New York Journalist Intrigued by Incident Which Inspired School Naming

Last summer Bob Davis, the famous journalist of the New York Sun editorial staff, visited Prince Rupert and found himself intrigued with the story of William Booth for whom the Booth School is named. He wrote a column about it and the story taken from the New York Sun will prove a reminder to the pupils and others of how the school obtained its name. Here is the article:

Prince Rupert-Whenever you see the name of this town in print, or hear it spoken of, remember that it boasts the world's largest ice box, with a capacity of 14,000,000 pounds, packed exclusively with fish; that it is the last port of call northward out of Canada; that it is the market place for the logging, lumbering, and mining industries in northern British Columbia and, last but not least, that no finer deep water harbor exists between Cape Horn and Stop over here and some well disposed hospitable citizen like Harry F. Pullen, editor of the Daily News, will motor you about the suburbs, and give you a look at the gardens; that for the past few years have won first, second and third prizes in the competition for natural adornment; the fine public buildings, the panorama of mountains and the unbeatable geographical location of Prince Rupert when the next boom that is destined soon to break in the Yukon, Alaska and the Northwest, rolls in.

But that isn't all there is of interest in this thriving town built on the rock; not by any means. As you TRAGEDY drive about the city, frequent TRAGEDY glimpses are to be had of a large building, simple in architecture and roomy withal. If you take the trouble to ask what it is, the answer is "Booth Memorial School."

For some reason or other, it may be a complex for all I know, the name Booth always rings a bell in! be the William Booth for whom the couver and nearby municipalitie school was named. He replied at yesterday.

Unmasking a revolutionary plot as grim and fantastic as any expounded b a fiction writer, French police of the Surete Nationale struck to halt what they maintain were plans for an armed revolution by battalions of Les Cour alards-The Hooded Ones-designed to overthrow the French republic and restore the monarchy with the Duc de Guise on the throne. Huge caches of arms were uncovered all across France and names as high-placed as those of Gen. M. Weygand, Foc 's chief of staff during the war, and Gen. Du Seignuir, for mer air commander, were linked with the secret organization. At RIGHT is pictured a police raid on one of the arms dumps, this one found in an antique shop in the Rue Rotrou in Paris; plain clothes officers are carrying out rifles, revolvers, machine guns and ammunition after their raid. Through the sewers which undermine Paris and which allegedly were to be used as military highways by the rebels the hunt spread; an inspector is shown descending through a manhole in the Rue Ribera to car y his investigation underground. Gen. Weygand, who flatly denied any connection with the band. and the Duc de Guise, French pretender, LOWER, (are shown in CENTRE. Discovery of the wides pread plot has tossed France into the lap of a new internal crisis.

Forty Japanese Planes Raid Hankow; Trying To Crush Soviet Aid

General Chiang Kai Takes Over His Duties As Head of Army and Navy-Eight Hundred Thousand Men Being Trained

SHANGHAI, Jan. 4 (CP)—Japanese aircraft struck far into China's interior today in a raid which a Japanese Navy spokesman declared was intended to crush China's reorganized air force consisting of large numbers of Soviet planes. Forty Japanese bombers flew four hundred miles to attack a Chinese air base at Hankow and returned without the loss of a single plane.

Local Theatre-Goers Will Soon See How United States Gunboat Was Sunk in Yangste River

Within six weeks after the event, moving pictures of the recent bombing and singing of the United States gunboat Panay in the Yangste River will be presented in Prince Rupert, it was announced this morning by D. G.
Borland, manager of the CapiThe pictures of FINES NOT tol Theatre. The pictures, of thirty minutes' duration, are to be shown on January 24 and 25 in the local theatre. Last Wednesday the films arrived at San Francisco from Shanghai aboard the transPacific flying boat China Clipper. Insured for $350,000, they were rushed to Washington to be viewed by United States government officials. As part of the first of the week program at the Capitol last night and tonight, pictures showing the fall of Shanghai are being shown. They are very graphic and indicate, among other things, the risks that news reel camera men must take personally to get them.

The great thing now is to lows: keep the good work going and extend it in such a way as to make the city more and more outstanding as a city of gardens.

Another way of keeping the city beautiful is to see that all buildings which are neglected and not used are pulled down. Nothing looks so bad in a city as old neglected buildings which indicate deterioration.

We take this opprtunity of drawing attention to this subject as near as possible to the beginning of the year, so that people may have it in mind in any plans they may be making. While we do not take much stock in new resolutions may we suggest to all the people of the city that they each do a little toward making Prince Rupert attractive to visitors and enjoyable to those who live here.

Some people have suggested that rows of trees be planted in the boulevards similar to those seen in the south. With this we do not agree. There is no reason why Prince Rupert should be like other cities. She has a type of beauty all her own. Anything that would put either the houses or the streets in the shade would not be beneficial. We want all the sunshine that comes our way and trees in the boulevards would keep some of it away. If anything is planted it should be in the nature of low shrubs, possibly flowering shrubs.
