

PEACE OR WAR UP TO HITLER

Britain Is Firm And Confident In Polish Stand

Demands More Specific Statement From Der Fuehrer—
World Waits For Developments as Crisis Continues

LONDON, August 29: (CP)—With Europe remaining a bristling armed camp awaiting the spark which might set off the conflagration of a world war or some move that might lead to a lasting understanding, the world today still anxiously watched progress of the negotiations of Great Britain with Germany on the tense issue between Germany and Poland over Danzig and the Polish Corridor. Up to this afternoon, developments in the situation remained quite uncertain with the passage of time without serious untoward incident tending to increase hopes that there might still be peace despite the intensive and uninterrupted preparations for war.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain told a tense and cheering House today that Great Britain had again made plain to Hitler the determination to fulfil obligations to Poland and that the issue of peace or war was still undecided.

"We shall hold fast to the line which we have laid down," the Prime Minister declared as the House echoed with tremendous cheering. "We still hope and still work for peace," the Prime Minister continued in a solemn speech of sixteen minutes. "We will abate no jot our resolution to hold fast to the lines we have already laid down for ourselves."

Without disclosing details of the exchange of messages with Hitler, Chamberlain declared that Great Britain had delivered "our final answer" to a communication from Hitler that "we have made plain our obligations to Poland will be carried out" and that "at this moment the position is that we are awaiting Hitler's reply."

PREMIER IS FIRM AND BUOYANT, EVEN IRONIC

The Prime Minister spoke in a firm, assured voice, sometimes almost buoyant, as when he made ironic reference to Germany with the remark "at any rate we have begun here issuing ration cards." He referred to dispatches from Berlin telling of stringent food rationing measures being imposed there.

The Prime Minister also announced that the whole British fleet is now ready to take up positions in the event of war.

Cheering from all sides of the House gave evidence of political unity beside the Prime Minister's policy of firmness.

The House of Commons, after hearing the Premier's report, adjourned to meet again next Tuesday or earlier if necessary. In view of the continuation of negotiations with Hitler, it may be some days before the British House is able to act further.

Owing to "vague generalities" of his messages to date, it was thought that Great Britain might require another statement of Germany's requirements. Hitler will be asked for a more open and specific declaration. He has said, seemingly quite uncompromisingly, that he must have Danzig and a passage across the Polish Corridor but is understood to have been more vague in regard to further "border revisions" with Poland.

The British cabinet members are constantly on call to deal with developments in the situation as they may arise. Every day they are meeting and Parliament stands also ready for instant action once negotiations have become sufficiently clarified to permit of definite action being taken. There has been little chance for relaxation since the tense and uncertain week-end.

The special plane of Sir Neville Henderson, British ambassador to Germany left Templehof airdrome a few minutes after noon today without Sir Neville on board but "with several British passengers." The British embassy at Berlin declined to explain why the ambassador was remaining in Berlin nor would it disclose whether the "British passengers" were taking any documents with them. An embassy spokesman said that all questions must be referred to the Foreign Office press department in London.

Last night, following his return to Berlin from London with the latest British note, an eight-hundred word document in which Britain was believed to have insisted that further negotiations would have to be based on withdrawal of armed threat on Poland, reiterating she would stand beside Poland with every resource in the event of an act of aggression by Germany, Sir Neville Henderson soon was in session with Chancellor Hitler. No indication was available immediately as to what had transpired at the conference or of its results.

Act is Covered by Law, Authorities Explain, and is Being Applied to Foreign Vessels Generally as Safeguard

NEW YORK, August 29: (CP)—The giant Nazi liner Bremen, under orders to return immediately to Germany, was held at her pier today by command of the United States Treasury department, pending a thorough inspection. Asked what type of search was contemplated, one Treasury official said the special examination, covered by law, would seek for armaments and spies as well as contraband merchandise.

In Washington high Treasury officials indicated that customs officials were searching foreign ships for armament that might be used to prey on ocean commerce in event of an European war.

The Bremen had landed 1600 passengers and was preparing to return to Germany at once without passengers when the detention occurred.

New Guinea Area May Suit Whites

Another Palestine For Political
And Religious Refugees

SYDNEY, Australia, Aug. 29: (CP)—What may well prove to be another Palestine for the political and religious refugees fleeing from Europe has been found in New Guinea. Assistant-District Officer Taylor, who has just returned to Rabaul after 18 months spent in the Mount Hagen-Sepik area of New Guinea says he found a fine, healthy country in the uplands which European natives could develop to the high standard of Kenya Colony in Africa.

He states it will take some time to bring this country under control but believes that with the completion of a road from coast to coast Europeans will be able to develop it.

