LONGSHORE STRIKE ON

Cunard-White Star and Furness-Withy Lines Boycotted in New York

NEW YORK, April 23.—A longshoremen's strike against both the Cunard-White Star and Furness-Withy steamship lines was declared last night by Joseph Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's Association. It arises out of alleged unfair treatment of union longshoremen by the two lines in Montreal and other Canadian ports.

Earlier yesterday a boycott had been declared against the Cunard-White Star line but this was lifted pending expected settlement of the Canadian dispute. Later, however, after the Queen Mary had sailed, the strike was declared.

No Settlement Yet TORONTO, April 23.—A longshoremen's strike here, as a result of which three hundred men are idle, is still deadlocked. There are similar strikes at Hamilton and Sarnia. The issue is that of union recognition.

AGREEMENT ARRIVED AT

Oshawa Workers Reported to Be Repudiating C. I. O.—Company Recognizing Local Union

OSHAWA, April 21: (CP)—An agreement was reported to have been reached last night in the General Motors of Canada strike whereby the workers repudiated the Committee on Industrial Organization and the General Motors agreed to recognize the local union. Hugh Thompson, United Automobile Workers of America organizer in charge of the strike here, yesterday accused Premier Heppburn and General Motors officials of "conspiring to break the strike." Thompson made the accusation when informed that a committee of strikers had gone to Toronto to meet Heppburn and Harry Carmichael, general manager of the General Motors of Canada.

At Washington, D.C. Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers of America, said that no other final decision has been reached by the executive board in connection with the General Motors of Canada strike than to give financial assistance to the local strikers. He questioned the authority of a report that Oshawa workers had repudiated the C. I. O.

Britain's Royal Family Enjoy London Carnival Informally

In an informal pose while each one of them was keenly interested in the spectacle before them, Britain's royal family is snapped watching a carnival in London. Princess Elizabeth, at the extreme right, seems to be pondering deeply while her father, King George VI and Queen Elizabeth obviously enjoy the performance. Only Princess Margaret Rose, youngest of the royal family, is interested in the photographer. The picture illustrates the love of informality that permeates the royal family. Princess Elizabeth had her eleventh birthday yesterday, one of her most interesting gifts being from Uncle David (the former King Edward VIII).

Five British Food Vessels Try To Move in—No Change in Policy

LONDON, April 22:—The British government again gave official warning yesterday that, while it would protect its merchantmen on the high seas, the Navy could not assume responsibility if they entered the territorial waters of foreign nations. In spite of the warning, it was reported that five British freighters were gathered near Bilbao in preparation for a mass movement into the Spanish port with food supplies. The British vessels were reported to have been authorized by their owners to run the gauntlet despite the government's warning. They were promised an escort of British warships to the three-mile limit from which point Spanish government shore batteries and a fleet of small armed craft would take over the job of fighting off insurgent attacks.

The five freighters started the attempt to smash the insurgent blockade at dawn today. Three of them were later reported to have been driven to shelter at St. Jean de Luz, France, by insurgent attacks. The other two continued at full steam towards the starving Basque capital with government shore batteries along the Bay of Biscay booming in the direction of the insurgent warships.

Madrid Bombarded MADRID, April 22:—Bombardment of Madrid, which has resulted in the killing of at least 150 persons and the wounding of many other civilians, continued yesterday for the tenth consecutive day.

Coal Miners' Dispute in South-eastern BC. Ends With Victory For Workers

FERNIE, April 21: (CP)—Only approval by the miners themselves was awaited yesterday to give final ratification to a new working agreement between the Crows Nest Pass Coal Co. and its thousand employees for settlement of the month old labor dispute which has threatened to tie up the coal mining industry of southeastern British Columbia.

At conferences of officials of the United Mine Workers of America, affiliate of the Committee of Industrial Organization, and the company, it was decided that the miners should be granted full recognition, increased pay and improved working conditions. Pay increases range from five to seventy cents daily.

LONDON—Plans are being completed for the marriage of Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson and the Duke of Windsor, friends here declare. The date is expected to be either June 19, which is Mrs. Simpson's birthday, or June 23, which is the Duke's. The ceremony, with the Duke of Kent as best man, will likely be at the Chateau de Candé at Tours, France, where Mrs. Simpson is now living. The interlucory period ending next Tuesday, Mrs. Simpson expects to receive her absolute decree of divorce a week from Monday. Certain objections have been made to the decree but the King's Proctor deems there are insufficient grounds for intervention.

Cash Laden Drawer Proves Too Much of a Temptation For Native Damsel

Priscilla Smith, an Indian damsel, who is no stranger around the Chateau Greenwood, in a weak moment yesterday afternoon, noticed an open cash drawer at Wallace's dry goods store. It seemed to be well filled with the currency of the realm so, while nobody was looking, Priscilla helped herself. After the loss of $55 had been discovered, suspicion soon attached itself to Priscilla and last evening she again heard the familiar greeting, "Come along with me." Priscilla appeared before the court this morning and pleaded guilty to a charge of theft. Part of the money had been found on her. She comes up this afternoon to hear what Magistrate McClymont is going to do with her this time.

VANCOUVER BEAUTIFICATION

Vancouver is starting a beautification scheme which is a good thing that may or may not be successful. If we may suggest something, it is that beautification has to come from the citizens and is a matter of civic pride, love of beauty and order, and is brought about by education and inspiration. That is how Prince Rupert is working it out. Individual citizens are doing their part, each in his own way, to bring about a better condition. And in doing this they enjoy the work.

