King Is Fogbound Among Icebergs

Their Majesties Will Be Unable To Reach Quebec On Monday

Naval Precautions Cause of Delay—Will Not Change Itinerary Except for Shortening up Stay At Ottawa

ABOARD EMPRESS OF AUSTRALIA, May 13: (CP)—Hope of reaching Quebec on schedule Monday morning disappeared today as a heavy fog held the Empress of Australia, carrying the King and Queen to a point 250 miles east of Cape Race, Newfoundland, 1080 miles from Quebec. This morning the liner and her cruiser escort drifted idly in the iceberg zone. The fog was still so thick that those aboard the steamer could not see the nearby warships. Fog has hurried about the liner almost continuously since early Thursday and in that time the vessel has proceeded little more than 150 miles while flanked on both sides by icebergs and "growlers." The icebergs afforded the King the opportunity to use his camera with effect during an hour of sunshine yesterday.

ATLIN MAN CONVICTED OF KILLING

Jury Finds James Anderson Guilty of Manslaughter—Mercy is Recommended

Guilty of manslaughter with a strong recommendation for mercy was the verdict of a jury at 10:15 last night at the Supreme Court Assizes here in the case of James Sangster Anderson of Spruce Creek near Atlin in connection with the killing of Knute Olsen at Spruce Creek on Easter Sunday last. Anderson was remanded by Mr. Justice A. I. Fisher until the end of the Assizes for sentence. The verdict came after a two-day trial. The jury was out almost three and a half hours.

