RATIFIED TREATIES

Both United States and Canada Take Action to Protect Salmon and Halibut

OTTAWA, July 29.—Canada and the United States yesterday ratified conventions regulating the Pacific coast sockeye salmon and the Fraser River district and the halibut fisheries of the coast. The ratification was only a formality, the agreements having been approved by the Canadian parliament and the U.S. Congress previously.

The convention provide for separate commissions, one to regulate the Fraser salmon fisheries and the other to carry out the provisions of the halibut protection convention. So far the United States has not appointed its commissioners for the Fraser River protection and until this is done the convention in that regard is inoperative.

The protection of the Fraser River salmon has been considered for many years but the U.S. Congress always failed to respond to Canadian advances. The fish had been decimated owing largely to the fish traps at the entrance to Puget Sound, particularly among the San Juan Islands, which is the route most of the fish take in returning to the Fraser to spawn. Of late the fish have taken the route to their home river around the north end of Vancouver Island and thus escaped the fish traps.

WINNIPEG, July 29.—J. S. Woodsworth was yesterday chosen president of the C. C. F. throughout Canada at the closing of the convention here yesterday.

In his address to the convention, the leader said it would be the work of the party to oppose every attempt to take away the fundamental liberties of the people, mentioning particularly the action of the governments of Quebec and Ontario where the premiers of those provinces had taken a stand against the C.I.O. and in favor of the older organizations of workers. It was the right of the people to choose what labor organizations they wished to join, he contended. Interference with this was a blow at liberty in a democracy.

VISIT PRINCE RUPERT

"In the Vancouver Province some time ago, Stephen Leacock bemoaned the fact that British Columbia is so little known to those outside of British Columbia, and that if more people only knew about the province, they would have been born there," says Bernice Palmer. "I agree with him. In this day of highly specialized advertising, there is no reason to hide one's beauties under a bushel. I am sure that if more people knew about the wonderful outdoor swimming facilities, the great trout fishing to be had, and the glorious evenings paddling into the sunset, they would arrange to spend their vacations in Prince Rupert. California hasn't become famous on her climate alone—sometimes I think that has been a little over-rated—but because Californians have seen to it that her name is on everyone's lips! It pays to advertise! If you don't believe that, ask the next person you know who is coming to California, why he has chosen this particular spot.

TELL THE WORLD

"True, we have the longest bridge in the world—but when I left there, Prince Rupert had the largest fish cold storage in the world too!" continues Bernice, "and the greatest halibut fishing banks. If you don't think those have advertising value—just play them up sometime and see. But, from first hand experience, I would say they are just reserved for Canadian government officials (fisheries especially!) who have probably seen them a dozen times already.

"I look in vain in our big papers for an invitation for vacationists to visit Prince Rupert; the fisherman's paradise, the honeymooner's retreat, where romantic grooms can make love drifting along the shore in a rented canoe. Vancouver is mentioned in a steamboat add, but of Prince Rupert, nary a word. But—read your Canadian papers and learn where to come for the holiday. Americans believe in 'telling the world.' It pays in dollars and friends. "And by the way, I met a teacher in one of our local adult classes who was best man over twenty years ago, at the wedding of J. C. Brady. They were both fresh from the 'Old Country' then, and both have gone far in their profession since. And a contractor and builder who is distantly related to George Morrow. The name Prince Rupert has an appeal all its own, and it seems that those who once hear it, remember.

"Yes, the town could be made quite an attraction for summer visitors. But, it is up to you to make it so, and then to tell the vacationers how to get there!"

GARDEN NOTEBOOK

The other day I was much intrigued by the sight of a little garden that I have often mentioned before. This year it is different and the change is very pleasing. I like to have my garden different every year and it seems Mr. and Mrs. Sam Wickdal feel the same about it. At any rate their garden this year is a sight for the gods.

Of course this little garden does not please its owners. It never does. The good gardener never gets results anywhere approaching his ambitions. He can point out a dozen flaws and show that if certain flowers had come up to expectations it would have been vastly better. It may have been for him but not to those of us who are humble spectators.

It's the color combination I like in this particular garden on Sixth Street. I can't remember exactly what was in it but it was very pleasing, viewed from the road, and that is the view point of most people. All I remember was the Betty Blueeys along the edge, rather sagged by the rainy weather but most effective, when I saw it about a week ago.

So many of us want a big garden when in most cases a small garden well kept with a nicely mown and trimmed lawn would be the right thing. The difficulty with so many is that the lawn is only periodically mown and trimmed. The ideal garden is mown regularly at least once a week and trimmed along the edges every time it is mown or every second time. There is where we fail.

Color is doubtless what we need in Prince Rupert but we also need to add greenness and neatness, and freedom from weeds in a garden that is cultivated regularly. I like to talk about these things but to do them is different.

