Hanson Pressing For Peace Outlet

Local Member Doing Everything Possible to Get Government Interested in Project

A letter received from Olof Hanson M.P. advised the Junior Chamber of Commerce, at its meeting last night, that he was doing everything possible to bring to the notice of the federal government the necessity of a railway outlet being built without delay from the Peace River district to the Pacific Coast at Prince Rupert. There were a number of letters of acknowledgment from various members of the federal cabinet in reply to correspondence on the same subject.

New Rules Are Too Stringent?

The Junior Section of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce, at its monthly meeting last night, discussed at some length the new amended Shipping Act under which there are new requirements which would handicap rather severely small local boats which have been transporting freight and passengers in the past to small isolated mining, logging and fishing points in the immediate neighborhood of the city. Under the new regulations these boats would be required to have fully certificated masters as well as come under the steamship inspection act. The suggestion was offered to the junior chamber that an exception might be made of boats under 35 tons subject to approval by the local customs authorities. The outcome of the discussion was the appointment of a committee consisting of T. J. Williams and J. A. Barry to confer with the Senior Chamber on the matter.

BIG SLIDE UP SKEENA

Departure of Train For the East Is Deferred Until Tomorrow Morning

A bad snowslide about 400 feet long and covering the line to a depth of about thirty-five feet caused the Canadian National Railways this afternoon to defer the departure of the passenger train scheduled to leave at 6 o'clock this evening for the east until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The point of the slide is about midway between Skeena and Kwinitsa stations at the same location where a snowshed collapsed last winter under a slide. It is estimated that it will take at least twelve hours to clear the line.

There are also other slides. It has been raining heavily in the Skeena Valley since last night.

Australia's Low Unemployed Rate

Marked Increase in Number At Work Over Depression

CANBERRA, Aust., March 3: (CP)—Only 10.7 percent of trade unionists were unemployed in the quarter year ending December 31, 1936, according to figures released by the Australian Commonwealth Statistician. The figure compares with a peak unemployment of 30 percent during the depression years.

While the figure does not represent the total number of unemployed, the statistician declared it gives a "reasonable picture of recovery from the unemployment crisis."

OLD DAYS RECALLED

Omineca Mining Area is Active Once Again

Influx of prospectors into the Omineca mining area has recalled the trek of pioneers who ventured north from Fort St. James as early as 1870 to tap rich placer beds for gold.

Once the thriving headquarters of a humming mining field, Fort St. James was deserted when a rush to the Klondike started a few years later.

Gold nuggets weighing anywhere from three ounces up to two pounds have been found, according to F. Doncaster, mining engineer, who recently visited the district.

Hydraulic apparatus is being used to flush out old streams. Many of these are buried below the surface where gold deposits were laid down centuries ago.

Doncaster displayed a three-ounce nugget picked up during his survey of the territory. "But that's nothing," he said. "Not long ago a miner picked up a two-pound nugget. Most of the gold is pure."

FIELD FOR MORE FISH

Importance of Giving Market The Product It Wants Stressed By Local Company Executive Speaking Last Night

Many Problems

R. M. Winslow of Canadian Fish & Cold Storage Co. Speaker Before Junior Chamber Of Commerce

"There seems to be an ever-increasing field for fish. People can eat more fish. Our salmon and halibut are among the kinds they like best. The fish business is still one of considerable promise for the future. There are, however, plenty of problems. The world seems to want our fish. It is up to us to give as good a product as we can." So asserted R. M. Winslow, assistant manager of the Canadian Fish & Cold Storage Co., at the conclusion of an excellent address on the fisheries at last night's regular monthly dinner meeting of the Junior Section of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce.

"No matter what the destiny of Prince Rupert may be," declared Mr. Winslow, "fish and the fishing industry will always be an important one for the port. The industry, it can be said, is still only in its infancy."

Expansion in industry. There had been remarkable expansion of the industry, particularly on the Pacific Coast, during the last comparatively few years. Despite the extraordinary changes in the world, however, there seemed to be room for a little more fish in the markets.

Mr. Winslow then cited some instances of expansion in the industry. The year 1936 had been the biggest in the building of fish boats and floating fishery equipment in the history of the Pacific Coast. True the most of this development had been in California but this part of the coast might be expected to develop as well. Last year over twenty million cases of canned fish had been produced on the Pacific Coast of the United States, Canada, Alaska and by Japan to say nothing of Russia which had not made public its production figures for some years. This represented practically a billion pounds of fish for human consumption.