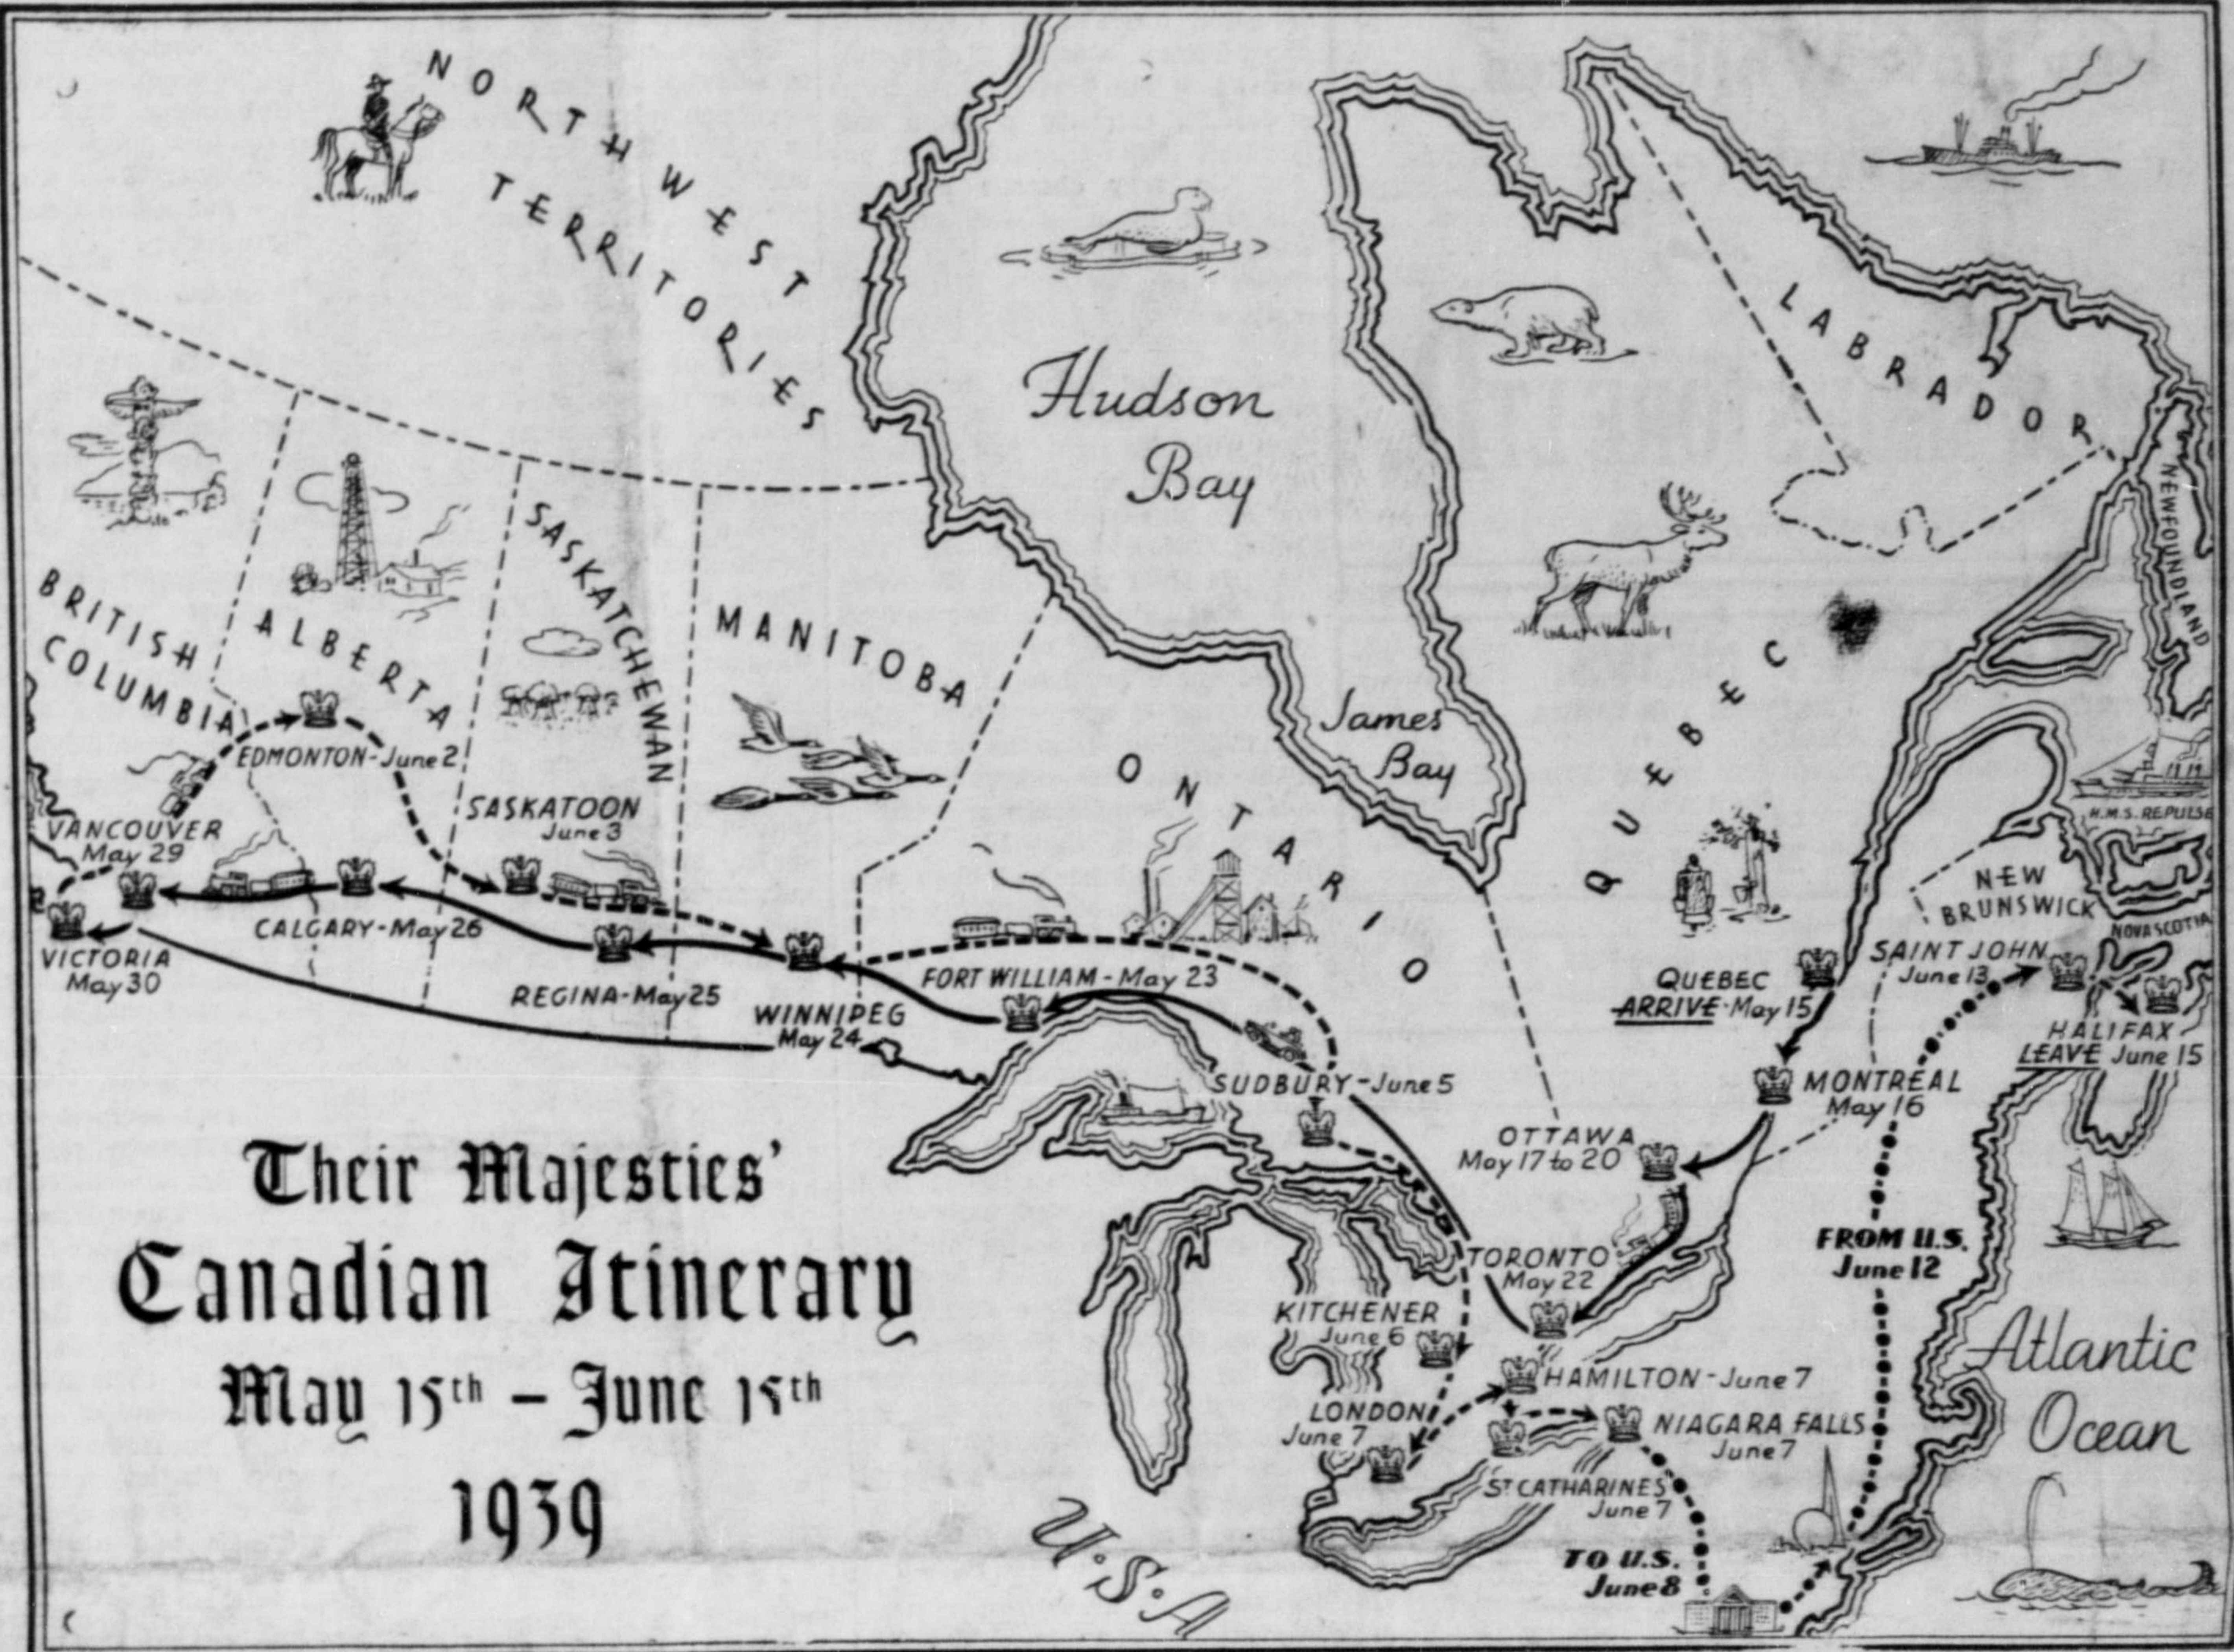

According to the evidence Anderson came to his home at Spruce Creek on the afternoon in question and found Olsen there drinking and eating. Olsen had been an unwelcome visitor at the home before and had been told to stay away. On this occasion Olsen, quite intoxicated, had again been making a nuisance of himself and Anderson's common law wife asked that he be removed. Some discussion followed and epithets were used. Anderson struck Olsen twice and then threw him outside in the snow. Olsen's jaw and nose had been broken and medical testimony was that his death was due to concussion of the brain resulting from a severe blow.

The convicted man is well known throughout the north as a miner and in other capacities. He served in France during the Great War with the Thirty-First Battalion.

Accused on Stand
An important feature of the afternoon session yesterday was the evidence of Anderson on his own behalf. He was the only witness for the defence. In a very subdued voice he stated that he was born 