CEREMONY ON VIMY

Only Small Party There This Year But Big Celebration Recalled By Many

Canada's twin sentinels of peace surmounted Vimy Ridge yesterday, just as they did a year ago when, at the close of a solemn service, King Edward VIII released the drape from the sculptured figure of "Canada, Mourning her Dead" and inaugurated the most imposing national memorial that adorns the battlefields of the Old Western Front.

A year has passed since that memorable ceremony, participated in by close to 100,000 people. The crowds have not been so thick on Vimy Ridge, nor has there been such an assemblage of international notables as gathered on the steps of the memorial that day. But the pylons towering into the sky and the artistic groups whose symbolism give an unusual virtue to Canada's great monument mark a spirit that hovers above Vimy, and will continue to do so in the years to come.

More than 6000 Canadians attended the service 12 months ago. They had come from every province of the Dominion, and they were reinforced by others resident in England and France.

While the ceremony itself was the focal point of world attention, the personality of King Edward contributed to it a quality that had not previously distinguished functions of this character. King George V had never actually attended the unveiling of any of the magnificent memorials which dot the landscape, from Ypres to beyond the Somme.

Mingled With Pilgrims Edward was acclaimed with enthusiasm by the pilgrims from Canada; he spoke to them as comrades, and he recalled the notable part they had played in the war. He mingled with them, had a word of greeting for many and in no way evidenced any foreshadowing of the drama which five months later was to see him abdicate his throne, and pass the sceptre to his brother, King George VI.

Canada's Vimy Ridge memorial, conceived and carried to its completion by a Toronto architect, Walter S. Allward, was 12 years in the shaping. The finishing touches were applied only a few weeks prior to the historic ceremony.

One of the most impressive elements in the ceremony was the participation by Canadians. For 18 months previous to the occasion the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League had been organizing the pilgrimage. When the steamships sailed from Montreal on July 15 they carried no fewer than 6400 Canadian war veterans, their families and the dependents of men who had been killed in the war.

It was the greatest peace-time movement that had ever crossed the Atlantic. It was promoted and carried to its fulfillment by an organization of ex-soldiers, without assistance from any source, and entirely as their own venture.

This year a small party congregated on Vimy Ridge on the anniversary of the unveiling; and there, under J. C. G. Herwig of the Canadian Legion's Dominion Command, they held a brief service of remembrance.

CHINA'S MODERNIZED ARMY DEFYING JAPANESE MIGHT

Japan's armies, sweeping into Hopei province in North China are making their objective the ancient capital of Peiping and the invaders are reportedly equipped with light artillery such as that shown (at left), and with aeroplanes and tanks. China is massing to repel the invaders and Chiang Kai Shek's Nationalist armies are a more formidable force than they were when the famous 19th route army held Nippon's troops at bay in the Chappel sector of Shanghai. Proof that modern equipment is theirs is given (at right). Troops of the same type now being rushed northward from Nanking to defend Hopei, are shown (at right) sweeping the skies with a searchlight, while the soldier at top is drawing a bead with a modern automatic rifle. China is reported ready to beard the Jap at last.

Lord Dawson On Divorce

Physician to Royal Family Makes Important Pronouncement In Debate on New English Law

LONDON, July 27: (CP)—There could be nothing but praise, alike on the grounds of logic and humanity, for the granting of divorce for desertion and cruelty, declared Lord Dawson of Penn, physician to the Royal Family for 25 years. He was speaking in support of A. P. Herbert's marriage bill in the House of Lords.

The marriage bill would liberalize the present divorce law, making desertion, cruelty and insanity, as well as adultery, grounds for divorce. Lord Dawson's amendments, also adding habitual drunkenness and inveterate drug addiction to the legal grounds, were rejected.

Lord Dawson said desertion and cruelty both frustrated the purpose for which marriage existed. Yielding to a chance temptation was normal compared with the cold calculation of desertion or cruelty going through the years, converting a home into a chamber of torture.

Speaking to his own proposed amendments the eminent physician asked that in the case of homosexuality this should be made a cause alike to men and women. It was time for equality in that matter. He also regarded the omission of inveterate alcoholism and inveterate drug-taking as grounds. Drug addiction, although more subtle, could bring destruction to families with an ease which we all wished to avoid.

For all these reasons he supported the second reading of the bill. With certain amendments, it would make the institution of marriage more firm, and would make life more honest, more just, and more in accordance with the facts of life with which they had to deal today. It would look ahead to the stability and happiness of the country.

Changes must come, whether they were in thought or conduct, and Lord Dawson said he found it difficult to understand why the idea of marriage should be alone expected to remain static. Where the kernel of marriage had been lost, the tendency of the present age was to throw away the husk. The law, having lost its social sanctions, was increasingly disregarded. Surely, he said, the cure was to adapt the law to the prevailing mind of the community, and this is what the bill seemed to do.

