GERMANY'S DANGER

Germany's danger today is not so much from Great Britain and France as from her dangerous ally. Russia. The history of the past few days shows clearly that treaties mean no more to Russia than they do to Germany. Promises are made simply to be broken. So we may look for the treaty with Germany to be broken any time it suits the convenience of either party to it.

Sir Edmund won the admiration of the troops by his courage and friendliness. He paid frequent visits to the forward lines always carrying a long scout pole and accompanied by a huge English bulldog. After a few months he was transferred .His next association with Canadians was in Siberia.

There Sir Edmund was commander of an allied force of American, French, Italian, White Russian, British Imperial and Canadian troops which fought the most northerly campaign of the war in 1918 and 1919 against the Red

The Canadian troops there included the 67th and 68th batteries of the 16th brigade, Canadian Field Artillery, under the command of Col. C. H. L. Sharman, who now heads the narcotic division in the department of pensions and national health.

Sir Edmund's informality, tact and command of languages enabled him to co-ordinate the work of all the various nationalities making up his forces under trying conditions.

YOGI REACHES LONDON WITH PEACE MESSAGE

Swami Ajranandji, head of the Gari Yogis, of India, is pictured at prayer with his special Bible after his arrival in London, to spread a message of peace. Swami, leader of millions of Indians, hoped to obtain interviews with Prime Minister Chamberlain, of England, Dictator Mussolini, of Italy, and other state heads, to give them his idea of how to obtain peace. He flew direct from India to England and travels by air wherever he goes, as it is against the Hindu religion to travel on anything touching water. All he wears is a yellow, coarse cloth round his shoulders, and a loin cloth. He never feels the heat or cold.

Movement Booming In England But Scoutmasters Called To Other Service

LONDON, Dec. 4: (CP) - War has brought a great increase in Boy Scout recruiting, so great that a shortage of Scout masters, many of whom have been called to other service, has developed. Scouts in country districts are doing the work of farm laborers. Some are working as telephone operators in ARP organizations. Some have undertaken to arouse deaf persons in the event of air raids. Many are acting as guides to elderly persons who must go outdoors in the blackout and fear