FREEDOM OF THOUGHT

Canadians are free to think for themselves and in this they differ from the people of some of the European countries. It is a great thing to be able to think as one wishes. We are not forced into any groove of thought or punished because we do not think like some other person. Naturally, if we start out to campaign for what we think and try to get others to think like ourselves, we must be prepared for the opposition which always comes in such cases. Still Canadians generally are broadminded and allow a great deal of freedom of expression. It is a great thing to live in such a country.

ABERHARTISM

"Alberta seems to be having a difficult time with its Social Credit business," says the Victoria Times. "An SOS call has gone out to Major Douglas, described as the 'father of Social Credit,' to cross the Atlantic and come to the aid of Premier Aberhart."

"What Alberta does, of course, is Alberta's own business. But what is the idea of a thriving province seeking a financial system which, apparently, nobody understands?"

"Major Douglas addressed a dinner meeting held in his honor by the provincial government in Victoria a year or so ago. Newspapermen, of course, know nothing about finance; but newspapermen present at that affair had the satisfaction of knowing that at the conclusion of Major Douglas' remarks they knew as much about Social Credit as those trained in the art of political and financial thought."

"What the ordinary individual, the individual who has the capacity to think, cannot grasp is how the ordinary Albertan thinks he or she is going to benefit by the new-fangled Aberhartistic financial system."

"Mr. Aberhart is not a financial wizard who is able to touch a magic wand to start the flow of good Canadian currency from the heavens. All the Social Credit dividends he has promised to distribute must be provided by the citizens of Alberta."

"If we may be permitted the vulgarism—the people of Alberta, when they elected the Social Credit government, merely 'kidded' themselves."

GARDEN NOTEBOOK

To those who are novices at gardening, we suggest that it is a great thing to specialize on some particular flower. That does not mean that you should neglect all others but that your favorite should predominate. Charles Bagnago, for instance, specializes in Coltness dahlias and he will grow thousands of them this year. It lends added interest to the garden to do this; I am gradually developing toward rock gardening. It has become necessary to adapt his preference to the conditions under which we live.

A good many people have taken considerable interest in the plot in front of our cottage which is

One rule that does not seem to have been generally promulgated is to make the best you know how under conditions that present themselves. Use what you have and make the best of it. If you can't have what the experts say, have something and make it as pleasing as possible. That is the rule I am trying to follow. It may not be pleasing to others, but I rather like it.

Planting Now

James Boyd told me the other night that he had planted his dahlias, I thought it early but, after thinking about it for a day or two, I decided to do the same. Glads are due to go in the ground now and moving of perennials, if not already done, should not longer be delayed. Some people are sowing nasturtiums and other seeds out of doors. Others have greenhouses or cold frames and have most of their sowing done. At the C. N. R. gardens many of the seedlings are ready for transplanting, possibly a little early but in another week or so it should be all right. Spring frosts have of late years been light but there is always the danger of having delicate plants badly injured by too early planting.

Why Not Something New?

Why not try something new in the garden this year? Some people never have anything very good in

Prince Rupert Needs Color

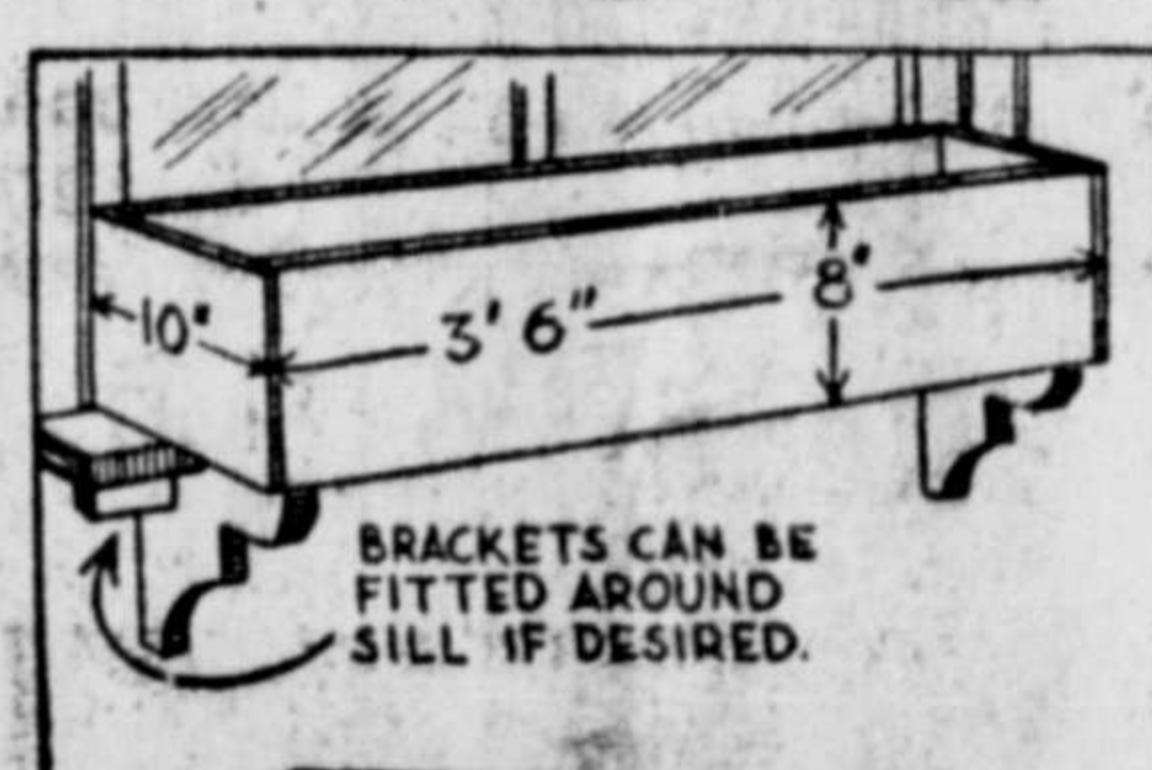

Any flower that adds to the brightness of the garden is well worth growing.

