Pattullo Government is Returned To Power With Clear Majority

North Goes Solid Liberal With Peace River Joining Prince Rupert and Others

It is once again a "Solid North" for the Liberals as a result of yesterday's provincial election.

In addition to Premier T. D. Pattullo, who was given an impressive majority over all in his old seat of Prince Rupert which he has represented continuously since 1916, W. J. Asselstine was re-elected in Atlin with a large majority; E. T. Kenney in Skeena with a big lead; M. M. Connelly in Omineca, and Hon. H. G. Perry in Fort George.

Peace River also followed suit and elected Glen Braden, Liberal, to succeed Clive Planta, young Independent member of the last legislature, who was snowed under on this occasion.

Smithers gave Kenney 309 votes and Doney, his C. C. F. opponent, 201. Terrace voted 272 for Kenney and 135 for Doney. Usk gave Kenney 44 and Doney 22. At Port Essington Kenney received 35 votes and Doney, 13. New Hazelton voted 32 for Kenney and 23 for Doney. At Pacific the vote was 14 for Kenney and eight for Doney. Remo voted 19 for Kenney and eight for Doney.

At Stewart Asselstine, Liberal, got more votes than his two opponents combined, receiving 149 whereas C. H. Lake, C. C. F., got 71 and Ernest Love, Conservative, 70.

Returned as Premier

HON. THOMAS DUFFERIN PATTULLO

Youthful and immaculate 64-year old Premier T. D. Pattullo took to the air to successfully campaign for the re-election of himself and his Liberal government.

Between a Thursday and a Sunday, May 12-15, he flew about 1500 miles from Vancouver to Prince Rupert, Stewart and back to Victoria. It wasn't a new experience for him as he made an aerial tour to the Yukon last summer and commuted between the coast and Ottawa by air several times.

His Yukon visit had a sequel this spring when he announced that the provincial and Dominion governments had agreed to inclusion of the Territory into British Columbia if the legislative authorities agreed.

He first came west as a Yukon government official. With gold-rush days over he went south to Prince Rupert and has represented that seat in the legislature since 1916. He will be dean of the legislature.

He was made minister of lands in 1916 and has been a minister, opposition leader or premier since.

His Special Powers Act after he became Premier in 1933 aroused national interest. It gave many of the powers of the legislature to the government, but it was never invoked.

On national questions he strongly favors amendment of the British North America Act, and on national defence he has stated: "Canada can never be a military country but we should be prepared to do our share in any cause we believe just."

He is a native of Woodstock, Ont., where his father, George Robson Pattullo, was prominent in Liberal circles during the Sir Oliver Mowat regime.

PATTULLO'S EASY WIN

Had More Votes Than All His Three Opponents Combined

With outside polls bringing George Weaver, the C. C. F. candidate into second place ahead of Charles V. Evitt, Conservative, Premier T. D. Pattullo continued today, as outlying polls reported their results, to maintain a clear majority over all three opponents following yesterday's provincial election.

Twenty-six out of 38 polls this morning gave the following totals: Colthurst, Social Credit, 13. Evitt, Conservative, 613. Pattullo, Liberal, 1354. Weaver, C. C. F., 641. Polling points in the riding so far reported are as follows:

C. C. F. STRENGTH ABOUT THE SAME AS IN LAST HOUSE—SOCIAL CONSTRUCTIVES AND SOCIAL CREDIT COMPLETELY REJECTED—PATTERSON AND TELFORD WIN.

VICTORIA, June 2: (CP)—Government benches in British Columbia's Nineteenth Legislature today were reserved for Liberal followers of Premier T. D. Pattullo while those of His Majesty's honorable opposition were set aside for newly elected Conservative members. The mandate to govern this coast province for another five years was given to the 64-year old Ontario-born Premier early this morning when counting of ballots cast in the general election showed that he and 29 followers had been returned with another leading in one of two ridings so far undecided.

Taking over the Opposition from the British Columbia Constructive forces of Rev. Robert Connell who failed to elect a single one of their fourteen candidates, the Conservative party returns to the provincial political ring under leadership of Dr. Frank Patterson after an absence of four years. The Conservatives, with victory conceded in eight seats, just edged out Dr. Lyle Telford's Co-operative Commonwealth Federation group who are watching for a seventh member in Burnaby where Ernest Winch, Burnaby brick-layer, is leading six opponents by a comfortable margin with five polls to come.

Social Credit proponents see all of their eighteen candidates defeated. Only in Mackenzie was any kind of a showing made and, even there, the leader of the movement, A. D. Creer, was far behind four opponents. This riding, along with Burnaby, is still doubtful with the Conservative candidate in the lead.

