Instead the board will communicate with several men who know the country well and ask them to give evidence. These are to include George M. Birnes, R. S. Sargent, Barney Mulvaney and Frank Dockrill.

Attempt To Shoot Duchess Of Kent; Australian With Sawed Off Shotgun Is Under Arrest

LONDON, June 6: (CP)—An attempt was made last night to shoot the Duchess of Kent as she left her fashionable Belgrave Square home to attend a theatre. A middle-aged Englishman from Australia, carrying a sawed off shotgun, was arrested in connection with the incident. The Duchess was unhurt. She was not aware of the incident until informed of it later.

DUCHESS OF KENT

The shot was fired as the Duchess stepped into a car accompanied by a friend. Police were there at the time in answer to reports that a strangely acting man had been seen loitering in the vicinity.

In some quarters the incident was construed as a reflection of dissatisfaction at the appointment of the Duke of Kent as Governor General. He and the Duchess have been active in the gay society circles in which the Duke of Windsor circulated before his abdication.

A foot long firearm with a polished wooden butt was exhibited in police court when Lawredge Lawlor was arraigned today on a charge of firing the weapon near the Duchess. Lawlor, who is a forty-five year old welder's assistant, appeared in court after night long questioning about the shooting. He was not asked to plead and was remanded for a week.

Constable Robert Tice told the magistrate, Clyde Wilson, that he seized Lawlor after a short chase in a commandeered automobile. Accused was himself on a bicycle.

The Duchess was entering her limousine to go to a theatre when the incident occurred. Neither she or her companion were injured.

CONSIDER RED NOTE

Statement By Prime Minister Chamberlain In Regard to Negotiations With Russia Reserved

LONDON, June 6: (CP)—Prime minister Neville Chamberlain told the House of Commons yesterday that the latest note from Soviet Russia required consideration before he could make a statement on Anglo-French efforts to bring Russia within the mutual assistance framework.

The Prime minister stated that he appeared to be no use in his going to Moscow but that possibly Lord Halifax, Foreign Secretary, or some other minister might be sent in the effort to bring out differences in the way an agreement being reached.

In well informed quarters it is stated that the Soviet now demands an unqualified guarantee of the security of Estonia, Finland and Latvia, small nations bordering upon Russia.

Express Appreciation in Wire to President of Canadian National Railways

MONTREAL, June 6.—"The King and Queen left Jasper with great regret and much appreciate all that was done for their comfort and amusement during their enjoyable stay there." This telegram, signed by Alan F. Lascelles, acting private secretary to His Majesty, was wired to S. J. Hungerford, Chairman and President, Canadian National Railways, from the royal train, after it left Jasper National Park.

When King George and Queen Elizabeth spent a brief rest period at Jasper Park Lodge they had a little home all their own. Except for two personal servants, they had to themselves Outlook Cottage, a beautifully appointed log cabin on the shore of Lac Beauvert. They expressed great pleasure at the opportunity to enjoy complete rest in the mountain resort. Formality was laid aside for a day before they began their eastward journey.

HIGHWAY IS DISCUSSED AT DINNER

Proposal To Ask For More Rapid Construction At This End Goes To Committee

The Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce, at its monthly dinner meeting last night, decided to refer to a committee a resolution favoring the pushing forward of the highway connecting Prince Rupert with the outside world, letting the work by contract and with definite objectives and preliminary surveys. The resolution was moved by Theo Collart, seconded by C. G. Minns.

Mr. Collart explained that the present slow construction was not at all satisfactory and, after all these years, he felt some more definite action should be taken to have the work proceed on a businesslike basis.

S. E. Parked did not agree with the resolution. He thought the Chamber should support the completion of the section east of Usk and then concentrate on the local section. He also mentioned that the provincial government was this year concentrating its effort on the completion of the Big Bend connection for the southern transcontinental highway.

H. F. Pullen supported the resolution. He said it was all very well to support the Terrace movement to complete the Usk section first but that was in a different constituency and, once it was finished, the people there would forget Prince Rupert. He believed in getting the work at this end carried out as rapidly as possible. He had hoped to be able to some day drive to Terrace but was now fearing he would never be able to do so. He believed Mr. Pattullo was doing the best he could for the constituency but he should be supported on this highway work. This was the time to discuss next year's program.

