Generally Believed That Latest Peace Plan Will Be Flatly Rejected

LONDON, Sept. 30: (CP)-It is generally regarded as certain in informed sources that Great Britain and France will flatly and unequivocally reject the latest peace plan of Germany and Russia based on the partition of Poland between the two nations. Neither Britain or France can be intimidated through obscure threats of "appropriate action" or "joint measures" should they not call off the fight which they are resolved to prosecute to a finish against Hitlerism and ag-

MORAL REARMAMENT

The danger of working a reform to death was shown in connection with the present international situation. When Ramsay Macdonald was Prime Minister of Great Britain a wave of moral rearmament passed over the country. It was not called by that name but it was the same thing and it caused the British people to start scrapping their ships, reducing their army and trying to show a good example to the rest of the world, an example of trustfulness, brotherly love, Christian charity. At the same time Italy and Germany were teaching their young people the glories of war, the need of real armament and the childishness and weakness of Great Britain. They looked upon the British Empire as easy prey for themselves. The British were decadent, soft. easy, unworthy foes for a virile people. They were distinctly on the down grade.

The result of this policy was that, when the fateful Munich parley took place, the British had to crawl down and wait until they had rearmed before they dared meet the German attack. Moral rearmament would not stop the rape of Poland unless it had been applied in time to Germany and

When it was found that Gertaken friends started a moral rearmament campaign in United tain. Did they carry this camand Russia? They were not allowed to do so. The campaign, which was good in principle, served rather to weaken the democracies while not in any way injuring the dictatorships.

The place to start a moral rearmament campaign next time will be in Japan, Italy, Russi and Germany. Once they have learned the lessons, it will be easy enough to pursuade Britain and United States to fall in line.

Mr. Halterman reports that this has been a busy year for his company in the passenger business and also with logging and salmon canning freight.

Speaking of the future, Mr. Halterman said that his company had had plans in hand for some time for the building of new steamers for its northern services but shipbuilding costs today were such that it was impossible to proceed.

This memory stood him well in war college, for, when he left Lieut. Col. Foch, later to become marshal of France and Gamelin's only predecessor in supreme command of the allied forces, wrote across the record high praise of Gamelin's tactical flair.

In 1906, Gamelin was asigned to General Joffre's command and almost immediately Joffre began to lead heavily on his aide's strategic ability. When Joffre became commander-in-chief in 1911, he took Gamelin with him and in the pre-Great War days it was the smooth. quiet little major who studied his maps and warned of a possible attack through Belgium. Kay Francis Retiring From Screen With "Women In Wind"-Fast Comedy Also On Program

"Women in the Wind," a novel! story of aviation theme, and 'Hard to Get," a fast moving comedy farce, are double-billed on tonight's program at the Capitol Theatre.

The story of "Women in the Wind" is mainly concerned with the efforts of a young and very personable aviatrix to win a women's transcontinental air derby... The leading role is played by Kay Francis who enters the race in the hope that, by winning the $15,000 first prize, she can hire a great specialist to cure her brother who has been injured in a plane crash. It is announced as Miss Francis' final role in motion pictures. The part is a nice compound, it is said, of the sympathetic femininity and the almost masculine directness so characteristic of her. William Gargan plays! the leading male role and others! n the cast include Victor Jory. Rosella Towne, Ila Rhodes, Eddie Foy jr. and Maxie Rosenbloom.

In "Hard to Get" Dick Powell is an ambitious and aggressive young business man and Olivia de Havilland is a spoiled and petulant heiress. There are many farcical complications with the cast also including such favorites as Charles Winninger, Allen Jenkins, Bonita Granville Melville Cooper and others.
