Masset Fishermen Are Missing Great Britain, United States And France Getting Together To Resist Conquest of China

Fears Entertained For Men Lost Off North Graham Island Coast

Might Have Been Bad For Charles and Corbett Smith if Their Engine Broke Down—Search is on—No News From Calvert Island

Fears were entertained here today for the safety of Charles and Corbett Smith, Massett fishermen, who are missing between Naden Harbor and Massett off the north coast of Graham Island. The pair left Naden Harbor at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon in a thirty-one-foot gasboat named Mabel for Massett. They were last sighted at 3 o'clock that afternoon off Spar Island. There was a strong south-east wind blowing offshore. Had they been caught by that with an engine breakdown there might have been serious consequences in the stormy sea.

On Sunday a Massett fish packer started to search but found no trace. The P.M.L. 8, police boat, has been dispatched from here but was reported stormbound today off Stephens Island.

The police landing party which went ashore on Calvert Island Saturday morning to conduct an over-land search for Hugh and Jimmy Greston of Alert Bay had sent in no report up to noon today.

Australia Looks To Cloudy Skies For Relief—Toll of Lives Placed At 162

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 16: (CP)—Residents of a large section of southeastern Australia were looking hopefully to cloudy skies today, following light rains last night, for relief from a terrific heat wave which has prevailed over the states of Victoria and New South Wales during the past week. It is estimated that the heat resulted in 162 deaths, some 100 in New South Wales and sixty in Victoria. The aged and the very young are the worst sufferers. Some ten million dollars damage is estimated from forest fires which swept thousands of acres of country. Whole settlements were wiped out and thousands are homeless. Twenty-one persons perished in the mill town of Woodsport, sixteen being workers who were trapped in the plant. Parts of the state of Victoria are still a raging inferno with a vast ball of smoke hanging over the country.

Girl Is Saved From Drowning

Fell Overboard from Steamer Cardena Last Night But Rescued by Captain and Crew

Speedy rescue action and application of artificial respiration methods resulted in averting what might have been a drowning fatality last evening following the arrival of the steamer Cardena from Vancouver. Shortly after the vessel had landed, Miss Jean Storrie of Seal Cove, who was an inbound passenger from Vancouver, dropped into the water from the after deck. Her cries for help attracted attention of the ship's crew who succeeded in rescuing her but not before she had lost consciousness and was on the point of drowning. She was rushed into a stateroom where she was revived by resuscitation directed by Capt. Ernest Sheppard, master of the ship. Later a doctor arrived and the girl was taken to her home. She is evidently none the worse for her experience in the cold waters of the harbor.

BREACH OF NEUTRALITY

Diversion of Canadian Shipment of Planes Involved This Dominion

OTTAWA, Jan. 16: (CP)—Canada unwittingly became involved in an international arms mystery when 34 aeroplanes, destined for Turkey, were shipped from this country and landed in warring Spain.

The case had repercussions in both Washington and London. In the British House of Lords, Lord Phillimore, Conservative, raised the question of armament shipments from Canadian ports and mentioned the specific shipment of the 34 planes. Earlier, on request of the United States government, the Canadian department of national revenue investigated and found that permits were issued to a Canadian manufacturer to export the planes to the Turkish government, which later stated it did not authorize the placing of the orders for the planes.

The Canadian government said that while it believed the exporter acted in good faith, believing the machines were for Turkey, there was no doubt now that they went to government Spain. Canada is not a member of the non-intervention committee and while there was no breach of this agreement there was a breach of the Canadian order-in-council prohibiting shipment of military equipment to Spain.

UNITED STATES POLICY

If the new policy of the United States is adopted by Congress, that country will be taking part with the British Empire in world politics. The President had led the way and has been backed up by a number of leaders in Congress. If they have their way the country will take part in present and future wars by applying economic pressure to curb international lawlessness. She will be in a position to prevent her people selling war supplies and food to Japan while that country is at war with China. She may loan money to the Chinese government to help her carry on. She may help block the aspirations of Germany or Italy by applying economic and commercial sanctions against those countries and in favor of her victims. Instead of sitting still and waxing fat on the profits of war as she had done in the past without committing herself to any danger or reprisals, she plans to take action to curb the aggressors and thus lay herself open to becoming involved in international quarrels.

This proposed new policy of the United States may prove to be the turning point in world history unless the Senate lays its hand on it and destroys it as it did in the time of President Wilson. However, President Roosevelt is in closer touch with Congress than was President Wilson. He knows his people better, and the probability is that his recommendations in this respect will be adopted. Germany has been playing into his hands by her interference in the affairs of neighboring countries and by reaching out to the American continent. Evidently our neighbors to the south have come to realize that it is impossible to play a lone hand and continue to reap the profits to be made from international trade while others are fighting the battles. Had they taken this stand twenty years ago the dangers of Nazism and Fascism and Jewish persecution might have been avoided. As one man puts it: "The United States has at last found her soul and there is great hope for the future."