The motion to refer to the highway committee was moved by Col. J. W. Nicholls and was carried.

MANAGER DESIRED

Permanent Committee To Be Arranged To Keep Plan Before Provincial Government

The Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce, at its meeting last night, on motion of Theo Collart, seconded by G. W. Nickerson, decided to arrange for a permanent committee of members of the Chamber of Commerce, the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Trades and Labor Council and the Retail Merchants' Association to press for the implementing of the city manager plan of local government to take charge as soon as the City Commissioner relinquishes his position.

It planned to have the completion of the section east of ready so that it can meet Premier T. D. Pattullo when he comes here to open the new hospital.

At the meeting letters were read from the Premier and the Minister of Municipalities which were non-committal and made the appointing of the committee desirable.

VANCOUVER, June 6: (CP)—Two police constables managed to waken Mrs. Sarah Skinner, aged 74, in time for her to flee from her burning home in night attire. Her son, Robert, employed by an ambulance service, raced home, his siren screaming, to find his mother safe.

SPORT CHAT

Hunting in South Africa is generally a highly scientific sport but there is a ready sale of films for old type muzzle-loading guns at Cape blacksmiths.

Bobby Locke, outstanding South African golfer, believes "the mental side of golf is the most important. I never worry about my mistakes, as a golfer I'm a fatalist," he says.

As soon as a new sporting ground, built by voluntary effort, was opened at Rustenberg, South Africa, a rugby game and tennis tournament were started.

A circus flea trainer in South Africa tried to insure his little performers but the underwriters asked a premium of $94 for each $470 worth of fleas.

AMERICANS WIN FIRST POLO GAME

WESTBURY, Long Island, June 6: (CP)—United States defeated Great Britain by a score of 11 to 7 on soggy ground Sunday in the first of a two-in-three series to determine for the next three years the resting place of the International Polo Challenge Cup.

Meadow Brook's international field on Long Island is the historic battleground for this the greatest international cup polo series since 1914 with Captain Gerald Balding leading the British team and Captain Tommy Hitchcock, the United States defenders.

Exactly 25 years ago, on this same turf, as war clouds gathered over Europe in June, 1914, Britain won the cup in June, 1921, when the series was resumed after the war, the Americans recaptured the old trophy at Hurlingham, England.

Ever since Britons have planned and hoped for the day when they would break the power of American polo. For three years, since their last defeat in 1936, they have focussed every effort on putting their best men, superbly mounted, on the field for this series.

The Empire has been combed for the hardest hitters and fastest horses. Players came from Australia, as well as from the Argentine and Texas. Whether or not the British invaders are strong enough to defeat the American stars, experts freely predict that this is the most potent challenge force Britain has sent after the trophy since her 1914 squad went to work.

The swanky Meadow Brook Club with its series of polo fields set down among the vast estates of Long Island, has brought the international field up to perfect condition. None of the test matches were played on its smooth expanse of turf. Its short-clipped grass was disturbed by horses' hoofs for the first time this year.

UPSET IN SOFTBALL

Moose Win Over Grotto—Three Two Shuts Out Lipsett's

Grotto suffered its first defeat of the season in the Senior Softball League last night when Moose scored an upset five to three victory. Everything was going along nicely in a nip and tuck game and it was the seventh inning with the score tied three all. Then Jack Yager, Grotto pitcher, who had been playing a good steady game both on the mound and on the bases, having scored all the runs, made a prize faux pas by overthrowing to first which let in the two winning goals.

In the second game of the evening Three Two, with a strong hitting attack, scored a nine run shut-out over Lipsett's. In the final inning Three Two got five runs on the strength of three three-baggers. Frank Parlett hurled well for the winners. Joe Scott was on the mound for the losers.

