GAINS IN PRESTIGE

Chamberlain's New Attitude Of Firmness Wins General Acclaim At Home

LONDON, Jan. 14: (CP) — Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain is home in London Sunday and is due home in London Sunday from his conference in Rome with Premier Benito Mussolini. He will present a report to the cabinet on Wednesday.

The firmer stand which appears to have been taken by Chamberlain in his dealings with Mussolini has won acclaim on all sides and there appears to be no doubt that the Prime Minister has improved his prestige which suffered after Munich. There is general approval of the turning of a deaf ear to Italian territorial claims.

The advice of Chancellor Hitler to Premier Mussolini to defer his colonial demands for a year is viewed with some suspicion. It may merely be a move to lull the democracies into slowing up their rearmament programs.

Premier Chamberlain, in his visit to the Vatican yesterday discussed with the Pope questions of European peace and the problem of refugees.

TO HELP REFUGEES

British circles disclosed today that Mussolini had agreed in his talks with Chamberlain in Rome to co-operate in a world effort to solve the Jewish refugee problem. This is regarded as the most important achievement of the British Premier's visit which the Italian press asserted opened the way to a new European Mediterranean equilibrium.

In a statement before his departure from Rome today, Chamberlain said he was more than ever convinced of the good faith and goodwill of the Italian government.

The unemployed would use tokens instead of currency. The plan would be extended to include schools, churches, theatres, hospitals and transportation. If the federal authorities turn down the plan, the provincial authorities will be asked for assistance Telford said.

MOUNTIES NO CIRCUS

Commissioner Desires to See His Men Get Down to Business—Too Much Parading

OTTAWA, Jan. 14: (CP)—Commissioner S. T. Wood, head of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, does not want the force to become regarded as a "travelling circus." In his annual report to the government, he expresses the belief that the limit has been reached in this regard. The time has come to call a halt to such non-essentials as parading the mounties for the benefit of tourists and sending them around the country to provide color at picnics. The Commissioner wants his men to get back to their primary duty of crime prevention and detection.

Commissioner Wood, years ago, was in command of the Prince Rupert detachment of Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Minister and Deputy Acted Beyond Repeal in Bren Gun Case—Leaves Questions to be Answered

OTTAWA, Jan. 14: (CP)—"I think it right to say that there is no evidence nor in the evidence is there any ground for suspicion that the minister (Hon. Ian Mackenzie) or the deputy minister (Major General Lafèche) or any officer or official of the Department of National Defence was guilty of any act of corruption or anything in the nature of corruption," wrote Mr. Justice H. H. Davis in his report to Parliament as commissioner investigating the Bren machine gun contracts.

The Commissioner did not express the view as to whether he considered competitive bids or tenders were practicable in the Bren gun case. That is a question of administration, the report said. "Where, however, an article is required on which bids are not possible and private manufacture is to be used heaviest responsibility falls upon those responsible for selection of the manufacturer.

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 14:—Warren K. Billings, serving a sentence of life imprisonment as an outcome of the same Preparedness Day bombings in 1916 following which Tom Mooney was convicted has now filed his appeal with Governor Cuthbert Olsen for a pardon. Billings was convicted on the same evidence which Governor Olsen said he did not believe in connection with the Mooney case.

Mooney has undergone a thorough medical examination at Los Angeles. Doctors declared that he showed no ill-effects as a result of his twenty-two years' incarceration which ended with the granting of his pardon one week ago.

Loyalists Admit Danger Of Capital Falling; Every Man Able To Fight Off To Front

BARCELONA, January 14: (CP)—The Spanish government no longer makes any attempt to conceal the danger to this city, the provisional capital, in the advance of the insurgent forces along the coast.

Barcelona has largely become a city of women, children and old men as every available man has gone up to the front in the final effort to stay the rebel drive. Those too old, young or otherwise unable to fight actively have been left behind to help the women build fortifications.

Another furious government attack west of Madrid was reported last night in the effort to divert the insurgents' pressure from the Catalonia area. Government airplanes are reported to have attacked five insurgent gunboats and driven them back to their base at Majorca in the Balearic Islands.

THEY FOUGHT AND WON

How the Port of Saint John on the Bay of Fundy was gradually developed and is now one of the national ports of Canada—"The Liverpool of British North America"—is told in a special number of the Saint John Telegraph-Journal celebrating seventy years of progress in the city which it is published. It shows how Saint John became a port as a result of the great fight for recognition put up by her citizens, instigated thereto by her leading newspaper. It is a great story of triumph following many a setback.

