robert Somerville, manager of Jasper Park Lodge here today.

"Our golf course has had such heavy patronage this year that word has been spread around of its excellent condition. A large number of the reservations this year come from those who have participated in previous tournaments but it is pleasing to note that many of the reservations come from players who have not yet competed for our Totem Pole," he said.

"Last year there were 184 competitors in the tournament, which makes a big competition from any angle. This was only two short of the official record of 186 established a few years ago. As the bulk of the entries come in during the latter part of August, it begins to look as if the tournament this year will establish an all-time record.

"Never in the history of Jasper has the course been in such excellent condition. The new eighteenth green, now dressed up with Clark-son grass instead of the old type bent grass, is a perfect gem and only goes to add an additional thrill to the enjoyment of playing what has been termed by many crack golfers as "one of the most magnificent finishing holes on the continent."

All western cities are already represented in the entry list and it would appear that the present holder of the trophy, J. B. Starkey, of Edmonton, will have a particularly difficult task this year to retain possession of the internationally famous trophy.

Flying for 40 hours, 55 minutes, Ernest Jachmann of Berlin has broken the world's gliding record of 36 hours, 35 minutes set up by Kurt Schmidt in 1934.

Gardening

All flower lovers are now looking forward to the show on Monday next. The season being so poor, it had been suggested that the show be postponed but it is now decided to go ahead with it, no matter what the weather. Postponed events never amount to much.

There was very nearly a clash between the dinner for Professor Bars under auspices of the Horticultural Society and that for Governor Smith of the Rotary Club but the Rotary Club have made their arrangements for Friday night leaving Saturday open to the flower growers. Professor Bars is an authority on horticulture and many members of the Rotary Club want to hear him. Bill Coates of the C.P.K. promises to have the Princess Adelaide in the city in time for the Rotary dinner.

It was sad to see the delphiniums all swept down by the wind and rain last week and the roses and other flowers injured but nothing could be done about it, so gardeners are carrying on as best they may. In spite of the elements, some of the local gardens look quite bright and there will be a good display at the show of coltess dahlias and other flowers.

Tom Priest had a very fine bed of roses recently in his garden on Graham Avenue. Unfortunately, they were at their best only a day or two. The W. and R. did their worst and Tom's roses suffered.

One of the sights of the city is Dave Borland's window boxes. They have been outstandingly brilliant recently.

Glad's are very late this year. It looks to me just now as if there would be very few at the show. However, there are a lot of gardens I do not see and there may be surprises in store.

Sweet-pea growers are bemoaning the fact that some of their vines have been messed up by the rain and wind. Those who tied them carefully and looked after them day by day have them intact and a few days of sunshine makes a great difference to these flowers. There should be keen competition between local growers.

A few days ago a fisherman sent me a sack of shells for decorating the garden. I did not see him and he did not leave his name. The shells were very useful and I wish the donor would call and let me thank him.—H.F.P.

BETTY LOWMAN ROWS INTO PRINCE RUPERT

fisherman, and crew. They were scouting for fish and did not usually come that way. One of the members of the crew had wanted to come up to see a waterfall so they approached the shore and spied the canoe. "This is embarrassing for me to tell," admitted the deeply bronzed capable looking girl, "but I must admit that, when those natives took me aboard their boat, I cried. I was so happy after that desperate situation." Miss Lowman was taken to Hartley Bay by the Kitlope. From there Jack Pahl took her to Lowe Inlet where she obtained food and clothes and started off up Grenville Channel. But there was further trouble in store.

In Grenville Channel more stormy weather was encountered and the canoe was swamped again. Once more the girl swam ashore with the canoe in tow and, after resting and collecting herself, paddled back out into mid-channel to wait for assistance which came from the fishing boat Yanagi of a Japanese named Tanaka. Back she was taken to Lowe Inlet.

Starting out again up Grenville Channel, she reached her next stop at Claxton and then on to Inverness where she spent Tuesday night as the guest of Robert Johnstone, veteran canneryman, and Mrs. Johnstone whom she had previously met at Klemtu down the coast. She arrived in Prince Rupert at 2:20 p.m. yesterday.

Lost Everything
In the swamping in Douglas Channel Miss Lowman's loss included three cameras, all her films, charts, her log containing names and addresses of people with whom she had planned to communicate. There was a trickle of fresh water coming down the rocky ledge. That made the situation not quite so bad in spite of the lack of food. Having saved her sleeping bag, she was not too uncomfortable.

Miss Lowman, on her trip, carries no watch, no compass, no calendar. "It is just a vacation," she says. "I wanted to see the country and chose this way of doing so," hinting that its economy recommended the mode. The average distance per day she covers has been twenty-six miles, travelling about three miles per hour. Some days she had travelled upwards of thirty miles.

Miss Lowman, who has been studying vocal music at Pomona College, California, and has a year more to finish at University of Washington in Seattle, on starting out, was accompanied by a Seattle girl, Florence Steele, who became sick after the first week and returned home from Pender Harbor.

Crossing Queen Charlotte Sound from Pultney Point, Malcolm Island, Miss Lowman explained that she was caught in a fog but finally got across just below Blunder Harbor. She had headed straight into the Sound. Later she made Allison Harbor.

During her trip Miss Lowman has made a number of exploratory side trips into various inlets including Jervis Inlet, Princess Louise Inlet, Seymour Inlet, Rivers Inlet, Ocean Falls, Salmon River, Douglas Channel, Kitimaat and Matheson Channel.

The girl canoeist plans to go as far north as Sitka providing weather permits. Her father, a cannery operator, is at Ketchikan.

Her First Request
Miss Lowman's first request, on arriving here, was for a glass of fresh cow's milk. Her next concern was to go to the hospital to see an injured logger whom she had met while coming up the coast.

"It seems strange to be back again in civilization with automobiles and everything," observed the girl adventurer. She reported receiving wonderful hospitality all along the British Columbia coast. She has been showered with kindness everywhere she went.

Miss Lowman's Sunday name is "Beatrice Annette" but to her family and friends it is just "Betty."