In the days preceding the War, freedom and equality were coming to women, and with this an increase of sex consciousness. The war accentuated these changes and henceforth men and women had a freedom of companionship hitherto unknown. Time had been needed for the consequent adjustment and that adjustment had not even yet taken place.

Lord Dawson said he believed, at the same time, that marriages which were successful today reached a higher level of happiness than at any previous period. He urged that in spite of all existing difficulties it could not be said, speaking generally, that the institution of marriage was declining in Britain. He declared the home and the family still stood first and instanced "the sane and sympathetic care of children, never surpassed in any previous age."

Lord Dawson regretted the bill did not attempt to deal with or devise means of disentangling and remedying the causes of marriage disharmony in their early stages.

Fighting Commenced About Midnight and Severe Engagement Still in Progress in North China

NANKING, July 27:—Chinese military headquarters stated early today that Japanese forces had attacked Peiping shortly before midnight. The spokesman said that a severe engagement was in progress. The rattle of rifles, machine guns and artillery has broken out all around Peiping.

TIENSIN, July 27:—Japanese sources reported five hundred Chinese troops of a brigade stationed at Tungchow, twelve miles east of Peiping, had been killed or wounded in a punitive attack made by Japanese infantry and bombing planes.

The Domei news agency reported that the Japanese went into action when the Chinese refused to submit peacefully to be disarmed.

MANY JOIN FORESTERS

Five Hundred Young Men Now in Camps Learning About Woods And Well Occupied

VANCOUVER, July 26:—The Young Men's Forestry Training Plan is again under way with a total of 500 men in 28 camps. The Plan, this year will have a similar object to previous years, namely to give the young participants a rudimentary knowledge of forestry by letting them work under actual forest conditions.

Their time will be divided into three parts. Work, which will consist of building fire trails for forest protection; education, which will impart a knowledge of forestry and forest protection; and lastly, recreation which will follow the line of organized sports.

In previous years the plan has proved very satisfactory. The men have the opportunity to spend a few weeks out of doors, they acquire enough knowledge to aid them materially in obtaining employment and most important they come back to town with a healthy coat of tan and feeling like a million.

Where possible Y.M.F.T.P. men have been placed in the offices of the Forest Rangers as Ranger's Assistants so that they may gain a working knowledge of the duties of forest officers. About 100 men have been so employed this year.

TRUE GREATNESS

In the old days nobody amounted to anything unless they had taken part in the wars. Since then times have changed and we find many men and women being honored for serving their country faithfully in other walks of life. One of these was Sir Charles Saunders, the man who by persistent effort developed the well known marquis wheat, which was so well suited to conditions on the Canadian prairies that it changed the whole course of wheat raising in this country.

A single head of Marquis wheat was harvested in 1903. The seed in 1904 sent up 12 plants which yielded less than a pound of grain. In 1906 there were about two-thirds of a bushel, enough to make possible a further study of its properties. In 1907 23 pounds of seed were sent to the experimental farm at Indian Head, Sask. In 1908 it was tested at Brandon, Man. Those were bad years for wheat crops in Western Canada but Marquis did well and hopes that the problem of the western wheat grower was solved rode high. In 1909 distribution to the public started.

The story of the rise in popularity of Marquis wheat brings in the name of a world champion wheat grower, Wheeler of Rasthern, Sask. He was known as a good farmer and in 1910, Dr. Saunders sent him five bushels from which he grew 250 pounds, a tremendous yield. In 1911 a prize of $1000 was offered for the best wheat shown at an international exhibition in New York. Wheeler entered his Marquis and won the prize.

That was the first of a long line of world prizes won by Marquis wheat for both Canadian and American growers, mostly Canadian, at international exhibitions. Wheeler won the world championship at Chicago year after year and other Canadian champions followed in his path, usually with Marquis wheat. The practical effect of the award, however, was to send wheat growers into a clamor for Marquis seed and soon it was growing everywhere in the western provinces and western states.

Sir Charles served his country for 22 years and ill-health forced him to retire at the age of 58 on a modest pension. Later a grateful government voted him an annual grant of $5000 for life and in 1934 the King recognized his service to Canada and the Empire by making him a knight bachelor.

ANNUAL FLOWER SHOW

Professor Barss of the University of British Columbia is being sent by the Provincial Government this year to judge at the annual flower show at Prince Rupert and also to judge the gardens. The big event takes place the middle of next month and horticulturists all over the city will be interested to take part in the show and possibly enter their gardens. Those who do not expect to win may be anxious to find out how their gardens rank and to get the criticism of the judge.

The Horticultural Society is to be congratulated on getting so good a man. Dr. Barss is professor of horticulture for the University of British Columbia and as such his views on local flower growing efforts should be of great value.