It seems that the people of Saint John, with an ice-free port, realized that they had a national asset and their job was to prove this to the nation. They expended something like $200,000 of their own money on an elevator, a short line railway and other facilities but they had no business. They were not disheartened. They continued development until about a million dollars had been spent. Still they had no business to justify the expenditure. They sent delegation after delegation to Ottawa but without result. The business which should have gone through a Canadian port was still diverted through Portland, Maine. At last, after fighting misrepresentation and putting up with innumerable slights, they secured an offer from the Beaver Line of steamships to operate their steamships from the port if they obtained a subsidy of $25,000 a year. Then began the climactic fight. Delegations were sent to Ottawa and were promised consideration but no action was taken. It was only when two New Brunswick members, J. D. Hazen and John A. Chesley, threatened to resign if the subsidy was not granted, that the Ottawa government capitulated and granted the request.

PRINCE RUPERT CAN WIN

Prince Rupert has been putting up a fight for recognition as a national port but so far has made little progress except that some promises of support have been received. The big government elevator has remained empty all this season. The big ocean dock is not used to anything like its capacity. The provincial dock is idle a good deal of the time. The salmon of the Skeena and Naas Rivers is shipped to Vancouver for reshipment instead of being shipped direct from Prince Rupert. In spite of the fact that the port has one of the finest harbors in the world, easily accessible and open all the year round, it is not utilized for deep sea shipping.

Just now we are asking for a subsidy from the federal government and on the success or failure of that request will depend very largely whether a Liberal is returned for Prince Rupert at the next election or not.

It's interesting to know when reading the Daily News that the people of the whole district are doing the same of Vancouver and west of Edmonton holding membership in these organizations.

NEWS OF SPORT WORLD

Beer, baseball and buildings for business, "bangtails," "bow-wows" and boats for diversions and bachelorhood as a fixed policy alternately summarized Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, who died yesterday. The first three of these seven "B's" brought him great wealth; the second trio helped him spread it and the seventh gave him the best housekeeper in New York. His brewery, inherited from his father, was one of the largest concerns of its kind in the world. His New York Yankees drew greater crowds than any other team in the American League. His real estate holdings, acquired chiefly through the 1929-36 depression years when prices were low, added millions to his fortune. He turned to the "bangtails" for diversion but his string of race horses won so many purses that it began to take on the aspects of a profitable business and he quit the turf. He collected St. Bernard dogs that cost $5,000 a year to feed. His succession of yachts was climaxed by the "Yankee," a 437-ton twin-screw, steel craft of luxurious appointments.

At one stage of his career Ruppert served four successive terms in the national house of representatives. At another he was interested in military affairs, served in the national guard and was a colonel on the staffs of two governors. But it was as owner of the New York Yankees, boss of Miller Huggins, "Babe" Ruth and "Iron Man" Gehrig, that Ruppert was most widely known. For more than a dozen years various owners of the club had tried vainly to produce a winner before Ruppert and Col. T. L. Huston bought the outfit in 1915. The two colonels poured money into the team and paid Boston $125,000 for Ruth's contract, a record price at that time. Their first pennant-winner was achieved in 1921. They had another in 1922. In 1923 Ruppert bought Huston's interest for a reported $1,500,000. That year the Yankees won the World Series, from the New York Giants, who had defeated them in the two previous classics. There were world championships again in 1927, 1928, 1932, 1936, 1937 and 1938.

Ruppert was born in New York on August 5, 1867, and was named for his father, the founder of the Ruppert Brewing Company. He went through Columbia grammar school and passed examinations for admission to the School of Mines, of Columbia University. But, at his father's request, he went into the brewery. He began by washing barrels, then learned to mix beer and by stages went through the various manufacturing departments and on to the head office. When he was 23 his father went on an extended trip and left his son in charge as general superintendent. The test was a success and thereafter, he was in charge of the business. The output grew from 350,000 barrels in 1892 to 1,300,000 in the year that prohibition went into effect. In post-prohibition years this figure was doubled.

Ruppert's first essays in public life were made when Gov. David B. Hill picked him out of the ranks of the seventh regiment, New York City's crack infantry outfit, and made him a colonel on his staff. Gov. Roswell P. Flower who succeeded Hill in 1891, kept Ruppert on as senior aide. It was recorded of the Ruppert of those days that he displayed "grace and aptitude" as a public speaker and in the Columbian celebrations of 1892-3 it was he who, on behalf of the governor, delivered the speech of acceptance at the unveiling of the Columbus monument in New York. Ruppert was elected to congress in 1898 as a Tammany Democrat. His district, the New York fifteenth, was normally Republican but he won his seat by a margin of more than 10,000 votes, was thrice re-elected and got out of the national legislature only by declining renomination in 1907. His fortune is estimated at between $70,000,000 and $100,000,000.