THE YEARLING

One of the best sellers during the latter part of 1938 was "The Yearling," a story of life on a small farm in Florida. It is not a love story except that it illustrates the affection that may exist between father and son and between a boy and one of the wild animals of that part of the United States. The yearling is a young deer but the story is not the story of the deer except incidentally. It is the story of the boy.

The great beauty of the book is that the writer, Marjorie Kinnon Rawlings, seems to know her subject so well that she interprets every light and shade of the woods, every emotion of the strange inhabitants seems to be known to her. She tells of the hunt for bear or wolves, of the differences with neighbors, of the family life, of the experience with the rattlesnake which breaks down a quarrel and of the terrible flood and of the final effort to deal with the growing up fawn in such an intimate manner to lead to the suspicion that many of the incidents must have been experienced by herself or members of her family. It is an interpretation of the crude life of the settler in a part of the United States usually associated with summer resorts, semi-tropical fruits and palm trees but which has nothing whatever to do with any of them.

RESULT IS PROTESTED

Manager of Montreal Canadiens Claims Americans Made Tying Goal From Offside Play

NEW YORK, Jan. 16: (CP)—Cecil Hart, manager of Montreal Canadiens, has protested last night's game in which the Canadiens played an overtime one-all draw with the New York Americans. Hart claims that the Americans' goal resulted from an offside play. It was the second one-all draw of the week-end between the Americans and Canadiens, a game in Montreal Saturday night having resulted similarly.

At Toronto Saturday night, the Maple Leafs defeated Chicago Black Hawks three to one but were unable to follow up at Detroit last night when the Red Wings only required one goal to defeat them.

SPORT CHAT

Chess should be taught in Canadian schools believes George Koltanowski, Belgium-born chess wizard, holder of several world crowns. The game of chess could be a factor in "the greater unity of the Canadian nation." He said the game trains the mind of the child in logical thinking. It gives him a working connection with chess players, providing comradeship and better understanding. In Spain, Russia and Switzerland chess is a part of the school curriculum.

Koltanowski demonstrated his concentration ability in Edmonton. Blindfolded, he played 10 men at once, among them crabs Edmonton players, winning seven and getting a draw in three. Asked how he managed to keep such accurate track of the various plays and positions of the men on the board, he said that in the back of his mind he has something like a gramophone record which records the positions of the men and on a moment's notice he may figuratively speaking, turn on the record and receive a report as to just what the positions are.

Boston Dodging At Skiing Cost

Girls Decide Its Good Sport But Too Expensive For Them

BOSTON, Jan. 16: (CP)—A downward revision in the cost of skiing is becoming a more and more frequent demand on all sides this winter. Veteran observers feel that unless the expenses and "bunk" of skiing is eliminated there is little chance of the sport continuing to grow or even holding its own.

A sound thinker of this city who has been in the ski business for the past eight winters states that winter sports have hit a plateau above which they cannot rise until made available to lower-income groups.

"I tried to get my own daughter interested in skiing," he tells us "for she likes outdoor sports and is pretty good at them. She and a few of her friends considered it but like many of these level-headed youngsters they figured up what it would cost them. Stacking the cost up against their allowances they found that skiing would land them badly in the red, so there are half a dozen girls whose families are moderately well off who would like to ski but simply cannot see it for the money.

"Even with average New England snow conditions," the winter sports veteran continued, "I don't see how we can expect any growth in the future under present arrangements. What I hope is that skiing will follow the golf trend. It wasn't so many years ago that golf was very much of a rich man's game; today almost anyone can play golf within their budgets."

The Morning After Taking Carter's Little Liver Pills

PARIS IS DELIGHTED

Title of "World's Best" Returns To European, Duchess of Windsor Second

PARIS, Jan. 16: (CP)—The French capital is all agog to see a European, and a Bourbon princess at that, Mrs. Patine, wrest the Parisian dressmaker's title of "The World's Best Dressed Woman" away from America. The dressmakers who must keep in mind the bank-account as well as the social prestige of their clients have some embarrassing moments in choosing.

The Duchess of Windsor, who held first place for two succeeding years, has now dropped to second, Marina, Duchess of Kent, came third.

As usual, about half of those who captured the coveted places were born on the western side of the Atlantic. Baroness Eugenie de Rothschild (formerly Catherine Wolff of Philadelphia) was fourth; the Begum Khan, fifth; Mrs. Harrison Williams, sixth; the Marchioness of Paris, seventh; Mrs. Gilbert Miller, eighth; Senora Martinez de Hoz, ninth and Mme. Jean Du Poy (formerly Dorothy Sprockels of San Francisco) tenth.

Then followed Barbara Hutton (Countess Haugwitz Reventlow); Mrs. Jean Nash Dubonnet; Mrs. Duke Cromwell; Lady Elsie de Wolfe Mendl and Mrs. George Bonnet. The latter is the wife of the French foreign minister who received King George and Queen Elizabeth last July.

