Canadian Legion Strong Force In Community Believer In British Plan, Opposed To 'Isms'

Robert Macnicol Speaker at Local Gathering of Ex-Servicemen and Women's Auxiliary—Discusses Many Matters of Interest

"The Canadian Legion believes in the British system of self-government and at all times gives steadfast support to established authority," declared Robert Macnicol, executive secretary Canadian Legion, British Empire Service League, for British Columbia, in addressing a banquet tendered him last night by the local Legion and Women's Auxiliary. "The Legion is opposed to all types of 'isms'. Its members having fought for the freedom of the individual.

"Our veterans have always provided a strong moral force in the community in which they live and work. As trained men, the veterans in Canada have actually provided Canada with an unofficial defense force and any money spent to assist the more unfortunate among them now could very well be written off as defense of Canada expenditures."

"The Legion is the largest body of ex-servicemen in Canada and as such commands an administrative machinery second to no other organization of any type, with the exception of governmental departments."

"Less than 1,542 branches and auxiliaries make up the Legion organization of which there are 167 in the United States."

"Millions of dollars can be found for wars and if necessary for defense against war, all of which may be necessary, but veterans feel that while providing money for defense and for war, we should at once and the same time mop up on the last war by taking adequate care of the victims of that conflict."

"Observing veterans of the Great War on the bread line and in circumstances of distress, does not tend to interest the younger generation of today in defense of Canada, and you can hardly blame them for this attitude."

Legion For Conscription

If there is another war we intend to do everything possible to prevent a recurrence of what happened in the Great War. The Legion supports conscription of manpower, wealth, materials, for all purposes, this so as to equalize the sacrifices that have to be made in a time of war.

Mr. Macnicol gave figures regarding Canadian enlistments in the Great War, the cost of which had been stupendous with 11,000,000 dead and 9,000,000 orphans. He discussed pension problems in Canada and some of the recent enactments in regard to pensions. Of the Pensions Appeal Court he said:

"The Legion has come to the conclusion that the Pension Appeal Court, presided over by Mr. Justice Hyndman at Ottawa, is of no service to veterans and the general feeling is that it should be abolished. The records of the court for year ending March 1937 show that of 2525 appeals, only forty-six were allowed. It is true that many of those disallowed had no chance in any case but it is unfair to permit claimants to think they have a chance by maintaining a court of this kind."

"The most beneficial piece of legislation in existence in Canada is the War Veterans' Allowance. As at March 1937, 11,306 were in receipt of the allowance, 7685 over 60 years of age, and 3621 under that age. Their ages ran from age 36 to 92 and 36 of the recipients were over 70 years of age. As at November 1937 the number on War Veterans' Allowance had increased to 12,643 at a cost of $4,041,727."

Mr. Bennett moved an amendment to the motion of want of confidence of John Blackmore, Social Credit leader. The amendment constitutes non-confidence but does not accept Social Credit principles as meeting the situation.

BRITISH COLUMBIA LOOKS UNTO HILLS FOR SAFETY IN EVENT OF WAR COMING

Military Men Point to Rockies as Great Barrier to Advance of Armed Foe in Case of Conflict

Canada's basic Pacific coastal defenses are as old as the hills—exactly. "God supplied the principal defense for Canada's west coast," was the way one responsible military man put it referring to the mountainous battlements that protected British Columbia's shoreline for a distance of more than 500 miles. "Anything we do would be supplementary." But there are vulnerable spots in the coast's rock armor and it is to protect these that the Federal government is spending approximately $8,000,000 on fortifications, guns and other armament.

UNION MAY STABILIZE

LONDON, March 30.—Speaking in the House of Lords yesterday, the Archbishop of Canterbury declared that union of Germany and Austria was inevitable. It might, he felt, have the tendency of giving stability to central Europe. Collective security at this time was not practicable, declared the Archbishop.

To a large extent, members of the Lords appear to be in accord with the foreign policy of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain. Lord Halifax, the new foreign secretary spoke in support of it.

Another Cabinet Crisis in France Is Expected to Come to Head Tomorrow

PARIS, March 30.—Another cabinet crisis in France is believed to be pending and in well-informed quarters the resignation of Premier Leon Blum's ministry is expected on Thursday owing to criticism of its financial program.

