UNITED STATES FLEET WILL COME TO PACIFIC COAST

U.S. TO CONCENTRATE SEA POWER IN PACIFIC

Washington, Nov. 24—President Taft has ordered all navy officers to be prepared for the removal of the reserve fleet to the Pacific, where a permanent station is to be established at San Francisco. The announcement comes with startling suddenness, and is deemed a direct proof of the United States intention to dominate the Pacific, regardless of the ambition of Japan.

The reserve fleet consists of 8 battleships, but these will be greatly enlarged in the next year or two. The naval power of America will be concentrated in the Pacific to "guard the interests of civilization," the officials say.

MAY ASK CITIZENS TO VOTE UPON A CARNEGIE LIBRARY

On election day it is quite probable that the citizens will be asked to say whether they want a library, and if so whether they want a Carnegie Library.

C. W. White, Secretary of the Vancouver Branch of the B. C. Library Association, has already written the city council to see whether the city can arrange for a Carnegie Library in Prince Rupert. Ald. Clayton, Ald. Douglas, Ald. Newton and

Ald. Morrissey all desire a city library, but Aids. Clayton and Morrissey object to the Carnegie scheme. Ald. Newton is prepared to support any library scheme—if not the best—then the next best.

Alderman Hilditch pointed out that a room was already set apart in the new City Hall to be used as a library.

A plebiscite on the library matter will probably be taken.

CITY ORDERS ITS CEMENT FROM HIGHEST TENDERER

A contract for some 500 barrels of cement has been awarded to the Westholme Lumber Co. on the recommendation of the City Engineer, the contention being that the Westholme people are the only firm having the cement on the ground ready for use. The Westholme Lumber Company was not the lowest tender. Messrs. Schreiber & Co. were lowest, but their cement was objected to because it was packed in sacks instead of barrels, and it was decided to accept the Westholme Company's tender. Ald. Hilditch who explained the advantages of the Westholme stuff very fully remarked that this question had no business coming up in open council at all. It should have gone to the Works Department, he said.

RAILWAY GROWS BUSIER DAILY

A surprising amount of train traffic is now going on over the completed section of the G. T. P. out from Rupert. In an afternoon's excursion out to section two yesterday during the short time taken to traverse the first mile of track, there passed no fewer than six trains of various types, from the light engine and brake van to the ten car ballast train and the regular mixed freight and passenger train from Van Arsdol.

A Dangerous Corner

J. S. Carmichael had the misfortune to fall and bruise his face rather severely on Wednesday morning while turning the corner at Sixth Street and Second Ave. The sidewalk at this place is not by any means in good condition and a person is likely to take a nasty fall there on a frosty morning.

 Peking, Nov. 24—The Chinese officials has received confirmation of the murder of missionaries. They will order the decapitation of all who took part whether Manchu or Rebel.

CITY LUMBER FOR ALD. HILDITCH

The Board of Works has recommended that permission be granted Ald. Hilditch to build a temporary street at his own expense beside Centre Street, for the purpose of moving the Schreiber Block. City lumber will be used, the lumber to be sent afterwards to the cemetery road for construction there.

"WILL APPLY FOR AN INJUNCTION IF BY-LAW PASSES," SAYS ALD. MORRISSEY

In Final Letter to the Citizens, Ald. Morrissey urges them to defeat the By-law—Will Make a Microbe Hatchery of Hays Creek He Says

Citizens of Prince Rupert: This is my last message to you on the trunk sewer outrage, and it is to urge you to vote against the by-law on Saturday. The by-law as it now stands is nothing but a scheme to turn Hays Creek into a microbe hatchery, which will mean disease and death and injury to the town.

Speculators have already established a red light district on Comox Avenue. This council have established a chinese laundry district adjacent to it. Greater institutions for filth generating cannot be produced in the world. To find an outlet for the infection germinated in such districts, the present council proposes to establish a PROVINCIAL

CESS POOL in Hays Creek, a choice residential district, and asks you to vote a by-law for $75,000 of your money to construct it. DO NOT VOTE FOR THE BY-LAW.