Mrs. Patine is often referred to as "The Tin Princess"—not because of her husband's colossal fortune but because her father-in-law, Don Simon Patine (now Bolivian foreign minister in Paris) was at one time a clerk in a band in La Paz and took a mountain payment of a bad debt. The mountain was full of tin.

The rivalry is great between Mrs. Patine and the Duchess of Windsor, as they are exactly the same size and have the same taste. They like a certain eccentricity but on the whole stick to classic lines. The Duchess just out because of a weakness for trimming. In the opinion of the celebrated dressmaker the simplicity of Mrs. Patine showed better taste. As many as 20 times they wore the same dress—the Duchess of Windsor in black or blue; Mrs. Patine in brighter colors.

It is estimated that together these 15 women spend more than $1,000,000 a year, their dress expenditure varying from $20,000 to $200,000 a year.

SKIDEGATES IN ALASKA

Queen Charlotte Island Concert Band Tours Hydagurg and Craig

SKIDEGATE, Jan. 16.—The Skidegate Concert Band recently made a tour of southeastern Alaska, calling at Hydagurg and Craig at both of which points they received a rousing welcome.

The Skidegates were much impressed with the excellent progress the American Haidas have made and how well off they are.

At Hydagurg the American government has started a $50,000 public works program of building a motor road out of Hydagurg.

The American Haidas are all citizens of the country and have all the privileges of the white man as well as their old tribal rights to the fishing grounds. They control much of the salmon fishing industry.

There are no Indian Agents in Alaska.

HISTORY AT SPEED

Editor, Daily News:
Congratulations on your editorial on January 13 under the title "Rome and Berlin." If Chamberlain's visit to Rome accomplished nothing else it has cleared the air and we now see how futile is his appeasement policy. Italy will not take her forces out of Spain until Franco has won the whole country and Britain will not grant belligerent rights unless those forces are withdrawn.

The past twenty years have made history at top speed. We now see that the policy of disarmament was a mistake, that the conquest of Ethiopia was an international crime, that the totalitarian states have abolished international honor, that the world is confronted with a condition that is new in modern times, a condition in which force is pitted against civilized ideals. It is good to read that your opinion is that the government at Ottawa now realizes that preparedness is of prime importance in these calamitous times.

WINTER IS VERY MILD

(By Anna Ullman, Hazelton)
Soft, wet snow weighs down the branches of coniferous trees and covers the ground to a depth of about eighteen inches.

Due to the extreme mildness of the weather, some of the newer settlers the prophecy of old timers and Indians, to the effect that the snow would melt before the winter was over, causing the river to flood.

"The river floods every year, washing away the dead humbles, cleaning itself," they had said. "High water didn't come before winter set in, therefore the snow will melt, sometime during the winter, causing the river to flood."

The Sino-Japanese war has Tommy Jack, Indian trapper and game guide, a bit worried. He says that, if all the Chinese are killed in battle he won't be able to take any more rice upon the trapline. He is fond of rice.

Those who say they live the simple life have nothing on some of these Indians. Their lunch is prepared by lighting a small fire on the trail and toasting a piece of smoked salmon until it is heated through.

"Believe it or not," there are would-be big game hunters who have the impression that big game outfitters keep large herds of moose, caribou, grizzly, etc., in their back yards, all ready for hunters. One nimrod from down the States way was just terribly disappointed to learn that this wasn't so. He had arrived, nattily attired in hunting togs, and announced, "I came up to hunt grizzlies in your back yard." When told that there were no grizzlies in the back yard, he queried "Isn't this the big game outfitter's ranch?"

"Love Finds Andy Hardy" First Half of Week Feature at Capitol Theatre

Fourth in the series of Judge Hardy family pictures, "Love Finds Andy Hardy," is billed for the Capitol Theatre here tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday. The story, a simple relation of domestic entanglements, tells of the young man of the family who, not only braves his father's wrath by buying a second hand car without permission, but also becomes mixed up with three girls at the same time. Ensuing difficulties drive him to despair from which he is rescued by the wiles of Judy Garland.

Lewis Stone is again the kindly discerning judge, head of a typical family of five in a small mid-western city. Mickey Rooney, as the son, provides the maelstrom around which the plot revolves. It is the first appearance of Judy Garland in the series, she plays the part of the daughter of an actress. Lana Turner, a new screen find, plays the part of the spoiled town charmer. Supporting players include Cecilia Parker, daughter of the family, Fay Holden, the mother, Ann Rutherford, Betty Ross Clarke, Marie Blake, Don Castle, Gene Reynolds, Mary Howard, George Breakston and Raymond Hatton.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 16: (CP)—Advice for married women: If you want your husband to say something about your clothes encourage him to notice them.

That was the advice given here by Mrs. George Black, member of parliament for the Yukon.

"I don't think George would notice mine unless I spoke to him about them," she said.

After dinner when friend husband is smoking and quite placid is the time to talk of clothes.

"It is then I talk to him about the trivial things that are important to me," Mrs. Black said.
