Australian Student Pilots Get Their Wings

This example of formation flying by recruit pilots of the Royal Australian Air Cadets was one of the last tactics required of them before they were given their wings. Australia is co-operating with Great Britain in the training of pilots for the Royal Air Force which is seeking greatly increased enlistments to keep pace with Britain's rearmament program and huge additions to the air force. Australia's student pilots are taught the groundwork of combat flying as taught to Britain's own student recruits. These pilots are pictured in the air near Melbourne.

WHAT'S YOUR HOBBY?

Usually when one meets an important person one wants to know what is his business. What does he do? How does he make a living? and then a few people come along and ask what does he give to the forld in useful service. Sometimes what he gives in really useful service is quite different from what he does for a living.

It is said that Sir Isaac Newton thought that his most important contribution to the world was his work on theological interpretation. Yet very few people know that he annual field trials in November a had religious opinions. The whole world remembers him Lexington, Kentucky, Rev. Ben for having discovered the law of gravitation.

A man's hobby may be the most important activity, in which he is engaged. We have known young boys take up motorboating or radio work in their spare time and gradually develop into experts in those lines. Many man has had to turn to his hobby for a livelihood when his regular business failed him.

For instance, it is quite probable that A. O. Morse of this city will be remembered for many a year after he passes on because of the wonderful wood carving he has done. Some of the pieces indicate that had he been trained Mr. Morse would have been an outstanding genius in that particular art. Wood carving is a splendid hobby.

Some people have no hobby. They cannot even play a Cricket Federation eleven by 101 game and, as a result, when they get older and possibly runs in a two-day match at retire from business life ends for them. With a hobby to keep up the interest in living many a man has spun out his life many years beyond what it would have been normally, from Turin 79 miles to Rome,

Prince Rupert boys will have an opportunity this and clocked them at 137 miles an winter to learn to work in wood and metal at the High hour. Man's air School. It will be a fine opportunity for some of them to develop their talents along that line.

WHAT IS COMING

The first wheat consignment is arriving for weight game between Kent and Surrey at day. The following players have testing purposes, a harbinger of better times in the wheat Blackheath. shipping business from this port. It is expected that more than the initial million bushels will be shipped this way during the season. At any rate a million bushels means employment of an elevator crew and further employment south African, of longshoremen and others if the ships arrive to carry it match here.

With the starting of work on the seaplane base at Seal Cove and the carrying on of the other work at the United States Olympic boxing mouth of the harbor and at least some wheat being ship- team, keeps in shape for the 1940 ped, the winter should not be such a bad one here.

HORSE-SENSE

in Kitchen Planning

Women want speed and efficiency in their kitchens: coolness, comfort, economy. Electricity is the answer for cooking, refrigeration, washing, ironing and many other household tasks. There's no fussing with hot, smoky stoves, no waiting for water to heat, no food-wasting, old-fashioned refrigerator. You don't even have to bother beating an egg in an electrically-equipped kitchen. Just snap a switch instead and do your work quickly, cleanly, comfortably,

To succeed, industry must have adequate markets for its products. Foreign trade is a matter of foreign competition and demand, and is largely out of our hands as individual citizens of British Columbia. A steadily growing domestic market is no less important, and this is our personal individual concern.

When you specify "Made in B. C. Products" every time you are about to make a purchase you are helping British Columbia Industry to buy more from those engaged in producing raw materials and to provide more work for British Columbians. When, by exemple, you encourage your fellow citizens to do likewise . . . you are rendering inestimable service to yourself, your neighbor, and your Province.