If you shall vote for it and sanction is given by the people to its support, I may state that an injunction from the courts will be applied for to restrain the issue of bonds or the hypothecating of same to the banks until the Provincial Health Officer shall pass upon it, or until a signed agreement with map shall be attached showing the permanent outlet in Hays Cove, guaranteeing the immediate construction of a temporary extension to preserve strict sanitary conditions in our town. This agreement must be signed by the G.T.P. Ry. Co. and the City Council.

No citizen is more strongly in favor of a first class complete sewage system for our city than the writer, that will guarantee to its citizens honest returns for the money invested in a first class up-to-date sanitation system.

Thanking you for your patience with me, also the press for its generosity of space and time, I remain,

Yours very respectfully,
 DANIEL W. MORRISSEY,
 Alderman
 Prince Rupert, Nov. 24, 1911.

WOODWORTH SUPPLY FITTINGS

Following are the successful tenderers for supplies for the Woodworth water supply pipes and fittings within the city limits:

Cast iron pipe—Balfour, Guthrie & Co., Vancouver, amount $63,110.88.

Fire Hydrants—Canada Foundry Co. (through their Prince Rupert office), amount $2387.40.

Gate Valves—Drummond, McColl & Co., Vancouver, amount $1865.30.

See Howe & McNulty for the famous Kootenay Ranges.

PUMPING PLANT IS GOING AHEAD

Morse Creek pumping plant which will greatly increase the fire protection of Section 1, is as far advanced as possible without machinery. The engine requires parts from Vancouver which have been delayed. A large sheet steel stack lies on the plankway awaiting erection, which unless the wind abates will be a difficult matter. There is abundance of water in the dam at Morse Creek at present, enough to quench fifty fires. Cast iron pipe is on the ground awaiting laying, to carry the water supply to the business section hydrants.

U.S. TROOPS FOR CHINA

Manila, Nov. 24.—The Eighteenth Regiment is preparing to go to China at once. Other regiments are preparing to follow.

PUBLIC PITY THE POOR HORSE

Comment in the city is generally condemnatory regarding the nominal sentence imposed in the recent case of cruelty to a horse. Many who saw the way the animal was handled feel that the sentence was lighter than the offence deserved.

ARE BALLASTING NEAR THE WHARF

Considerable ballasting is being done on the G. T. P. yards at the tie wharf. Six or eight tracks are available for sidings, and these are being raised eighteen inches, and put in finished shape with fine ballast. The yards will be in splendid order for heavy traffic by spring. Already elaborate bridge building cars, snow-plows, and other rolling stock is waiting there, with lines of box and flat cars.

Warm clean rooms at the Savoy.

RATEPAYERS FORMING A NON-PARTY ASSOCIATION

Active steps are being taken to form a Ratepayers' Association in Prince Rupert. A number of the leading ratepayers met last night and discussed preliminaries. A strong feeling exists that the interests of the ratepayers are being sacrificed to serve political ends, and the men who met last night are pledged to do away with political influence altogether in their organization.

The rules of the Association permit only ratepayers willing to serve their own and the interests of the community exclusive of political bias, to find place in the organization. It is estimated that over two hundred such spirited men can be rallied together in Prince Rupert.

The new Association may seek to place representatives on the Council.

SECTION TWO LOTS LOOK TO BE ALL WELL DRAINED

Under the worst possible conditions two local newspaper men toiled over section two yesterday afternoon. The rain splashed down, the wind blew its hardest. There was scant comfort for man or beast all over the townsite. Men with more leisure were within doors, but the fact that there was nothing doing in town gave the Knights of the Pencil their opportunity, but in spite of the weather section two looked attractive.

The lots by any means are not sloppy. The natural drainage of the section is good. Large quantities of surface water trickle off by the railway grade to the sea, and on the other side to Morse Creek, to the disadvantage of Morse Creek as a drinking water supply should section two be soon built upon. There are many level lots, some mountainous ones, and plenty of in-betweens.

