Tunis is Becoming Sore Spot—Outburst in Italian Chamber Taken as Marking Opening of Campaign to Get African Territory

ROME, December 2: (CP)—Virginio Gayda, Fascist editor, who often reflects Premier Benito Mussolini's views, warned France today that Italy is "ready to march—even against France—if it is necessary." This declaration in Giornale d'Italia accentuated the strain in Italo-French relations since Wednesday when Italian deputies demonstrated for recognition of Italian interests in Tunis, French North African protectorate. Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet of France has sent a formal protest to Italy over the anti-French demonstration in the Chamber of Deputies at Rome. Under no pretence, says Paris, will France allow Tunisia or any other such territory to be wrested away from her. The Rome outburst is taken in some French quarters as marking the opening of an Italian campaign to get Tunisia from France.

United States And Canadian Opinion Of Munich Appraised By Prince Rupert Businessman

Colonel J. W. Nicholls Says Pulp Mill Project is Still Very Much Alive—Sees Wane of New Deal in States

Speaking at the weekly luncheon of the Prince Rupert Rotary Club yesterday, Colonel J. W. Nicholls, general manager of the Canadian Fish & Cold Storage Co. Ltd., reviewed the impressions gained during his recent tour of United States and spoke optimistically of the prospects for a pulp mill in Prince Rupert. He said that the topic being mostly discussed was the European situation and the Munich conference.

Continuing, Col. Nicholls said: "From recent developments it still is doubtful if we shall get 'Peace in our time' so I will try to give you any impressions of what people are saying on this continent. As I visited twenty-one cities read their local newspapers and talked with hundreds of people. I got some idea of the trend of thought over on their side.

"It was on Tuesday the eve of the Munich conference, that I left for Vancouver but, by the time I arrived on Thursday morning, the crisis was over. For a few days preceding the conference the whole world was tense and everyone was clinging to the hope that a solution would be found. The news that an agreement had been reached was received everywhere with thanksgiving.

"It seemed that there would be nothing but praise for Chamberlain's courage and determination in the way in which he had fought for peace but, to my surprise, I found everywhere a great controversy raging and a strong body of opinion that, notwithstanding the consequence, Great Britain should have taken a stronger stand. I was surprised as it seemed to me to be opposed to common sense so I spent a lot of time trying to find out what else Great Britain could have done which had some basis of logic. But I found that, as usual, at a time of acute crisis, logic is not a factor in making decisions but emotion. The stock answer to my question was that, unless Hitler was stopped now, he would go on to worse objectives. This may be correct but it may not. It seems to me that the facts causing the crisis had been forgotten. It is just as well to keep them before us. There were three and a half million German speaking Austrians bordering on Germany who had been cut off from their native life at the Versailles Treaty. They, apparently, hadn't received the best of treatment at the hands of the Czechs and had voted 75 per cent in favor of joining with the Reich. What real justification was there for Great Britain going to war to prevent their doing so and involving the whole of the British Empire in a horrible war in which it is evident women and children would be the greatest sufferers. I was told a number of times that Great Britain had lost prestige from the Munich conference. History will prove if this is correct but surely it is better to sink one's pride to save the world from another and worse catastrophe than we went through twenty years ago.

Time Will Solve
"My own belief is that time will solve the problem. Hitler is a human being with a normal span of life. The German people are also human beings and seventy million people can't be wrong all the time. I can't believe that the Jewish prosecutions meet with the approval of the German people. (Continued on Page Five)

PRINCE RUPERT AND CANBERRA

Shortly after Prince Rupert was laid out thirty years ago Australia decided to lay out a new capital city and the city of Canberra came into being. It was laid out as a modern city with no eye to commercializing its real estate such as took place at Prince Rupert. Everything is spacious and the country around is chiefly bush or sheep meadow. Gradually the city has been made into one of the most beautiful in the world. It has forty miles of tree-lined avenues and three million trees and shrubs have been planted.