California had produced over three million cases of pilchards, two and a half million cases of tuna and one and a half million cases of mackerel. Canned salmon production had run over thirteen million cases last year, more than a million cases in excess of the previous high year. Some of these lines of production were new since the war such as pilchards and tuna. It all gave some idea of the wealth there was in the sea if means could be found of getting it out. Canada had produced 400,000 tons of fish last year, half off this coast. Possibly this country could produce 600,000 to 700,000 tons without depletion. The problem was to suit the product to the available market.

The speaker then went on to discuss new mechanical developments in the fishery such as the replacement of the old means of propulsion by the diesel engine. New types of boats were also mentioned, the fact that one new trawler a week was now being launched on the Atlantic Coast being referred to.

New types of fish were being produced for marketing. More fish was being frozen than ever before due to improvements in freezing methods. Changes of eating habits in regard to fish and the discoveries of scientists advancing the

Response Secured in Movement To Have Connection With National Wide Radio Network

Over 2000 signatures have been secured for the petition requesting that station CFPR be hooked up with the Canadian Broadcasting Commission's national network, it was reported by J. C. Gilker on behalf of the radio committee at last night's regular monthly dinner meeting of the Junior Section of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce. There had been many signatures from points outside the city as well as within. The plan was to have the petition, resolution and other data in Ottawa in time for a general meeting of the Commission to be held March 16.

Move to Regulate Grain Elevators

Move on Foot to Have Them Observe Certain Hours

EYEBROW, Sask., March 3: (CP)—"See you at the grain elevator," common greeting in prairie towns where farmers are wont to congregate, may soon be a forgotten phrase if a suggestion of town council here is acted upon. It is planned to ask the government to pass legislation making compulsory the closing of all grain elevators between the hours of 8 p.m. and 6 a.m. in addition to Sundays and all legal holidays. Elevators have long been considered 24-hour meeting places. Sundays included, for farmers and others interested in grains.

SALT MINE DOES WELL

Artesian Lake in Southern Alberta Fosters Healthy Livestock

OYEN, Alta., March 3: (CP)—A thriving salt mine on the shores of an artesian lake in nearby Acadia Valley is paying dividends not only from its market prices but also in the healthier cattle, sheep, hogs and horses it gives to farmers using it.

Located on the farm of Tom and Sidney Abbott, the salt bed covers about 30 acres. So far no mining operations have been undertaken in the summertime although for years it has been a popular watering place for stock of the district.

Last year D. W. Bohannon of Garfield, Alta., leased the property and appointed the Abbott brothers to attend the mining. They do it all in the winter. Last winter 400 tons were taken out and this year they expect to market 1000 tons. Laboratory tests by the Alberta government have shown the salt contains sodium sulphate, magnesium and other minerals not found in common salt. It is completely soluble in water and contains impurities amounting to only .33 percent.

At agricultural schools in Alberta the salt is being used with success as a conditioner for livestock and poultry and as a soil dress in potato and hay fields. Sidney Abbott also claims that it will conserve moisture in garden plots.

Bohannon attends to the selling end of the industry and as a salesman he has a unique record. So far he has placed some of the product in every town visited.

"That is our policy," said Capt. Eden who was referring to the move to negotiate a new Western Europe security pact with Germany to replace Locarno. It was a reiteration of what had been previously reported as British government policy.

Skeena Highway Should be First

Olof Hanson, M. P. For Skeena, Agrees With Views of Junior Chamber of Commerce

The Junior Section of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce, at its monthly meeting last night, had a letter before it from Olof Hanson M.P. expressing approval of the idea that the Skeena River Highway should have first consideration before any such project as a new transprovincial highway eastward from Bella Coola, as proposed in a new southern tourist route plan, is embarked upon. Mr. Hanson approved of a resolution to this effect that had been passed by the Junior Chamber.

Temperature Below Average And Snowfall Above Normal

TERRACE, March 3:—Terrace weather figures show the month of February as having been a typically winter one.

"Maximum temperature was 44 on February 29 and minimum two below zero on February 6. The average temperature for the month was 9 above which was much colder than the twenty year average of 30.

Precipitation was all in the form of snow and measured 53 inches. The usual snowfall for February is around 30 inches with some rain to work it down. This year there was no rain.