mostly planted to rock plants. Some of them we have not yet seen in bloom while others are old favorites. This bed is cultivated in the crudest way possible, the long grass being just turned under. At one end the soil seems to have come from beneath the house and is stone and gravel mixed with a small amount of good soil. At the end near the path it is almost wholly coal ashes. The result is in the lap of the gods. It will need cultivation and fertilization and even then some of the plants are likely to suffer.

Breaks all Rules

As a rock garden it transgresses all rules. Not only is the soil unprepared but the shape and location are said to be all wrong. One expert says a rock garden should be away from the house and there should be no straight lines in evidence. It should be more or less hidden so that coming on it is a surprise. There is also a lot of instruction in every book on how the rocks should be placed and how not placed. Mine are just the way they should not be placed. Having started wrong in the wrong place under adverse conditions and having adopted what is known as the "graveyard" style of placing rocks, it will be rather interesting to note what the results will be. Evidently, according to all rules, the result should be an inartistic hodge-podge.

their gardens because they are always changing but others seldom try anything new and they lose interest. The medium method seems to be the best. Try something new each year but stick to a lot of tried varieties and feature the ones you like best.

Spirit of the Garden

Mrs. William Rutherford of Nelson, one of the most delightful writers on horticultural subjects and a regular contributor to "Canadian Horticulture," died recently. Her contributions on "The Spirit of the Garden" will be missed by all readers of that magazine and I am sure her garden near Nelson will miss her tender care. She put her personality into her writings and that made them always so interesting. H. F. P.

Sufferer Follows Good Advice—And Takes Kruschen

The writer of the following letter had a bad attack of rheumatism, and was advised to take Kruschen. He did so, and describes his experiences in the following words:—

"About two years ago I developed a severe attack of rheumatism in my left shoulder blade. I tried all sorts of remedies, but with no results, until one day my brother-in-law, on hearing of my suffering, exclaimed, 'There is only one thing for rheumatism! That is—Kruschen Salts!' I decided to purchase a bottle, and for the first week took a teaspoonful in a glass of hot water each morning. The pain gradually disappeared and has now gone entirely. I am still taking my early morning dose, as I feel convinced that it is helping to keep me fit."—J.G.B.

Rheumatic conditions are frequently the result of an excess of uric acid in the body. Two of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts are notable for their work in dissolving uric acid. Other ingredients of these Salts assist Nature to expel the dissolved acid from the system.

Man in the Moon

The editor of the Rotary bulletin this week stole a few jokes. One was about a man who declared the world was neither flat nor round, but crooked.

Of course, everyone knows your world is as you see it. To me it looks rather mottled with lots of brightness showing through.

It is now the innings of the electioneering orators who will delight appreciative audiences by declaring that all politicians are just a bunch of crooks.

They say it takes a crook to find a crook.

Jake says he's going to mount a soap box one of these days and tell the world what he thinks of political orators and their ilk. He's polishing up his vocabulary in the meantime by swearing at cats that disturb his sleep around midnight whenever he gets to bed that early.

A writer in the United States discusses what is wrong with the Republican party. He says what they need is more funerals.

In Canada what we need is a little more calm thought and less wild talk about how bad, crooked, imbecile and impish the men in the other party are.

Bernice Palmer says . . .

Nature is prolific. Starting off with two rabbits as pets, we have now raised the ante to twenty-five and a profitable little business to boot! The last doe presented us with a litter of 18 squealing little mites and with great nonchalance, looked her brood over and discarded all but nine—the rest I am raising on an eye dropper. My house is like a quick lunch counter now with meals at all hours. Little did I think, as I pounded the keys at the Dominion Fisheries Office some twelve years ago up there, I would come to this—wet nurse to a litter of rabbits! But it is fun and competition is keen between Mrs. Longears and yours truly.

Our menagerie, besides all the rabbits, now consists of a guinea pig (whose eyes do not drop out when lifted by the tail, as Alice in Wonderland believed), one pup and a blind hen.

Angelo Patri, child educator, says children need pets to round out their development—but when my young son brought home two water-dogs in his thermos flask, I rebelled. He has passed the snail, potato-bug and caterpillar stages, but skippers, pollywogs, water-dogs and horned toads are just as bad.

I once knew a woman who raised nine boys and lived. Guess it is a knack!

