Making Efforts To Prevent War

HISTORIC PRAHA HAS SUMMER IN TURMOIL—DIPLOMATS ARE BUSY

Regular Citizens Take to Resorts As Deep Concern Continues For Peace of Europe
By GLADYS M. ARNOLD
Canadian Press Correspondent

PRAHA, September 9; (CP)—Melting-pot of the nations' effort for peace in Europe, this capital of Czechoslovakia steams in the sun and smells of onions. Those of its citizens not strictly obliged to remain in town have left the country and the mountains. Their places here have been taken by English, American, Canadian, French and other variety of tourists attracted by newspaper accounts of the turmoil in this "postage stamp" democracy.

NAZIS MAKE MUCH NOISE

Excitement in Czechoslovakia With Both Sides Making Demonstrations—London Keenly Interested

PRAGUE, Sept. 9:—Several thousand sudetens shouting Nazi slogans demonstrated for an hour before the Jaegerndorf police station adding pressure to the harassed government. Premier Hodza received a flood of telegrams from Czech Slovaks who oppose the granting of more concessions to the Sudetens.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain yesterday conferred with several of the leading ministers in regard to the international situation and decided to call a full meeting for Monday. This meeting will be held at about the same hour that the German dictator is making his much announced speech at Nuremberg in which he is expected to outline the position of Germany and possibly to defy the world.

In the meantime word comes from Berlin that the British ambassador has been in close conference with Foreign Minister Goering.

The Stephanie News agency states that Germany has the moral support of Italy and that Rome is ready for any eventuality.

In a radio address to the people of Czechoslovakia yesterday by the Sudeten leader the government is accused of weakness in not being able to prevent outrages against the German inhabitants of the country.

Japanese Still 80 Miles Away From Hankow City

SHANGHAI, Sept. 9.—The Japanese are still eighty miles from Hankow but are planning to drive right through and take the city within the next few weeks. In the meantime, it is stated by those in close touch with the situation that the Chinese officials are quite complacent over the outlook and feel confident that things are working out the way they want them.

CZECH "STRONG MAN" IN ORATORICAL ACTION

An intimate study of Premier Milan Hodza, of Czechoslovakia as he addressed 100,000 people at Bratislava, capital of Slovakia, recently during the crisis resulting out of the Sudeten Germans demand for autonomy. The premier praised the complete union of the Czechs and Slovaks and denounced those who would split the nation asunder.

Hitler Likely To Ask For Plebiscite On Question Of Administration Of Sudeten

NUREMBURG, Germany, September 9.—Chancellor Hitler, deeply engrossed in the Czechoslovakian crisis, failed to deliver the scheduled address at the tenth annual Nazi Congress. The explanation given was that business of state prevented his appearance.

High Nazi officials predicted that the Chancellor would demand a plebiscite for the Sudeten German minority in Czechoslovakia. It was thought that the plebiscite idea would satisfy Britain because the plebiscite was a "democratic institution."

SHIPMENT OF CATTLE

Two Cars Arrived Last Night and Others Going to Vancouver From Telkwa

Two cars of beef cattle arrived in Prince Rupert on the train last night, one being brought in from Decker Lake by S. Anderson and the other from Smithers brought in by Harry Bowman of the colonization department of the C.N.R. on behalf of the Swiss settlers in that district. They go to the Burns abattoir.

During the recent week or so cattle buyers from Vancouver have been in the district around Smithers and have purchased on the hoof nearly 200 head which are being shipped from Telkwa. Two cars are going out from there on the train tomorrow morning and the remainder will follow.

WARNED TO CURB DEBT

Civil and Tariff Wars Piled Up Deficits for Eire and Reduction Called For

DUBLIN, Eire, Sept. 9; (CP)—Is £24 ($116.64) a head an excessive national debt figure for Eire? The Irish Commission on Banking, Currency and Credit believes it is and has warned the government that it would be rash to look lightly upon causes tending to increase it in the future.

"Our considered view," states the commission report, "is that no increase beyond the existing volume of net deadweight debt should be permitted and that that volume should be reduced from year to year at such a rate as general financial circumstances permit."

