OBSERVER WRITES OF SEVEN POINTS FAVORING ALLIES IN THE WAR

New York Paper's Paris Correspondent Says Britain and France Hold Better Cards

NEW YORK, October 13: (CP)—Great Britain and France are in a better position to stand the strain of a war than Germany, John Elliott, Herald Tribune correspondent, writes in a Paris dispatch.

...trick (defeat of the Polish armies), only by careless playing can they lose the game.

...Elliott. In an analysis of the comparative strength of the Allies in Germany, the writer points to three factors in favor of Great Britain and France:

1. The French in this war are fighting on German territory, whereas in 1914 the Germans overran one-fifth of France before she was halted.

2. The margin of Anglo-French superiority over Germany is greater than it was a quarter of a century ago. Then the French navy was negligible, while Germany's was the second largest navy in the world, in a position to challenge the British for the supremacy of the sea.

3. Today, it is true, the German submarines have a nuisance value but the undeniable fact is that the Allies, ruling the waves, drop supplies from every quarter of the globe, while the German merchant marine is driven from the sea.

Germany, from an economic standpoint, is starting this war at a disadvantage where she left off fighting in 1918.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, former president of the Reichsbank, has observed that a nation might win a war with bread cards, but it can never start one in this condition and hope to win.

Germany has no gold, no credit, no colonies, and is destitute of raw materials. The Allies can draw upon a well-stocked inexhaustible reservoir of power and supplies from their vast empires.

If the United States revises its neutrality legislation soon, as it is expected to do, it can draw on the industrial resources of America to equip their armies. They have the money to do so.

Unity in Action The British and French are winning the war with a unified command which in the First Great War they achieved only in the fourth and last year.

The Supreme War Council has already started functioning. The French army is generally considered stronger than the German, since it is far superior on the number of its trained reserves.

The French re-introduced conscription in 1935. The British and French peoples enter this war united in its support whereas in 1914 they were divided.

Then, up until violation of Belgium's neutrality, the Liberal Government that was ruling England was split on the issue whether England should intervene.

German unity on the contrary, is only a superficial affair imposed by the Gestapo. Christians in the Reich are outraged by the pagan regime which persecutes the churches—both Protestant and Catholic ones are bewildered by the Reichsfuehrer's sudden shift from self-determination of all peoples to vital space as the principle of his action Bohemia and Moravia are reported to be in revolt. Poland is still capable of carrying on a harassing guerilla war.

And Hitler will have to maintain forces in Poland to watch the Red armies who have already blocked the Nazi access to the oil wells of Rumania.

7. What Prince Otto von Bismarck used to call the "imponderabilia" are on the side of the Allies. World opinion is with them. The world has already fixed the responsibility on one man and pronounced the name of the aggressor to be Adolf Hitler.

HITLER TO FIGHT NOW

Indicated Today That Der Fuehrer Still Has Hopes of Some Neutral Power Coming To His Rescue

In Despair

Reluctantly Accepts Challenge to Act Instead of Talk—Resigns Himself to Large Scale Warfare

BERLIN, October 13: (CP)—Authorized Nazi said today that Germany was through with Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain and Premier Daladier of France but was still awaiting some neutral response to Chancellor Hitler's Reichstag speech of last Friday.

Any such action by neutral nations, among whom they regarded the United States as the only one powerful enough to do something effective, must, however, come from them and not as a result of diplomatic action or request by Germany, they reported.

Hitler blames Premier Chamberlain for prolonging the war and is said to feel that President Roosevelt might help in the cause of peace.

BERLIN, Oct. 13.—Late last night, after a three-hour meeting with highest government and military advisers, Chancellor Adolf Hitler was reported to have decided to institute immediate large scale attacks against the Allies following rejection of his peace proposals by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain.

Hitler was said to have abandoned his peace offensive in favor of a war offensive by land, sea and air.