PREFERENCE OF QUEEN

Her Majesty Likes Ice Blue And This Shade Likely to Become Popular

LONDON, April 22: (CP)—Queen Elizabeth will have the fittings for her coronation gown under the watchful eye of the same white-haired dressmaker who supervised the making of her first pink chiffon ball dress for her 1916 coming-out party. The same seamstress fitted her in the white satin gown in which she was first presented to King George V and Queen Mary at Buckingham Palace and in her medieval silver lame wedding gown. All Her Majesty's "red letter day" dresses have come from the same house since she was 14. "Shy little Lady Elizabeth" had simple and feminine tastes when she first came to us with her mother, the dressmaker said. "Now when we go to Buckingham Palace to fit her, it seems as if she has not a moment to herself. She is going out so much we keep a staff busy with her wardrobe all the time, some cutting, some fitting, some finishing. The other day we made a dress for the Queen at 24 hours' notice to meet an emergency." The 24-hour dress, of ice blue re-embroidered or "outlined" pea tinge lace with a wide silver belt, was worn by Her Majesty at an afternoon party for the wives of members of the diplomatic corps—many of whom also wore blue out of compliment to their hostess. The Queen is making increasing use of this particular shade," the seamstress remarked, and then showed a gorgeous gown of ice blue lace, with bodice solidly embroidered with sequin and diamond and wide gleaming shoulder straps. It is to be worn on several important occasions, including the state visit to Liverpool. A day ensemble with redingote of navy wool lace, simply made over a straight-lined tailored dress of ice blue silk and wool with navy scalloped embroidery outlining the suits.

Peter Pan collar and oval vestee finished with a tassel and cord tie, was another recent choice of Her Majesty. The piece de resistance at Hendley and Seymour Workrooms at the moment, however, is the ivory satin gown the Queen will wear at the Coronation. Designs for the embroidery were completed January 4, but it will be some time before the work itself is finished. The material is a heavy white satin made from "silk from silk-worms born and bred in England and woven in England," the dressmaker explained proudly. Using Maple Leaves The dress is very simple and on princess lines as it will be practically covered with heavy gold embroidery. There is a straight panel down the front, which is all in one piece. At each side are circular panels from the knees, which will join the circular train at the back. This train will be full-length and two yards on the ground. In the embroidery which incorporates the floral emblems of the different dominions and colonies, extensive use has been made of maple leaves. "They lend themselves so well to decorative design," was the explanation. Fine gold thread, appliqued lame and sequins with brilliant touches of diamente are being used to give effect to the different emblems. At the foot of the dress lotuses of India will float on a shimmering wave of silver cloth, a panel of embroidery extends from hem to neck and the fern of New Zealand and tiny wattle blossoms of Australia appear near the square décolletage. The tiny sleeves will be slashed at the top and inset with flounces of fine old lace. The train, or as it is officially called, "the robe," of English-made purple velvet, is six yards long and a yard and a half wide. Miss A. B. Hamilton, who has been visiting here for the past few months with her sister, Mrs. J. D. Fraser, is sailing by the Prince George tonight on her return to Vancouver. Daily News want-ads bring results.

Capt. Henry Brown was in charge of the ceremonies and there was a large and enthusiastic gathering. In addition to Capt. Brown, other principal speakers were Job Spencer and William Ridley. In the course of the proceedings, a two-minute silence was observed in remembrance of those early converts who had been first to accept the Christian life. The regular Sunday evening service included the following of the order which was written for the first church by the late Rev. W. F. Gurd, the pioneer missionary in 1899. The story of acceptance of Christianity at Kitkatla was traced from the days of the late chief Shakes (William Gladstone) in the nineties at first a few of the Kitkatla natives accepted Christianity and in 1894

Manual Training Instructor Heard by Parent Teachers' Association

The regular monthly meeting of the Prince Rupert Parent Teachers' Association was held last evening in the Booth Memorial School with Mrs. W. C. Aspinall presiding over a good attendance of members.

The treasurer, Miss S. A. Mills, reported a credit balance of $109.39 after all accounts have been paid. The Easter candy sale held in the schools prior to the Easter vacation had been very successful, bringing in a sum of $53.75. It is expected to make the customary grants to the schools for sport equipment at the next regular meeting. It was decided to hold the June tea in the Oddfellows' Hall, Mrs. N. M. Carter was appointed convener, for the tea and Mrs. W. M. Brown, assisted by Mrs. G. J. Dawes, will have charge of the home cooking.

Taking as his subject "Periodic Furniture," J. H. Nordan, manual training instructor in the Prince Rupert schools, gave a very interesting address during which he traced the development of furniture and furniture design from the mediaeval period down to modern times. Compared with the modern home of today the mediaeval castle was but meagerly furnished. The influence of the Italian renaissance of the fifteenth century had extended to furniture design and the Italian cities of Florence, Rome and Milan became important centres of cabinet making. Here, varying Italian interpretations of classic design fused with the Gothic of the late Middle Ages had produced first a transitional style and afterwards a distinct Renaissance type which eventually spread to the other countries of Western Europe. During the reign of Louis XV of France the love of ornamentation in furniture reached its height, all furniture being very elaborate with much painting, gilding, and carving. In Louis XVI's reign mahogany became the favorite wood and naturally much of the enamelling and gilding went out of fashion. The chairs and sofas were heavily stuffed and covered with beautiful tapestry. During the Tudor period in England furniture design was influenced by both Italian and German art, more particularly by the German artist Hans Holbein. Tudor-rose carving, mouldings, and frets were characteristic. From 1660 to the end of the century Jacobean furniture characterized by fine carvings and the spiral leg, predominated. The necessity of refurnishing churches and cathedrals and homes after the Great Fire gave a decided impetus to this style.

In the eighteenth century during the period of the George's, mahogany took the place of the traditional oak. Adams with classic friezes, scrolls, and garlands; Sheraton with costly inlays of rare satin wood on solid mahogany, and Chippendale, using acanthus foliage for decoration and the Cabriole leg with the claw and ball foot, were the great designers of the period.