I have been looking at W. H. Tobey's show garden down near the C.N.R. dock. It has been much prettier this year than I have ever seen it before. The roses have been a mass of bloom. The Canterbury bells have been very fine, and foxgloves spectacular and the delphiniums very stately and colorful in a soft artistic way. I like delphiniums. They winter well and need very little attention except careful staking and tying and they give big returns for the time expended. The Tobey's also have peonies that have bloomed well and some white spirea above the very colorful rockery that blend in well with the surrounding multicolored anemias and other flowers around it.

May I remind readers of this column that the gardens will be judged in about two weeks or hereabouts and that work done now makes for good effect later on. Tall plants should be tied up now rather than a week or two later. We all want to look our best when the judge comes. We want him to get a good impression of Prince Rupert. He will see many gardens that are not entered in the competition as well as those that are entered.

For possible exhibitors at the show, a little liquid manure administered soon helps to bring on flowers that may be lagging and also makes better quality blooms.

Sweet peas are coming in bloom nicely, and the display at the show should be a good one. I expect competition in these flowers to be very keen. If you have lost yours, get a copy of the prize list at the Daily News office.—H.F.P.

Bay Bulls Is Partial To A Single Name

Thriving Newfoundland Fishing Centre has Oodles of Williamses Making for Some Confusion

BAY BULLS, Nfld., July 29: (CP)—They call it Bay Bulls, this thriving fishing centre 18 miles south of St. John's. But it just missed being called Williams-town. Literally hundreds of the 1,200 population bear the name of Williams.

Yet a great number of those who have the name are unrelated to their next door neighbors with the same name. It just happened that family after family came in to settle the town and that the majority of the settlers were named Williams although each new family bore no relationship to those already there.

Because of the confusion that arose over the duplication of names, the inhabitants have worked out a complete and complicated system of nicknames, uniquely satisfactory. Two systems of naming were used in the process.

Most common scheme was the combining of the first names of man and wife for a brand-new surname for the family. Thus, several heads of families might be Joe Williams', but by a combination of wives' names they are now known as Minnie-Joe Williams, Mary-Joe Williams or Milly-Joe Williams. The combinations are endless in their possibilities.

Descriptive names have also been used. There's a Big Tom Williams, a little Tom and a Raw Tom, a Big Fred, Little Fred and Milfred, a Bill, a Billy and a Billy-Dandy Williams, to say nothing of a Connie Crow, a Bumble and a Jumper.

So these robust fishing folk, many of them descendants of early Welsh settlers of Newfoundland, have settled their problems of names just as they have solved greater problems to be met by all who go down to the sea in ships.

J. E. Clavering was a passenger aboard the Princess Louise yesterday afternoon going to Vancouver.

Underground Lake Still Unexplored

No Form of Life Known To Exist In Frigid Subterranean Water

HILLSBORO, N.B., July 29: (CP)—An underground lake, geological phenomenon, exists at Demoiselle Creek near this village in Albert County. The entrance is a mouth-like hole at the foot of a high cliff and the outlet is a smaller hole in a vertical cliff of gypsum more than a quarter of a mile away.

Clear, icy water creates a chilly atmosphere at the lake entrance. Water and rock blend into blackness a few yards from the mouth. Size of the lake is unknown as ledges dip too low for a boat to pass and no swimmer has ever dared an attempt at exploration.

No form of marine life is known to exist in the frigid underground water. For years country folk of the district have referred to the eerie subterranean area as the home of blind frogs but with the lack of anything to support this belief it is considered a myth.

The geological explanation is that limestone and gypsum are soluble in water. During the ages a trickling spring ate away the rock that occupied the space of the present huge cavern.

CALEDONIA BIDS FAREWELL TO NEW YORK

With New York's massive downtown buildings below it and the Empire State Building in the background, the British flying boat Caledonia presents an impressive picture as she soars across the U.S. metropolis and heads for Montreal on her return flight to England. After making the east-to-west crossing from Foynes, Ireland, to Botwood, Newfoundland, the Caledonia flew on to Montreal and then to New York; she returned to her home port over the same route. The flights are forerunners of regular commercial flying boat service between Britain and North America.

WILL VISIT OCEAN FALLS

Challenge of Local Football Association Has Been Accepted And Team Will Travel South

Ocean Falls has accepted the challenge of the Prince Rupert Football Association to a series of games to be played at their own grounds. It is planned to take the team south for Labor Day, playing two or three games while there.

A general meeting will be held on Sunday for the purpose of making final arrangements and picking a team to make the trip. It is quite probable that a number of Prince Rupert sport enthusiasts may take advantage of the opportunity to visit the Falls.

The Letter Box

CATS AGAIN

Dear Editor:
 We trust you will publish this in your valuable paper, in the Letter Box, as a result of our reading of your article in yesterday's paper.

CATS
 Now that the Pulp Mill is no longer a dream, the cats of our city grow gleeful and scream. But ruined is the napping of our Chief of Police, and the brilliant thoughts of our editors cease.