New Palace Is Unlikely

Famous Resort Wrecked by Fire Too Fine a Target for Hostile Craft

LONDON, Mar. 3: (CP)—Is there to be a second Crystal Palace on the site of the old? It is highly unlikely that even if another house of entertainment should arise it will take the form of the former huge house of glass. The cost, for one thing, would be prohibitive.

The old Crystal Palace, moreover, is believed to have been a fine landmark for hostile aircraft during the war, much in the same way as the Thames proved another excellent guide for enemy airmen. In spite of this the Palace became "H.M.S. Crystal Palace" during the war when it was used for the training of the Royal Naval Division. Probably the government will be asked to give its aid to the building of a new palace and its attitude towards such a scheme would obviously be influenced by consideration of national safety.

The Crystal Palace, which was a reconstruction of the building built for the Great Exhibition of 1851 in Hyde Park, cost $7,500,000.

The Wonder Country of the World

Russia is the wonder country of the world and for that reason we may be excused for referring to the land of the Soviets so often. Everyone admits the remarkable progress that has been made there, but a writer in the magazine section of a recent number of the Christian Science Monitor expresses doubt whether what seems a more brotherly relationship between men is worth the cost if such brotherhood can only be bought at the cost of entering into spiritual and intellectual slavery. An attempt is being made to coerce men into happiness by depriving them of the freedom of the spirit.

The writer is not at all hostile to the Soviets but he sees in the country a strong fascist tendency which is brushing aside the generation of old communists who made the October revolution and who, therefore, do not agree with the new policy of the party. Soviet bureaucracy is creating a new class which he claims exploits the masses of the workers in a somewhat similar manner to what the old Russian regime exploited them. The revolution has manifested the tremendous powers of the Russian people. It has liberated these powers for active use, for the creation of history. The people, taken as a mass, are now more active, more sensible, less ignorant than they were during the old regime. Even under dictatorship, under ceaseless decrees issued from above the great dynamic power of the Russian people remains alive.

The writer, who evidently is a Russian, sees no chance of the old regime returning, but he fears that under the present system the country is gradually being changed into a fascist state, not like Italy or Germany but purely Russian fascism. The dictatorship which has existed for many years over all spheres of human life, over the thought and conscience of the people, has led to a state of things in the Soviet Union in which all men have been taught to think alike. There exist no individual points of view and no opinions. Any who still think and judge not like "everyone else" are forced to hide their thoughts. Today instead of mocking the ancient warriors, Russians are taught to emulate them. To hold an opinion different from Stalin is described as fascism and this results in a depressing moral atmosphere. This compulsory, forced unity, is really slavery.

The country is being rapidly transformed into a strong militaristic state, more powerful than it has ever been in the past and political or military alliances with her are no longer influenced by criticism of her internal affairs.

The Daily News is a member of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association, of the Canadian Press and of the Audit Bureau of Circulations. It is the only paper north of Vancouver and west of Edmonton holding membership in these organizations.

'IRON LUNG' BEING USED

Courageous Girl Fights For Life
After Infantile Paralysis

ST. BONIFACE, Man., March 3: (CP)—Pretty, blue-eyed Inez Woolam, 22-year old girl, who has spent most of her time since September 25 last, in an "iron lung" following an infantile paralysis attack, looked forward today to the time when she might again swing to the music of a dance orchestra.

"It's very nice here, but I'd love to go to a dance or movie," said the cheery, curly-haired girl who has been encased in a 500-pound cylindrical respirator because of paralysis of her respiratory organs.

Her diaphragm and abdomen were affected, and the big machine staved off death as Miss Woolam lost control of the motor nerves in her breathing organs, arms and legs.

She is now able to breathe outside the "iron lung" for five to eight hours each day, said Dr. Ellen F. Taylor, of the staff of King George Isolation Hospital where she is confined.

"We believe her breathing will re-establish itself, but cannot say how long before Miss Woolam can be removed from the respirator or whether or not she will ever walk again."

The patient has gained use of her left arm, and is able to move her right hand. Already, the attendants have changed her food from a liquid diet to regular meals.

Medical authorities, who have not been able to determine the cause of infantile paralysis, find a sure cure, are eagerly watching the progress of the girl in the "iron lung."

Miss Woolam's attack, Dr. Taylor said, affected the motor nerve, or sense of movement, while the sensory nerves remained active inside the dormant muscles. The patient can feel the prick of a needle, but can not move away from the needle point.