LABOR LEADERS TO STAND SECOND TRIAL FOR CONTEMPT

(Canadian Press Despatch.)
 Washington, Nov. 24—President Sam. Gompers and his colleagues in control of the A. F. of L., Frank Morrison and John Mitchell have to stand a second trial for contempt arising out of the famous Bucks stove case, by order of the Supreme Court of Columbia.

the news was conveyed to him of the adverse decision. The other leaders laughed. They will welcome a conviction and penitentiary term, believing that it would crystallize public opinion and convince the people of America that the courts are corrupt and the Republic imperilled.

From Chicago comes the news that the probable successor to President Graves, late president of the White Pass Railway who died suddenly in Ottawa, recently, will be Mr. Oldickson, formerly of the Burlington Road.

THE OLD AMUR IS TO BE SOLD

The steamer Amur is on the market. The C.P.R. will replace the Amur with the new steamer Sophia, which was launched at the yards of Bow, McLachlan & Co., at Paisley, last week, the Amur having been found no longer suitable to the requirements of the company's trade on the northern B.C. route. After her stranding some months ago at Wrangel Narrows the steamer was brought to Esquimalt and it was decided not to make repairs. The steamer has been lying disengaged since, and now the C.P. has decided to offer the steamer for sale.

CITY WILL HELP ON CITY BAND

Instruments will be purchased by the city for a brass and reed band, the instruments to be marked and to remain the property of the city. The exact amount to be donated has yet to be decided by the Finance Committee and will have to be made up out of savings from other city expenses.

A Fireman's Wedding

Romance clings about the marriage of a fireman always, and tonight over in the hall at Seal Cove, the wedding of Mr. Jas. Gibson, of the city fire department is due to take place. The future Mrs. Gibson is Miss Alice Gamble of Seal Cove, one of the young lady "old timers" of Prince Rupert.

Meeting Fell Through

Owing to the lack of attendance the meeting in the police court last evening which consisted of two Empress men and three Crescents, had to be postponed. Buck up you baseball players and put in an appearance at the next meeting which will take place shortly.

New Laundry Rig

THE VOTE ON THE TRUNK SEWER SCHEME

Tomorrow the property owners of the city are to vote on the by-law to raise $75,000 for the purpose of building a trunk sewer down a portion of Hay's Creek. This sewer will eventually drain Sections One, Five, Six and half each of Sections Seven and Eight.

A sewer there is necessary, and will become increasingly so as the population grows. It is only wisdom to prepare sanitation in advance for the great rush that will take place to Prince Rupert within a year.

The objections to the present scheme, are that in its present incomplete state it may become offensive to Hays Creek residents, and that no guarantee of an ultimate outlet is apparent.

The News publishes letters from Ald. Morrissey opposing the scheme, and from City officials favoring the scheme, in order to enable the voters to come to a decision.

It is admitted by members of the Council that the resolution regarding a temporary outlet to tide water is not binding on any future council, however they may be disposed to regard it.

THE Pillar of Light

By Louis Tracy

"My dear boy," she cried vehemently, "you don't understand the value of such credentials. You always speak and act as if you were on board one of your hectoring warships, where the best metal and the heaviest guns are all-important. It is not so in society, even the society of a small Cornish town. Although I am an earl's daughter I cannot afford to be quietly sneered at by some who would dispute my social supremacy."

As each complaisant sentence rolled forth he laughed quietly in the darkness. "Mother," said he suddenly, "Mr. Traill and I have had a lot of talk about dead endings the past two days. I have not seen you until this evening before dinner, so I have not had an opportunity to tell you all that has occurred."

"Some new embroglio, I suppose," she said, not at all appeased by his seeming carelessness as to what the Dowager Lady Tregarthen or Mrs. Taylor-Smith might say when gossip started.

"Well it is, in a sense," he admitted. "You see, we are jolly hard up. It's a squeeze for you to double my pay, and as I happened to inform Mr. Traill that I was going to marry Enid, long before he knew she was his daughter, it came as a bit of a shock afterwards to her that he intends to wed her with two hundred thousand pounds on her wedding-day. Now the question to be discussed is not whether the adopted daughter of a poor lighthouse-keeper who may be Lord This-and-That in disguise is a good match for me, but whether an impecunious Lieutenant in the Royal Navy is such a tremendous catch for a girl with a great fortune."