Premier Blum was reported last night to have effected a settlement of the automobile and airplane workers' strike.

WHEAT IS BOUNDING

Only Five Cent Trading Limit Held Winnipeg-Futures Yesterday With All Markets Strong

WINNIPEG, March 30. (CP).—Only the trading limit of five cents per day prevented wheat futures from bounding up ten cents or more on the Winnipeg grain market yesterday in response to sharp advances on other grain markets which are very strong.

Vancouver Wheat

VANCOUVER, March 30. (CP).—Wheat was trading at $1.36 3/4 on the Vancouver market yesterday.

Two vital spots, the urban centres of Victoria and Vancouver, can be approached by naval craft only by a semi-circular waterway leading from the Pacific Ocean. By protecting the entrances of this waterway—formed by the Straits of Juan de Fuca and Georgia—access by sea to the two main nerve centres of the province is blocked.

Early this year the Federal government made provision for protection of British Columbia's third vulnerable point. An air base will be constructed at Prince Rupert to guard that northern city which forms the north-coast terminus of the Canadian National Railways. Preparations are also being made for gun positions at the entrance of the harbor to cover the approach to the port. The organizing of a fishermen's naval reserve is another local defense measure.

In between Prince Rupert and the southern cities of Victoria and Vancouver, 500 miles of rugged mountains, form a barrier against naval invasion of the mainland.

Guns are being placed to guard the entrance of the Strait of Juan de Fuca and on Yorke Island to guard the Strait of Georgia to the north against menacing naval craft. Assuming attacking vessels could get past these guns, placed strategically at narrow points on the waterway, guns at Ferguson Point could fight an attack upon Vancouver harbor while planes from Jerico base could attack from the air.

Gun emplacements could give similar protection to naval attack on Victoria while anti-aircraft emplacements could protect the capital to some extent from planes.

Part of Coast Defence

Some informed military sources explain that the coast defense is not planned to meet the full force of a strong attack but to guard against menacing naval craft in the event of war involving other parts of the Empire.

During the world war German naval craft menaced various parts of the Empire in an attempt to break down morale but without attempting invasion. It is understood the Pacific Coast defenses are to offset operations of just such roving vessels.

This theory was supported by a remark by Defense Minister Ian Mackenzie when he told the House of Commons that sporadic raids, designed to cripple communications or destroy supply bases, were the threats against which Canada's forces were being strengthened.

"The entire conception of Canadian naval, military and air defense, is based on the action of sporadic raiders or upon aircraft carriers," he said at that time.

Four destroyers—two already in service and two contracted for—also would be employed to stop any hostile craft from approaching the province's urban centres.

SOCIAL CREDIT IN ALBERTA

While so far Alberta has found it impossible to devise or enforce a social credit law which is within the power of the provincial government, the people of the province, at any rate the people of Edmonton, seem to be in favor of a continuation of the Aberhart policy. This is indicated in the fact that a Social Credit member was elected in Edmonton recently by a large vote.

Evidently the people of that province like Aberhart, not because he has carried out any of his promises but because he has made an effort to break away from the established order and has threatened the money powers which they blame for much of their misfortune.

Alberta has suffered partly from conditions beyond its control and partly from difficulties of its own making. For a time at least, the people have been relieved of making payments of debts and the interest rate on government securities has been cut in two. As most of these securities are held outside the province, there is no public feeling favoring the holders. The fact that the provincial credit has been ruined does not bother the people. So far they have not wanted to borrow except from the federal government. Possibly after this they intend to pay as they go. That might be a good plan.

Since the result of the Edmonton election has been made public it is little use to try to make ourselves believe that the people of the province do not want Social Credit. They evidently want Aberhart. The only possibility of the present administration being defeated is for those opposing them to unite and they are so far refusing to do that.

