Both Canadian Pacific And Canadian National Railways In South Blocked by Snows

VANCOUVER, Feb. 18: (CP)—Rail communication of both trans-Canada lines is blocked east of Vancouver by slides which have covered the tracks of Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways in many places as mild weather loosens the snow on mountain sides. Two Canadian Pacific westbound trains have been held near North Bend since early Wednesday. Fresh slides east of Revelstoke may take more than twenty-four hours to clear.

Nelson on the Kettle Valley line is isolated from the outside world as far as the railway and highway are concerned with police wireless the only means of communication for the most of Wednesday.

The Canadian National is having trouble with slides near Yale. In the Fraser Valley roads are blocked and telegraphic and telephone communications are interfered with.

The Cariboo highway along the Fraser River is also blocked. A sixty-mile gale swept over Horseshoe Bay summer resort yesterday, damaging wharves and floats. Boundary Bay, Crescent Beach and White Rock were also storm-swept but, apparently, without serious damage.

Snow swirled in some places in Southern Alberta and dust elsewhere with a sixty-mile wind. The town of MacLeod had no electric light or power last night.

Conservatives Plan to Put Candidate in Provincial Field Here J. T. Harvey new President

Convinced that there were reasonable prospects of the party being returned to the position of forming the next provincial government, the Prince Rupert Conservative Association, at its annual meeting last night, decided to join with the extensive organization movement which is now under way throughout the province by taking preliminary steps towards the calling of a convention in the near future for the purpose of nominating a candidate to contest Prince Rupert riding at the next provincial election.

Considering weather conditions, there was a fair attendance at the meeting which was held in the Eagles' Hall, George Hill, the retiring president, was in the chair. J. T. Harvey, D. C. Stuart and other delegates to the provincial convention reported on that gathering, referring to renewed Conservative enthusiasm which was being displayed particularly on the lower mainland and in the interior. The election of officers resulted as follows:

- Honorary President, Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett. Honorary Vice-President, Dr. F. P. Patterson. President, J. T. Harvey. First Vice-President, R. W. Cameron. Second Vice-President, Jack Preece. Secretary-Treasurer, Percy Cameron. Executive—J. H. Thompson, C. V. Evis, G. P. Tinker, W. R. McAlce, W. R. Love, George Hill, J. M. Morrison, D. C. Stuart and R. E. Benson.

Bitter Attack Made Upon British Government For Its Policy In Regard to Defence

Chamberlain Says Dominions Not Expected to Help—Cranborne Reiterates This

LONDON, Feb. 18: (CP)—Rt. Hon. A. V. Alexander, who was First Lord of the Admiralty in the second Labor government of Great Britain, made a bitter attack in Parliament this afternoon on the government's rearmament plans intended to build up defence armaments at a cost of £400,000,000 in five years.

"The nation is asked to pay a bill which represents collective ineptitude and folly and in some cases dishonesty of the Tory government in foreign policy," Mr. Alexander charged. He accused the government of abandoning the principle of collective security as a basis of foreign policy and the placing of its reliance on big armaments.

Last night Sir Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in the discussion on defence, said that the Dominions would not be called upon to assist in financing armament expenditures. He said that Britain would pay for defence alone.

Viscount Cranborne declared that the Dominions would not be expected to be automatically involved in the event of Britain going to the defence of French or Belgian security.

Ten Workers on Golden Gate Plunge to Death as Scaffold Of Giant Span Drops Into Bay

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 18: (CP)—Four investigations have been launched into the two-hundred foot death plunge of ten Golden Gate Bridge workers from a collapsing scaffold late yesterday. State officials declare that the scaffold had been twice declared unsafe. Bridge builders asserted that it was never criticized.

The ten-ton moveable structure, suspended on wheels beneath a giant span, fell when a wheel slipped from a girder on which it ran, tilting the scaffolding into its fatal and rending plunge.

The material carrier together with the ten men crashed through the protective net below.

The most of the bodies have not yet been recovered.