Hitler is reported to have reluctantly told his aides that British terms, including German withdrawal from Poland and Czechoslovakia, were not up to his expectations and his hopes for a compromise had been dashed.

General Herman Goerring and Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop are said to have agreed with Der Fuehrer.

New consultations will be held by Germany with Russia and Italy, it is reported, to ascertain if their active assistance cannot be secured.

Foreign Commissar Molotov of Russia may visit Berlin. King Gustave of Sweden is mentioned as a possible mediator in new peace negotiations.

The possibility of new German overtures being made to President Franklin D. Roosevelt to assume the role of peacemaker is also suggested although the President said in Washington today that he had no word from Berlin in regard to any new peace move.

Hitler and his advisers are said to have received latest reports on the sea, land and air forces with a view to deciding where the major blow will be struck probably within a few days and possibly within a few hours.

There were no signs of surrender or repentance on the part of Germany. The German government takes the stand that Chamberlain's rejection of Hitler's peace overtures mean's "war against the German people—war against the German Reich until annihilation."

It is the largest and costliest ship which has so far been seized. The value of the vessel, which was built in 1922, is placed at $5,000,000.

Laden with foodstuffs and petroleum and carrying no passengers, the Cap Norte, which left Pernambuco on September 17, is believed to have been destined for Vladivostok.

Press and Opposition Join In Solidarity In Support of Reply To Chancellor Adolf Hitler

Lone Critic

Aged Prime Minister of Last War Is Critical of Answer to Der Fuehrer's Proposal

LONDON, October 13:—The British press was unanimous yesterday in praising the speech of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain in Parliament for its "firm and clear tone" in reply to Chancellor Adolf Hitler's peace proposals.

"It is now up to Hitler to make his choice," they agreed. The London Times said: "This generation has decided to sacrifice itself, if necessary, for future liberty and security."

The Prime Minister, the Times commented, made his decision with "deep appreciation of the solemn responsibility."

Most Opposition groups in Parliament also approved the Prime Minister's statement. Clement Attlee, Labor leader, declared that all Hitler proposed was to "condone a crime and absolve a criminal."

New world conditions based upon true principles of democracy must be brought about, Attlee declared.

Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal leader, agreed that Hitler must show by action that he really wanted peace.

LONE CRITIC

Standing out almost alone amid a chorus of praise in the newspapers and by individual commentators was criticism by a Liberal group headed by Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, Prime Minister during the First Great War, who criticized Chamberlain's answer to the Nazi peace overtures and demanded that the government define war aims and indicate a willingness to negotiate a war settlement.

The Council of Action for Peace and Reconstruction, of which Lloyd George is chairman, termed the Chamberlain speech as "quite inadequate" in that it did not state Great Britain's war aims nor mention "far reaching consequences" of Russia's intervention.

Informed Britons expressed belief that Chamberlain had finally convinced Germany that, if necessary, Great Britain will fight to the bitter end. The man in the street felt that, after Hitler's peace terms had been rejected, the only doors left open were those leading to air raid shelters.

Following the sitting of Parliament at which he made his statement, Mr. Chamberlain was received in audience by the King.

Next Wednesday the Prime Minister will make another statement on the war situation.

German newspapers entirely ignored Mr. Chamberlain's speech. Italian newspapers, however, gave it wide publicity, reporting it fully in special editions. One of the Italian newspapers said that the statement of the British Prime Minister had not closed the doors entirely to peace.

Fascists said that the Chamberlain speech left the door open to suggestions for a peace settlement by international conference although it was a categorical rejection of Hitler peace overtures.

Irish Republican Army Busy Again

LONDON, Oct. 13.—For the first time since the war began, the Irish Republican Army is believed to have engaged in sabotage yesterday. There were fires in five mail boxes in the vicinity of Hyde Park and Victoria Station.

Nazis Cease Attacks After Days of Failure To Get Past Defences

Allies Either Preparing For Major Offensive or Continuing Efforts to Draw Nazis Into Action

PARIS, October 13: (CP)—German patrols were reported today to have suddenly abandoned attacks in which they had failed in five days to capture any French prisoners.

