"Dick" Sheppard Passes Away in London—Outstanding Pacifist, Preacher and Social Worker

LONDON, Nov. 2: (CP)—Very Rev. Canon Hugh Richard Lawrie Sheppard—always better known as "Dick" Sheppard, one of England's outstanding pacifists, most popular preachers and foremost social workers, died yesterday at his home near St. Paul's Cathedral where he had been canon and preacher since 1934. He was vicar of St. Martin-in-the-Field from 1914 to 1927.

"Dick" Sheppard's church was a refuge for the homeless. His sermons over a long period went to the heart of the people, and he became Dean of Canterbury in 1929 but held the Deanery for only a couple of years recurring illness ending his virtual retirement. Son of the late Canon Edgar Sheppard for many years Subdean of the Chapels Royal, "Dick" Sheppard was born in 1883 and educated at Marlborough and at Trinity Hall, Cambridge. He took Holy Orders in 1907 and early in his career was appointed head of Oxford House, a social settlement in the East End of London of which the present Bishop of London, Dr. Manningham Ingram, was once principal. After three years Sheppard moved to the West End of London, to become Curate of fashionable St. George's Hanover Square.

For a short time Sheppard was a temporary chaplain at the Front but in the first year of the war he was appointed Vicar of St. Martin-in-the-Fields. This spacious church which used to be the place of worship for the Royal Family when it really stood "in the fields," had hitherto been regarded as a comfortable appointment for some aged cleric. Before Sheppard's arrival his Sunday congregations were negligible and little or nothing was attempted in weekday ministrations. Sheppard soon altered all that. In the pulpit he was far from a "fashion-thumper." His methods were entirely quiet and persuasive. The personal contact, though, which he established between the pulpit and the pews was remarkable. His celebrity became such that when the radio was established a permanent hook-up was instituted with St. Martin's and for several years Sheppard's message reached many thousands of listeners all over England and on the continent.

Friend of Homeless One of his most striking efforts in social work at St. Martin's was the opening of the enormous crypt of the church as a place of night refuge for homeless wanderers. Men and women are accommodated with a rough shake-down to the number of several score each night and, if completely destitute, are provided with a simple meal in the morning. On weekdays as well as Sundays the church has full congregations while in St. Martin's Hall adjoining there were such organizations as clubs for pageboys and other hotel servants, social circles for female workers, and a variety of other worthy enterprises.

Constantly dogged by illness, for asthma had him in its grievous grip, Sheppard carried on undaunted for 12 years at St. Martin's. In 1927 he was persuaded to resign and two years later was appointed to the Deanery of Canterbury, vacant through the appointment of Dr. G. K. A. Bell as Bishop of Chichester. Sheppard held the Deanery until 1931 when illness again made it impossible for him to sustain regular work. Sheppard was more effective in the pulpit and on the platform than in his writings. Some stir was created in 1927 when he published

ACTIVITIES IN LONDON

Training in Use of Cosmetics Advocated—Hospital Nurses are Scarce

LONDON, Nov. 2: (CP)—A London meeting addressed by women speakers was the National Safety Congress. Miss Elizabeth Denby, woman housing expert who was awarded a research fellowship to study slum clearance and was the first woman to read a paper at the Royal Institute of British Architects, gave a much-quoted address which is to be printed.

Education of a different variety was recommended by a speaker at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon. "There should be a condition attached to the sale of lipstick, rouge and sun-tans that the user should pass an examination in their artistic application before purchase," he said. Sir Charles Hicham, advertising authority and champion of beauty, disagreed. "The women of today make up their faces most charmingly. They use cosmetics marvelously well," he declared.

Ernest Brown, minister of labor, trying to find servants for England's basement kitchens, has suggested dowries for girls who go in for kitchen careers. Mistresses are a bit doubtful. "What is the use of training a girl if she leaves you for a home of her own just as she is becoming useful?" they argue.

Still unsolved is the much-discussed problem of the scarcity of hospital nurses. While Sir Kingsley Wood, minister of health has announced a national committee is to be appointed to carry out a comprehensive inquiry into the recruiting and training, the nurses in 24 London hospitals, including Guy's, Bart's and the Middlesex, are in open revolt against what they declare to be intolerable living and working conditions. They have founded an Association of Nurses strongly supporting the charter at the Trades Union Congress. Some people call it a Nurses' Union.