Dean Clement of University of B.C. Discusses Today's Trends Of World Food Supply

Many Problems

States Facts Last Night and Will Tonight Deduce Influences Which May be Expected

The discussion of world production and distribution of food supply and other matters pertaining thereto which was commenced last night in First Presbyterian Church by Dean F. M. Clement of the University of British Columbia and which will be continued tonight and tomorrow is of timely interest and one which should merit the attention of all sections of the community who profess to be concerned over matters of practical economic moment. Dean Clement, who specializes in agriculture from the economic standpoint, has a broad command and a large fund of current information of the subject, it was made apparent last night. He spoke for well over an hour and all he had to say was listened to with rapt interest. Having last night discussed the trends in Great Britain and European countries in regard to their food supplies, Dean Clement will tonight develop the influence which may be expected in Canada and British Columbia as a result of those trends.

At the outset last night, Dean Clement said that he would have liked to see a more complete cross-section of the community, including the unemployed and those in various walks of life, at the lectures.

Dean Clement then proceeded to discuss what had taken place in Britain in more recent times in the handling of problems of food supply. As it had been for the past century and a half, Great Britain was still the market of the world today. Although it had but three percent of the world's population in 1930, yet it had made 99 percent of the world's purchases of bacon and ham, 96 percent of the mutton and lamb, 63 percent of the butter, 62 percent of the eggs, 59 percent of the beef and 46 percent of the cheese. Great Britain, therefore, exerted a great influence on the export countries of the world such as Canada.

Great Britain's Change

After having been a free trade country since the repeal of the Corn Laws in 1846, Great Britain had turned protectionist in the matter of food supplies in 1931. By this action many countries of the world had been affected, particularly the producing countries. In 1932 had come the Ottawa trade agreements under which the ten percent duty on all foodstuffs imported by Britain had been cut off as far as the Empire countries were concerned, leaving it on foreign countries. The result had been that, while total imports of foodstuffs into Great Britain had decreased in two years by nine percent, imports from Empire countries had increased twenty-three percent. Empire trade had been increased at the expense of foreign countries. Then came the British Agricultural Marketing Act (Continued on Page Four)

Portugal Alone Remains Aloof From Non-Intervention Efforts to Which Twenty-Six Nations Have Been Pledged—All Volunteers Banned by France

LONDON, Feb. 18: (CP)—Insurgent victories dotted the Spanish civil war map today as Generalissimo Francisco Franco's men were hurled against government troops in mass offensives southeast of Madrid. A triple air attack left many dead and wounded in the streets of the Spanish capital. These had been the first air attacks since January 6. The first two raids were on the outskirts of the city, taking ten lives, but the third was more centred and proved more fatal to civilians.

Signs Decree

While the civil war raged with renewed intensity, Portugal remained aloof from intervention efforts in London, again refusing to join twenty-six nations in a plan to stop foreign help from reaching Spain.

In France President Albert Lebrun signed a decree prohibiting Frenchmen from joining either side in the war. Troops are being sent to the Franco-Spanish frontier to blockade movements of fighting men or materials into Spain.

The general ban on foreign volunteers for Spain goes into effect Saturday at midnight. An estimate last night said that at least 100,000 foreigners were fighting on either side in the Spanish civil war.

Severe fighting concentrated around the siege of Madrid as the conflict entered its seventh month.

Officials of autonomous Catalonia meanwhile promised common action with the Spanish government in effecting a unified loyalist defence command. The Spanish government has armed itself with fresh powers in this connection.

Three British destroyers left Plymouth yesterday for the Mediterranean, their funnels painted red, white and blue to make them distinguishable against air attack.

Cruelty Everywhere

When our pet cat catches a mouse and plays with it, torturing the poor thing by allowing it to make a dash for freedom and then frustrating its hopes time and again until at last it is killed, we think little of it. When we hear of the shrike catching smaller birds and sticking them alive on the thorns of a bush or on the barbs of wire fencing, we look upon it as an interesting freak of nature. So, when the wolf pack suddenly turns and rends one of the older of its members, possibly one who was formerly a leader of the pack, we do not think about its cruelty. When we turn to the insect world and note as we stroll abroad the clever little trap of the ant lion or the spider and see some other insect fall into it and be held there until its blood has been sucked slowly and nothing is left but the skin of the victim, we note the creature's cunning and cleverness but do not think of its cruelty.