One feature of the city, according to recent visitors, is that all the residents are co-operating to make it the most beautiful city in the world by making their gardens blend with the general decorative scheme.

The buildings are all white and there are no street cars so that it is a great silent city and is growing rapidly and becoming a centre for culture and a place that tourists love to visit. It will be a fitting home for the Duke and Duchess of Kent during their sojourn in Australia.

MORE DIFFICULT CONDITIONS

Prince Rupert cannot hope to vie with Canberra in the matter of climate or in its display of flowering shrubs. Our city presents difficulties in development which Canberra never encountered. And yet visitors find that Prince Rupert has a charm all its own and one that can be developed. With all its beauty and charm and delightful sunshine, Canberra cannot compete with Prince Rupert gardens in purity and depth of color and it cannot grow the splendid begonias, marigolds, dahlias and other flowers that thrive in partial shade and in a humid atmosphere.

Canberra has had the advantage of the federal government taking a pride in developing a beautiful city. Prince Rupert has the Canadian National Railway developing a beautiful park and the provincial government also taking a large part in the general scheme of beautification. If the citizens wish to do so they can make Prince Rupert just as attractive in the summer as Canberra only in a different way. It may take more effort but the results are amazing. This is a good time to lay plans for next year and if possible to commence work in breaking ground for additions or laying out new gardens.

DR. TELFORD'S WITHDRAWAL

There is too much of a tendency for politicians to play fast and loose with rumors instead of seeking facts and making sure that the information given is correct. They are so eager to condemn those to whom they are opposed that they take chances and use information which may or may not be true. The case of Dr. Telford in the Legislature is one where it was possible to bring home the fact that what he was saying was not based on fact. In many cases it is impossible to refute charges owing to lack of evidence or for some other reason. While we are sorry for Dr. Telford, we are glad that the exposure was made.

LONDON RECRUITS

Recruiting for defence purposes in England has commenced and, doubtless, will be carried on with vigor. Following the recent crisis it is probable that the move will be successful. If it is not, it seems likely that Britain will resort to conscription for national defence purposes. It is not likely that conscription for overseas service would be carried out at any time.

MARRIAGE FAILURES

Ziegfeld's Beauties Have Lots of Adventures But Not Often Happily Wed

NEW YORK, Dec. 2:— (CP)—More than six years after Florenz Ziegfeld's death the lives of many of the beauties he glorified still bubble with the drama and showmanship that attended their rise to fame in the "Follies."

Ruth Etting, one of the most famous of Ziegfeld's beauties, recently escaped injury in a shooting affray in which her second husband, Myrl Alderman, was seriously wounded. Miss Etting's first husband, Martin Snyder, is charged with attempted murder and kidnapping as a result of the shooting.

Ziegfeld brought Miss Etting out of a Chicago night club to become co-star of Eddie Cantor in the 1927 "Follies." It was her first Broadway appearance but her singing of the hit numbers "Shine on Harvest Moon," "Love Me or Leave Me" and "Ten cents a Dance" led to almost 10 years of stage, movie and radio stardom.

Down the years a check shows that rarely have the "Follies" beauties succeeded in making a success of marriage. True, there have been successful matrimonial ventures but of these the principals in most instances have passed into obscurity.

Ziegfeld himself was married twice first to the star, Anna Held, of "milk bath" fame, and next to the stage and screen star, Billie Burke, still one of the better actresses of the screen. Ziegfeld started the much-married Peggy Hopkins Joyce on her career of four husbands, the last being the Swedish Count Gosta Morner who bowed out in the divorce courts in 1928.

Mae Murray, whose golden beauty Ziegfeld set against a flowing background of ermine, also picked royalty for her fourth husband in 1928. He was Prince David Mdivani of Georgia.