HOOP TEAM WORKS OUT

Standard Oil Squad Getting Ready For Competition Either in Local League or Against Outsiders

Nightly practices are now being held by the proposed Standard Oil basketball team and, should a Senior League be arranged for as is now hoped, Prince Rupert should see some first class melon tossing after all this winter Jack Campbell has given his Oiler boys instructions to round into shape as soon as possible and await further developments as far as competition goes. He feels he has enough material in his fold to produce one of the finest senior squads turned out in the last few years. Angus MacPhee, rangy centre, is beginning to hit his usual stride and, with forwards such as Herbie Morgan, Jack Campbell Jr. and Sonny Bynon, will form a very dangerous line on any court. Sev Dominato is ready to relieve MacPhee at centre and Morgan may drop back to guard position where he has had considerable experience in former years. The guard line, as at present constituted, is composed of Currie, Houston, Le-tourneau and Murray who have played together for five consecutive seasons.

In the event of the proposed Senior League, consisting of also the Battery and Navy, not materializing, it is possible the Standard Oil boys may at least travel to Ketchikan, Metlakatla or Premier and thus be repaid in some way for their efforts.

LEAPS INTO FRONT RANK OF HEAVIES

Red Burman, Virtual Unknown Decisions Tommy Farr of Wales in Fierce Ten-Rounder at Garden

NEW YORK, Jan. 14: (CP)—Clarence (Red) Burman, a virtual pugilistic unknown flashed meteorically into the forefront of the heavyweight ranks by battering a fierce ten round decision over tough Tommy Farr of Wales in Madison Square Garden last night. Farr, who has now had five fights in the United States with the best of them but has failed to win a single one, was popular with the crowd of ten thousand fans last night. Booming was to be heard amid the cheers when the decision was announced to have been awarded in favor of Burman indicated that many of the spectators thought the fighting Welshman might have been entitled to at least a draw call. Indeed Farr seemed to be somewhat bewildered himself after it was announced he had been outpointed.

An analysis, however, showed that the new red-headed white hope was fairly entitled to his victory. With numerous vicious attacks, he was obviously the snappiest fighter, particularly in the first six rounds and with a final last minute rally.

After a rather slow seventh, during which both fighters showed some signs of tiring, Farr steamed up and gave Burman some uneasy moments in the eighth, ninth and early part of the tenth but it was too late then to make up the lost points.

There was much fierce toe-to-toe slugging in the latter stages of the fight but both boys showed they could take it. In spite of the pace, there was not even a knock-down to say nothing of anything savoring of a knock-out. Both were very much on their feet as the battle ended.

Farr weighed 201½ pounds and Burman 183½ pounds.

There was an impressive incident at the commencement of the fight when a ten count was tolled off out of respect to the memory of Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees and long a prominent sportsman, who had died during the day. The great crowd stood in silence.

The Letter Box

SLIGHTLY BEWILDERED
Editor, Daily News:

In reply to an editorial which appeared in your paper of recent date, entitled "Keeping Young Men Fit," it is very regrettable indeed that a country that boasts of natural resources as does ours has to resort to army training in order that its youth be kept in physical trim.

The sentence of your article "We have so much liberty in this country we do not know what to do with it," interested me chiefly where this changed slightly by placing the word "bonds" after liberty. I believe it would read much truer.

However you made the distinction between Fascism and the type of Democracy we have in Canada at present very plain. Fascism in Germany insists that its youth serve a term in the army or navy. I am not familiar with the tactics employed by European countries in their conscription of youth. Canadian democracy only expects her youth, (in order to elevate themselves from the ranks of the unemployed and that they do not become slouches) to enlist in the army before being given an opportunity to labor on a government project.

The only difference between the two, as I see it, is that in one you are supposed to have been forced to enlist and the other you are supposed to imagine that you volunteered.

Why public officials, elected in a democratic manner by a democratic people, use such methods is bewildering. For instance, were the ranks of the army in this locality swelled by this means and the people led to believe their army was composed of volunteer recruits, naturally they would overestimate the strength of their forces for it is well known, "A conscript never could take the place of a volunteer." This could very easily lead to disaster in time of war.

Being a Canadian by birth, also a firm believer in democracy, I would gladly volunteer to fight beside my fellow countrymen were I called upon to protect the rights of the Canadian people but, to be forced by the threat of starvation, hints not too weakly of Fascism.

Thanking you for the space allowed.

Man in the Moon

The talks in Rome have ended and there is a feeling of relief that Prime Minister Chamberlain has kept a stiff back and refused to give away anything, even some other country's territory.

Jake says he would like to nail a slat on Chamberlain's back to keep it stiff.