Military advices said that the French were keeping a sharp watch on the front, wondering why it was calm last night except in Warndt Forest region where an official communique said small enemy patrols were repulsed.

Military observers said that the reported concentration of thirty thousand British troops on the northeastern front meant either an early allied offensive or continuation of the effort to provoke a Nazi large scale assault on heavily fortified positions.

According to reports emanating from neutral sources the Germans are evacuating all large towns in the Rhineland which would indicate that they expect heavy action there.

A Reuters correspondent reports that the French have assumed such mastery of the line between the Moselle and the Saar Rivers that he was able to drive a car across the frontier and well into German territories.

Yesterday before the latest quiet came Germans came forward in patrols as far as the barbed wire entanglements where they were machine-gunned by the French, leaving their dead and wounded behind as they fled back.

Some Sort of an Agreement Between Russia and Turkey is Expected Soon

MOSCOW, Oct. 13: (CP)—Amid reports that some form of an agreement would be signed by Russia and Turkey within a few days, the Turkish foreign minister, Sukru Saracoglu, was received in the Kremlin.

In the absence of any official comment observers believed that the prospective pact would settle questions in regard to the Black Sea and the Dardanelles and would define the attitude of each nation towards the other in war.

Russia is said to want guarantees that the Dardanelles would be closed in the event of war. She would co-operate in the maintenance of Balkan security which would be organized by Turkey.

BRITISH FREIGHTER AND FRENCH TANKER VICTIMS OF GERMAN SUB ATTACK

Crew of Former Vessel Rescued Off Irish Coast by American Liner—Those on Board Latter Are Drowned

NEW YORK, October 13.—The American liner President Harding radioed today that she had rescued thirty-five members of the crew of a British freighter—the Heronspool—which was torpedoed off the Irish coast. At the time of making the rescue of the British vessel's crew, the President Harding was proceeding to the assistance of the crew of a French tanker—the Emile Miquet—which had burned following an explosion after being attacked. The Heronspool sank.

The Harding found the tanker in flames and there was no sign of the crew which was, apparently, drowned.

The police court case in which Ling Bo Shong is charged by Peter Ricciardi with driving in a manner dangerous to the public has been adjourned until Monday.

HALIBUT REGULATIONS

The prosecution now proceeding in a local court whereby sixteen Canadian boats are charged with illegal fishing in Area No. 2 after the fishing there had been closed by the International Fisheries Commission brings to the fore discussion of the regulations as a whole which the local boat owners and fishermen are unanimous in claiming work a real hardship upon the Canadian fleet in favor of the American.

The International Fisheries Commission will shortly be engaged in giving the annual overhaul to the regulations and it is to be hoped that it will find it possible to, in at least a measure, so revise the regulations as to give the Prince Rupert fleet a better break. Otherwise the operators may feel constrained to go over the head of the Commission in its representations. Certainly, it appears that everybody in Prince Rupert will be the gainer if something can be accomplished along this line.

It should be made clear that there is no idea in the remarks contained here of influencing the court one way or another on a matter which is subjudice. We are merely discussing the merits of the regulations as they stand and there is no intention to deal with their judicial interpretation or application which is a duty entirely for the court without any extraneous advice.

SHIP IN NAZI'S WAR TROUBLE TAX TAKES BIG SLICE

Princess Adelaide in Difficulties Down Coast and Unable to Continue—Transfer Made

C.P.R. steamer Princess Adelaide, Capt. William Hughes, ordinarily due to arrive here this afternoon from Vancouver and Ocean Falls, is in difficulties near Port McNeill, above Alert Bay, and is unable to continue her northward voyage. According to word received at local offices of the company passengers, mail and perishable cargo are transferred to the Union steamer Catala which will bring them to their northern destinations, arriving here Sunday night.