Inez' plucky battle against the dread disease has attracted wide interest, and Mayor George C. MacLean and other officials visit her occasionally. The city council have been meeting all costs incurred by her illness.

health giving properties of fish were also factors of importance.

Benefits Of Preference

Discussing the effects of tariffs, Mr. Winslow expressed gratification at the renewal of the Empire trade agreements of 1932 particularly in regard to the fish items. The Imperial preference had done much to advance the prosperity of the Canadian fishing industry. Not least important was the three cent preference on frozen salmon in England. This had been reflected in better prices for fishermen in this community. Mr. Winslow went on to relate how, by means of tariffs, European countries had to a large extent shut out Canadian canned salmon. Today ninety per cent of Canadian canned salmon was marketed in the British Empire markets behind tariff walls although the United States market for chums was becoming increasingly important. One of the principal competitors of Canadian canned salmon in the British market was Japan. The ten per cent preference was not sufficient to give Canada the British canned salmon market without question over the Japanese with their lower costs of production. Canada need no longer worry much about United States canned salmon in the British market. The United States was putting over its canned salmon in a big way in its own market which it was hoped would be able to absorb the entire production. The British market was also becoming an important factor in the disposal of frozen halibut, said Mr. Winslow. If it could be further increased, it would be a big thing. British Columbia frozen salmon was also becoming increasingly popular.

Before closing, Mr. Winslow mentioned the importance of scientific research in the frozen fish field. Scientists were showing that a great deal could be done to make frozen fish more nearly like fresh fish. The possibility was that it might become equal in quality.

George L. Rorie, president, extended an expression of appreciation to Mr. Winslow for his address.

Gardening

The snow is disappearing and there is a possibility that spring will be with us soon. Already daffodils, narcissi, snowdrops, tulips, bluebells and other spring plants are pushing their way through the ground and very soon will be in bloom. John Mitchell says he has some early iris that are up several inches.

The lawns have all come out from under the snow green as in the autumn but there may yet be sharp frosts. Roses may also be cut back by frost although just now they look very well. Most of the casualties are in the spring after they begin to grow when the frosts catch them. The great thing just now is to see that the water can get away from all the flower beds, especially the rose beds.

A number of Prince Rupert gardeners are going in for bulbous begonias this year, I hear. I hope they do for I know no flower that gives such excellent results either indoors or out. They seem to be very fragile and break easily when the flowers are picked but they stand both wind and rain better than most bedding plants.

Those who have gardens and grow flowers may do good missionary work by encouraging their neighbors to do likewise. Nothing will add to the attractiveness of the city as greatly as flowers well cultivated in gardens which may be seen from the street.

While it is necessary for me to start gardening early as I am moving, it is better for the average gardener to wait a little until the ground is dry or at least not as wet as it is at present. The ground seldom is dry in the early spring but if the drainage is good, it will soon be dry enough for cultivation.

Perennials may be moved at any time now. Fertilizer, either bone meal, rotted manure or complete fertilizer, should be sprinkled in the hole before putting in the plant. At least that is what I do and I am inclined to think it is more effective than surface dressing after planting.—H.F.P.

Timely Recipes

TEMPTING FISH DISH

Everything has its good points and this dish is full of them. Easy preparation, quick cooking, the combination of two vegetables, cooked at the same time and in the same dish with any variety of delicious Canadian fish you choose few dishes to wash, and, in result, a tastily tempting main dish for dinner or lunch. What more could any cook ask! By the way, the dish serves six people.

Slice two medium-sized onions into a baking dish or oven casserole, add a few tablespoons of water, and partially cook. While these are cooking, take two pounds of slices or fillets of fish—any kind of fish desired—wipe with a cold damp cloth, dust lightly with salt and cut in sections for serving, first removing any skin that may be present. Place the fish on the onions in the covered baking dish, pour a can of tomato soup over it and bake in a hot oven—450 deg. F.—from 15 to 20 minutes, according to thickness of the fish.

A good tomato sauce may be made and used in place of the soup, if wished. To make this sauce melt two tablespoons of butter, blend with this two tablespoons of flour and cook over hot water with one and one-half cups of tomatoes. The tomatoes' juice may be strained first, or not, as desired. Cook until thick and add one teaspoon of salt and a dash of pepper, before pouring over the fish.