45 years ago at Aberdeen, Scotland, and came to Canada in 1909, first to Alberta and then in 1912 to British Columbia. In 1915 he went overseas with the Canadian forces and was there until the end of the war. He was discharged at Calgary and then returned to British Columbia.

On Easter Sunday about half past 1 he called at Gus Johnson's cabin where a group had gathered. He remained there talking until he went home to supper at 5:30. There was a pitcher about half full of rum on the table and he had two drinks from it. Among the subjects discussed was Russia. Olsen, who was one of the party, left at about 3:30 and at 5:30 Gus Johnson and witness went to his (Anderson's) cabin and there sitting just inside the door was Olsen with a bottle of rum on the table. Witness said: "Well, what are you doing there?" Mrs. Anderson (Gleason) said she had

Canada's Royal Guests—

HISTORIC RIDEAU HALL WILL BE KING'S PALACE FOR STAY OF THREE DAYS

Many Regimes of Vice-Royalty Have Left Imprint on Mansion Prepared for Ottawa Visit

By MURIEL ADAMS Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, May 13: (CP)—A little bit of England will greet the King and Queen when they enter the iron gates of Government House and become master and mistress of Rideau Hall during their three days in the nation's capital next week. Sturdy-trunked elms, wide, flower-bedded lawns and lilac hedges will bank their path as they drive to the three-storey villa which has housed 15 representatives of the British crown since Confederation. In a setting of 90 acres of wide lawns shaded by elms and bordered by an iron picket fence, stern Rideau Hall looks far out into the Gatineau Hills. From the terraces at the side of the Hall one can see the Parliament buildings up the Ottawa River against a western sky. Winding drives lead from the main thoroughfare of Rockcliffe Park, Ottawa's exclusive residential suburb, to the doors of the stone house, designed in Canadian Georgian architecture. To the left of the building is a guard house for the Royal Canadian Mounted Police who daily stand watch at the entrance.