Mr. Nordan next traced the evolution from these types of furniture to the furniture of today which must fulfil the following basic requirements: It must serve the purpose for which it is designed, it must be made of suitable materials, it must possess beauty of proportion, outline and color.

In closing Mr. Nordan made an appeal for a deeper appreciation of the art in furniture design and said that there were just as good designers and craftsmen in the world today as there had been in the past.

During the evening Miss Edna Wilkinson, accompanied by Miss Barbara Daniels, sang "The Songs My Mother Sang" and "Chukoo." A very hearty vote of thanks was accorded speaker and artists after which the meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Didn't Say Yes; Divorce Asked

Balkan Marriage May be Invalid Because Priest Missed Question

BELGRADE, April 22: (CP) —A bride who did not say "yes" at the altar may find herself husbandless as a result. Because the priest who performed the marriage ceremony omitted to ask the young bride of Milenko Zhivkovich, 22, of Zajechar, if she accepted Milenko as her husband, the bridegroom is now seeking divorce on the grounds that their marriage was illegal.

Hundreds of witnesses who attended the ceremony are prepared to corroborate the bridegroom's statement. He sought the divorce after only 10 days of married life. Legal authorities say the omission of the priest's question and the bride's "yes" renders the marriage invalid.

LEGION TO TAKE PART

Will Enter Fully Into Coronation Day Celebration—Officers Elected

The half-yearly meeting of the Prince Rupert branch of the Canadian Legion, British Empire Service League, took place last evening with an unusually large attendance of members. Considerable attention was devoted to consideration of how best the members could co-operate in observance of Coronation Day. The branch will parade as a body to the service at the Capitol Theatre in the forenoon and will later take part in the general parade. Berets and medals will be worn. A Canadian Legion float will be entered in the parade.

It is also planned to have the members join in a parade on Sunday, May 9, when the colors of the 102nd Battalion (overseas) will be deposited in St. Andrew's Cathedral. Dissatisfaction at the treatment accorded ex-service men in connection with government road work was expressed by certain members. In some cases, it was declared, the preference called for by the Dominion government was not extended to the veteran. A committee will also look into the matter of unemployment among ex-service men with a view to having the recommendations of the Hyndman Report and the Veterans' Assistance Commission implemented.

It was decided that the Legion would again enter a team in the city football competitions. Election of officers resulted in almost entire re-election of former officers as follows: Honorary President, Lt. Col. C. W. Peck, V.C., D.S.O. Honorary Vice-Presidents—Lt. Col. S. P. McMordie, D.S.O., Major John McGregor, V.C., D.S.O., Lt. Col. S. D. Johnston, M.C., V.D. President, Jack Preece. First Vice-President, W. J. Rance. Second Vice-President, H. A. Breen. Executive—C. L. The Price of Being Punctual

FAMILY'S ROMANTIC HISTORY

DeBeck Diamond Jubilee at Vancouver Adds Chapter to Story Starting With American Revolution

DEBEC, N.B., April 22: (CP)—The diamond jubilee wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. George Ward DeBeck, front-paged in Vancouver newspapers, had particular interest also for New Brunswick, prominently connected with the romantic history of the DeBeck family.

This Carleton County village was named after its first settler, George DeBeck, grandfather of the present Vancouver resident. The first George was a son of Lieutenant John Ludwig DeBeck, who was a prisoner of George Washington and later joined the first group of loyalists to set out for New Brunswick.

The dramatic story of George Ward DeBeck's elopement with a 16-year old girl and their flight down the Fraser River from New Westminster, B.C., was recalled at the time of the diamond jubilee observation. The elopement was only one of many adventurous episodes involving successive DeBeck generations.