The Adelaide grounded near Port McNeill and floated free from the shore under her own power on the high tide early today. Capt. Hughes later wired company officials stating that the ship was afloat but he did not mention damage which is believed to be confined to the rudder. The vessel will be towed to Victoria by the Salvage King which has gone to her assistance.

New Levies On Incomes, Food and Drink Make Burden Heavier

By VINCENT HONAN Canadian Press Staff Writer

BERLIN, October 13:—The financial burden of the war hangs more heavily on the German wage-earner than it does on the Canadian and the citizen of Great Britain.

In Germany, before special war taxes were piled on, 20 to 25 percent of the worker's average earnings flowed into the Reich treasury for income tax, social insurance, disability fund payments, sick benefit and fees for "Labor Front" membership.

Since the outbreak of the war, a surtax of 50 percent of the regular income tax has been imposed.

Basic rates of the German income tax schedule have not been published but a revision of two categories, made public last February, shows that at that time a bachelor paid taxes as high as 55 percent of his salary. A married couple, childless after five years, was taxed up to a maximum of 45 percent on joint income over 1,800 marks (about $750).

In Canada, where there is an exemption of $1,000 for single persons and $2,000 for childless married couples, a recent war increase on income tax took the form of a 20 percent surtax on the normal tax payable. The tax rate scales upward from three percent on income above the exemption rate.

Under this, the unmarried Canadian earning $3,000 a year pays $84 tax. His first $1,000 is exempt. He pays three percent on the first $1,000 over the exemption and four percent on the second $1,000, a total of $70. The 20 percent surtax would raise this to $84.

Great Britain's wartime basic income tax, highest in history, is 35 percent for the remainder of the current fiscal year with exemptions of $447 for single and $760 for childless married persons. Next year the tax will be 37½ percent.

Prewar income tax in the United Kingdom was 27½ percent.
German's Extra Taxes
Income taxes are only one of the German's worries. In addition he must dig down for a 20 percent special tax on beer and tobacco, a mark a bottle tax on champagne, and for a sliding tax of from four to 55 percent of income tax for able-bodied men up to 25 who have not been drafted into the army.

Special war taxes in Great Britain which hit the man in the street include a two-cent levy on a pint of beer, three cents on a large drink of whisky, about 60 cents on a gallon of wine, two cents on each ounce of tobacco.

Canada's special war taxes increased the price of "hard" liquor by about 35 cents for a 26-ounce bottle. Tobacco prices were boosted five cents a pound and cigarettes $1 a thousand. There is a negligible tax on soft drinks and beer, levied against the raw materials for manufacturing the products while tea and coffee bear a wartime impost of up to 10 cents a pound. Electricity and gas bills are subject to an eight percent sales tax, as are canned fish and salted and smoked meats.

CRISIS IS EASED UP

Russia Accedes With Suggestion of United States to Ease up on Poland

HELSINGFORS, Oct. 13.—The Soviet-Finnish crisis became eased yesterday when it was learned that Russia had decided to soft pedal its demands upon Finland following representations by United States and the Scandinavian nations that nothing to be done to disturb peaceful relations between Russia and Finland. The nations united in the request to spare Finland from war and the loss of her national independence. In Finland the news was received with great jubilation although precautions against possible invasion continued. President Kallio issued a decree today ordering all Finnish civilians to hold themselves ready to aid the government in non-military pursuits if required in the present emergency.

Foreign Minister Erco of Finland, speaking last night, expressed praise and gratification over the action of the United States in interceding with Russia on behalf of Finland. An alliance between Russia and Finland was not feasible, said Erco, although political connections between the two countries were excellent and Finland had maintained its neutrality unshaken. Finland's only desire was for peace, Erco said, but, if attacked, she would defend herself. Erco said there had been no undue mobilization but all that had been done was merely precautionary. No demands had yet been made by Russia on Finland said Erco, the Moscow talks being so far only "exchange of views." It is believed, however, that it is Russia's desire to establish fortifications on strategic Finnish Islands.

