Balancing the budget means that the country is paying its way instead of running into debt. It is a most desirable thing to do and the probability is that in years to come we shall look back and say that he was right. What is certain is that we cannot, as a country, continue to spend more than we receive indefinitely. We must face the situation, as Dunning is doing, and, when we are on an even keel, will be time enough to consider making extra expenditures.
