started out in the premiership yesterday with excellent prospects. As published in this paper yesterday, he was! given an almost unanimous vote of confidence by the' Chamber of Deputies, even the Communists supporting him. If he can secure the right to absolute powers for three or six months, as asked, he may be able to set the, country on the right track and make it possible to withstand an attack from an enemy. While it is prophesied that he will meet with defeat, it is possible that he may be given at least a part of what he asks.

Under the present setup with so many parties and their cross-currents it is almost impossible to do anything

SIXTEEN THOUSAND LABOR VOTES

It still seems to be a matter of surprise that sixteen thousand people supported the Labor Party of Great Britain in West Fulham in the recent election there. They would do that only because they wanted to let the government know that they were dissatisfied. They did not like the way in which the Prime Minister was handling the foreign situation and they particularly objected to the forced resignation of Anthony Eden, secretary of! state for foreign affairs. Possibly if the treaty with Italy is signed and proves satisfactory, public opinion over there may change.

The Labor candidate who won had a majority of about fourteen hundred. In 1935 a Conservative was elected there by a majority of over three thousand and Conservatives were also elected in 1931 and 1930, but in 1929 a Labor man had their confidence for a brief period. Prior to that Conservatives held the seat since 1906.