During the regime of Earl Dufferin, Governor-General from 1873-1878, wings 80 by 43 feet were added to the house, one to make room for a sports room for indoor tennis, which is called the "racquet room," and used now as a refreshment room following Government House parties. In this room, lined with green and white striped canvas and carpeted in deep green broadloom, the King and the men at the state dinner will have after-dinner coffee and smokes. A state ballroom was another addition. There the

NEW PLANES FOR CANADA

TransCanada Orders Six Fine Big Ships

MONTREAL, May 13: — TransCanada Air Lines has placed an order for six new planes, according to official announcement made here yesterday. One of them, ordered earlier, will be delivered next week, the other five will be received by the first week of August. Lockheed, "Fourteens" or Super Electras, they are similar to the nine big planes already in service. They will replace the smaller electras, which will be sold.

The TransCanada Airways fleet of 15 planes will consist entirely of Super Electras which will make for standardization of operation and service throughout the system. The smaller planes are now on flights between Vancouver and Seattle and Lethbridge, Calgary and Edmonton.

The equipment will not differ from the fourteens already in service across the continent except in minor modifications in radio and engine mounts. The latter will be of the dynamic type, eliminating vibration.

The ships have accommodation for ten passengers and crew of three, cargo capacity of 8,200 pounds and fuel capacity of 535 Imperial gallons. With twin Pratt and Whitney 850 horsepower Hornet engines, they have a cruising speed of 209 miles per hour and a maximum of 244 miles an hour.

DEMOCRATIC LIBERTY

The one essential in a democracy is to admit that every man has a right to his opinion. He also has a right to express an opinion as long as it is not one that would tend to lead to violence. It is this liberty of action that is so greatly prized in a democracy.

Dictatorships are based on the use of force and the concentration camp in which a person may be detained without trial. Today thousands of men, innocent of any crime except that of holding an opinion, are held in concentration camps in Germany, Russia and other dictator countries.

This imprisonment without trial was one of the horrors against which British people fought for centuries. The Magna Charta signed by King John gave every man the right to trial by his peers. That did not end imprisonment without trial but it tended to get rid of the abuse and gradually it came that, except in war time, every man had the right to be tried.

The terrible evil of war, possibly civilization's greatest enemy, results in many abuses. During the last war two Mexican vessels were taken by the British in the Pacific and towed into Esquimalt. It was strongly suspected that they had been aiding the enemy and were thus liable to confiscation. This was difficult to prove but if they were liberated they would continue to aid the enemy. Application was made to have them brought before the prize court and Mr. Justice Martin insisted that he was going to hear the case as prize judge. It was British justice and the cases should be heard. But the British war department asked for postponement. Still Mr. Martin insisted on going ahead, so the government cancelled his commission as judge of the prize court and the vessels remained at Esquimalt without trial until the end of the war. Then they were released. Expediency in war time superceded justice.

STRENGTHENING DEFENCE

The defence of the democratic countries is being strengthened by treaties of mutual help in Europe in case of aggression. In other words a league of nations is being formed among those countries that are in danger of losing their liberty as a result of action of the dictators.

ATLIN MAN CONVICTED

asked him to go several times. She was afraid of him. He made her cook some eggs for him. She said he was in an ugly mood. She thought he was looking for trouble.