The rest of us folk from the Cove and Westview have borne for years with the howl and the me-ow. Of the dear little pets and the alley cats, who on the garbage-made roads exterminate rats.

But an editor's ire can not be curbed. When his and the Chief's sleep are disturbed, so a meeting was held to solemnly vow the jack the Commissioner up, and how!

And should our Herr Alder hesitate, when the above bright lads their views ventilate, they'll demand a Mayor and his retinue to toll aloud a Cat Curfew.

And we'll vote for this crop of hoary heads, who'll guard us when we're in our beds, by tolling curfew with a resounding bell, and tell Herr Alder to go to—Victoria.

HOLIDAYING Q.C. ISLANDS

Number of Prince Rupert People Enjoying Visits to Massett and Tlell This Summer

Queen Charlotte Islands are ideal places to spend a holiday. Two points only so far have been given publicity, Massett and Tlell, and to each of these places dozens of local people go to enjoy the climate, the sea bathing and the carefree life of the country.

Holidaying from Tlell state that there were fifteen guests at The Dunes at Tlell the past two weeks and all seemed to be having a good time. There were visits to the beach every day, beach fires in the evening and all comforts of farm life. One day the people of Port Clements held a picnic at Tlell and invited all Madam Rajaut's guests and another evening there was a dance at Port Clements and they were all invited. There was a splendid informal time for all.

Those returning from Massett are equally enthusiastic over Sangan River and North Beach as a holiday resort. All the cottages here were taken and the beach, the visitors claim, is "simply wonderful." Trips were made to Fow Hill and Rose Spit and here were picnics and fishing and everything that makes for a happy time.

Many of those who were at these resorts claim they plan to return next summer or in the near future.

Bernice Palmer says . . .

It is surprising the number of people I have run into lately who have been to or are going through Prince Rupert. Talking to a doctor the other day, he mentioned the fact that he had spent a week-end in Prince Rupert just a few months ago, but his chief impression seemed to be the rain! And I overheard a nurse telling about the town with the funny side-walks on stilts. She hadn't been through Prince Rupert for a good many years. And then there was a striker who took part in the Battle of Kelly's Cut. Only real old timers will remember that event. The Matanuska Valley project has made American people

Alaska conscious, and I guess they just take Prince Rupert along in their stride. It is an opportunity for some enterprising hotel manager to cash in on this interest, and for others to advertise excursions to the Salt Lake or to the fishing banks, to Metlakatla or Porcher Island. I am constantly asked "But what can you do up there?"

Madame Fahey Interprets Her Own Operetta

Lady Who Has Sung in Prince Rupert Several Times Heard In Victoria

VICTORIA, July 29:—Madame Lugrin Fahey, who has been heard several times in musical recitals at Prince Rupert, was heard in an operetta composed by herself here. She portrayed all the fifteen roles in "The Loyalists," a story based on an incident of the American revolution. Last year Madame Fahey came to Victoria and presented another of her own operettas, "The Bride Ship," which was widely acclaimed. "The Loyalists" is just as delightful and showed Madame Fahey's versatility. Madame Fahey's fine dramatic soprano voice carried a heavy role that would have tired many voices. But hers was fresh throughout and a constant joy.

In some of the numbers Madame Fahey suggested a chorus, although she alone carried the entire operetta. No stage furnishing was used, but by her interpretation, Madame Fahey made the audience understand each scene, all of which were amazingly vivid and colorful.

Some lovely music occurs in "The Loyalists," and the libretto, also done by Madame Fahey, is extremely clever. The story is true to history and is of particular interest to the United Empire Loyalists.

Among the most pleasing songs in the operetta are "The Swift Flying Little Thimble," "O Happy Day," "Her Ladyship," "Do you want to buy some shoes today?" "Come, Step a Measure," "The Loyalist," "We are Loyalists," "The Royal Rangers," "The Rose and the Butterfly," "Go, I Bid You Depart" and "Cradle Song."

Everything On C.N.R. Trains For Children

MONTREAL, July 29:—"All the good things that come from the kitchen at home can now be ordered by children on dining cars of the Canadian National Railways," stated W. W. Swinden, General Superintendent of Sleeping and Dining Car Services, in announcing new "Children's Menus" on Canadian National trains.

These new menus, designed particularly to appeal to children give a wide choice of suggestions for breakfast, dinner and supper for the little folk. They also include a number of nursery "jingles" in modern style.

It is the kiddies' own menu. They may take a copy home as a souvenir, and their dining car steward will autograph it if they so desire, making them members of the "Little Folks Travel Club."

"We already have special china ware and cutlery for children as well as high chairs and bibs," said Mr. Swinden, "and these new attractive menus complete the list. We are making every effort to make meal-time appetizing and pleasant for children on our diners and our employees have been instructed to give them special attention."