Turning then to man, we find him setting traps for the wild animals and the victims remaining in them helpless, hungry and thirsty for days before the happy end comes, and my lady covers her pretty shoulders with the pelt, never thinking of the cruelty of the trap. Only a few generations ago when men were even more superstitious than they are today they seized on helpless old women and accused them of witchcraft and burned them at the stake and occasionally it was a beautiful young girl, seldom a man, who was the victim.

In England not so many years ago men and women were tied to the back of a cart and publicly whipped as they passed through the streets, possibly on their way to a public execution where the people in thousands made holiday as they watched the writhing victims. In every country of the world there was unspeakable cruelty and even today men and women, especially women, are cruel to each other—envious, bitter, vicious.

Ernest Thompson Seton in his books reminds us that all nature is cruel and that the end of every wild thing is a tragedy. There is nothing that corresponds to that of a man or woman dying in bed.

Until very recent years we have been willing to tolerate slums in our big cities and even in smaller places, which would put to shame the animals of the forest. Today we allow unfortunate men and women to exist on a mere pittance, when all the time there is in the country plenty of food and to spare.

The advance of civilization is gradually bringing about a change but it is slow work. People speak lightly of war as if it were inevitable. They are more ready to spend money on armaments than on efforts to relieve suffering. It is to be hoped that within the next half century we shall find the nations of the world devoting time and effort to improving conditions of life instead of training to kill. In the meantime it is necessary to defend ourselves against attacks from other nations less advanced than ourselves. But at the same time we must deplore the need of such a move and use our efforts to bring about a better condition throughout the world.

In Cold Storage

It is sometimes difficult to realize to what extent cold storage plants are in use in this country. The Bureau of Statistics tells us that there are twenty-eight million pounds of creamery butter in cold storage in Canada, cheese twenty-two million pounds, pork fifty-one million, poultry fourteen million, fresh and frozen fish eighteen million, frozen eggs three million pounds. This is in addition to quantities of other products.

TELLS OF OLD LAND PRESENT REPORTS

Dean Clement Impressed Mostly In Britain By Preparations For War and Slum Improvement

Delivering a delightful informal talk before the Prince Rupert Gyro Club, at its regular weekly luncheon yesterday, on some of his impressions during a trip he made last year to the Old Country to attend a conference of university men of the Empire at Cambridge and an international conference on the world's food supply at St. Andrew's, Scotland, Dean F. M. Clement of the Department of Agriculture of the University of British Columbia, whose first visit it had been to the British Isles, commented upon the solid and substantial way in which Great Britain went about its business. He had been struck by two things in particular: first, the quiet yet thorough preparation for war and, second, the efforts which were being made to alleviate conditions in the slums of the great cities.

The war preparations might be silent and unostentatious but they were, nevertheless, going ahead effectively. He had been in England at the time last summer when 25,000 troops were being mobilized for Palestine. Had Canada mustered a thousand troops for such a purpose, the newspapers would probably have been full of it and there would be great talk. In England, however, there was only a small item in the press about the 25,000.

National, municipal and private funds were being used in reviving construction work by which people were being removed from the tenements of the slums to individual houses in the open air. The result would, of course, be stronger and healthier physiques.

Some Personalities

Dean Clement then went on to speak interestingly of some British personalities with whom he had come in contact. First he mentioned Premier Stanley Baldwin whom he had heard speak at Cambridge twice. He had struck him as a quiet, steady, thoughtful type of man—possibly not the most brilliant, constructive or far-sighted—but a man with whom Britain was safe.

Another personality was Rt. Hon. J. Ramsay MacDonald, the former Premier, a cultured and sympathetic gentleman, great in his day but now past his best.

Rt. Hon. Walter Elliott, the former minister of agriculture, was an individual with whom Dean Clement had, apparently, been particularly impressed. He had been responsible for many progressive policies in national farming. A big raw-boned Scotsman, with a red nose and a smile all over his face, he was counted upon as a potential Prime Minister. Mrs. Elliott was also an outstanding personality. Small, vivacious and bright, when she was on a platform with her husband, the spotlight turned to her.