Lady Margaret was stunned. She began to breathe quickly. Her utmost expectations were surpassed. Before she could utter a word her son pretended to misunderstand her agitation.

"Of course it was fortunate that Enid and I had jolly well made up our minds in some way or another, but it was a near thing, a matter of flag signals—otherwise I should have been compelled to consider myself ruled out of the game. Therefore, during your tea-table tactics, if the Dowager, or that old spit-fire, Mrs. Taylor-Smith, says a word to you about Brand, just give 'em a fib-roaster with Enid's two hundred thousand pounds. What they are reeling under the blow throw out a gentle hint that Constance may ensnare Traill's nephew. 'Ensnare' is the right word, isn't it? The best of it is, I know they have been worrying you for months about my friendship with 'girls of their class.' Oh, the joy of the encounter! It must be blowing up a battle-ship with a luppenny hapenny torpedo-boat."

So her ladyship—not without pondering over certain entries in the Books of the Proudly-born, which recorded the birth and marriage of Sir Stephen Brand, ninth baronet, "present whereabouts unknown"—went to bed, but not to sleep, whereas Jack Stanhope never afterwards remembered undressing, so thoroughly tired was he, and so absurdly happy, notwithstanding the awkward situation divulged at the dinner.

Pyne, left with his uncle, set himself to divert the other man's thoughts from the embarrassing topic of Mrs. Vansittart.

He knew that Brand was not likely to leave them in dubiety as to the past. Discussion now was useless, a mere idle guessing at probabilities, so he boldly plunged into the mystery as yet surrounding Enid's first year of existence.

Mr. Traill, glad enough to discuss a more congenial subject, marshalled the ascertained facts. It was early in the see that here, at least, he stood on firm ground.

"Your father, as you know, was a noted yachtsman, Charlie," he said. "Indeed, he was one of the first men to cross the Atlantic in his own boat under steam and sail. Twenty years ago, in this very month, he took my wife and me, with your mother, you, and our little Edith, then six months old, on a delightful trip along the Florida coast and the Gulf of Mexico. It was then arranged that we should pass the summer among the Norwegian fjords, but the two ladies were nervous about the ocean voyage east in April, so your father brought the Esmeralda across, and we followed by mail steamer. During the last week of May and the whole of June we cruised from Christiania almost to the North Cape. The fine keen air restored my wife's somewhat delicate health, and you and Edith thrived amazingly. Do you remember the voyage?"

"It is a dim memory, helped a good deal I imagine, by what I have heard since."

"Well, on the fourth of July, putting into Hardanger to celebrate the day with some fellow-countrymen, I received a cable which rendered my presence in New York quite imperative. There was a big development scheme just being engineered in connection with our property. In fact, the event which had such a tragic sequel practically quadrupled your fortune and mine. By that time, the ladies were so enthusiastic about the sea-going qualities of the yacht that they would have sailed around the world in her, and poor Pyne had no difficulty in persuading them to take the leisurely way home, whilst I raced off via Newcastle and Liverpool to the other side. I received my last cable from them dated Southampton, July 20th, and they were due in New York somewhere about August 5th or 6th, allowing for ordinary winds and weather. During the night of July 21st, when midway between the Scilly Isles and the Fastnet, they ran into dense fog. Within five minutes, without the least warning, the Esmeralda was struck amidships by a big Nova Scotian barque. The little vessel sank almost like a stone. Nevertheless, your father, backed by his skipper and a splendid crew, lowered two boats, and all hands were saved, for the moment. It was Pyne's boast that his boats were always stored with food and water against any kind of emergency, but, of course, they made every effort to reach the ship which had sunk rather than endeavor to sail back to this coast. As the Esmeralda was under steam at the time, her boilers exploded as she went down, and this undoubtedly caused the second catastrophe. The captain noticed that the strange ship went off close hauled to the wind, which blow steadily from the west, so he, in the leading boat, with your father and mother, you and my wife and child, followed in that direction. He shouted to four men in the second boat to keep close, as the fog was terrific. The barque, the John S., hearing the noise of blasting boilers, promptly swung round, and in the effort to render assistance caused the second and far more serious catastrophe. The captain's boat encountered her just as the two crafts were getting way on them. Someone in the boat shouted, they heard an answering hail, and instantly crashed into the barque's bows. The sail became entangled in the martingale of the bowsprit, the boat was driven under and filled, and the second boat crashed into her. All the occupants of the captain's boat were thrown into the sea. You were grasped by a negro, a powerful swimmer. He, with yourself and two sailors, were rescued, and that was all. Your father was a strong man and he could swim well. He must have been stunned or injured in some way. The two sailors jumped from the second boat and clung to the barque's bobstays. The whole thing was over in a few seconds."

