Amelia Earhart was a true pioneer of the air.

Her record aloft was punctuated with an imposing array of "firsts," mostly for women, but containing also several feats that put her in the front rank of the world's fliers, masculine as well as feminine.

She was the first woman to fly the Atlantic, the first of her sex to solo it and the first person to wing away from America to Europe twice. Her solo flight, starting from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, on May 21, 1932, established a record for the crossing of 14 hours, 56 minutes. Highlights of Miss Earhart's career prior to her last ill-fated flight were as follows:

In the spring of 1895 the Marconi wireless system was born. The youthful inventor-he was only 21 -had found that two rods placed upight in the earth at a determined distance from each other would radiate electric impulses in accord with the laws governing the Hertzian waves.

He had established his transmitter near the window of the barn. The receiver was several hundred feet away and out of sight.

Giuseppe Vornelli, the carpenter assistant, was at the receiving end armed with a rifle. If he saw a magnetic arm vibrate he was to fire the gun.

Marconi pressed the telegraph key thrice, sending three dots, the letter "S" of the Morse code. A second later he heard the shot and knew that wireless telegraphy had been started on its way to practa-

Italy was so skeptical of the usefulness of the discovery that Signora Marconi took her son to England. There, with the aid of her relatives, he was granted the first patent for a practical system of wireless telegraphy, this being in 1896 when he was 22 years old.

Marconi's first wieless communication in England was between Penarth and Weston. Three years later he spanned the channel, es-; tablishing contact between England and France. Thereafter the British and Italian admiralties and the principal shipping companies adopted his system. In 1901 messages were sent between Cornwall, and St. Catherine's Isle of Wight, a distance of 183 miles. A few months later Marconi bridged the Atlantic, receiving signals transmitted 2100 miles from Poldhu, Cornwall, to St. John's, Newfoundland. There are a great many features of the present system that are not to be admired. We do not think that a stenographer should be appointed on the recommendation of the local executive of either party. At the same time the department is responsible for the work of the office and if the staff is not competent it does not seem right for the department to be blamed if the work is not satisfactory.

AMELIA GONE

Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam has evidently lost her life after years of successful flying as a result of which she became known over the whole world. She was drawing near the close of a long tour when she and her companion disappeared and nothing has been heard or seen of them since. The probability is the intrepid aviators shared a watery grave.

Now that Amelia failed after so many successes, there are those who blame her for taking chances. Yet she had been taking similar chances since the beginning of her air career. Hers was the spirit of the people who founded nations who conquered in battle, in science, and in discoveries and whose names have been handed down as among the world's great. Had this young lady landed safely on this continent she would have been again acclaimed as a great flyer. She was a great flyer, even though she failed at the last.

And then Bernice Patricia had managed to get into a pot of paint her brother had left around. One o the more advanced schools of child education teaches the children to paint with the fingers instead of brushes as being more "expressive." Well, Bernice Patricia felt the urge to express herself so intensely she not only used her fingers but brought both hands into the job. Everything in sight was painted including her pretty new tricycle. After daubing this with the gooey mess, she sat on the bike to see lif it was dry. It wasn't. After peelling the child's clothes off and going over it thoroughly with paint remover, I found I was in about as bad a state as she had been. I can better understand now why I received so little co-operation and support from the Fisheries Department when I used to ask for paint to go over my canoe! . . .

And Bradley, fired with an ambition to make money, had called in the junk man and sold not only his own heterogeneous collection but all my magazines stacked and just waiting for an opportunity to be read. If all this could happen to me in just a few hours away from home, I shudder to think what might become of the family should I decide to make it a regular thing. No, the price on the wear and tear of nerves and disposition, I am afraid, far outweights the monetary advantage. But what I would like to know is, how in the world other mothers manage? Or are my three children just gifted with a propensity for mischief?

PRICELESS PROTECTION from

LITTLE SAVINGS

MILLIONS of Canadians are today finding increasing happiness and peace of mind in the protection of Life Insurance.

Homes are safeguarded—families are protected from want and privation—children are educated and the aged are guaranteed financial independence—

All through little savings in Life Insurance!

If YOU are worried about "what might happen" if you live too long-or don't live long enough-seek the experienced counsel of a Life Insurance man.

He will tell you how Life Insurance will provide funds for your wife if she is ever faced with the task of carrying on single-handed. He will also explain how your savings in Life Insurance will help you in times of emergency and support you in old age.

United Church Clergyman and Family Move to Lakes Centre In Charge of New Congregation

Rev. and Mrs. F. Bushfield and son Harold have moved from Port Essington and are now living at Burns Lake. Before leaving Mr. and Mrs. Bushfield were recipients of a fine piece of Indian work for their home and a tea was given by Mrs. G. Davis at which Mrs. A. E. Perry and Mrs. Bushfield gave vocal selections and the native ladies of the Church gave a tea at the church in appreciation of the valuable services of their late pastor to the community.