Dean Clement also gave some impressions of the country around Inverness and Culloden Field in Scotland. Some of the farms in that area resembled those to be seen in Canada. Stirling Castle and the Wallace Monument were also referred to by the speaker who interpolated his talk with a number of witticisms which he had heard from those he had come in contact with during his trip.

Dr. H. N. Brocklesby, president of the club, was in the chair and expressed appreciation of the club to Dean Clement for his talk. Guests were F. A. MacCallum, J. A. Frew, Sergeant J. H. McClinton and G. P. Lyons.

WHIFFLETS From the Waterfront

There were 106 passengers aboard the steamer Princess Norah which was in port from 2 to 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon north-bound from Vancouver to Skagway. No passengers disembarked from the vessel here and none went aboard at this port.

The motor vessel Atlas, Capt. John Monsen, arrived in port last night from Ketchikan with one carload of mild cured salmon in tierces for trans-shipment east over Canadian National Railways.

Activities of Sea Cadets Reviewed At Annual Meeting of Navy League

The present strength of the local Sea Cadet Corps is forty boys, it was reported by Lieut. George H. Greenwood D. S. C., commanding officer, to the annual meeting of the Prince Rupert branch of the Navy League of Canada Tuesday evening. The average attendance of Cadets for the year was thirty-five which was considered to be very satisfactory, indicating the interest of the boys and the capability of their instructor. On the completion of the new Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve building and, after the summer camp, it is expected that an increase in the number of cadets for training may be desirable.

On account of the epidemic of influenza and the reconstruction of the naval quarters it had been found necessary, the report of the commanding officer said, to temporarily suspend the meetings of Sea Cadets. It was hoped, however, that the building would be completed in the near future after which regular routine could be carried on with added advantage.

Lieut. Greenwood suggested that the summer camp should be revived this year for a period of ten days or two weeks. It was hoped that the parents would co-operate in permitting their boys this diversion. The idea was not so much training but to make the stay in camp happy and interesting. It was proposed that the camp site should be at Dodge Island in Dodge Cove where there was a government building which could house all the boys, keeping them warm and comfortable.

Another suggestion made by Lieut. Greenwood was that two suitable young men with cadet or naval training be appointed as sub-lieutenants to assist in directing the activities of the unit.

The report reviewed the activities of the Corps during the past year including the annual tag day, the picnic, Remembrance Day parade, the annual inspection by Lieut. Col. S. D. Johnston, monthly socials and the presentation of prizes and medals.

Reference was made to the death during the year of Lieut. Robert Blance, who had been commanding officer for eight or nine years and a great friend of the Corps. Homage had been paid by the boys at the funeral and later Mrs. Blance had addressed the boys, expressing her appreciation.

Chairman's Report

The report of the chairman, R. M. Winslow, stated there was a total of ninety-two members in the Navy League branch here. Tribute was paid to the late Lieut. Robert Blance and reference made to the appointment of Lieut. G. H. Greenwood as his successor. Praise was expressed for the competent manner in which Lieut. Greenwood and Chief Petty Officer Anslow were carrying on the training of the boys. There would be great benefit as a result of the new and larger building. The valuable services of the secretary-treasurer, W. O. Vigar, were referred to and thanks extended to Lieut. Commander Walter Hume R. C. N. V. R. for the use of quarters.