It will be interesting to hear what the Prime Minister has to report next week at home.

Teacher: William, what are the two genders?
William: Masculine and feminine. The feminine is divided into frigid and torrid, the masculine into temperate and intemperate.

Last summer a Calgary columnist said something about Prince Rupert rain and I retorted in rather an ungentlemanly way. Miss Ann Grant, who by the way is a very sweet and delightful lady except when she talks about Englishmen, writes in part as follows: "I just remarked careless-like in my column—likely on a day when I was wondering what in thunder to put in today—about the blessed solitude one gets in a fog. I remark in passing that maybe one could get too much of a good thing and it occurred to me that Rupert would be the likeliest place for too many grey skies—and here I find myself quoted in the Rupert papers. Me who liked Rupert passing well and the people I met in Rupert even better than passing well.

"Duce take the clipping services. "Did they send you all the nice things I have said about the spirit, the individuality of the people up and down the Skeena? I wrote one column about some of the things I learned at the fisheries experimental station (I forget the right name for it). I did about three on the Naas Indians from the things told me by Will Robinson up at Terrace and a lady, whose name I don't know, who conducted me around your museum. And a lot of people were very kind about saying they were interesting. Oh yes, and I wrote one about a man who is building a house of stone just as he gets the stone dug out of his farm—up there in the jungle on the way up the mountain. The idea was that, if you start to work for what you want with whatever you have, you'll finally get it. Why I've written heaps of nice things about Rupert and, apparently, the only thing that gets back is that I think perhaps I wouldn't like to live with quite so much rain.

"That reminds me that I wrote another one on the fact that everything balances up in this world, that if the clouds of grey engulf the day and overwhelm the town—in return you get brighter flowers—witness Prince Rupert.

"Now do put something in your column to correct the idea that I didn't like Rupert—say I am in sackcloth and ashes or have stopped using makeup for a week to do penance."

Herring Seining About Only Fishing Now Going On—Few Trollers Out—Tuscan on Way to Seattle

About the only fishing activity in this district just now is the herring seining for reduction plants which, for the time being at least, is centralized at the head of Prince Rupert Harbor in Tucks Inlet where a fleet of eight seiners with almost as many packers has been operating during the past week or so. A few trollers have been out picking up the odd spring salmon but the extremely bad weather of the past week has mitigated against operation. Tucks Inlet and Port Edward reduction plants, both close to the city, have been operating in full swing and Pacofi on the Queen Charlotte Islands has started up. Down the coast Namu reduction plant is ready to run as soon as fish are available. No report has been received as to whether or not the Butedale reduction plant will operate.

The well known Ketchikan hall-boat Tuscan, with Capt. Angelson and his family on board, arrived in port this morning from the north, being on the way to Seattle.

A good crop for 1938 is reported by eel fisheries, a curious Canadian industry which lives almost exclusively on exports to New York, Chicago, Berlin, Stockholm and Brussels. Canadians themselves eat only a small fraction of the yearly catch. The chief fisheries are near the historic Isle of Orleans, within sight of Quebec City in the River St. Lawrence, and at St. Johns on the Richelieu River, near Montreal. The former trapped 800,000 pounds of live eels this season and the latter 100,000 pounds. Live eels sell in New York City among the Italian population for 30 cents a pound, while the balance of the "crop" is exported frozen and brings the fishermen about six cents a pound. The Island of Orleans catch is marketed by a co-operative. The St. Johns fisheries are owned by Pierre Thout, 82 years of age, but still hale and hearty. The Thout family has been licensed to catch eels in the Richelieu River for more than 100 years.

Under the commanding officer, Lieut. Orme Stuart, officers and ratings of the local unit of the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve will march Sunday morning from naval headquarters on the waterfront to St. Andrew's Anglican Cathedral where annual church service will be held. The white ensign will be escorted by a guard of honor.

Union steamer Venture, Captain John Boden, arrived in port at midnight last night from the south and sailed a couple of hours later on her return to Vancouver and waypoints.

OLD DAYS RECALLED

This Day Twenty-Two Years Ago Prince Rupert and Hazelton Played Hockey

Staff Sergeant Ernest Gammon, who was one of the players, recalls that twenty-two years ago today the first hockey was played in Prince Rupert in a serious way. It was in the course of an unprecedentedly long and severe cold snap, the like of which has not been known before or since in Prince Rupert, and a team from Hazelton was here. Two games were played in the one day, Hazelton winning in the afternoon one to nothing and in the evening 2 to 1.

Pioneers will remember that the games were played on a large sheet of ice, especially prepared, at Market Place where the court house buildings and lawns are now located. There was six weeks' solid of the finest kind of skating.