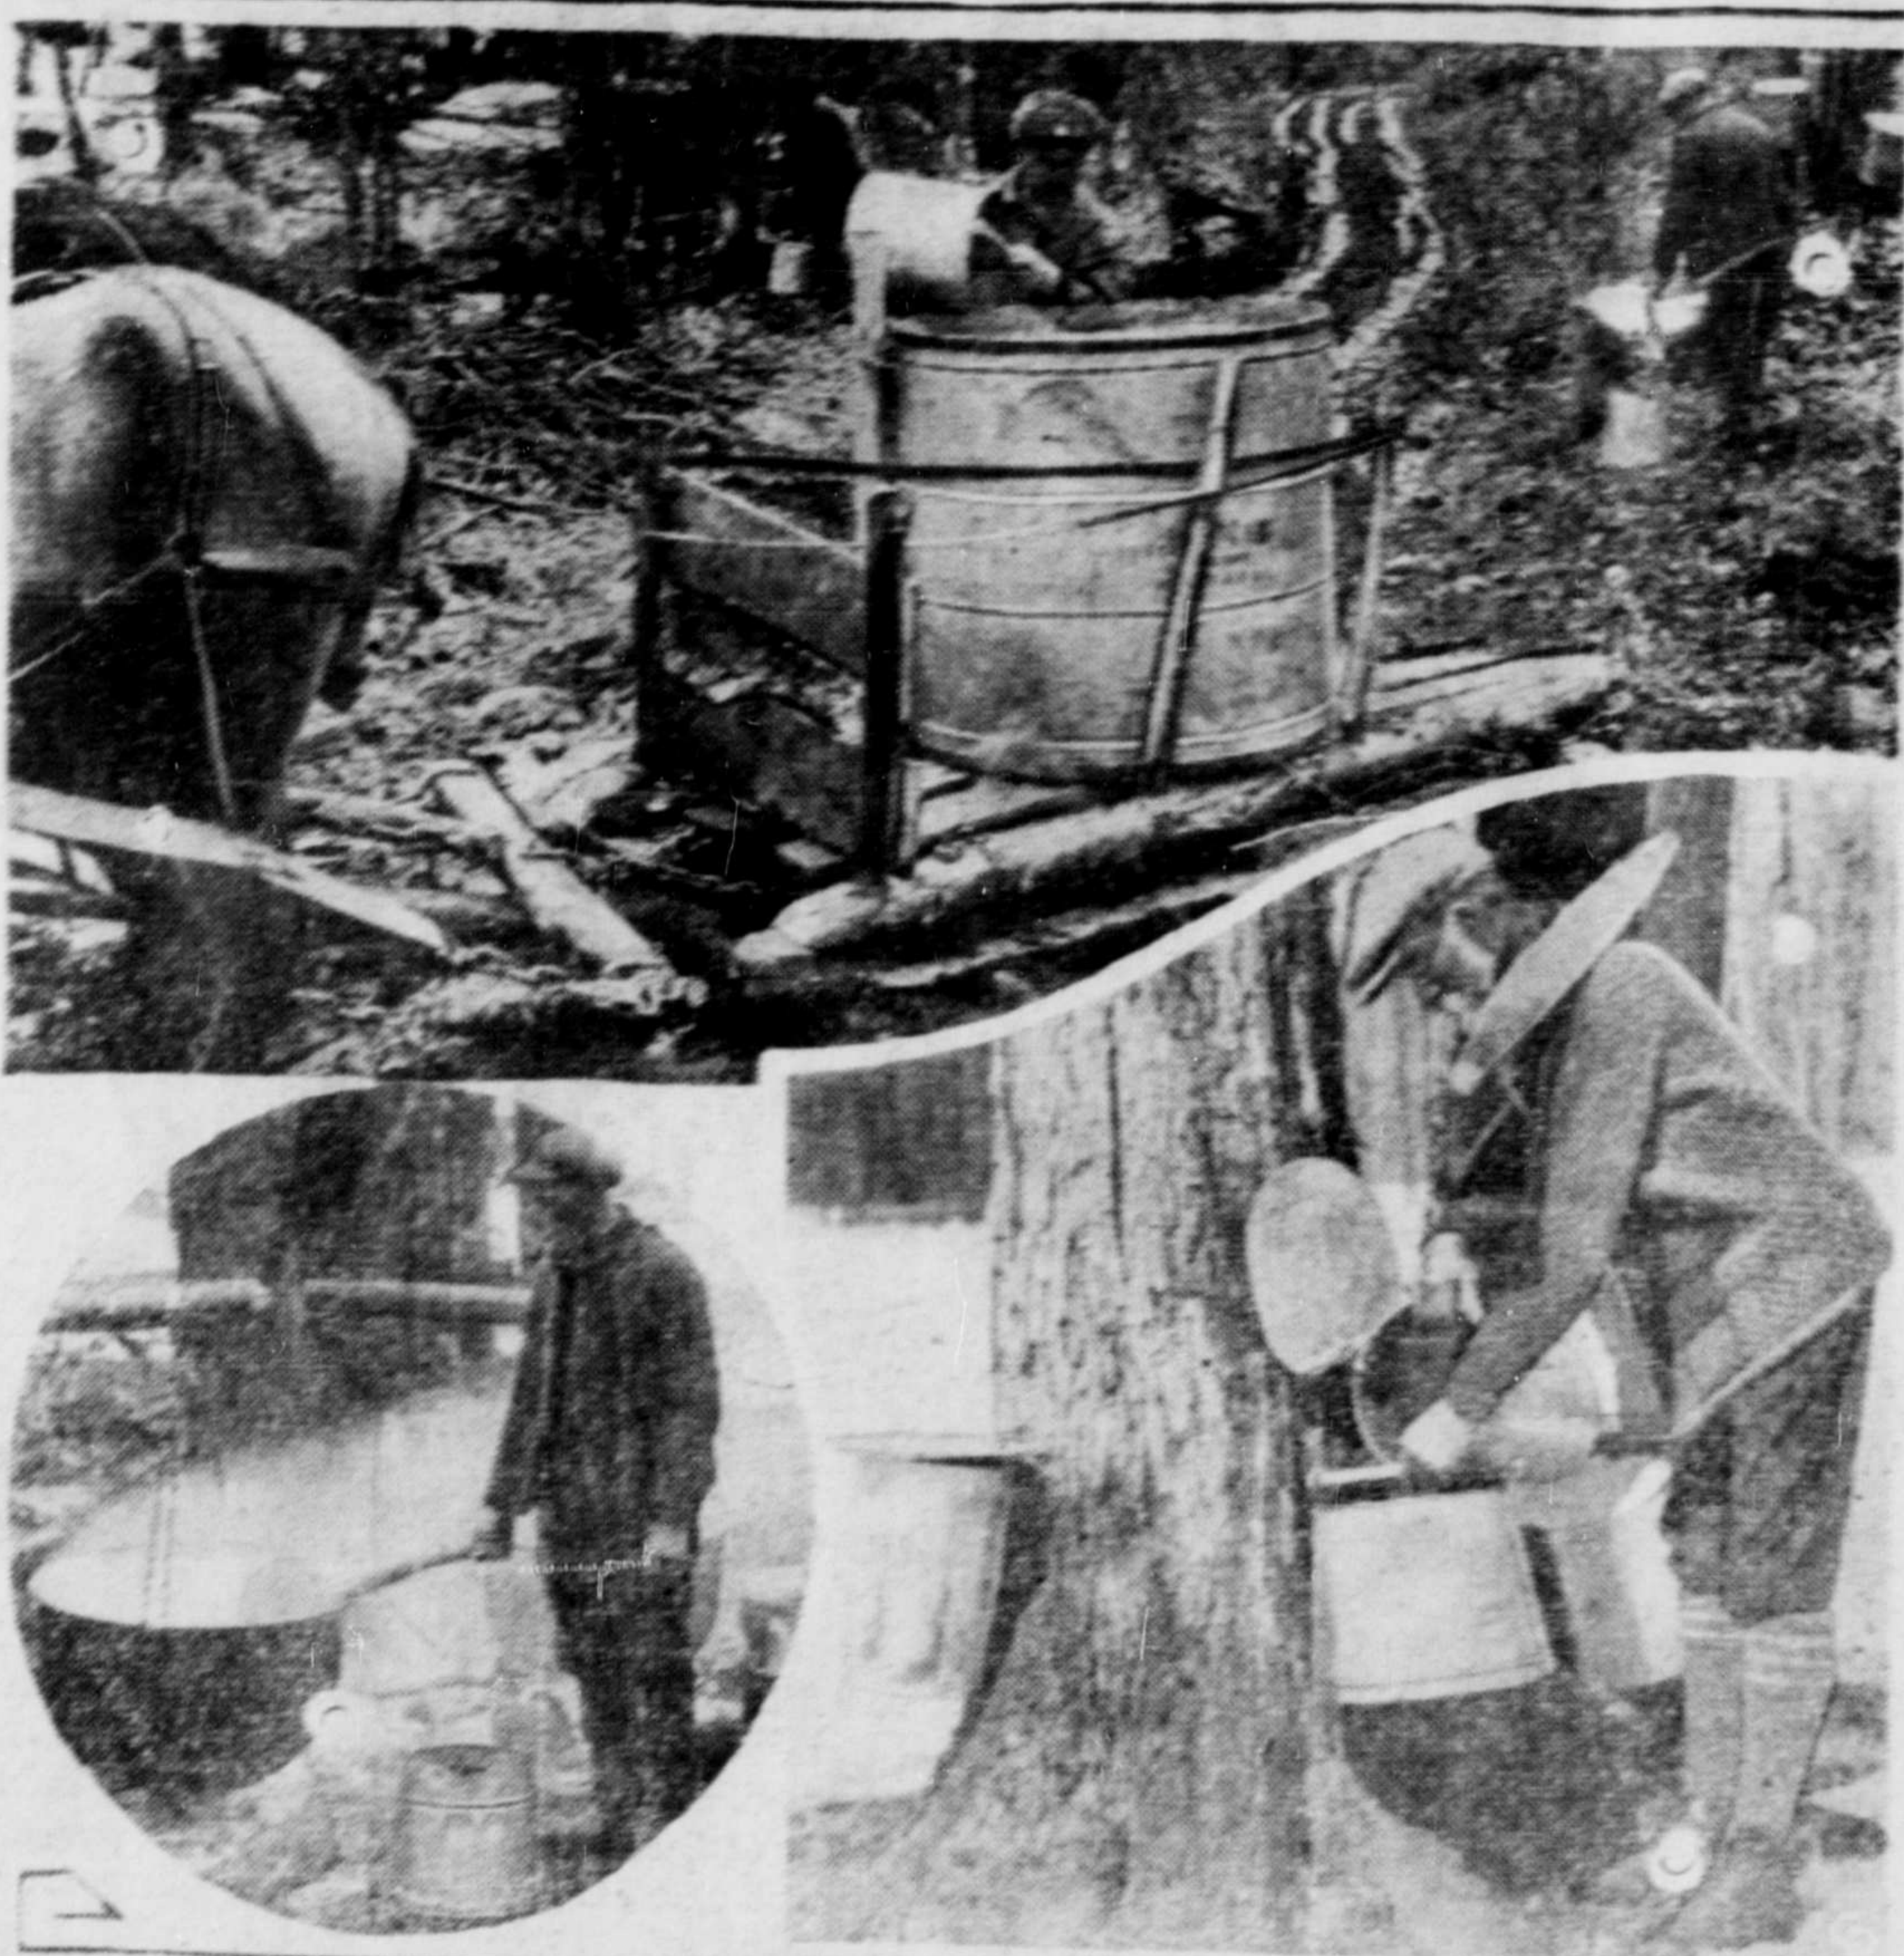

Still in the family is a copy of a muster roll of a New York Volunteers company as it was constituted when the soldiers were prisoners of war after surrendering to General Washington in 1781. Lieutenant DeBeck married a daughter of the company captain, John Althouse.

The couple made their first home in New Brunswick at Fort Howe, Saint John, the lieutenant retaining his rank in the British army. As their son, George, was the first child born at the fort a salute was fired to honor the event.

Real Pioneers
The British government granted Lieutenant Debeck land at Keswick, where he resided until his death in 1803. Two years later his widow petitioned the governor, pointing out she had been left with two small children "in great distress and helpless." Land granted her husband as one of the New York Volunteers "is so far up the St. John River and detached from all her connections that it cannot be of any use to her or contribute to the support of her children," said the document. She asked for 200 acres adjoining her father's property so that she might "by her own industry and the assistance of her friends save herself and children from penury."

