of the foremost leaders in the army and a good two-thirdsiper of the cabinet ministers. The first work under the war plan was the double-chi-tracking of the trans-Siberian railway on which hundreds, Car of thousands of prisoners worked under police guards.

Then came the increasing of the agricultural production of Eastern Siberia by transporting prisoners and others, Pasand settling them on Siberian lands. These farmers can sustain a great army without imports from European Rus, New Clean sia.

New armament factories have been erected, including was modern aircraft factories in order to provide an independ- Dete ent supply of munitions.

This far eastern army has provided aviators and tank st drivers for the Chinese national army and also instructors for the Soviet military training centres. Besides that it has made it necessary for Japan to keep an army in one Korea and Manchuria. The Soviet training centres are with located in Outer Mongolia and Tsinkiang and they provide bask the bases for new military units organized to carry on and guerilla warfare against the Japanese. Some of these operate in the region nominally now under control of Japan." The troops are not only trained by Russians but also are, equipped with Russian arms and use Russian ammunition.

The troops trained by Russia are thoroughly loyal to' Russia whereas native troops trained by Japan have been proved to be wholly unrealiable and cannot be depended upon in any serious fighting.

The writer of the article suggests that the alliance of Japan with Germany and Italy was one of those monu-; mental blunders to which the Japanese have been prone." He also quotes Mao-Tse Tung, Chinese Communist general, that the objective of this undeclared war is to wage it until the Japanese are pushed out of Manchuria, out of inner Mongolia, out of China and their hold even on Korea and Foremosa may be threatened. From the news coming over the cables the last few! days it would seem as if the war was no longer concealed and possibly the drive is already in progress.