The quality of the soil was good, and large quantities of sugar-cane and potatoes were flourishing. The natives, says Taylor, have a real admiration for the white man, and a superior culture to other New Guinea tribes.

CRISIS DELAYED

The longer the crisis is delayed the less likely we are to have war. The very fact of the delay occurring indicates that the Germans do not want to fight and also it probably indicates that their allies are not firmly with them.

It is quite certain that the people of Italy could not have liked the sudden switch of the Germans from one side to the other. It indicated that no principle was at stake but only a desire for more territory. The Italians fought in Spain for the purpose of opposing the Comintern and then the Germans, their allies, make a pact with the Comintern. It must, to say the least, have dampened the Italian enthusiasm. If Germany got away with the present bluff she would be wanting other adjoining countries next and eventually would take a slice of Italy.

HAVE COURAGE TODAY

Vicki Baum says that most people are afraid, only some people show it and others do not. Today we all need courage and also need to show it. If we show fear we pass on the fear idea to all our neighbors and friends. British people are fearful creatures but, when danger approaches, they tighten their lips, lift their chins and indicate courage and everybody thinks they are brave. That is the thing to do today. We may be afraid of war because it is a terrible thing but we do not fear the Germans or any other people on earth. Why should we?

We find an occasional person who has been told that Britain is old and decrepit and has not the intestinal fortitude to fight any more. Such persons are all wrong. Britain is anxious for peace, just as anxious as Canada, possibly more so because she is nearer to the scene of action and has more to lose. The people of Britain know what war is and are fearful of it. But they fear no people on earth and will fight to win today as they have always done if called upon to do so.

When the Canadians went overseas in the last war they fought as well as any and better than most. They were marked men. They fought like devils. Once they were in the fight they had no fears. There were no cowards among them. So today if they are called upon to fight in what they believe to be a righteous cause they will keep up the reputation made at Ypres. The enemy will fear them. They will go into the war with the grim determination to let them know the stuff of which Canadians are made. It will be terrible but it must be faced. Very few will shirk.

EXCELLENT WORK

The directors of the Prince Rupert General Hospital have done excellent work in connection with the new building which has been erected and into which the patients and staff were moved on Sunday. While the chairman of the board, Percy Tinker; the chairman of the finance committee, F. A. MacCallum, and the chairman of the house committee, W. M. Brown, have done excellent work the bulk of the job seems to have fallen on the chairman of the building committee, Frank Dibb. Mr. Dibb's work has been outstanding and we are glad to give it public recognition.

In Troubled Europe

STRICTLY DEFENSIVE
WARSAW—High government quarters declared that all Polish reservists had adopted strictly defensive positions along the German frontier and that Great Britain was keeping Poland informed of exchanges with Adolf Hitler. Polish mobilization which had been in progress for the last two days was completed with all reservists in their garrisons and the government adopted a policy of "wait and see" in regard to efforts for a settlement.

RUSSIA TO HELP POLAND
LONDON—Diplomatic advice from Warsaw said that Soviet Russia has assured Poland that the German-Soviet non-aggression pact will not interfere with the shipment of war supplies and raw materials to Poland in the event of war.

HITLER TO DALADIER
BERLIN—Adolf Hitler, in a letter to Premier Daladier of France, outlined categorically his demands against Poland. In the letter to Daladier, Hitler is understood to have said Germany made an offer to Poland, that the Polish nation rejected it and under the circumstances the offer could not be repeated. He also asserted that Germany feels no grudge against France and desires to live in peace with her former brave opponent. He also said Germany has no demands against France and has withdrawn claims to the provinces of Alsace and Lorraine which once belonged to the old German Reich.

EVACUATION OF AMERICANS
LONDON—United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy announced that because of the cancellation of several voyages between Europe and America, the embassy was trying to persuade ships on other runs to help evacuation. Several thousand Americans now in England are awaiting a means of transportation to the United States.

BRITISH TROOPS IN FRANCE
LONDON—The War Office said it had no information regarding the reported landing of British troops at Dieppe, France. One source said they might be reservists enroute to the Mediterranean via France.

RED CROSS WELL PREPARED
WASHINGTON—American Red Cross officials say that they are better prepared than at any time in history and will immediately offer assistance to all countries involved if war breaks out in Europe.