After John DeBeck's death his son, George, left the Keswick home, sailed to France and joined Napoleon's army as a soldier of fortune. He served with distinction for five

Over 24,000,000 of the 70,000,000 maple trees in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes were tapped this spring and their "liquid gold" gathered in huge oak barrels. The upper photograph shows a scene common in all maple woods where farmers are tapping trees, the gathering of the sap from individual buckets for conveyance to the boiling house. years, rising to the rank of captain. Severely wounded in the battle of Wagram, 1809, he was the only officer of his company to survive. Napoleon personally decorated him with the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor.
Resigning that year when a colonel, he returned to Keswick. He was prohibited from wearing his distinguished medal. At that time it was illegal for a British subject to show or even possess any Napoleonic decoration. In 1810 he married Mary Green, of Keswick parish. His grave is in a former Presbyterian churchyard two miles from Debec Junction.
One son of this couple was known by the family as George the second. His widow died at Vancouver in 1921 at the great age of 107. They had four boys and eight girls, of whom only George Ward DeBeck remains. His home is near that of his eldest son, a Vancouver barrister.

SERENITY OF COURT

Dominion's Tribunal Not Subject To Attacks Like Given to Uncle Sam's Supreme Judges

OTTAWA, April 22: (CP)—While the Supreme Court of the United States is the centre of a political fight over the merits and demerits of President Roosevelt's plan to increase the number of its members and to establish a compulsory retirement age, the Canadian Supreme Court trends the same serene path along which it has progressed for 63 years.

The Canadian bench has been increased twice in its history and a retirement age established in 1927 but each time the change was made by parliament without political furor.

There are several reasons for the lack of political attacks on the Canadian court. First is the compulsory retirement of judges at 75. Secondly, it would be almost impossible for any decision of the Canadian tribunal to be dragged into the political arena.

The Canadian court was established in 1875, 12 years after Confederation. Like the American court, it handles routine appeals from lower courts on civil actions and some criminal charges. Like the American court, it handles appeals and references on constitutional matters—but in a different way.

In any country where legislative fields conflict under a federal system of government, there must be some referee to settle differences of opinion arising from the split sovereignty. It is the duty of both American and Canadian courts to act in this capacity.

The difference lies in this fact—the Canadian court, when passing on the constitutionality of a law goes no further than the law itself. The American Supreme Court tests the law from the angle of necessity, the angle of propriety or the angle of public welfare, and thereby holds a sort of veto over Congress.

Difference in Selection
Canadian Supreme Court judges are appointed by the federal government and generally are selected from provincial high court benches. In that respect, they resemble all federal judges in the United States but, unlike them, their appointments need not be ratified by parliament. The basic difference between the two judicial systems is that Canada's judges are appointed and American judges are elected. It is theoretically possible for a Canadian lawyer to advance, by appointment, from a police magistrate to a Supreme Court judge.

There are six judges and a chief justice on the Canadian Supreme Court bench, in contrast to a chief justice and eight judges on the American court. The Canadian chief justice is paid $15,000 a year, the American justice $20,500. Canadian judges are paid $12,000 a year, American judges, $20,000 a year. American judges retire they are paid a full salary for life. When Canadian Supreme Court judges retire, either through incapacity or through age, their pension is two-thirds of their salary.

On the Canadian bench, two judges are appointed from Quebec, two from Ontario and one each from the Maritimes and the prairies of British Columbia. When the court first was established, there were only five judges but the bench was enlarged to six in 1896 to seven in 1927. The reason for each increase was pressure of business and difficulties developing before the compulsory retirement age was established. The changes were made by parliament with out undue political repercussions and without charges of packing the court to the advantage of any party.

All judges in Canada are appointed by the federal government and it has been the practice of parties to select men of their own political stripe for the jobs. But the greatest care has been exercised by all parties to select qualified judges for the Supreme Court, recognizing the highest tribunal in the land should attract the keenest minds.

Variety of Ages
The average age of the present judges is 61.4 years, compared with 71.3 for the American court. The Canadian judges and their ages are as follows: Chief Justice Sir Lyman Duff, 72; Justices Thibault, Rinfret, 58; L. A. Cannon, 60; O. S. Crockett, 69; H. H. Davis, 52;

Patrick Kerwin, 48; A. B. Hudson, 62.

The oldest man on the American bench is Justice Louis D. Brandeis, 81 and the youngest, Benjamin N. Cardozo, 60; Chief Justice C. E. Hughes is 75; Willis Van Devanter, 78; J. C. McReynolds, 75; George Sutherland, 75; Pierce Butler, 67; H. F. Stone, 65, and O. J. Roberts, 62.

Only two former Supreme Court judges are living on pension as a result of Canada's compulsory retirement plan. P. B. Mignault and Robert Smith. The retirement age was set by the Mackenzie King government because it was felt a judge could not give sustained consideration to delicate legal subjects when over 75.

BRITISH COLUMBIA LEADERS

When the Hon. A. E. B. Davie died in 1889, he was succeeded by the Hon. John Robson, who was then Premier of British Columbia, August 3, 1889, to June 29, 1892. During his period as Premier of the Province there was passed a redistribution measure which gave seventeen seats to the mainland and sixteen seats to Vancouver Island. This caused a great deal of dissatisfaction among the electors on the mainland, owing to differences in population.