POSSIBLE ELECTION We have no official information as to whether there is to be an election this year or not but, as a guess, we should say it seems rather likely that an election will be held this summer or autumn. The present Parliament has just completed its fourth session and one more is all that is allowed by the constitution. It is not generally looked upon as good policy for a government to hold on to office until the end of its possible term. The present government could hold a session of Parliament next spring and call an election for the summer or fall of 1940 but it is more likely it will soon give notice that the election will be held this year.

HIGHLIGHTS OF TOUR

Mayor McGavin of Victoria says he was informed by no greater authorities than His Majesty King George VI, and the Prime Minister of Canada that the reception given in Victoria was one of the highlights of the tour. Evidently, that was the impression the visitors tried to leave at every place they visited. While Mayor McGavin has every reason to be proud of his city he must not take too seriously the words of guests trying to please. It was the natural thing to say. It is probable that there were several hundred highlights in the tour.

SESSION PETERED OUT

Evidently when Dr. Manion, speaking for the opposition in the House of Commons, advised the Prime Minister that his party was willing to co-operate so that the King might dissolve Parliament and when a small section of the opposition refused to comply, he decided that so far as he was concerned the work of the House closed with the coming of the King. While the Prime Minister accompanied the Royal Party, the leader of the opposition also left for a holiday. The result was that the business of Parliament was forgotten in the glamor of the Royal tour and, finding themselves out of luck from a publicity standpoint, the few remaining members shut up shop and quit. What was the good of talking if the country would not listen? It would have been in much better taste if the members of the C.C.F. had acquiesced in the general wish of the members and helped to expedite business so that the House might adjourn. It was evidently to show his contempt for their action that Dr. Manion left at the same time that the Premier came west.

Twenty-Five Years Ago

June 6, 1914

Practically the entire business section of the northern mining town of Atlin has been wiped out by a disastrous fire. The buildings destroyed include Pillman's store, Jules Eggert's jewelry store, Kershaw's hardware store, McIntosh bakery, drug store, Kootenay Hotel, Vancouver Hotel, Presbyterian Church, federal building, Leland Hotel and many residences. There was practically no insurance on any of the buildings.

Plans for a fine fair building on Acropolis Hill have been prepared by Architect J. E. Gilmore for the Northern British Columbia Agricultural and Industrial Association and it is planned to start construction almost immediately in readiness for this year's exhibition.

One hundred and twenty-five merrymakers made an excursion trip to Port Simpson. Weather was splendid and a highly enjoyable day was spent by all. Prize-winners in the field sports included S. McClure, C. Martin, Dan McKinnon, J. H. Kelly, M. M. Lamb, Lionel Holby, A. Brighton and W. A. Matheson.

THEY WERE DELIGHTFUL Young Metlakatla Man Passes Away

Capt. Harry Nedden Gives His Impressions of King and Queen of England

Capt. H. E. Nedden, master of the steamer Prince Robert, which was in port yesterday on its initial voyage of the season to Alaska, had not words adequate to describe the delightful personalities of King George and Queen Elizabeth. The genial commodore of the Canadian National Steamships coastal fleet had ample opportunity to form impressions of Their Majesties for, as previously reported, they spent a good part of the time of their crossing last Wednesday morning from Victoria to Vancouver with him on the bridge of the Prince Robert.

Both King and Queen were delightfully natural and informal, says Capt. Nedden. They were keenly interested in the scenery and the things to be observed as the ship sped between the two southern ports. "They are charming people," said Captain Nedden whose word for the Queen was a simple "sweet." The King was not seen much by

William Marris Louth Dies at Age of 23 and Body is Taken Home For Burial

CONSTIPATION IS A TYRANT

Millions suffer needlessly because they eat only the kind of food that is consumed in the body—meat, potatoes, bread—and so does not form the soft "bulk" the bowels need for regular movements. Such people afflicted with constipation due to diet deficiency of "bulk", should eat Kellogg's All-Bran every day and drink plenty of water. All-Bran contributes to the needed "bulk" and is a rich source of Nature's intestinal tonic, Vitamin B. Try the All-Bran way and know the freedom that comes with being "regular".