Baroness de Hueck of Toronto, who has been travelling in Spain, Portugal, France and Germany, is on her way home for an extensive lecture tour. Active in the organization of "Friendship" houses, she will speak on conditions as she found them in countries she visited. The work of another Canadian, Joli de Lotbiniere of Montreal, British Broadcasting Corporation announcer and director of outside broadcasts, took him to Prague to describe the Masaryk funeral.

Brian Meredith of Ottawa and Montreal has also been travelling on the continent checking up data for a book on skiing in the Canadian Rockies, the Laurentians and in Switzerland to be published in January.

SOVEREIGN RIGHTS

Evidently the Supreme Court of Alberta is holding what is generally understood to be the constitutional right of the Dominion government. Children in the schools have been taught that the provinces are not sovereign states as in the United States. They have jurisdiction only over matters which are specifically mentioned in the British North America Act, all other matters coming under Dominion control.

Premier Aberhart is taking the contrary view. Some of his laws have been turned down by the Supreme Court of the province and others are now before the Supreme Court of Canada for a ruling as to their constitutionality. According to Mr. Justice Ewing the province has no right to change the rate of interest on securities after guaranteeing them to the persons who purchased them. Also it has no right to prevent a court action when suit is entered in an action to collect the full amount of interest.

We have no right to suggest what the Supreme Court of Canada will do about the other legislation which has been placed before it but the average citizen who is informed as to the constitution may make a pretty good guess.

FORMER PREMIER BENNETT IN WEST

Most people will be interested in the visit of Right Hon. R. B. Bennett to British Columbia. He was in Prince Rupert several years ago just prior to an election and he promised us prosperity. Then came the depression and we did not hear as much from him. Today he is criticizing the treaty with the United States which gives British Columbia a pretty good market for much of its exportable product. He will have to do a lot of talking to persuade the people of the province that it would be a good thing to cut off this market.

The difficulty about Conservatives is they do not seem to consider what will be the effect of the legislation they propose. A tariff wall as high as Haaman's gallows may be a pretty thing to talk about but we hardly think the people of the province that it would be a good thing really the people of Prince Rupert and district.

LEGISLATIVE HOLIDAY

We are inclined to agree with the Liberals at Ottawa that what the country needs just now more than anything else is a legislative holiday. When Parliament meets in January it is to be hoped that it will follow out the suggestion and not keep tampering with laws which vitally affect the progress of the country. We believe in Liberalism and advancement but often true progress is made when the lawmakers are content to take a holiday.

SPORT CHAT

In spite of the big score of nine to nil for High School, Saturday's Junior football game was an interesting one and both teams displayed good soccer. Goals for High School were scored by Smith (3), Schubert and Cameron (2 each), Bill (1) and a Booth defender turned Wong's well taken corner kick past his own goalie.

Booth forward line displayed neat combination and Simundsen was nearly through from Morgan's centre but Nelson cleared. McKeown and Gomez defended well and Zbura brought off many a good stop. Flewin was the best half-back with Hougan, Simundsen and Morgan the best forwards for Booth. For High School the fast forward line was all good. McLean was the best halfback and McCrimmon the better back.

Teams—
King Edward High School—Nelson; Keays, McCrimmon; Bussey, McLean, Pierce; Schubert, Smith, Cameron, Bill and Wong.

Booth Memorial School—Zbura; McKeown, Gomez; Leland, Flewin, Sunberg; Morgan, Hougan, Simundsen, Colussi, M. Holkestad; spares, Baker Hodgson.

The game was very capably refereed by Bill Murray and Bill Brown and Wearmouth were linesmen.

BOWLING BANQUET

Presentation of Season's Trophies Featured Enjoyable and Successful Affair

Presentation of many league and individual awards for play of the last season featured the annual banquet of the Canadian National Recreation Lawn Bowling Club which was held last night in the Commodore Cafe with some sixty members of the clubs and friends in attendance. F. S. Walton, chairman of the bowling club, presided and conducted the proceedings which were in progress from 7 p.m. until 11:30. The event was thoroughly enjoyed by all. Numerous speeches were made and there was an acceptable musical program which included songs by J. A. Teng, William Murray and Angus Macdonald with A. C. Small as accompanist of the evening.