CAPITALISM FEARS WAR

Capitalism is fighting desperately to stave off another great war because it realizes that such a war would involve the taking over of all major resources and industry from private control in the interests of efficient operation and that there would be no return to the capitalistic form of operation for private profit. So declared Harry Archibald of Vancouver in speaking before a public meeting of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation in the Oddfellows' Hall Sunday night. There was now a struggle between laissez-faire capitalism as represented in the democracies and state economy as adopted by the dictatorships for destructive purposes. The socialist principle was state economy along constructive lines in the interests of peace and the people, a system of production for use and not for profit. A new order of real social freedom and justice was needed and there was not much time left as indicated by the rapidly changing events of the present day.

During the last war, Mr. Archibald said, England had been forced into government control of industry in order to operate it efficiently. The same would have to be done in the next war and there would be no return to private control.

Mr. Archibald commended the new economic system as adopted in New Zealand where control of the banks had been taken over as well as principal industries and the railways, currency being dissociated from the gold standard and placed against the wealth of the country. In New Zealand farmers and workers were now getting a share of the wealth which they produced. There was the highest standard of living in the world. Unemployment had been completely eradicated. So far, the attempt to remove the people from the dictates of capitalism was proving successful. The plan of the government of New Zealand was a parallel of that which the C. C. F. offered in Canada.

Mr. Archibald showed moving pictures of the new state of affairs in New Zealand and also of the dried out farm areas of the United States. The changing of that once fertile area to a desert had been the result of overstocking and overfarming under the capitalistic system of production for profit. The same thing was happening on the Canadian prairies and even on the Pacific Coast due to logging methods. Destruction of natural products, on the one hand, and destruction of human life in war, on the other, went hand in hand with the present capitalistic system, the speaker declared.

During the course of a question period, Mr. Archibald asserted that communism was unconsciously playing into the hands of fascism. Alex Sinclair presided over the meeting.

Britain Is Firm

ports from sources in Berlin that the British note to Germany represented virtual agreement with all Hitler's demands. The statement is construed here as being meant for German consumption, possibly paving the way for an about face by Hitler.

This afternoon Hitler handed to the British ambassador Germany's answer to the British statement of her position toward the negotiations in the crisis. British statement was in reply to a preliminary note from Hitler stating the demands on Poland.

Hitler received the ambassador in the Chancellery study. Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and Dr. Paul Schmidt, as interpreter, were also present. The ambassador was with Hitler twenty-five minutes.

Incidentally, Prime Minister Chamberlain, in his speech to the House of Commons, had urged the press to exercise the utmost restraint at this time and declared that there had been no change in the government policy.

The Foreign Office particularly condemned the news story of yesterday (which was not carried by the Canadian Press)—purporting to quote from the text of the British note to Hitler. It was said that it was devoid of all foundation.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain has been reporting regularly to the King and has been in session with Rt. Hon. Arthur Greenwood, acting leader of the Labor Opposition, and heads of other Opposition groups, keeping them posted on latest developments. Sir Thomas Inskip, Secretary of State for the Dominions, maintains consultations with the High Commissioners of Canada and other Dominions. There have been special meetings of the Crown Council at the call of the King.

On Sunday the King, with his brothers, the Duke of Gloucester and the Duke of Kent, attended a special service for peace and intercession at Westminster Abbey. Throughout Great Britain and Empire there were special prayers for peace in all churches—Catholic and Protestant alike.

WHAT OTHER NATIONS OF EUROPE ARE DOING

As negotiations continued so did intensive preparations by all the nations of Europe, either for the active pursuit of warfare or the maintenance of neutrality.

The Netherlands yesterday proclaimed general mobilization of the Army and Navy as Queen Wilhelmina announced that strict neutrality would be observed by her country. At the same time satisfaction was expressed at the assurance of Hitler that Dutch neutrality would be respected, an expression of satisfaction in which Belgium joined. France and Great Britain have also assured Belgium, and Holland of respect of neutrality.

Switzerland has also ordered general mobilization.

JugoSlavia has declared that she will remain strictly neutral.

Lithuania has called up a number of classes of reservists.

Italy remains calm. Further military classes have been called to the colors, effective September 3, ostensibly as a precautionary measure. There was also a partial blackout of important Italian cities last night. Evidently, Italy has come to the conclusion that, if war comes, her position will be a defensive rather than an offensive one. She would be able to give little, if any, active assistance to Germany even should she espouse the cause of Hitler. As a matter of fact, Italy's position is still enigmatic although the nation's sympathy is still believed to be with Hitler.

Five thousand Prince Rupert people read the Daily News. It pays to let them know what you have to sell.

OLD DAYS
NOT GOOD

Strange Courtships And Weddings
Recalled By Mrs. Peter McGinn
At 81

WINGHAM, Ont., Aug. 29: (CP)—Mrs. Peter McGinn, 81-year-old Winnipeg visitor here doesn't believe in the adage, the "good old days." She says when she was a girl there were a lot of "foggy notions." She compared the "sensible way they look at things and do them and the way courting used to be."