EIRE FACES CRISIS NOW

Irish Leader Declares Ravages of Past Must Be Repaired

DUBLIN, June 6: (CP)—The next five or ten years will be the most critical in the history of Eire in the view of Sean Lemass, minister of industry and commerce.

The minister told those attending the official opening of a Dublin chocolate factory: "In those years we will repair the ravages of the past and build a firm foundation for future prosperity—or we will fail and our failure will mean the ultimate disappearance of our nation. We must not fail and we cannot fail."

Mr. Lemass said that while Eire was predominantly an agricultural country, consideration must be taken of growing importance of its industrial development so that as great a variety of employment might be provided to check emigration and to bring the greatest possible measure of prosperity to the people.

He held a report attached to the 1936 census showed long years of failure to cope with pressing social problems, failure he attributed to the external government which ruled the country before creation of the Free State.

Children Less
During the last 10 years, he declared, the number of children in Eire under 15 years of age had declined by 13 per cent, that 64 per cent of the women under 30 years of age were unmarried, that the percentage of unmarried younger men and women was the highest in the world, that emigration had reduced the proportion of people of productive ages and left the country with an exceptionally large number of old people in proportion to the general population.

Despite the economic war with the United Kingdom—ended last year with a trade agreement—conditions had been bettered considerably in the last six years, the minister said.

During that time industrial employment had risen 46 per cent, gross value of industrial production was up 61 per cent, net value 36 per cent. Employment in production of transportable goods only increased 60 per cent, gross output 69 per cent and net output 40 per cent.

The minister said he saw hope in a revival among the Irish people of confidence in the possibility of a profitable industrial revival.

HANSON ON CONTRACTS

Advocates That National Defence Department Do Work By Tender Rather Than On Cost Plus Basis

Speaking in the House of Commons at Ottawa a few days ago, Prof. Hanson, M. P. for Skeena offered the suggestion that the Department of National Defence, in carrying out defence construction work, should follow the practice of the Department of Public Works and other departments by letting contracts by open tender, eliminating the cost plus system unless it is absolutely necessary. Mr. Hanson emphasized that he was absolutely in favor of the defence program and expressed the belief that expenditures were not sufficient. He was opposed to Canada depending on other nations for defence.

Mr. Hanson is reported in Hansard as follows: "I am absolutely in favor of the defence program and associate myself with members who have said that in view of world conditions today our expenditures are not sufficient. In my opinion what we are doing is a step in the right direction.

"A couple of years ago I stated in the House that Orientals could land on the Pacific coast and take command of the railway, dry dock and elevator facilities, if they used only a row boat, two men and a machine gun. We could not have defended our coast at that time. The Minister of National Defence (Mr. Mackenzie) has realized the strategic position of the Pacific coast and has at least tried to develop defence facilities. It is ridiculous to think that we should allow outsiders to defend our ports. It was our good fortune to have the benefit during the last war of defence by the greatest fleet on the seas. But in times such as these, can we depend upon that defence? I am pleased to associate myself with the Minister of National Defence who has seen fit to show the world that in a small way we are trying to help ourselves and not depend upon other nations for support.

"One suggestion has been made to me, and I believe to many members, in connection with the awarding of war contracts for the Department of National Defence. I am not criticizing the department for making contracts on a cost-plus basis but it has been suggested it would be in the interests of the Canadian people and would stimulate greater co-operation if the Department of National Defence were to follow the procedure of other departments and where possible let contracts by open tender. The department might well take the suggestion into consideration. Of course there might be contracts of such a nature that every Tom, Dick and Harry should not be allowed to do the work. The suggestion is, however, that wherever possible the Department of National Defence should follow the practice of the Department of Public Works and other departments of the government of letting contracts by open tender. If it were indicated that the Department of National Defence were favorably disposed in that regard, it would assure the Canadian people that there is nothing wrong. I am convinced there is nothing wrong in the department but, when a department finds it necessary to let a contract on a cost-plus basis it is sometimes difficult to convince some people that it has been properly let."