Before opening the banquet proceedings, two minutes silence was observed in respect to the memory of the late S. D. Macdonald, an active and popular member of the club who passed away during the year. The blessing was asked by H. T. Cross.

After full justice had been done to an excellent banquet spread, the chairman reviewed events of the past season which he said had been very successful despite the fact that weather might not have been all that was desired. Various committees, particularly the match committee consisting of Frank Vickers, D. A. MacPhee and W. L. Coates, were thanked for their work. The work of the green committee consisting of R. E. Benson and D. A. MacPhee was also acknowledged. G. P. Tinker and Jack Preece, associate members of the executive, had also given good service. During the year there had been entertainment on the club's greens for visitors from Vancouver including the provincial grandmaster of the Masonic Lodge.

Making the presentation of prizes for the year, Mr. Walton commented upon the fact Louis Arrol for the second year had won the doubles trophy, his partner on this occasion having been Jarvis McLeod. In winning the league, the Borland rink had gone through the season without losing a game which was a record for the green. Also it was the third time that William Millar had had his name on this trophy. Dave Borland had played in all three individual finals this year.

Blackstock, and to the Canadian National Recreation Association, proposed by George Hill and responded to by W. H. Tobey, president of the Association. Appreciation to the press for assistance was proposed by G. P. Tinker.

The committee in charge of the banquet consisted of Jack Preece, Robert James and J. A. Frew.

British Columbia has produced minerals of an aggregate value of $1,515,728,149.00. The gross value of the industry for the first six months of 1937 is estimated to be $36,383,540.00. This is an increase of 53.4% over the value for the corresponding period in 1936.

Indications are that this year's production will exceed that of any previous year in value, which is a splendid commentary upon the stability of the mining industry in this province. New properties are being brought into production, and with the reopening of old properties, mill capacity will be considerably increased over last year.

Capitolians Appreciated

Popular Musical Organization Makes its Opening Appearance of Season with Attractive Program

The popular Capitolians orchestra, under direction of Dr. H. N. Brocklesby, at the Capitol Theatre last night, made the first of a series of monthly appearances planned for the coming winter season. The special stage entertainment, splendidly executed, was much appreciated by a large audience. The feature number was a full arrangement of Jerome Kern's "Show Boat." The program opened with the pleasing "Two Violins" (Horlick). Miss Barbara Daniels and Len Cripps delighted the audience in duet, singing "In a Luxembourg Garden" and "I Bring a Love Song." Manager D. G. Borland acted as announcer. Charles P. Balagno has taken over the duties of principal pianist in the absence of Dr. W. A. Riddell through illness. The program is to be repeated this evening.

a book, "The Impatience of a Parson." The sentiments therein were thoroughly sincere, of course, but many of Sheppard's admirers considered that the somewhat petulant tone asserted ill with this parson's well-established powers of persuasion through the spoken word.

Dr. Sheppard was a keen upholder of the League of Nations. In February, 1932, he joined with two other well-known religious leaders, Miss Maude Royden and Rev. Dr. Herbert Gray, in offering to place themselves unarmed between the Sino-Japanese combatants in the Far East, with the object of compelling them to cease warfare.

Dr. Sheppard married the only daughter of William Oswald Carver, a Cheshire magistrate, and they had two daughters. He was an Honorary Chaplain to the King for 17 years and was Deputy Priest-in-Ordinary to both King Edward and King George. In 1927 he was created a Companion of Honor.

ROOSTER STEALING AND WAR

Well Known Columnist Well Illustrates International Situation by Story of Mrs. Noggins' Chickens

By BRUCE HUTCHISON in the Victoria Times

You may grow a little impatient at times with the world's statesmen but you must admit that they can put a wonderful face on futility and failure. If ordinary people were to behave in the fashion of the great powers, life would be indeed remarkable. If the people out our way, for example, were to conduct themselves like the leading nations at the present juncture in history, you would pick up the paper some day and read a report of the Saanich Police Court about like this:

George Pudbury was charged in Saanich police court today with wilfully damaging the property of Mrs. Alfred Noggins of West Saanich Road. Witnesses testified that Pudbury had walked into Mrs. Noggins' chicken pen last Tuesday night, killed seven of her Rhode Island roosters and taken them home with him after setting fire to the hen house.