Although the Free State started with a clean slate in 1922, budget deficits arising out of the Civil War in the early days, brought the national debt to £10,300,000 ($50,058,000) in 1924. At March 31, 1937, the deadweight debt had grown to £37,300,000 ($181,278,000). Of this total, £14,500,000 ($70,470,000) is attributed to the cost of the Anglo-Irish tariff war which followed the land annuities dispute.

The Banking Commission considers it would serve no useful purpose to compare the debt burden in Eire with that of the United Kingdom with its vast national wealth or with that of Australia with its great natural resources. Instead, it compares the Irish burden of £24 per head with that of Denmark (£16), Norway (£27), Sweden (£20) and draws attention to the higher rates of taxation in Eire.

The Eire government is warned about heavy loan expenditure of an unproductive character. This is stated to have a tendency, while it is being incurred, to weaken the financial and economic stability of the country and especially to place a strain on the balance of payments. The investigation showed that Eire was "not in a position to take any increased risk in this matter."

Assets Increased

Since presentation of the report, the government has issued a statement showing that as a result of the agreement with Britain the productive asset of the country have increased from £30,000,000 ($145,800,000) in 1937 to £68,000,000 ($330,480,000) in 1938, bringing the dead weight debt down from £37,000,000 ($179,820,000) to £12,000,000 ($58,320,000).

Chamberlain Anxious Not to Repeat Policy of Vacillation Which Preceded Outbreak of Great War

LONDON, September 9.—The British government may try new tactics to prevent war in Central Europe—a blunt plain approach to Germany, leaving no doubt as to what may be expected should Hitler order troops into Czechoslovakia. What form the warning would take is a matter of conjecture but informed sources say the whole purpose would be to acquaint Germany of the British attitude before any military moves are taken.

There are indications that Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain does not wish to repeat the policy of indecision which the British ministers of the day showed before the commencement of the Great War.

It was officially announced today that Mr. Chamberlain will receive Clement Atlee, the leader of the Labor opposition tomorrow and will discuss with him the international situation and the policy of the government with a view to if possible getting unanimity of Parliamentary policy and showing a united front on the Czechoslovakian situation.

IS IT ALL BLUFF?

Many people seem to think the present attitude of Rischfeurer Hitler is all bluff and that he has no intention of fighting. He makes a big display and follows it up with demands. When he talks he seems to give other nations the jitters.

It is rather satisfactory to note that delay is again part of the German policy and that makes us think the dictator does not really mean fighting. It would seem as if he would not have waited had he any intention of really starting a war.

DICTATORSHIP NOT DESIRED

In his recent message to the Canadian people on Labor Day President Mosher of the All-Canadian Congress of Labor has the following to say:

"Our parliamentary and legislative machinery is far from perfect but it must be improved rather than discarded and, no matter how drastic the reconstruction of the economic system may be, it must be brought about by constitutional means. The workers of Canada do not want a dictatorship, either of the proletariat or of the plutocrat."

P. M. Draper, president of the Trades and Labor Council of Canada on the same occasion said:

"Dictatorships of the right and the left root out liberty at home and threaten war abroad.

"It behooves us, as workers and as Canadians, to be fixed in our determination not to give away our liberties to any 'ism,' to turn a deaf ear to any plea except that of constitutional democracy," Mr. Draper's message said. "As workers, we need not stagnate. Under democracy and through a strong labor movement, we can earn and receive better times and a fuller living as the forerunner of a brighter and better future."

AFRICANS ANTHEMS

Debate in Parliament on Flags And National Anthems Leaves British Air Side by Side With Dutch

CAPE TOWN, Sept. 9: (CP)—South Africa, which for 11 years has had two national flags, has for the present—conceded equal status to two national anthems.

The two flags are the Union Jack and the national Union flag. The two anthems are "God Save the King" and "Die Stem van Suid Afrika."

On the arrival of the governor-general to open parliament, July 22 parts of each anthem were played three times. It was emphasized that this arrangement was in the nature of an experiment and not regarded as the settled procedure for future official occasions of this kind.