BRITAIN'S WAR-BIRDS LAY THEIR EGGS

A little known but highly important branch of British coastal defence is the arm of the Royal Air Force, equipped with aeroplanes that fire torpedoes from the air as the one at the right is doing. At the left is a group of mechanics at the air force station at Gosport, Eng., attaching an aerial torpedo to one of the specially constructed planes. The torpedoes weigh about 1,500 pounds and are capable of inflicting enormous damage upon the largest ships.

cedure of other departments and where possible let contracts by open tender. The department might well take the suggestion into consideration. Of course there might be contracts of such a nature that every Tom, Dick and Harry should not be allowed to do the work. The suggestion is, however, that wherever possible the Department of National Defence should follow the practice of the Department of Public Works and other departments of the government of letting contracts by open tender. If it were indicated that the Department of National Defence were favorably disposed in that regard, it would assure the Canadian people that there is nothing wrong. I am convinced there is nothing wrong in the department but, when a department finds it necessary to let a contract on a cost-plus basis it is sometimes difficult to convince some people that it has been properly let."

Gardening

We were greatly excited a few evenings ago. Last year we planted a number of sets of that brilliant climber, Tropeolum Speciosum, a species of nasturtium. The plants grew but did not bloom. As this plant is rather temperamental and grows only in certain locations, we wondered if it would come up this spring. While everything around was still growing there was still no sign of the tropeolum. Then the other evening we discovered a few shoots coming through the ground and now there are a dozen or more and growing fine. It remains to be seen whether or not they will really thrive in our location. So far Dr. and Mrs. Mandy have the finest tropeolum in the city.

It is a great help to a gardener to have a little greenhouse or even a cold frame. Many plants can be helped in spring by a month or two in a greenhouse even if there is no artificial heat. It is a great place for a wet day. Glads and dahlias can be brought forward indoors and they bloom several weeks early by spring forcing. Tuberosus begonias, to get best results, should be several inches high before they are planted outside. It is time to put them out now.—H.F.P.

VALUABLE FISH WORK GOING ON

Dr. Neal Carter Tells Commerce Chamber of Experimental Station Activities

A particularly interesting summary of what is being done at the Prince Rupert Fisheries Experimental Station was given the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce at its dinner last night by Dr. Neal Carter, director of the station. Dr. Carter explained that a great deal of hark work had to be done which often seemed unrelated to the general program but which was eventually tied up to it.

Dr. Carter said that O. C. Young and P. A. Sunderland were working on methods of canning shell fish. They had already solved some of the problems connected with the canning of shrimps enabling the canners to retain the color and flavor and avoid the unattractive broken down product. In doing this they operated a small model cannery at the station. They had two different methods of keeping a record of temperatures throughout the operation and were now developing a new method of their own.

In canning of crabs there was a difficulty in retaining the color, there being a tendency to blacken as a result of the combination of sulphur in the crab meat with iron of the cans. This was obviated by enameling the interior of the cans or by wrapping the meat in parchment.

Problems in connection with frozen shell fish were solved and in connection with this Dr. H. L. A. Tarr was collaborating. In a number of problems a panel of tasters collaborated. While there had been some criticism of the panel system it had in many cases worked out well. They were now investigating the possibilities of smoked grey cod. Smoked fish was expected to be kept for a few months while frozen fish, if hermetically sealed, could be kept for a year. The formation of ice crystals in the flesh had something the same effect as keeping the fish without treatment for a few days. Many people thought fish three days old was better than when freshly caught. That was because the breaking up process had commenced.

Tests were being made locally with the canning of smoked oysters. The oysters were first smoked and then processed. In kimmering herring it was found that the local herring reacted differently from the herring taken in the North Sea. The result was that it had to be treated differently.

Dr. Carter then went on to discuss the work being done on fish oils. This started ten years ago and, as a result many uses were found for fish oils. Bulletins had been issued on this from time to time. This oil could be used in diesel motors and some of the fine airplane oils were now being made from fish oil products. Waxes for cosmetics were also taken from the sperm whale and fatty alcohol for cleaning purposes and also for use in the recovery of precious metals in floatation recovery was important. Vitamins and true fats were also some of the products. Success had been attained in the field of vitamins but the loss of Dr. L. I. Pugsley this year would make it impossible to continue the work at present.