Finnish leaders continued to express optimism concerning the chances of receiving acceptable terms from Russia. It is hoped Finland will fare better than its Baltic neighbors which have become virtual Russian protectorates.

The nation continues to step up its preparations to fight for independence if necessary.

The appeal of United States on behalf of Finland was made by President Franklin D. Roosevelt through United States Ambassador Lawrence Steinhardt to Dictator Joseph Stalin and Foreign Commissar Molotov. Hope was expressed that nothing would be allowed to occur which would endanger peace between the two nations. Sweden, Norway and Denmark joined in the appeal to Russia to spare Finland from war and the loss of her national independence.

President Roosevelt made it clear that there was no intention to put undue pressure on Russia in regard to Finland. The President said that United States representations to Russia were merely an expression of interest and his action should not be construed as a pressure move.

The German radio refused to carry a radio address to the world by Foreign Minister Erco of Finland and it only reached the Scandinavian countries.

WAGE WAR ON FIRES

Chief H. T. Lock Speaker at Weekly Luncheon of Prince Rupert Rotary Club

The need for all citizens to cooperate in preventing fires was stressed by Fire Chief H. T. Lock in an address to the members of the Prince Rupert Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon yesterday afternoon.

The Fire Chief told of the destruction of the Pier D at Vancouver, a structure that was thought to be fireproof. He explained that, if the blaze had been caught in its incipient stage, a bucket of water would have extinguished it. It was one of those incidents which disproved the "can't happen" theory.

It was now found that the best way to fight fires was to take the offensive and prevent them starting. In this and in the methods of fighting after the fires were started the chief compared the old with the new means. The insurance companies today took a great interest in fire prevention and fire fighting. Firewalls were now built to prevent fires spreading. Light wells were abolished. These, by providing forced drafts, became veritable infernos in a fire. He asked his hearers to note the difference between the new post office or the new hospital and other buildings of the old type in the city. While it was an impossible task to rebuild cities something could be done to improve them and to put restrictions on them.

Because of the danger from moving picture films, these were now being made of non-inflammable material. Automatic fire alarm systems were installed such as those at the Canadian National Railway dock and at the salmon dock. A fire marshal was appointed by the provincial government and, as a result of the combined efforts, the fire losses in this country had been reduced from forty-seven and a half million dollars in 1929 to twenty-five and three quarters million in 1933. However, much remained to be done.

Among the more recent changes in fire fighting was the new car with a 1500 gallon tank and centrifugal pumps using inch and a half hose which would be very effective in the early stage of a fire. This was an advance on the old fashioned chemical. Fog nozzles were now being used in place of the direct stream.

The speaker stated that human indifference was the cause for much of the trouble. Women continued to use inflammable cleaning materials even though they knew they were dangerous. Men continued to smoke in bed. What was needed was a campaign of education with whole-hearted co-operation of all citizens.

President Peter Lakkie was in the chair at the luncheon and guests were Major Strong of the Irish Fusiliers, Capt. Stevenson of the Sixteenth Canadian Scottish and Pat Ellison of the Second Searchlight Battery.

Mayor R. L. Poote of the British Israel Society will be next week's Rotary speaker.

Gables Not Keen For Same Screen

HOLLYWOOD, October 13: (CP) — Moviedom's dizzy dame has turned into a demurely dutiful farm wife, but Carole Lombard still has that old twinkle in her eye.

One day, for example, in the midst of the heat wave, she ordered up a 100-pound cake of ice and sat on it between set calls. When she was working she turned it over to extras to "keep it warm" for her.

Carole, you remember, for some six months now has been the wife of Clark Gable. They live on a ranch miles from the studio, drive to work together—to separate studios—every day, and are very happy.

Six years ago they played in a picture together—"No Man of Her Own"—but Carole says they wouldn't do it again unless they got just the right story.

"No one," she says, "wants to see Mr. Gable playing opposite Mrs. Gable."