Mr. Traill rose and paced slowly to the window. Pyne stared into the fire. There was no need for either of them to conjure up the heart-rending scene as the sharp prow of the sailing-ship cleft through the seas and spurned the despairing hands clutching at her black walls.

Too often had the elder man pictured that horrific vision. It had darkened many hours, blurred many a forgetful moment of pleasure with a quick rush of pain.

Even now, as he looked out into the still street, he fancied he could see Enid's mother smiling at him from a luminous mist.

He passed a hand over his eyes and gazed again at the moonlit roadway. From the black shadows opposite a policeman crossed towards the hotel, and he heard a bell ring. These trivial things restored his wandering thoughts. How the discovery of his lost child had brought back a flood of buried memories!

"It is easy to understand that I should be fanciful to-night," he said, returning to the cheery glow of the fire and the brightness of the room. The whole story of the disaster centred in the narratives of the sailors and the negro. They all declared that both boats went down. The crew of the barque, who ran to starboard, as the leading boat was swamped and sank on that side, imagined they heard cries to port. But though they lowered a boat, and cruised about the locality for hours, they found nothing but wreckage. You, Charlie, when I went to St. John's five weeks later, could only tell me that you had felt very cold and wet. That is all I ever knew of the fate of the Esmeralda until, in God's good time, I met Stanhope on board the Falcon."

"Then the manner of Enid's rescue is conjectural?"

"Absolutely. But Stanhope, who is a sailor, and two men named Spence and Jones, who were Brand's colleagues on the Gulf Rock at that time, have helped me in building up a complete theory. It is quite clear that the second boat did not sink, as was reported by the captain of the John S. She was damaged, and had her mast broken by the collision. In the darkness and confusion she would be readily carried past the barque, which was probably traveling four knots an hour. The two sailors, in springing from her gunwale into the bobstays, would certainly cant her considerably, and at that instant my poor wife either threw her child into the boat with a last frenzied effort, or someone caught the baby from her as she sank. The boat was seen by Brand floating in with the tide on the morning of the 30th of July. She had been nine days at sea. Some survivor must have given the little one nourishment in that time, as a twelve-months-old child could not possibly have lived. In all likelihood, the bark of fog clung to the surface of the sea and followed the tides, as there was little or no wind on the days following the loss of the yacht. Again, there were provisions in the boat, but no water. Why? Either the water-casks had started their staves when the smash took place, or a careless steward had failed to fill them. The next thing is the identity of the boat. By the stupidity of a sailor, one of the Esmeralda's life-boats was burnt to the water's edge in Norway. He upset a tin of petroleum whilst he was opening it, and a lighted match did the remainder. Indeed, he and another man at the time narrowly escaped death. A boat was purchased, but accident or mischance prevented the Esmeralda's name being painted on it. There was a Norwegian port number on the stern-board, and this was smashed away by the falling mast. As the sail was trailing in the water when the boat was found by Brand, it is assumed that the survivor or survivors who paid some heed to the child, suffered from injuries which prevented him or them from hauling it in. One man's body was found on board and he had been dead many days. Finally, we have the evidence of the child's clothing."

"The girls told me something of the story on the rock," said Pyne. "Ge-whiz! I little dreamed that Enid, or Edith, I mean, was my first cousin."

"You know that her garments were marked E. T., and that a little shawl was pinned about her with a gold brooch with emeralds arranged as a four-leafed shamrock?"

"No, I fancy that they were hindered in their yarn. Believe me, there was always enough to do in that wonderful place. Besides, I knew about the brooch. Had they mentioned it, I guess the gray matter at the base of my head would have become agitated by thought."