CURIOUS SLANT

A curious slant on the mentality of a good many people is obtained from their attitude toward the present Spanish embroglio. For a number of years members of "the working class" as they are styled have been urged by their newspapers to take part in the next war, yet when the struggle started in Spain the governments friendly to democracy were urged to take a chance on precipitating a war by taking sides in Spain against the insurgent forces. Even today many would have the British Empire fight for the government side in Spain, forgetting that for years they had been preaching peace at any price.

Beat New Zealand in Second Cricket Test Match

MANCHESTER, July 27:—England won rather decisively over the New Zealand cricket team in the second test match today by a margin of 130 runs.

The British team found runs hard to get in their second innings. They had lost seven wickets for 75 runs before Ames with a valuable 39, Brown with 57 and Smith with a free-hit 27 came to the rescue. England were all out for 187 runs leaving the New Zealanders 265 to get to win.

The visitors put on 50 runs for the first wicket but found the English bowling very steady and in spite of a fine innings by Donnelly they were all out for 134. The New Zealanders put up a fine fight but as a team they seem to be hardly up to the standard of test match play. Their fine keen sportsmanship is a tonic and is in keeping with the highest traditions of the game.

The first game was played last night and resulted in a draw. The third and final match is scheduled for London, August 14.

FINE TEAM FOR CANADA

Cricketers Who Are to Visit This Coast Will Include Number Of Excellent Players

TORONTO, July 27:—A team of thirteen cricket players is expected to arrive here in a few days to start a tour of all Canada. From these the eleven will be chosen. The members of the team are as follows:

G. C. Newman, 33, Middlesex and Oxford University. A powerful hitter in front of the wicket and a medium-pace bowler. He made 112 against Gloucestershire in 1929, his highest score in first class cricket.

H. J. Enthoven, 34, Middlesex and Cambridge University. A strong all-round player who has several centuries to his credit. He has twice performed the hat-trick at Lords, on the second occasion when playing for his county against the Australians in 1934. He captained Cambridge in 1925.

N. G. Wykes, 31, Essex and Cambridge University. Tall, left-hand first-wicket batsman who is also rated one of the best fielders in English cricket. The Light Blue is now a master at Eton. He captained Essex in a number of matches late in 1935.

A. G. Powell, 24, Essex and Cambridge University. A polished wicketkeeper, he got his Blue in 1934 and has made frequent appearances for his county. He was a member of the M. C. C. team that toured Australia and New Zealand 1935-36.

A. P. Singleton, 23, Worcestershire and Oxford University. Captain of Oxford University this year, he is a clever right-hand off spin bowler who has done well in first-class matches. Although low in the batting order, he often scores freely.

J. M. Brocklebank, 22, Cambridge University. A nephew of Sir Stanley Jackson, noted Yorkshire cricketer, he is a deadly leg-break bowler. On last year's Varsity match he captured 10 Oxford wickets for 139 runs.

K. A. Sellar, 31, Essex and Royal Navy. A right-hand batsman and smart fielder who made 55 for the Incogniti against Hon. R. C. Atthens' Canadian team last year. He is better known as a rugby player and on several occasions has represented his country at full-back.

N. M. Ford, 30, Derbyshire and Oxford University. Member of a well-known cricketing family, he is a tall, forcing batsman and useful change bowler. He played for Oxford in 1928-29-30.

J. T. Neve, Band of Brothers, Kent. A good medium-pace stock bowler, he captured eight wickets for sixteen runs when playing for West Kent recently and earlier in the season, assisting Sir Walter Lawrence's Eleven against Trinity Tom Tits took six for 29.

FLASH!! HERE COMES HOOKLESS BAIT

'Hookless bait,' a boon(?) to still fishermen has been discovered by Wayne Robinson, of Ottawa, an Ontario game warden. No more will it be necessary to bait your hook every few nibbles; no more of that, for this is really an invention; an invention destined to put 'live bait' sellers out of business. In fact, the manufacturer (perhaps yourself, for it has not been put on the market yet) may even coin the slogan: 'A worm a year,' for that's how good it is. What? You want to know the secret? Well, listen closely. The new 'hookless bait' consists of placing a live, wiggling worm inside a small glass bottle which is filled with water and capped with a metal stopper. Under the surface the worm is magnified and it wiggles in a most natural and alluring manner. Hungry pike and pickerel strike at the bottle and more often than not swallow the bottle and all. Then all you have to do is remove the bottle and start fishing all over again. Some invention, what? And what is more, a patent has not been applied for. That means this is your chance. The Ontario Fish and Game authorities are just a wee bit sceptical.

AFTER NEW PLAYERS LONDON, July 27: (CP)—Arsenal is after new players, states manager G. Allison but the famous London soccer club is making no purchases until certain the new men will prove better than those now on the roster.