Pudbury explained to Magistrate Hall that he had been forced to his action purely in self defense. He said he had happened to be in Mrs. Noggins' chicken pen at midnight Tuesday, while out strolling in the moonlight, and had been viciously attacked by a Rhode Island Red rooster. In order to defend himself it had been necessary not only to kill the rooster but six others as an example and to burn the hen house so that there would be no recurrence of the assault upon his person.

"All I'm trying to do, Yer Honor," Pudbury said to the magistrate, "is to be neighborly with Mrs. Noggins and to co-operate with her. For years I've bin tryin' to co-operate with her, Yer Honor, but she won't co-operate. I thought I would just teach her a lesson in co-operation. That there is the only reason I killed the roosters and burned down the hen house. It was just good old fashioned neighborliness, what I mean."

Rooster Sticking

Pudbury complained vigorously against the treatment accorded him by Mrs. Noggins. He said that he had been viciously attacked by her in a premeditated fashion after he had killed the roosters and burned the hen house. He said Mrs. Noggins had come out of her house in her night clothes and called him bad names—"such names, Ye Honor, as I would not disgrace this court with repeatin' of 'em here"—and had further assaulted him with her fists in a most brutal fashion. Purely in self-defense, he said, he had been forced to knock Mrs. Noggins down and tramp on her. "I just tramped on her a little," he said, "not much, you understand, but just enough so as to defend myself." It was fortunate, he said, that he happened to be wearing hobbled boots at the time.

Taking Control

Pudbury said he had found it necessary, in order to protect his interests, to take complete control of the Noggins' chicken pen and had put his son, Jim, in charge of it. He wanted it understood, however, that Jim, while operating the chicken farm, was doing it only for the Noggins' own good. "Jim is independent, what I mean to say," Pudbury testified. "I have no control of him. He just gives me all the eggs, that's all. It's a neighborly arrangement, as you might say."

Magistrate Hall said Pudbury deserved heavy punishment. He lectured the accused severely and said that next time he burned Mrs. Noggins' hen house he should give her a day's warning so that she could leave her house and avoid the danger of being burned also.

Meanwhile the Saanich Council met in special session to consider Pudbury's outrage. Councillor Wriggledown proposed that the municipality refuse to buy any more of Pudbury's barnyard fertilizer for the rose gardens at the Royal Oak Municipal Hall but the council explained that Mr. Pudbury might refuse, in retaliation, to pay his taxes or even to patronize the various stores, garages and other business enterprises owned by members of the council.

The Reeve said Pudbury had struck him violently in the paw a few days ago, as he had made a complete apology explaining that he had never intended to hit the Reeve in the jaw but only in the stomach, it was felt that the incident might well be overlooked. Councillor Wriggledown said Pudbury had chopped down some of his fence posts but had explained that he thought they belonged to Mrs. Noggins so this incident also was overlooked. Mr. Wriggledown added that Mr. Pudbury intended to buy most of his turnip crop for his cows.

Franklin's Plan

Councillor Franklin Delano made a rousing appeal to his colleagues and the public at large to rally together against all breakers of the peace like Pudbury and to quarantine them lest general anarchy spread throughout the municipality but he said he could do nothing, of course, to interfere with his profitable trade with Pudbury in groceries and hardware.

Pudbury himself appeared before the council and said he was amazed to find that this honorable body had quite misunderstood his entire attitude. It was incredible to him, and extremely painful, he said, to find such old friends as Wriggledown and Delano imagining for a moment that he intended any harm to Mrs. Noggins or anyone or that he had any intention of taking other people's property. Never had it crossed his mind, even when he ate the Rhode Island Reds, to appropriate other people's property. He thought the council ought to apologize to him for its unjust suspicions.

In the end the council passed a vigorous resolution protesting against Pudbury's actions as being contrary to law. The council then adjourned to Mr. Pudbury's house to enjoy coffee and cold chicken sandwiches.