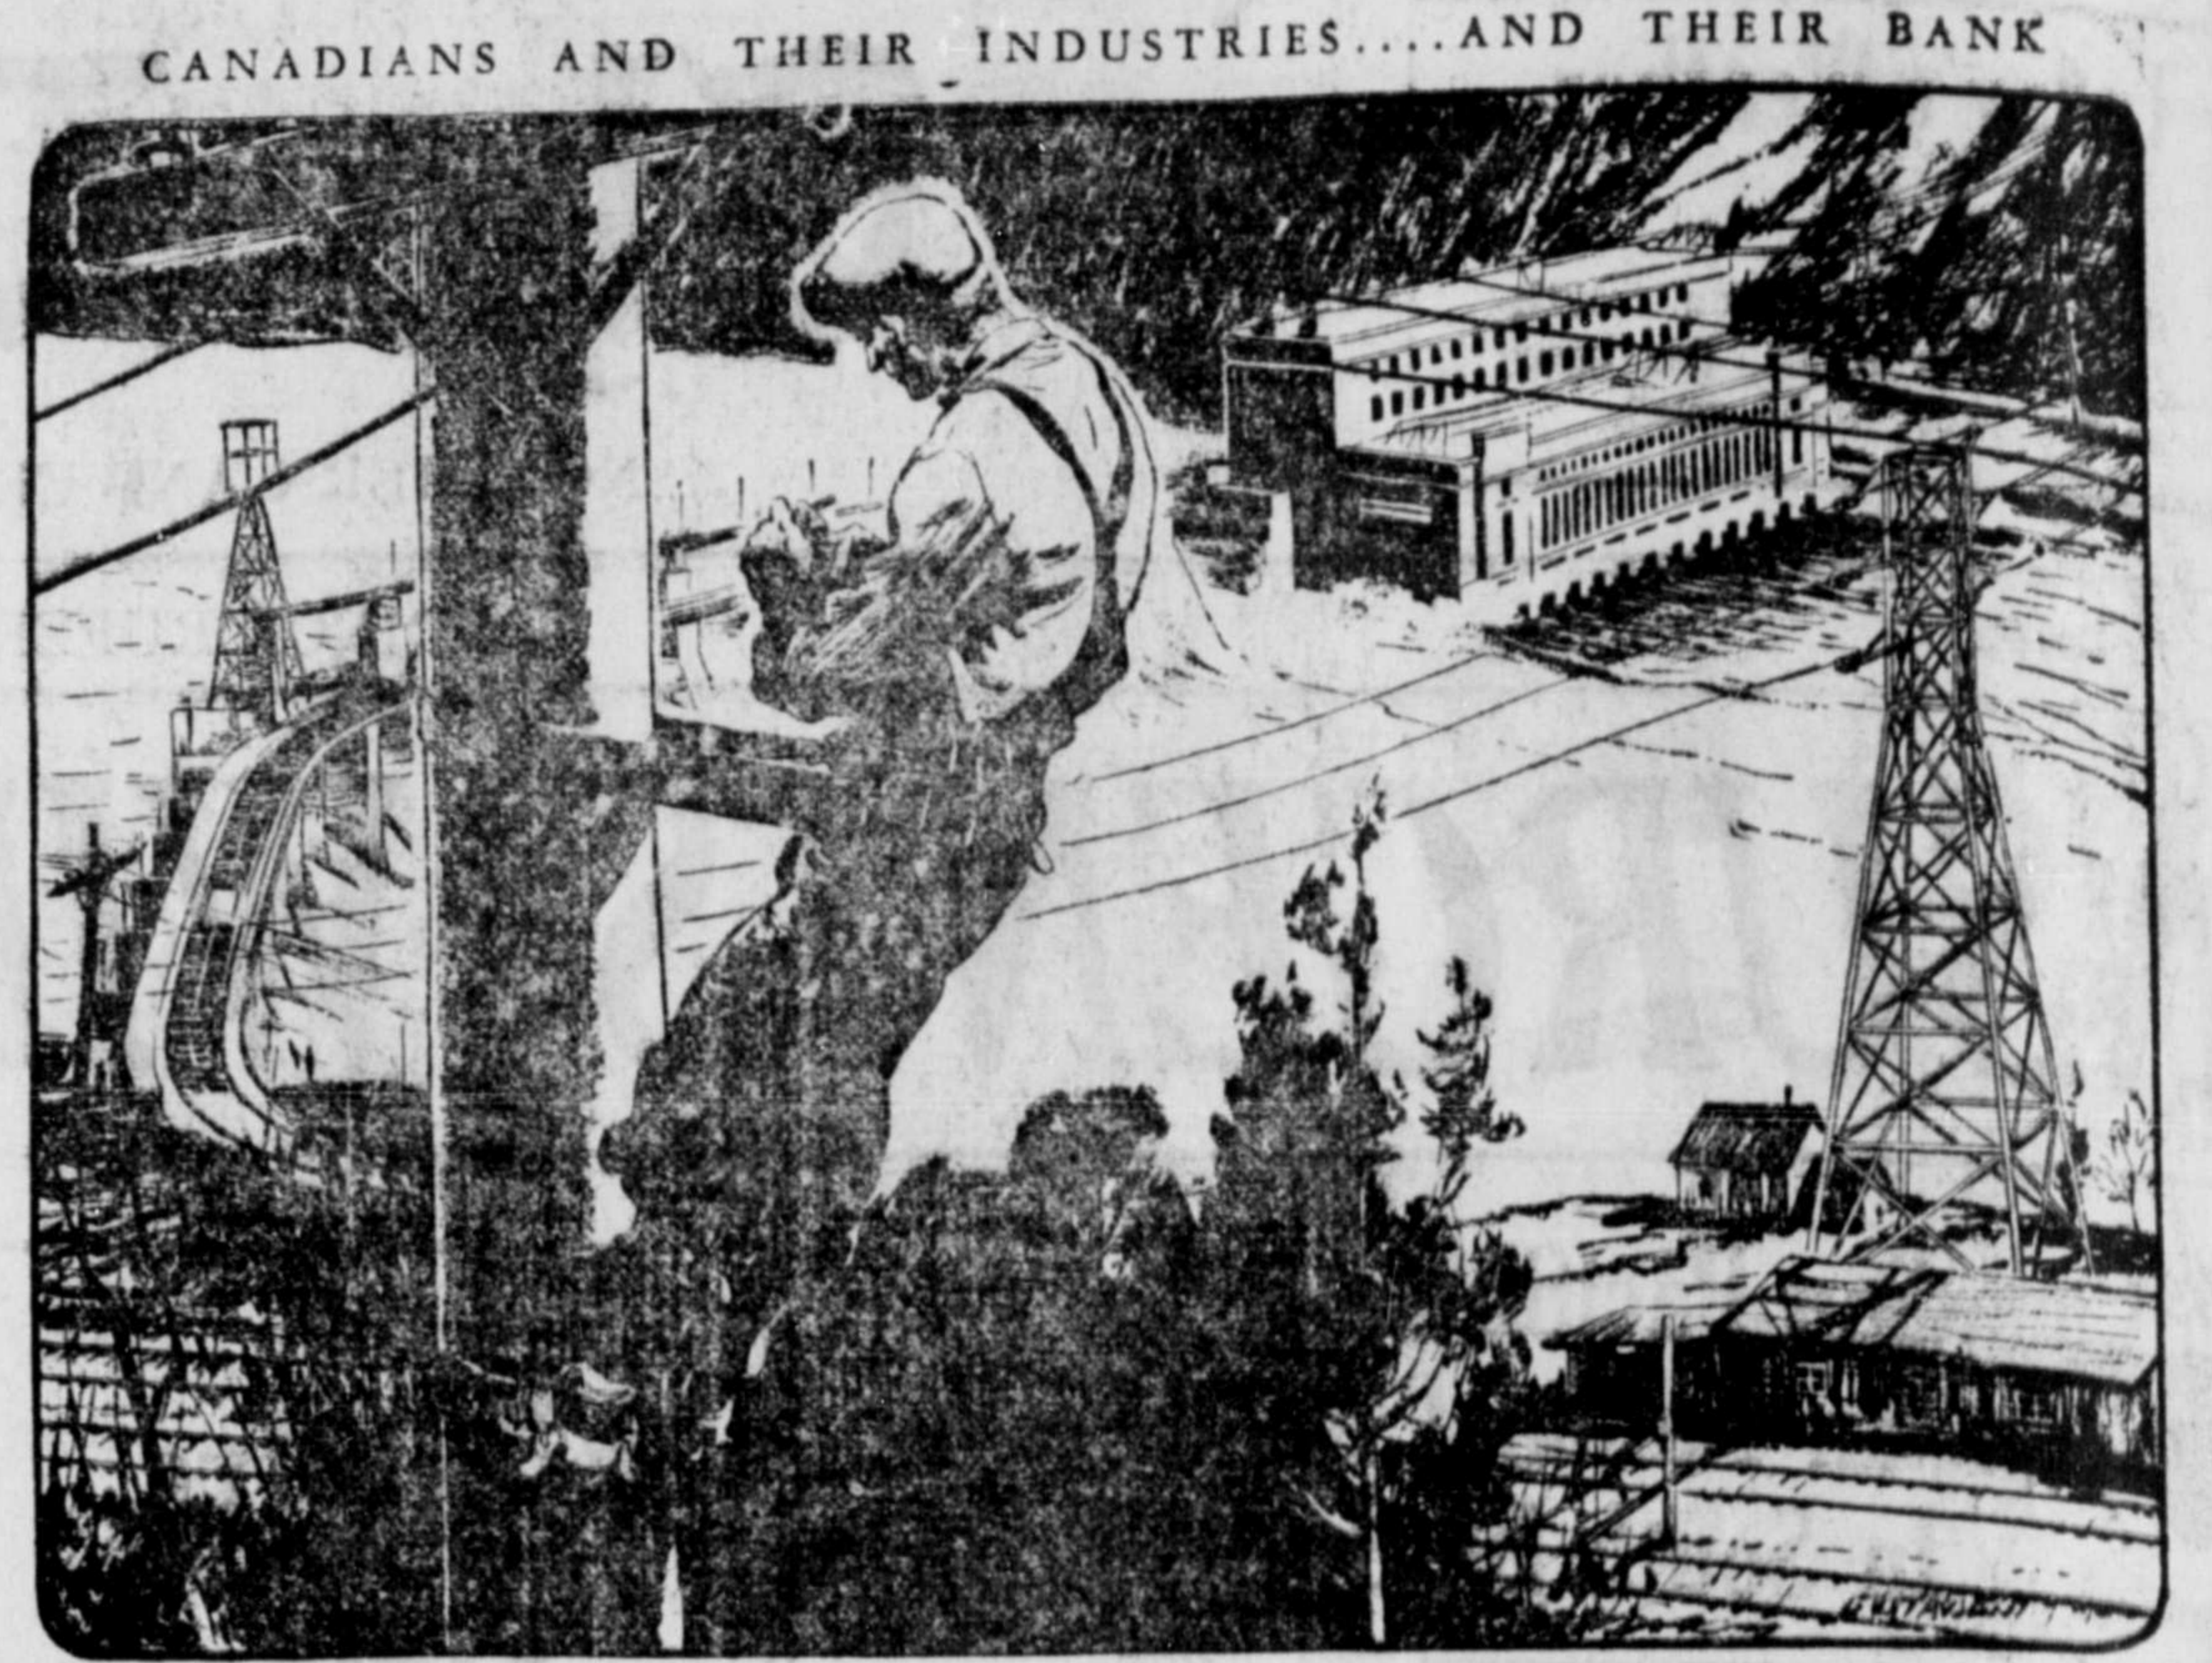

The 1937 executive consists of: President, R. M. Winslow; Officer Commanding Sea Cadets, Lieut. G. H. Greenwood; Secretary Treasurer, W. O. Vigar; Dr. L. W. Kergin, P. M. Ray, F. A. MacCallum, Lieut. Commander Walter Hume, Lieut. L. H. Hawthorn, E. B. Baker, J. H. McLeod, Alex. McRae, W. H. Tobey, Dr. R. G. Large, C. C. Mills, M. A. Burbank, F. N. Good and Orme Stuart.

THE HYDRO-ELECTRIC INDUSTRY

Established long before the commercial use of electricity was even dreamed of, the Bank of Montreal has seen the hydro-electric industry rise from its infancy and has provided helpful financial service in every phase of the utilization of water power to industrial and domestic use.

With abundant snow and rainfall on the uplands, and ample reservoir capacity in numerous lakes, Canada is fortunate in having a reliable supply of water power within transmission distance of the principal industrial centres. Only one country, the United States, has a greater total of hydro-electric development.