Controversy between the Imperialist Dominion party and the Nationalists—both in opposition in the Union parliament—has kept the anthems issue alive. It flared again in parliament in August. Dr. D. F. Malan, Nationalist leader, pressed his motion for a single anthem for the Union of South Africa. The Dominion party offered an amendment seeking to reaffirm recognition of "God Save the King" as the official national anthem. One-third of the 30 notices of motion appearing on the order paper referred to anthems or flags.

Debated in House

Flag and anthem questions were debated for some days. Defence Minister Pirow made explanations regarding certain "incidents" at Cape Town and Pretoria but the government seemed inclined to let the matter rest for the present and allow the problem to work itself out. "All the other incidents emerge in the light of facts now known, as part of a comedy of errors," the Cape Argus in declaring the debate finished with the speeches of the leaders. But the paper was apparently not convinced that the controversy had ended.

Premier J. B. M. Hertzog has given assurance that on official occasions when one anthem is played the other also will be played. He also has expressed the hope that eventually South Africa will have its own recognized national anthem without committing himself as to the merits of "Die Stem" for that purpose.

The Union Nationality and Flag Act of 1927 provided two official flags, the Union Jack to denote the association of the Union with the rest of the British Commonwealth and a national flag of the Union. It provided that the Union Jack must be flown with the Union flag from the Houses of Parliament and the principal government buildings in Union and provincial capitals and Union ports.

The national flag of the Union consists of three horizontal stripes of equal width, orange, white and blue. In the centre of the white stripe the old Orange Free State flag is hung vertically, with the Union Jack adjoining horizontally spreading towards the pole. Also adjoining horizontally, spreading away from the pole, is the old Transvaal vierkleur.

Despite the new act, flag "incidents" still occur occasionally. A Union Day military parade provided a recent example. Shortly before Premier Hertzog arrived at Swartkop Airfield to take the salute it was discovered that the Union Jack was flying at the saluting base. It was hastily hauled down and the Union flag run up in its place.

Union Day (May 31) saw the anthems question, a prominent issue in the Union general election last spring flare into prominence. "Die Stem van Suid Afrika" was played at official parades in most of the larger cities while "God Save the King" was omitted. English-speaking residents protested strongly and demanded to know the reason. No statement was forthcoming until finally the cabinet declared that General Hertzog's assurance still held good—on official occasions whenever one anthem was played the other also would be played.

There for the present the matter rests, on a compromise basis. But it is recognized throughout the Union that the anthem problem is still a delicate issue and that any attempt to reach a final solution would provoke fresh and even more bitter controversy.

She usually arrived home about 7:30 in the evening, in time to cook her husband's dinner. After dinner she finishes any housework and sewing that had been left over and frequently went to a moving picture show with her husband.

Musical Ghost Bothers London

Gets Organ Music From Piano and Makes Night Hideous for Actors

GOLDER'S GREEN, Eng., Sept. 9: (CP)—A musical ghost who makes organ selections come from a piano in the dead of night has been disturbing this theatrical suburb of London. One householder acquired the services of Harry Price, secretary of the London University Council for Physical Investigation, to help solve the problem.

Besides making " unearthly organ music" come from a piano the ghost bangs, falls, sighs and sometimes screeches, it has been claimed. One night the ghost actually appeared and pulled the bedclothes from a frightened lodger in the house.

Mr. Price was not convinced. "I know of no haunted house in the metropolitan district of London," he said, "and suburban cases are extremely rare. London is unhealthy for ghosts. Most hauntings occur north of the Midlands."

comment on the Commission findings does not consider that concern regarding the rise in the Irish public debt is entirely justified. It adds: "It is regrettable that the comparison is not extended to include a larger number of countries (difficult though it is to compare the debt burden of countries which differ greatly from one another in their main economic characteristics) and that figures have not been compiled to illustrate, say, the post-war growth in the debt of the Dominions. Eire's experience has by no means been exceptional, and in the trying conditions to which the country's economy has been subject in the present decade can scarcely be considered alarming."