"Before we were married my husband-to-be used to come and see me on Sunday evenings," she said. "We would sit in a stuffy parlor that was kept air-tight for the rest of the week—the family would move in for the evening and talk about the weather. If we went driving it was the same way—the family listened to everything and passed it on as common gossip to the neighborhood. And at 10:30 the first yawning gave the young man a hint to go home and if he remained until 11 he was asked to leave."

Mrs. McGinn's eyes twinkled as she told of her proposal. "I stole a march on them one night. Peter told me he had something important to tell me and I asked my married sister to invite me to her place for a week and Peter came to see me there and we made plans to get married."

Apropos of the "good old days," Mrs. McGinn chuckles when she thinks of the funniest sight she ever saw. After a wedding supper, a bride and groom left in their horse and buggy for the groom's home. Wedding gifts ran mostly to livestock and the newly-weds went down the road leading a cow and calf, two sheep, a colt and a dog came trotting at the end of the procession. On the back of the buggy perched a crate of chickens.

Whifflets
From The Waterfront

Inaugurating the company's fall and winter schedule of sailings, C. N. R. steamer Prince Rupert, Capt. Neil McLean, is due in port at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning from Vancouver, Powell River and Vancouver, Powell River and Ocean Falls and will sail at 2 p.m. for Ketchikan and Stewart whence she is due back here at 9 o'clock Thursday evening, sailing at 11:15 on her return to Vancouver via Ocean Falls and Powell River. The steamer Prince George, Capt. James Watt, arriving Friday morning from the south, will stay over here until Saturday night when she will sail with the Ketchikan Labor Day excursion, tying up for the winter at the local dry dock following her return to port next Tuesday morning.

Northland Transportation Co.'s motorship liner Northland, Capt. Len Williams, arrived in port at 7:30 yesterday morning from Alaska and, after discharging fish for transshipment East over Canadian National Railways, sailed in continuation of her voyage to Seattle.

Providing she does not have sail on to lead at Wales Island, where she is due this afternoon, Union steamer Catala, Capt. James Findlay, is expected in port at 11 o'clock tonight from Stewart, Anyox and other northern points, sailing an hour or so later in continuation of the voyage south.

Green Aids Strain
In Operating Room

LONDON, Aug. 29: (CP)—Men and women in green are reducing eye-strain at St. Thomas' Hospital here. Not only are the surgeons, anaesthetists and nurses working in the operating room gowned in green coats, overalls and caps but sheets and towels are also green. After experimenting with different colors to eliminate eye-strain caused by the glare of high-powered lights on white linen, surgeons discovered a dark shade of sage green cotton crash would solve their difficulty. White uniforms still swish through the corridors and patients' wards of the hospital, however. They are considered fresher and more professional looking.

NO SUNDAY CONFETTI

LONDON, Aug. 29: (CP)—Rev. A. F. Cox, of Kingsbury, has banned confetti from Sunday weddings at his church. Bridegrooms have to pay a deposit of one guinea ($4.94) which they forfeit if the ban is broken.

Halibut Cheeks
May Be Cut Out

Will No Longer Be Necessary To Pay Duty On Whole Heads

A communication from the federal minister of trade and commerce to Olof Hanson, M. P. for Skeena, announces that the department is agreeable to an arrangement being made whereby halibut cheeks may be cut from imported halibut and duty and taxes paid on the cheeks only without regard to Canadian or United States origin. So far there has been no provision for the handling of the cheeks separately from the whole heads for the purpose of collection of duty and taxes. Henceforth the cheeks may now be weighed after being cut out.

Arrives From Australia To Start Mining

Thomas S. Mackay, former assistant general manager of the Premier Gold Mining Co., who recently returned to Vancouver after spending the past few years in Australia, was in the city at the end of the week enroute to the Unuk River country where he is to institute extensive development of mining property in that area. Having arrived here Friday, Mr. Mackay left Sunday for the north with crew from Stewart, accompanying a scow of equipment and supplies which will be taken up the Unuk River from Burroughs Bay in Behm Canal back of Ketchikan. Two airplanes will be coming north from Vancouver in about a week to freight supplies in from Burroughs Bay. The scowload taken north from here Sunday by the Armour Salvage Co. with Capt. Paul Armour in charge included three horses brought from Stewart and feed. The power tug Cuprite took the scow north, leaving at noon Sunday and expecting to be back today.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Norrington who have been holidaying at Terrace and Lakelse Lake, returned to the city from the interior on Saturday night's train.