Two Socialists and one Communist in lower mainland industrial ridings failed to break into the political scene as did the one man Financial Justice party in Vancouver-Burrard.

Liberals, who had thirty-five seats in the last legislature, lost six to the reorganized Conservatives and one to the C. C. F. but took one—Peace River—from the Independents and another from the Constructionists. The C. C. F. took Comox from the Liberals, Colin Cameron winning over L. A. Hanna.

ENTIRE CABINET RE-ELECTED

Premier T. D. Pattullo's entire cabinet was re-elected including Dr. George Weir, Provincial Secretary and drafter of the state health insurance, who retained a seat in Vancouver-Point Grey where Conservatives replaced two other former Liberal members—S. S. McKeen and Robert Wilkinson.

Dr. Frank Patterson, noted bone specialist, called into the political arena to rehabilitate the Conservative fortunes after the 1933 defeat of Dr. S. F. Tolmie's Conservative regime which went to the polls as Unionists, was returned in Dewdney with a majority of around 250, taking the seat from D. W. Strachan, the former Liberal member.

Dr. Lyle Telford, white-haired C. C. F. leader, and Harold Winch, rolled up impressive margins in Vancouver East. Telford with more than six thousand and his youthful running-mate with close to that mark.

GOVERNMENT ENDORSED

Government supporters promptly interpreted the Liberal victory as an endorsement of the Premier's avowed intention of carrying on an energetic effort to obtain better terms for British Columbia under Confederation. Liberal campaigners made the better terms question one of the main planks in their platform.

Political observers likewise look to the Conservative bloc to urge in the legislature drastic administrative economies. It was around the economy plank and a reduction of the number of seats in the legislature that they built their platform.

Prominently mentioned as attorney-general in the new Liberal cabinet is Gordon Wismer who was returned in Vancouver Centre. It is expected that Premier Pattullo, who has held the portfolio since the elevation of Hon.

Appreciation of Premier

To the People of Northern British Columbia:
I wish to extend to the people of Prince Rupert my deep appreciation of the splendid support given me in the election yesterday and to the people of all the northern constituencies that elected supporters of the government. This will assist the present government to carry out its policies. I feel most deeply the renewed trust imposed in me in my own constituency and I assure you I shall try my best to be deserving of that trust.

Election Results

Most people are pleased that the election is over and that Hon. T. D. Pattullo is returned with all his cabinet and sufficient supporters to enable him to carry on the administration of affairs with efficiency. The fact that he goes back with a smaller support than in the previous election is not attributable to inroads from the former opposition but to the increase in Conservative sentiment in the province which enabled the Conservative party to elect enough members to make itself once more a force to be reckoned with. It is a distinct revival for them and seems to indicate that the people of the province, while supporting Liberal policies, do not wish to advance too rapidly.

The Vote For Pattullo

The vote for Premier Pattullo was a splendid one. It is all the more remarkable in that it is given after more than twenty years of representation of the constituency. The news telegraphed to him last night must have come as a cheering note at a time when the counting in the other constituencies showed that the election results were still in doubt. It indicated to him quite clearly that there was a place which in spite of enforced absence he can still look to as his home town which is ready to back him in the efforts he is making for the common weal.

Forget Differences

The election is over and it is wise for everyone to remember that. While there does not seem to have been much bitterness engendered by the efforts of each party to elect its man, it is almost impossible to avoid irritations. Now that the election campaign is over we can get together to forward the interests of Prince Rupert without thought of what has happened this week.

The opposition candidates fought a good fight and lost like good sportsmen. Doubtless they must have had some idea beforehand of what was about to happen. Many good friends of Mr. Evitt voted for his opponent because of the policy which he espouses and also because of the idea that the Premier was in a better position to forward the interests of the city than could any of the other candidates. After all politics, while fifty percent sentiment is also fifty percent self-interest and the feeling was prevalent that the present was the time to let the public welfare take the place of sentiment. In view of the fact that Liberals are in a majority in the next legislature, it is a happy outcome that the Prime Minister is still there to lead them and that he is backed by a clear majority of the people of his constituency.

DEFENCES OF RUPERT

Position of City Similar to That of Hartlepool Where Only Battle On British Soil Was Fought During War

The United States is putting in stronger and larger artillery, coast defences and increasing the air, sea and land forces on the Pacific. It is following the naval axiom that the most improbable thing is the most likely to happen and is preparing for any eventuality.