Hug Australia To Avoid Japs

Dutch Warships in Pacific Change Scene of War Games This Year

MELBOURNE, Sept. 9: (CP)—Advices from Batavia, Java, say the Netherlands East Indian Navy will of the manoeuvres has been due to Indian Ocean, south of Java, toward the Australian coast, in September and October, instead of in the northern seas of the East Indian Archipelago as formerly. The decision to change the venue of the manoeuvres has been due to anxiety to avoid undesirable attention from Japanese "fishermen."

England Worries About New Forms Of Women's Wear

Trousers For Golf and Overalls for Air Bring Many Letters to the Papers — Blondes Going Out

(By Mollie McGee, Canadian Press Correspondent)

LONDON, Sept. 9. (CP)—Tempestuous discussion as to whether women are to be allowed to wear trousers on the more exclusive golf courses in Britain has reached an impasse. Men officials of the Temperley Golf Club have decided women members must not wear "slacks" on the links. Pros and cons have appeared by the dozens in print and Constant Readers, Colonels (retired) with Pro Bono Publico and brethren have waxed eloquent.

Stimulated by the fact that not even the secretary of the Temperley Club knew how his prudish conferees could enforce the new ruling if the 20 women who now play there in trousers refuse to return to skirts, the anti's tirade dwindled. The pros settled down after having called on opinions from Miss Minoprio, who caused a sensation in 1933 by competing in the English championships at Westward Ho! dressed in black clothing trousers and using only one club.

Scandalized officials spoke of taking action but good sense prevailed and Miss Minoprio's costume became the golfing fashion. At the recent championship matches on wet days most of the women competitors wore masculine-like waterproof outfits.

The present British champion Mrs. Andrew Holm of Troon, Scotland, mother of two children wears well-cut trousers when she plays.

The last word on the subject is Miss Minoprio's diplomatic remark: "Trousers are becoming to a woman only if she knows how to wear them."

Air Unit Dress

Women in the new air units will wear mechanic's overalls while in training but women with air records and positions of authority long ago decided that any swank in dress was "bad form."

Mrs. F. G. Miles, daughter of Forbes Robertson, designer of airplanes and woman member of the new Civil Air Guard Committee, has definite ideas on the subject. "I would rather be seen dead than wearing a helmet," is her opinion. Her usual costume for work in the airplane factory at Reading in which she is a partner with her fier husband, is a grey flannel suit beautifully cut, and a grey cashmere pullover or grey silk shirt.

Mrs. G. Patterson who instructs a class of 200 aviation girls out at Cranfield is equally soueasish about flying kit. "When I worked flyng and selling planes for one of the big oil companies in England a year or so ago," she confessed. "I dressed so that when my plane arrived at the various airports I was ready for the tea or party which usually greeted me. My white gloves and gardenia were a standing joke, but they served their purpose and they sold planes."

Office workers, stenographers and nurses who are among Mrs. Miles' pupils, do not feel quite the same way about flying clothes. They say about 15 cents a week to cover group instruction and an equal sum for white overalls and flying caps. They are photographed in these as often as press photographers will take them. "Looking the part" seems to be one of the main attractions of learning to be fliers as far as this particular group of femininity is concerned.

Blonds Go Darker

With such mechanical ideas occupying feminine minds it seems that the vogue for blonds has suddenly disappeared. Gone are the beauties with flaxen tresses supposed to be irresistible to true gentlemen. Bond Street hairdressers are bewailing the fact that one of their most lucrative arts is no longer in demand. Where 80 heads were once bleached in a week, the total is now 15.

What is the reason? Well, the Duchesses of Kent and the Duchesses of Gloucester wear their hair as naturelle as do the majority of society women whose photos are seen most frequently in the picture press. In England it is no longer smart to appear "fast." All that vanished with the set who melted away at the time of the abdication. Late Victorian styles now are in favor in Court circles and the "sweat-up" hair-dos look best when the hair has its own natural sheen. Dyeing or bleaching makes it harsh and coarse.