More than three-quarters of the power equipment used in manufacturing industries in Canada is electric-driven. Seventy per cent. of Canadian homes, urban and rural, are equipped with this "modern servant."

Cheap hydro-electric power has been an important factor in the rapid development of the mining industries. It has been a deciding factor in the refining of base metals from Canadian mines, which only a few years ago was a monopoly of foreign countries. The use of water power has gone hand in hand also with the expansion of the great forest industries of Canada.

The production of hydro-electric power has advanced steadily since the recovery of 1932, reaching new high records each year. The per capita output is exceeded only by that of Norway, yet only one-sixth of the known available water power resources of Canada has been utilized.

Hydro-electric industries and their employees all over Canada find in the Bank of Montreal the convenient and helpful banking service they need.

MOTHERS ARE RESPONSIBLE

The family looks to you to aid your doctor in keeping them well. You can help prevent much illness and poor health by guarding them from common constipation.

Most constipation comes from faulty diet—meals low in "bulk." This condition can be corrected so easily and pleasantly.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides the safe way to prevent constipation by putting "bulk" back in the diet. Within the body, ALL-BRAN absorbs twice its weight in water, forming a soft mass which gently sponges out the system.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B and iron. It is so much better for your family than constant dosing with artificial pills and drugs.

Two tablespoonfuls daily as a cereal, with milk or cream, or in recipes, are enough for the average person. Three times daily in severe cases.

Sold at all grocers—and guaranteed by Kellogg in London.

OF TIMELY INTEREST

In 1933 designed to give the British farmer protection. The result was that British agriculture today was comparatively prosperous. Britain had cut her imports of food supplies from 65 to 60 per cent. The British policy today was, first, home produce; second, Empire produce, and then, if necessary, products from abroad.

Turning to France, Germany and Italy which he grouped, Dean Clement said that the general aim of each had three points: first self-sufficiency in food supply; second, the settling of large numbers of men and women on the land, making them conservative proprietors; third, building up of a population for defence purposes. The general result was that these countries had today greatly reduced their imports and were actually exporting some commodities which formerly they had imported.

The Danubian countries—Bulgaria, Roumania, Jugo-Slavia, Greece and Poland—were endeavoring to formulate a food production policy standing between the capitalistic policies such as those of Canada and the United States and the communistic policy of Russia. In the effort to provide work and a living for their peasants, these countries had taken over large estates and created small farms. The great competition for Canadian agriculture, Dean Clement predicted, would come from these Danubian countries more than from Russia.

Russian Agriculture

Russia had industrialized her agriculture, thus making it a large-scale industry organized along specialized lines—that is, large farms operated communistically with large areas specializing in one line. Small holdings had been done away with and there was mass farm production. Some progress had been made. There had been increase in production of cereals but mass farming had not been altogether successful in stock raising, when large numbers of animals were brought together, they were more subject to epidemic.

There was also lack of personal attention.

Although the picture might change, Dean Clement said he did not see a possibility of any great competition for Canada from Russian products for some time at least.

There was also new competition coming from tropical and semi-tropical countries in the matter of production of food supplies. Margarine and stock feeds were being produced from tropical seeds, nuts, etc.

Biological Changes

The important influence of biological changes in supply of agricultural products was also referred to. Sheep today produced vastly more wool per animal than before. Sugar cane had been made richer in sugar content. Wheat lands could be extended through use of new type of wheat. Cows produced more milk and there was greater content of butter fat. Hens laid more eggs.

Yet, asserted the speaker, there was still an under-supply. Even if everything was distributed today there would not be enough to go round. Of course, this might soon be changed.

Dean Clement closed with a discussion of population in regard to food supply. Bulgaria, Italy and Portugal were the only countries where population had been maintained. The fact of the matter was the world was facing the possibility of an increased food supply without a corresponding increase in the number of mouths to feed. There was a steady increase in the percentage of sterility, decrease in marriage and the size of families due in many cases to economic necessity and, doubtless, in many cases, through hesitation on the part of many parents to raise soldiers for defence.

In conclusion, the speaker emphasized the necessity of Canada as a producing country, basing its agricultural policies on changing conditions in other lands.

G. P. Lyons presided over the meeting.