Canada, too, is reconsidering its coast defences with the result that a coast defence battery has been established at Prince Rupert. This is not only to protect Prince Rupert but to provide a place for retreat or rest for war ships or other vessels that may be attacked at sea. An air base and battery of big guns will also be located in the neighborhood for use in case of attack.

In the last war it was shown that ships had no chance against strongly fortified positions on land as the guns in a fort provided so small a mark that it was almost impossible to hit them. At any rate the chances of doing damage were very small compared with the chances taken by ships at sea. This was particularly exemplified during the attack by the British on the Dardanelles where it was found that in spite of a heavy bombardment lasting for two months only two guns had been dislodged.

Six-inch or 9.2 guns are generally used although smaller guns are sometimes very effective. The big guns can fire seven rounds a minute up to 20,000 yards. So far no work has commenced on the forts for the local battery but it is all in the plans as well as preparations for establishing an air force here.

An Analogous Case

Hartlepool on the east coast of England is in a somewhat similar position to Prince Rupert. It was the only place of any importance in England that was attacked by German ships during the war. It was defended by 4.6 and 6-inch guns and taking refuge in the harbor were two light cruisers and four destroyers.

Information had been received through the British intelligence department that an attack on the English coast was to be expected and everything was ready to receive the visitors. The forts were manned by militia similar to those at Prince Rupert.

Three enemy ships came on December 16, 1914, flying the British colors but they were soon discovered to be enemy vessels that carried 11-inch guns. They opened fire at three miles and threw a smoke screen behind which they advanced to 4,000 yards when the shore batteries opened fire and every round was a hit. The Germans fired 1500 rounds but the captain of the Derflinger was killed and the casualties on the ships were large.

The three big German vessels retired and thus ended the only attack on the British coast during the war.

It has been pointed out by authorities that no large force is likely to attack a place like Prince Rupert. Raiders and swift cruisers are the chief danger. The damage wrought by such vessels as the Emden during the war must be guarded against. Also there must be a place where British craft might take refuge or obtain necessary repairs. In the Hartlepool engagement two men in the battery and seven infantrymen were killed whereas the enemy casualties numbered 113 and 300 wounded.

A story is told in regard to the Hartlepool engagement that a sentry, when the ships were sighted, was walking up and down in "a smart and soldierlike manner," according to instructions. When the smoke of battle cleared away he was still seen "walking up and down in a soldierlike manner" uninjured.

Had there been no defences at that point, the cruisers would have been destroyed and the district damaged by the raiders.

Prince Rupert has a strategic position. There is a ship repair plant and plans are being made to establish both seaplane and airplane bases, to build forts and train the men to carry out the necessary defences.

Misses Evelyn and Louise Zarelli, who have been on a visit to Vancouver, Victoria and elsewhere in the south, returned home on the Prince Rupert this morning.

PERSONALITY BRIEFS

The Co-operative Commonwealth Federation in Nanaimo said A. M. Stephens was a C.C.F. candidate in Alberni-Nanaimo. Mr. Stephens said so himself, but the provincial executive said he was not. The executive suspended him from the party because he advocated a United Front of radical parties, including Communists. Stephens was unsuccessful against Hon. G. S. Pearson.

Hugh Savage, Independent in Cowichan-Newcastle, won his seat in 1933 after he declared he intended to apply Oxford Group principles to politics. He made a poor showing yesterday.

Thomas Uphill, a one-man Labor party from Fernie since 1920 is elected for the fifth time. Once a year he not only lays before the Legislature his views on the difficulties of the working man but lends a lighter touch with humorous observations on life as seen by a man who has been a coal miner, and an alderman, and mayor of a mining town.

T. A. Love, Conservative in Grand Forks-Greenwood, has been Mayor of Grand Forks for 11 years. He was defeated by E. C. Henniger, veteran Liberal.

H. G. Perry, Speaker of the last legislature, had as Conservative opponent, F. P. Burden, former minister of lands in the Tolmie government and former Agent-General for British Columbia in London and John McInnis, C.C.F. The latter gave Perry a hard run.

Herbert Gargrave, secretary of the British Columbia branch, and Don Smith, chairman of the publicity committee, were two front-rank C.C.F. men offering in the general election. Gargrave in McKenzie and Smith in Esquimalt. Both were beaten.

The only Communist running was Rev. Edwin Baker, formerly a C.C.F. supporter, in New Westminster. He was badly submerged.

J. B. Leyland, Independent in North Vancouver, is Reeve of West Vancouver, municipality noted for balanced budgets and in line to profit most from the $6,000,000 bridge across First Narrows of Vancouver Harbor, now being built. British interests are spending millions of dollars in real estate development in his constituency. Leyland gave Mrs. Dolly Steeves C.C.F., a close run.