PRINCE RUPERT'S INCOME

Visitors often ask where the income is derived to support a city the size of Prince Rupert. While the answer usually is that we are a fishing town doing a large fish export business and that we have two large cold storage plants as well as fish buying establishments, many do not realize how important are some of the other industries. We have, for instance, a drydock and shipyard with an average employment of well over fifty, mostly expert mechanics. We have railroad shops employing at least another fifty and railway offices and steamship offices and docks, all employing some men and girls. We have provincial offices filling one large building and federal offices filling another large building. There is too an elevator with a permanent all-year staff. There is a provincial sampling plant and an assay office, the latter conducted for the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. There are at least four wholesale houses distributing food stuffs to the country around as well as abattoir and reduction plants. There is the fleet of several hundred power boats operating chiefly in connection with the halibut and salmon fisheries, consuming gasoline and oil. There are mills at Billmor and Georgetown as well as smaller mills on Kaien Island and Digby Island. There are smaller boat building establishments and machine shops, a splendid power plant and in the district there are large logging operations and a large fish packing industry with over twenty canneries in operation during the season. There are also the mines which are tributary to a large extent to the city.

It will be seen from this that the city is not what is generally known as a one-horse town. It has all the activities and facilities of the large city with permanent buildings. Local people who cannot see anything in all this portending future growth and development of an important nature are very short-sighted. They are too close to big things to see them. They are like those who cannot see the forest because of the trees.

CANADIAN LEGION STRONG FORCE IN COMMUNITY

as supported by the Canadian Legion will bring in an additional 5000 veterans, by an amendment to the act which extends the benefits to a larger group of ex-servicemen to maintain themselves through part disability."

Mr. Macnicol discussed the activities of the Veterans' Assistance Commission of which he had been a member, dealing in detail with some of its recommendations.

Future of Legion

In discussing the future of the Legion, Mr. Macnicol said that branches should interest themselves in junior branches with a view to bringing in the sons of ex-servicemen by organizing junior units and later transferring them to the senior units under a special class of membership.

A very valuable service had been rendered by the members of women's auxiliaries of which there were 466 chartered with from 50 to 60 in British Columbia under the jurisdiction of the B.C. Women's Provincial Command.

Support was urged for the Legion's national publication, "The Legionary."

Poppy sales had kept up very well indeed and in the 1937 campaign, 2,020,729 poppies of various types were sold in Canada as well as 12,404 poppy wreaths.

As the largest organization of veterans in Canada and as the body that was lending most energetic efforts to obtain reasonable treatment for those who were handicapped today as a result of their experiences in the Great War, it was to be expected that the Legion would come under attack from some quarters and that these attacks would be of the indirect kind. Efforts to disunite the ex-servicemen in past years had not been unknown and history was repeating itself in this connection.

"May I, in conclusion, appeal to all who are in a position to assist in our activities to do so now. Let us strengthen our ranks, work together, in order to maintain our outstanding position in the veteran field, bearing in mind, 'That United We Stand, Divided We Fall.'"

150 Present

There were 150 persons present at the banquet. Jack Preece, president of the local branch of the Canadian Legion, was in the chair and, in the course of the proceedings, welcomed Mr. Macnicol. "O Canada" was sung in opening followed by the observance of a period of silence in honor of the memory of fallen comrades. Then there was the opening ritual.

The toast to the King was honored in the usual way. J. S. Wilson, zone representative, proposed the toast to the Legion. Mr. Macnicol's speech being made in reply.

In a recent series at Premier the two teams split the series, one game each, but the Premier team has a 16-point advantage which the locals have to overcome. The Rupert team holds the Northern British Columbia championship and the Sun Life Cup. Manager Bud Barrie says they are going to be hard to beat.

Important Recognition For Persistence of Canadian National Railways

PARIS, March 30.—The Scientific Institute of Studies of Communications and Transport, of which S. J. Hungerford, president of Canadian National Railways, has been made an honorary member, exists to collect information on transport problems and to publish the results of researches for the benefit of individuals and organizations interested in these questions. It has separate departments devoted to the legal, historical, economical and social aspects of transportation and to the special study of automobile, inland water, ocean and air transport.

Britain Protests Nanking Incident

Accosting of Officer of International Settlement Arouses Indignation

SHANGHAI, March 30.—British authorities have lodged a formal protest with Japan at the threatening with a loaded pistol by a Japanese soldier of Major E. T. Hyslop, British officer of the international settlement at Nanking. The incident occurred when Hyslop halted trucks laden with Chinese coolies from entering the international settlement at Nanking.

BIG STORM ON PRAIRIE

Southern Alberta Particularly Hard Hit—Highway Traffic Nigh Paralyzed

CALGARY, March 30.—There were heavy blizzards and high winds on the prairies Monday. Roads at some points were blocked and communication lines blown down.