"Yes, of course. I am talking to you as if you were hearing this sad history for the first time."

"It is new enough. It has a fresh point of view, which is everything. Now, about that brooch?"

"I bought it in Bergen. I remember your poor father laughing about it. It was odd to find an Irish emblem in that out-of-the-way little town. I have not seen it yet, but it is ludicrous to think that so many coincidences can affect two different children cast adrift about the same time in open boats at the junction of the St. George's Channel and the North Atlantic."

"It's the kind of thing that doesn't occur with monotonous regularity," agreed Pyne. "By the way, I have just made an interesting discovery on my own account."

"What is it?"

"It might easily have happened that not Enid—sorry—I mean Edith—but I should have been the younger cast adrift in that boat."

"Yes, that is so, of course."

"And I would have grown up as Constance's brother. Guess things have panned out all right as it is."

It was on the tip of his uncle's tongue to ask for some explanation of the very gratified tone in which Master Charles made this remark, but the head waiter entered, solemnly, with the air of respectful and discreet decorum which only an English family butler or a head waiter can assume without burlesque.

"Beg pardon, gentlemen," he said, "but I thought you would like to know about the lady in No. 17, Mrs. Vansittart."

"Yes, what of her?" demanded Traill, whilst Pyne found himself imagining that which caused his heart to beat more rapidly than even the fight for life in the saloon of the Chinook.

"She went out, sir about an hour ago, and—"

"Has she not returned?"

"No, sir. A policeman has just called to say that she was taken ill, and is now being cared for at Mr. Brand's house."

Uncle and nephew glared at each other as men do when they call the gods to witness that no madder words could be spoken. Before the waiter, they performed restrained themselves. But Pyne shouted:

"Where is the policeman?"

"He is down below, sir. Shall I bring him up?"

Sergeant Jenkins, however, was too loyal in his friendship to Brand to tell them exactly how it came about that Mrs. Vansittart was sheltered in L. burnum Cottage. He admitted that he directed the lady to the house in the first instance, and that Mr. Brand told him subsequently to convey the stated message to the hotel.

Nevertheless, he was the richer for a sovereign as he went out.

Mr. Traill helped himself to a whiskey and soda.

"Here's to the reconciliation of Brand and his wife," he said, with a lighter tone and more cheerful manner than he would have deemed possible five minutes earlier.

Pyne followed his example.

"Say, uncle," he cried, "here's a queer item. When I first met Constance I spoke of Mrs. Vansittart, and I called her my prospective step-aunt."

"A d—d silly name, too."

"Constance seemed to think that, of its feminine equivalent. She corrected me. 'You mean your fiancée's aunt,' she said."

"Oh, did she?"

"Yes, and here's to her being my fiancée's mother."

DIRECTIONS FOR COOKING A HARE: FIRST—"CATCH YOUR HARE"

To produce good printing you must "first catch your good printer. . . You can't get good printing from a poor printer, even if he work with never so good an equipment. In view of the approaching election on Saturday on the Hays Creek Sewer Bylaw the following will be of interest...

Prince Rupert, Nov. 13, 1911. To His Worship the Mayor, City of Prince Rupert, B. C. Re Hays Sewer Outfall...

It is proposed to discharge the sewer temporarily into Hays Creek at Manhole 28, where there is a drop of 18 feet in the grade...

The purpose of this bylaw is to get the work commenced and make progress on that part of the work that can now be undertaken...

Respectfully submitted, JOHN HILDITCH, JOHN A. KIRKPATRICK, Members of Board of Works.

FREE TRIP ROUND THE WORLD

We have just arranged with one of our clients to place forty-two lots on the market under exceptional advantages to the purchasers. The lots are some of the best in Sections 7 and 8. The prices are as low as any on the market, and the terms so easy—monthly—that anyone can buy. Along with this exceptional offer, each lot admits the purchaser to a drawing for a FREE TRIP ROUND THE WORLD. If you hold the lucky ticket the trip is yours; or you can surrender it for a cash consideration. The chances are good—one in forty-two. Come in and investigate.