R. W. Bruhn, former minister of public works in the Tolmie Conservative government, was one of the leaders of the Independent Non-Partisan movement in 1933 and one of the only two supporters of the movement who were elected. He ran in Salmon Arm with endorsement of the Conservative party and was easily re-elected.

R. L. Maitland, K.C., Conservative who led the poll in Vancouver-Point Grey, has appeared in many appeal cases before the Supreme Court of Canada and the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. He was minister without portfolio in the Tolmie government and was prominently mentioned for party leadership before the choice of Dr. Frank Patterson.

Rev. Robert Connell, submerged in Victoria, led two opposition parties in one legislature. He was house leader of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation group of seven from 1933 to 1936, the first official opposition in a Canadian legislature whose object was Socialism. Then last summer he repudiated a newly-adopted platform which he considered "impractical and impossible of achievement," and formed what is now the Constructive party. He took three C.C.F. members with him to replace his old party as the opposition. He led the Constructive party in the present elections on a platform of "honest government," free from political patronage but was badly rejected with all his followers.

Dr. Frank Patterson, Conservative leader, went to the home of premiers to enter the British Columbia legislature. The riding of Dewdney twice before gave political homes to non-resident party leaders, Premiers Sir Richard McBride and John Oliver.

For many years the voice of Dr. Lyle Telford, president of the British Columbia Branch of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, has been raised in indictment of governments and capitalism. The stout, white-haired physician has appeared three times as a C.C.F. candidate and since its inception has fought vigorously to bring the party to power, including its 1933 bid when it polled 120,406 votes to elect seven members while the Liberal party elected 34 members with 160,165 votes. "I'm crazy to stand again," he asserted. "I'm the worst lunatic outside an asylum." He won in the safe C.C.F. seat of Vancouver East Local politics have known Telford for 20 years. He was born in Valens, Ontario, in 1889, and came to British Columbia in 1906.

E. E. Winch, C.C.F. candidate in Burnaby, and Harold Winch in Vancouver East, the father and son combination, respectively in the last legislature, were re-elected. The statement of the elder Winch early last year that C.C.F. and Communist aims were similar, drew a rebuke from the then house leader, Rev. Robert Connell and was a forerunner of the party break which started the Constructive group. Harold supported his father and resigned as whip.

Mr. Brown spoke on the subject "Free Speech," expressing the opinion that there should be legislation compelling the statement of facts in election campaigns and public speaking. The club received a final report from the Coronation dance committee, showing a net profit of $83 which was turned over to the celebration committee.

Bernice Palmer says . . .

Well the rabbit experiment hasn't turned out much of a success. For all my work and devotion, only one is still living and, like his namesake, Haile Selassie, looks most forlorn. Next time I shall let nature take care of her own business. After all, her methods are older than mine. And another thing, now that Selassie is going on two weeks old and bids fair to live to maturity, what are we going to do with him? We could never enjoy eating a rabbit raised by hand on an eyedropper, nor would we have the heart to sell him. It is all very confusing. And the superiority of Mrs. Longears. She just sniffs every time I look at her family (three times the size of mine) as much as to say, "I know you couldn't do anything about it."

After three days of heavy showers, it has at last cleared up but is so cold it is hard to decide which was worse. You see, deceived by a week of near tropic weather, everyone removed the stoves that had been used during the winter, glad at last California weather had come into her own. And now look. It reminds me of old Pat Carey who used to be watchman in the early days on the G. T. P. wharf. He used to say he never did see why people wanted to leave Prince Rupert for a change when they could have more different kinds of weather right where they were in one week, than any other city could offer in a year. That about sums up the situation here. CHEERIO!

DERBY WAS RUN TODAY

Victory of Middy Sun Brings Fortune of $80,800 to New Westminster Man

EPSOM DOWNS, Eng., June 2: (CP)—Mrs. G. B. Miller's Middy Sun today won the 158th running of the Derby. Mrs. F. Nagle's Sandprite was second and the Aga Khan's Le Grand Duc third. The win for Middy Sun meant a small fortune for C. J. Pinceo of New Westminster who held an Irish Sweepstake ticket on that horse. He will receive $80,800 owing to the fact that he sold half interest to a New York syndicate.

TERRACE

On election day everybody was seen in town at least once in the day. Settlers who seldom come, prospectors from distant claims, all were here. The vote was: Kenney 272, Doney 135.

A fire alarm Monday caused plenty of excitement. All the cars and the crews from the sawmills went to put it out. There was not much damage. It was a smoke house behind Mr. West's and some outbuildings burned with it.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to go... The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks pink.