With snow drifting as high as six feet before a gale which reached a maximum velocity of forty-six miles per hour, central and southern Alberta was particularly hard hit. Roads from Banff eastward were rendered impassable and most bus schedules were cancelled. A slow service was being maintained between Calgary and Edmonton. Many trucks and busses were stranded in the drifts, their occupants taking temporary shelter wherever it could be found.

In Calgary city the street railway service was interfered with, many cars being unable to run owing to the snow drifting into the transformers. Railways were maintaining schedules pretty well and there was not a great deal of interruption in telephone communications.

Undoubtedly there has been some loss among livestock herds although it is not possible, as yet, to estimate it.

Owing to the storm, a session of the Farmers' Credit Adjustment Board, which was to have been held at Hanna, had to be postponed.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk. A mercurial movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Natives Will Be Duly Considered

No Intention To Rush Inclusion Of Two Protectorates With Union Of South Africa

LONDON, March 30.—Secretary of the Dominions Malcolm MacDonald told the House of Commons yesterday that no attempt will be made to transfer the protectorates of Nyassaland and Bechuanaland to the Union of South Africa without due consideration of the native population in the matter. Such transfer, MacDonald felt, should be an ultimate goal. The British government and Premier Hertzog of South Africa had agreed on the appointment of a commission consisting of three representatives of South Africa and three of the protectorate commission—to consult with the natives on the question.

Satisfactory Report in Regard To C. N. S. S. West Indies Service

OTTAWA, March 30. — Canadian National West Indies Steamships had an operating profit of $658,538 in 1933, according to annual report of company tabled today in the House of Commons by Hon. C. D. Howe, minister of transport. This was an increase of $101,139 over 1932. Operating revenues were $4,676,684, an increase of $354,091 over 1932. Operating expenses were $4,018,146 an increase of $252,952.

The report of President S. J. Hungerford states that freight revenue increased by $220,932 reflecting better cargoes. Passenger travel was again exceptionally good and passenger revenue increased by $157,700.

The number of stems of bananas carried in 1933 by vessels in Eastern service was 400,812, an increase of 15,672 stems over 1932. Vessels in Western service (Jamaica), carried 2,048,830 stems, an increase of 191,739 stems over 1932.

Operating expenses increased 6.72 percent compared with an increase of 8.19 percent in revenue, due to a general increase in wage and materials cost, handling expense of additional traffic and renewals and replacements necessary to maintain the vessels in a high state of efficiency.

After payment of bond interest but before depreciation and interest on government advances there is available $188,537.75 which will be paid to the government in reimbursement in part of prior deficits and interest. Corresponding figure in 1932 was $37,398.55.

The vessels of the fleet were operated without serious casualty.

The self insurance fund now stands at $1,424,292, an increase of $48,975 during 1933. Vessels of fleet at end of 1933 numbered eleven with a total gross tonnage of 67,316 tons. During the year they completed 127 voyages, one less than in the preceding year.

The ratio of operating expenses to gross revenues was 85.92 percent

COMEDY IS VERY FINE

"Paradise For Three," Coming To Capitol This Mid-Week, Said To Be Outstanding

Said to be an outstanding comedy drama, "Paradise for Three" comes as the feature offering to the screen of the Capitol Theatre here this mid-week. There is a notable cast including Frank Morgan, Robert Young, Mary Astor, Edna May Oliver, Florence Rice, Reginald Owen, Henry Hull and Herman Bing. Filmed partly in the mountains of Washington state for snow scenes, the story concerns three men who go to an Alpine mountain resort for two weeks. One is a wealthy capitalist, one a butler and one an employed student. They enjoy their new mode of living until a vamp and a beautiful young girl come in to the picture and change the lives of all three men. Morgan, Owen and Young portray the three men of adventure. Miss Astor is the vamp and Miss Rice the young girl. Edna May Oliver portrays one of her typical character roles.

The other end of the double bill is a drama "Sophie Lang Goes West" in which Gertrude Michael and Lee Bowman are the featured players. In the story, an enormously valuable diamond is stolen from a Sultan while on a visit to America and two ex-crooks pit their wits against a suave rogue to regain the jewel for the potentate.