BALANCE IN LEADERSHIP

Editor, Daily News:

Regarding your editorial of December 1 commenting upon the remarks of Premier Heppburn of Ontario on political leadership conveying a sly poke at Mackenzie King, may I say that in my opinion the first essential to successful leadership is political balance. That facility in my opinion Mr. Heppburn does not possess. It was also lacking in Hon. Arthur Meighen and Hon. R. B. Bennett, no doubt all clever and well meaning but not properly balanced. And without that balance you won't go far in leadership in any organization. In my humble opinion Hon. Mackenzie King has shown the best balance of any political leader appearing on the horizon in Canada since the passing of Sir Wilfred Laurier.

Lady Enthuses Over Scenery Of Prince Rupert

There was in the city yesterday a lady from Portland, Oregon, who expressed herself as particularly charmed with Prince Rupert. She said she recently visited Banff but she considered Prince Rupert far more picturesque than the latter resort. The combination of water and mountain and the wonderful evergreen trees everywhere made the most delightful and "Did you see the sunset Wednesday evening?" she inquired. She thought it beggared description. "I am sold on Prince Rupert. I hope I get an opportunity to return here in the summer," was her parting shot. "I have very much enjoyed the two days I spent in your city."

APPRECIATION

Editor, Daily News:

A fitting opportunity having arisen for expressing, in a small way the esteem in which I hold Mr. and Mrs. Alex Mitchell, I wish to extend my sincere thanks to them for the way in which they came to the fore in assisting those who needed help. I think everyone will understand what I mean when I say that while those who should have been the first ones to help were trying to decide who to send, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell took matters into their own hands and came, not only with intention of helping the injured, if any, but also brought what was indeed much appreciated—food and hot coffee. Anyone who has been hungry for twenty-four hours knows what this would mean.

In conclusion may I say that the community of Prince Rupert should be very proud to have as members two such fine people as Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell, and I for one say "Thanks a lot Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell."

UNREST IN EGYPT AS KING DEFIES CABINET

Unrest in Egypt, smouldering since young King Farouk and the cabinet of Premier Mustapha Nahas Pasha (left circle) clashed over status of the Wafd (Nationalist) party youth groups and the appointment of senators, has been alleviated by compromise on both sides. The king withdrew his insistence that one-third of the senate be named by him and Nahas Pasha agreed to dissolution of the blue-shirted Wafd groups. Clashes occurred in the streets of Cairo like the riot pictured (below) which took place when Egypt was agitating for freedom from British rule. King Farouk (at right) is shown as he reviewed troops after his coronation. Cause of Britain's interest in the dispute is indicated by the map which shows the sphere of British influence in Egypt and Africa and in the Suez Canal and Mediterranean zones.

UNITED STATES AND CANADIAN OPINION OF MUNICH APPRAISED

(Continued from Page One) approval of the majority of Germans. It is of course doubtful if many Germans know what is going on in Germany. Apparently the propaganda machine functions perfectly. A prominent friend of mine in Montreal was entertaining a healthy Austrian who left Vienna after the Putsch. He was in London during the recent crisis and was telephoning his brother in Berlin. He suggested to his brother that he should leave Berlin with his family to London in view of the possibility of war between England and Germany. This brother couldn't understand what meant as he said at that moment there were parades in the street with banners lauding Chamberlain and cheering Great Britain. The censor then cut in and disconnected the telephone. This crisis and its aftermath have had the effect of temporary hardening improvement in business in the United States and Canada. I found, if anything, more optimism in Canada than in the United States. The better crops on the prairies had given a fillip to business and the extraordinary developments in mining in Canada were the principal factor in keeping Canada solvent. Everyone seemed to expect an improvement in the New Year.

POPE PIUS CREATES FIVE NEW CARDINALS, ONE BRITISH

This historic view of the consistory chamber in the Vatican was taken when His Holiness Pope Pius XI elevated five new members of the episcopacy to the rank of cardinal, among them the Most Rev. Arthur Hinsley, Archbishop of Westminster. His Holiness is shown seated on his throne on the raised dais, while members of the college of cardinals fill the side pews. The impressive ceremony is shared by only a few outside the sacred college.