Old Ford, Trap, Still Operates

Death Trap For Many Settlers
Still Used In-between Season

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE, Alta., March 3: (CP)—A ford across the North Saskatchewan River here which has proved a death trap for many white people but which has been known to Indians for hundreds of years is still used in "in-between" seasons, the period of the year when the government ferry is unable to operate and it is not safe to negotiate a crossing on the ice.

The first recorded crossing of the ford was in 1714 when a white settler was killed and his family carried off by Indians.

In the early years of this century it proved a profitable proposition for Indians who often hired out to guide incoming settlers across the swift stream.

The ferry was put in in 1909 but each spring and fall there remains the three-weeks "in-between" season. Low water at freeze-up has made the crossing less dangerous for people crossing at that season. In the spring, however, it becomes the tricky venture it was in the days of the fur traders.

Canine Bar-Maid To Mate Bar Dog

Hotelman Grooms a Tavern Terrier To Understudy Client-Serving Sire

BOWSER, B.C., March 3: (CP)—Charles Winfield's little frame hostelry here, whose tavern customers are waited on by a wire-haired terrier, is soon going to have a canine bar-maid too if the hotelman's plans work out.

Groomed for the job is three months-old "Nig," black-coated female pup sired by "Mike," the bar-dog who serves bottled beer to Winfield's clients and carries away the empties.

"I think Nig is going to be a good understudy for Mike," Winfield said today, but he admitted it was a little early to tell just yet. He expects that Nig will be ready to start work next Christmas, so that Mike can have a holiday.

Nig, said Winfield, has "many of the characteristics" of her father. Whether she will be able to carry bottled beer to the tavern clients, take their money to the cash register, bring back their change in her mouth and clear away the empty bottles is yet to be seen. But Winfield thinks she will.

"It's a bit early to tell yet what she will be able to do," he said. "I like to try them out at different things till I find out what they are best suited for. I never try to force them to do anything."

So far Mike and Nig have been getting on pretty well except for the incident a few weeks ago when the pup tried to take a bone from Mike. Mike snapped reprovingly at the pup and accidentally nipped her on the nose. When Nig ran behind the hotel, whining, Mike followed with the bone, dropping it at his pup's feet, and went away. "That isn't the first time he has shown almost human intelligence without being taught," Winfield said proudly.

Veteran Chorister Is Still Spry at 79

WINNIPEG, March 3: (CP)—A chorister for more than half a century James Sexton of Weston celebrated his seventy-ninth birthday by walking three miles to Winnipeg and singing with the choir at Holy Trinity Church.

Native of Wolverhampton, England, Sexton joined the choir there when he was 10 years old and has been singing ever since.

"A few weeks ago I missed singing in the choir for two successive Sundays, through illness," he said. "I never felt so badly about anything in my life."

CURLING WIDOWS

KENTVILLE, N.S., March 3: (CP)—"Golf widows" have nothing on "curling widows," Kentville wives complain. They claim their husbands curl every night of the week except the night they go to see a hockey game.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

GOOD BILL AT CAPITOL

Uproarious Comedy Feature, Scientific Mystery Thriller and Capitoliens

"My Man Godfrey," a gay, debonair, modern comedy starring William Powell and Carole Lombard; "The Invisible Ray," a strange story of mystery and science with Boris Karloff and Bela Lugosi in the leading roles, comprise a mid-week double bill picture program at the Capitol Theatre in addition to which the Capitoliens, under direction of Dr. H. N. Brocklesby, will be presented on the stage with selections from George Gershwin's "Song of the Flame" as their feature number.

"My Man Godfrey" relates the adventures of William Powell portraying the part of a butler in a wealthy family. One of the daughters, Carole Lombard, falls in love with him and another sister tries to have him jailed. The mother likes him but has a parlor pet of her own. The fun gets fast and furious with laughs bursting like bombshells. Besides Powell and Miss Lombard, the cast includes such excellent players as Alice Brady, Gail Patrick, Eugene Pallette, Alan Mowbray and Mische Auer.

The story of "The Invisible Ray" deals with the amazing scientific developments in connection with the discovery of an element which is a thousand times more powerful than radium.

CRITICIZES SYSTEM

SAINT JOHN, N.B., March 3: (CP)—New Brunswick's educational system places too much emphasis on "a barren accumulation of facts" rather than development of intellectual faculties, Prof. John Stephens, of the University of New Brunswick, said in an address here.