PLUCKY VETERAN JOCKEY NTOOINGHAM, July 27: (CP)—'Brownie' Carslake may be 50 years old but he can take it. The well known jockey was unseated and badly bruised but announced he would be riding the next day.

Wimmers from the Start Remember the day your crew won the senior eights? Even now you can't see the sun shining on a glassy stretch of water without recalling the thrills of that great day... the clean, strong sweep of the sculls... the fast stroke—42 to the minute... the lead you took and held from start to finish! And how good it was to stretch out on the turf afterwards, and enjoy a cool, fragrant pipeful of Old Chum!

FARM WAS DRIED OUT

J. S. Irvine Tells of Conditions on Prairies Where He Visited

"The district where my farm is situated at Last Mountain Valley, about 65 miles north of Regina is all burned up this season and it will be difficult to get enough grain off et for seed," stated J. S. Irvine, who returned from there yesterday. In a few places in the district there is grain about six inches high but not fully developed. It has to be cut with a mower and raked up and threshed.

Some farmers are cutting old dry grass with which to feed their cattle in the coming winter. They also will use up all the old straw left over from last year. Many of the cattle will have to be sold because of lack of feed.

Between Calgary and Ponoka is a district where they have good crops this year. The grain is often frozen in that district but this year they will be in luck.

Mr. Irvine visited the Turner Valley oil fields and reports new wells being sunk.

There seemed to be no scarcity of money at Calgary for thousands of people were attending the races and placing large sums of money on the horses. The Governor General was present while Mr. Irvine was in Calgary and he took a great interest in the stampee, especially the roping of the cattle.

FISHING CEREMONY

Yorkshire Town's Traditional Rights Upheld by Hurling Javelin Into Sea

FILEY, Eng., July 27: (CP)—This ancient east Yorkshire fishing town has witnessed the repetition of a scene that has been enacted once every seven years for more than seven centuries.

When the tide was at its lowest a horseman entered Filey Bay and, advancing as far as his steed could carry him, cast a javelin seawards. Thus the rights and control of the Lord of the Manor of Filey and Hunmanby over the waters of Filey Bay were asserted and maintained.

During the crusades Richard Coeur de Lion told the Lord of the Manor: "When you get back to Yorkshire ride your horse as far as you dare in Filey Bay and then throw your javelin. Where the javelin lands shall be your boundary."

The Lord of the Manor at the time was an astute man. He selected the month of September for the javelin throwing because then the tide was at its lowest. Afterwards he met King Richard at York and was asked if he had thrown the javelin. He replied that he had ridden his horse as far out as he dared and then thrown it and if the King could show him on a map where it fell he would be satisfied with his boundary. If he could not, he would claim the same rights as the Crown did round other parts of the coast. So, although the javelin is thrown, a three-mile limit is claimed.

Sir Denis Readett-Bayley, present Lord of the Manor, explained that by throwing the javelin once every seven years he gained the power to exclude Hull and Grimsby trawlers from Filey Bay and kept the fishing rights for the Filey fishermen. It was not necessary for the Lord of the Manor to throw the javelin personally, he said. Frank Skilbeck performed the recent ceremony. Members of the Skilbeck family have carried out the office for several hundred years. Frank now is more than 80. On some past occasions his son and grandson have ridden out into the water, but old Frank wanted to celebrate his recent second marriage by throwing the javelin once more.

WHIFFLETS From the Waterfront

A party of trout fishermen at the week-end visited Salmon River and Baker Inlet aboard Bill Richards' power boat Calista. They had fair luck and an excellent outing. The party included Bill Richards, Johnny Walker, Pete Solem, Norman Moorehouse, George Rudderham and Tommy Fraser.

Two other parties visited Salmon River Sunday, one in Charlie Starr's "Rudon" consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Starr and Mr. and Mrs. McCallum. The other a boat carrying Mr. and Mrs. C. Michaeloff and Mr. and Mrs. William Rothwell.

There is a broad smile on the face of Ernie Caldwell, chief officer of the steamer Prince John. He is receiving congratulations from his friends on the safe arrival of a baby girl.

George Bryant and W. O. Fulton made a trip to Big Bay and brought home a nice basket of trout Sunday, the best reported for the week-end. They went out on the Harla.

Sunday all the boats at the Yacht Club were out but four. The Full Moon took the largest party but all had picnickers going to nearby beaches.

A fine little yacht, the John Barry, was in port yesterday on her way back from Alaska where her owner, P. R. Sears of Seattle, had been combining business with pleasure calling at the Alaskan canneries pushing sale of a disinfectant for fishing boats and canneries. The yacht is 44 feet long and has sleeping accommodation for ten. It is her third trip to these waters.