Fewer Prominents

London suffered from a dearth of visiting celebrities this summer, so many of them spent months in England last year they have not taken English holidays this year. Aside from women scientists who attended the British Association gathering at Cambridge and were for the most part famous only in the dearest scientific circles and so lacking in this world's goods that they stayed with friends or in the most modest hostels, the motion picture industry has provided the papers with the only items of interesting visitors.

One woman who arrived by air from the Orient was given a fanfare of publicity. She was the first woman cabinet minister in India Madame Vijayalaxmi Pandit, minister of education and sister of Jawaharlal Nehru, ex-president of the All-India Congress. Madame Pandit is a power behind the Congress in her own country as well as an authority on Persian, art and literature and a poet of no mean standing.

Young, fair and attractive this very modern Indian woman met her husband in jail when she was imprisoned during one of Gandhi's civil disobedience campaigns. Though she and her brother are opposed to British domination of India they love London and were educated in England.

MUSICAL TONIGHT

Many New Number Stars by Jeanette MacDonald in "Girl of the Golden West"

Co-starring Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy for the fourth time, "The Girl of the Golden West" a musical panorama of early California, opens tonight at the Capitol Theatre.

Based upon the original stage play written and produced by David Belasco thirty years ago, the picture is presented against the romantic background of the colorful gold mine camps of 1850, the romantic missions and villages with their gaiety and music and dancing, the high Sierras and giant redwoods and bandit camps.

It is the story of Mary, who runs the Polka Saloon in Cloudy Mountain. She is loved by all the boys, but Jack Rance is the favored one. On a trip to Monterey her stage coach is held up by Ramerz, notorious bandit, who falls immediately in love with her.

He follows her to Monterey and masquerades as Lieutenant Dick Johnson. Mary does not recognize him as Ramerz. In his persistent pursuit for Mary's love he is captured by Rance in her cabin. Mary and Rance play cards for Ramerz's life and she wins, but Rance has caught her cheating. She promises to marry Rance if he will free Ramerz, but before the wedding Rance again finds Mary in Ramerz's arms. He had promised to kill the bandit on sight but gives him an even chance. They circle the chapel in opposite directions, to shoot it out when they meet, but Rance disappears. He had realized that Mary loves no man but Ramerz.

The new musical is abundant with a beautiful original score and new musical numbers by Sigmund Romberg and Gus Kahn. They in-

Whifflets From The Waterfront

Capt. J. W. Watt, of the steamer Prince Rupert, A. E. Evans, purser, and F. C. Foote and H. S. Ives, assistant pursers, left last night for Vancouver following the tying up of the steamer at the local dry dock for the winter. About 35 members of the crew also went south and the remainder will follow next week.

The loading of the Crescent Shows outfit and a fish shipment delayed the Prince George after her arrival in port last evening. She did not get away until about one o'clock this morning. There will be another delay at Powell River where the circus outfit is being landed.

Steamer Prince Charles does not have a very large booking for the southbound trip to Vancouver by way of the islands. She will pick up a good many passengers at the islands and take them south.

Steamer Cardena is expected to arrive this afternoon at 4 and will leave at 10:30 for Vancouver and numerous way ports.

C.P.R. steamer Princess Adelaide, Capt. Henry Armstrong, is due in port this afternoon at 5:30 and will sail at 10 p.m. on her return to Vancouver and waypoints.

The freighter Gray, here in connection with the shipment of whaling products from Rose Harbor on the Queen Charlotte Islands, arrived about noon.

clude "Soldiers of Fortune," "Sun-up to Sundown," "Senorita," "Shadows of the Moon," "Mariachi," "The Wind in the Trees" and "The West Ain't Wild Any More." Miss MacDonald also sings Gounod's "Ave Marie," Liszt's "Dream of Love" and "Who Are We to Say."

Visitors came from Kitwancool, Skeena Crossing, Woodcock and Cedarvale. Among the visitors was William Lisle of Woodcock. Joe Pauls of Cedarvale took the teams up. A very enjoyable dance was held in the evening.