United States Optimistic

In the United States there seemed to be a feeling of subdued optimism. Everyone was waiting for the results of the Congressional election and so far as I could discover, the actual results gave a great deal of satisfaction. Each time I have visited the States during the past three or four years I have made it a practice to get the political opinion of people. I ask taxi drivers, barbers, waiters and workers for their opinions and have found it a surprisingly accurate way to estimate public opinion. In 1934 and 1936 I found an unanimous opinion in favor of the New Deal and Roosevelt but this time it was the other way round. Outside of those on the government payroll it was difficult to find anyone in support of the New Deal. Roosevelt himself still has a large following for his personal appeal but his policies are distinctly unpopular. This was emphasized in the elections as, out of 7 or 8 candidates for Senator or Governor who received the personal support of the President, only one was elected. There was a tremendous turnover of votes from Democrats to Republicans. One of my friends in Chicago said: 'Nichols, I have voted Democratic for forty years but I cannot this year. The New Deal is a new deal alright but there are too many jokers and the deal can't always be honest.' It was the opinion of a great many people that a lot of the new legislation had considerable merit, especially the labor legislation dealing with child labor and minimum wages but too much reform was being attempted at one time. The Wagner Labor Act had created too much bureaucratic power and was one-sided. This act will probably be revised next year as the American Federation of Labor is pressing for its revision.

Where Is Money Going? 'People in this country and the United States are beginning to demand that money collected in taxes shall be well spent. They are asking where it is all going. They are beginning to believe that it is better to leave creator wealth in the hands of the creator instead of allowing the tax collectors to dissipate it in fatuous visionary vote getting schemes. This is what the employed people of the United States are saying and the unemployed are sick of charity.'

'I believe that, if we could close up all our Parliaments, legislatures and Congress for three or four years, send our politicians back to honest work and let the cabinets alone function without further legislative changes, we would have our unemployed off the relief rolls in two years. I would also put all legislators in jail who spent more than they collected the same as you and I would go to jail if we spent money we didn't own.'

Pulp Mill Alive 'To come closer home I was told in Montreal by an executive of a concern there vitally interested that the Prince Rupert pulp mill is by no means dead. The contracts are still current, the bond issue is simply waiting on the table for a favorable time to float it. They believe that as soon as business picks up and a little more confidence prevails the financing will be completed and the mill started. They are quite confident that it will be only a question of a year or so before ground will be broken as the sulphite pulp market is showing some improvement.'

'I met our old friend Norman Walton, the new vice president of the Canadian National Railways and he asked me to extend his best wishes to all his old friends in Prince Rupert. Norman is a fine fellow and knows our problems here. We are lucky to have a friend in high places.'

'In New York I spent some time with Dr. Robert Bedford who is now working there with one of the large New York fish companies. He is enjoying his work there but I think would prefer to live in Prince Rupert.'

convinced that workers who have become rich by hard work and a little luck are a menace to the community. They remember such rich men as Carnegie and Rockefeller who became tremendously wealthy but they also point to what they did with their wealth. They are not prepared to agree to persecution of Henry Ford but remember his contribution to commercial life. In fact, in Detroit today Ford is loved and honored. Rich men who are prepared to donate an iron lung free to every hospital within the British Empire are not an evil influence, especially when in making the fortune they are creating the livelihood of thousands of men and women and contributing to the advancement of our social comforts.

RECORD ATTEMPT FAILS

PRINCE ALBERT, Dec. 2.—(CP)—Joe Pecha, 77, who for many years has been the first Prince Albert resident to cross the Saskatchewan river each fall after freeze-up, almost lost his life this year in the attempt. About 200 yards from shore the ice gave way and he plunged waist-deep in water. Firemen rescued him.

ROMANCE OF WEST

Joan Bennett and Randolph Scott Co-Starring in Excellent Week-End Picture, "The Texans"

"The Texans," week-end feature offering on the screen of the Capitol Theatre here with Joan Bennett and Randolph Scott heading the cast, is a story of the struggle of the south for freedom and self rule after the war between the states.

Miss Bennett plays the part of a spitfire southern belle who wants to deface Texas from the Union. Scott is a homecoming Dixie soldier who pleads with Texans to forget their past hatreds and build a new life for themselves in the great cattle empire of the southwest.

The fortunes of a typical Texan family are traced including the moving of a great cattle cavalcade through the wilds of Texas and Oklahoma into thriving Kansas where a new railroad provides them with a ready market for their steers.

Essentially romantic, the story, however, is embellished with plenty of action, making for general interest.

Besides Scott and Joan Bennett, the cast includes such well known players as May Robson, Walter Brennan, Robert Barrat and Robert Cummings.

Everybody reads the Daily News. There's a reason.

AIRD WAS GRAND OLD BANK MAN

Always Emphasized World Trade as Canada's Greatest Opportunity

TORONTO, December 2 (Canadian Press)—Grand old man of Canadian banking, Sir John Aird, who died here Wednesday, retired from the presidency of the Canadian Bank of Commerce in January, 1937—after three-score years with the bank in which he never lost a day's work through any kind of illness. He had never been out of a job.

A youth of 23, he entered the bank in 1878 looking for a typist's job. Successively clerk, secretary branch manager at Seaford, Ont., assistant manager at Toronto, manager at Winnipeg, superintendent of Central Western branches, assistant general manager and general manager he became president in 1924.

Famed as a banker international he was long head of the Canadian branch of the American Bankers' Association and president of the Canadian Bankers' Association. His travels took him around the world.

Particularly well acquainted with international trade and well-informed on the Canadian West, he was directly responsible for the growth of his bank's vast branch system in Western Canada. Years after he spotted branches through the West it was found there were few in the new drought areas. He war is over the covenant of Britain to pay will be worth anything?"

"Hell," rugged Sir John was quoted as replying. "If the covenant of Britain to pay is not good we'll all be in hades together."

An ardent advocate of a greater population for Canada through immigration, he thought the Dominion should have at least 25,000,000 citizens. He was in favor of lower tariffs, of less government interference in business and of union of the three Maritime provinces, possibly including Newfoundland.

Plenty of exercise was the secret of Sir John's vigorous, sturdy health over a lifetime. In his youth he played on the world champion team of the Toronto lacrosse Club with such men as the late General Sir Sam Hughes. In his elder days he often walked down to his office at the bank's headquarters.

Stressed World Trade

In five years from 1900 Sir John travelled the West and Eastern Canada, a total of around 90,000 miles. He crossed the Atlantic more than a score of times and in 1928-29, when he was chairman of the royal commission on radio broadcasting which led to formation of the Canadian Radio Commission, he made a world tour that took him 75,000 miles in 11 months.

World trade, he always emphasized, was Canada's greatest opportunity. "Canada will eventually develop into a great commercial country," he said once. "And it is most important that young Canadians should be prepared for international relationships. They should study foreign languages French, German, Italian, Spanish Dutch."

A Conservative and an Anglican, he was a member of clubs in Toronto, Winnipeg and London, England, director of a score or more financial institutions and actively interested in the progress of Haverergal College for Women, Toronto.

SIR JOHN AIRD

had chosen locations—at a time when the West's future was wholly problematical—that would serve the most consistent production areas.

Sure of Great Britain

He became general manager of the bank in 1915 and for his unobtrusive but valuable national services was knighted in 1917. One of the most popular stories about Sir John concerns a meeting between Sir Thomas White, then minister of finance, and the general managers of Canadian banks early in the Great War when a proposed British Government loan of $200,000,000 was under discussion.

An ultra-cautious conferee asked: "Are you sure that when the