Witness told his wife to put the children to bed and then said: "Come now, let us all go to the cookhouse." Johnson also asked Olsen to come along. Johnson then left. Jean (the children's mother) was in the bedroom. The children were crying, one of them sickening for the flu, flushed and feverish. Knut refused to go and some conversation followed of a recriminatory nature in which it developed that Olsen had served two months in jail for refusing to put a uniform on. Then Olsen taunted in very obscene language. The child screamed and, when he went to soothe it, Olsen said: "Don't hide behind a skirt." His reply was: "No I never have had to."

Witness then jumped up and hit Olsen first with the left fist and then with the right, and, grabbing him, dragged him out of the house and left him lying on the sidewalk saying: "Now you are out, star out." He then went into the cabin and shut the door. He was all worked up and nervous so he stayed there for five or ten minutes trying to get control of himself. Going out then he saw a lot of blood on the sidewalk so he went to Nelson's cabin and calling George Nelson, told him of the fight and said he had been ridiculed and abused until he could stand it no longer.

Nelson said: "Is he badly hurt?" The reply was: "There he is. I think he is out. Take care of him until I go to Caswell's to get the police."

Witness then went to Caswell's and told Milt he had had a fight with Olsen. He asked Caswell to telephone for the doctor and the police and then went back to Johnson's cabin where Olsen was lying on the floor. He asked why they did not do something and he opened the man's shirt and began to rub him but someone said: "It's no use. He is dead." In reply to a question he said he did not telephone for the police himself; but asked Caswell to do so.

In answer to Mr. Brown witness said everything happened in a few seconds, all on the spur of the moment. With the first blow the man's head went back against the wall. Later it was true he had remarked: "Better men have died for less."

Mr. Fulton's Address

Mr. Fulton, in summing up for the defence, dilated on the gravity of the insults heaped upon his client. The wonder was that he had held himself under control for so long. He tried for an hour to get the man out of the house and then, in sudden anger, had struck him. There was no evidence of deliberate intention. Not one in hundreds of thousands of similar assaults ended as did this one. Anderson had no intent to kill the man.

Mr. Fulton then reviewed the background of the case leading up to the trouble and said that any normal man under such conditions would fight. The man was a trespasser and all that Anderson wanted was to keep him away from the house.

Mr. Fulton, while admitting the probability that the fatal injury was caused by accused's fist, suggested the possibility of his head having struck something in his fall.

Surely, contended Mr. Fulton there had been some aggravation. There, after having been repeatedly told to stay away, had been deceased in accused's house with a bottle of liquor eating a meal cooked by accused's wife. Then came deceased's refusal to leave and the filthy, insulting remarks. Mr. Fulton felt that accused had displayed a remarkable degree of self-control.

Mr. Fulton alluded to the right of a man to defend his home from a trespasser. The only way in this case had been to knock the trespasser down and put him out.

Defence counsel asked the jury to exercise its common sense under such circumstances and return a verdict of absolute acquittal.

Mr. Brown

T. W. Brown, crown prosecutor pointed out that deceased at 6:15 p.m. was alive, uninjured and in a state of more or less drunkenness. At five minutes before seven o'clock he was dead or, apparently, lifeless. The person solely responsible, Mr. Brown suggested, was accused. There were inescapable conclusions. Crown counsel continued by asking if deceased had seen an intruder or merely a nuisance. He suggested the latter.

No reasonable effort had been made to evict deceased. There was no evidence of physical resistance by deceased. Quite evidently, the accused was the attacker. There was no evidence that the woman had anything to fear personally from deceased. Mr. Brown contended that accused had been aware that deceased was dead or dying when he threw him out.

In summing up, Mr. Brown submitted that deceased had come to his death as a direct result of violence administered by Anderson, that the violence used by accused had not been necessary in removing deceased, that he had not tried gentler methods first and that he was aware that the methods he had employed might cause death.

Judge's Charge

Mr. Justice A. I. Fisher occupied from 5:15 p.m. until 6:30 p.m. in delivering his charge to the jury. His Lordship defined murder and manslaughter. To return a verdict of murder, it was necessary to establish intent or malice to kill. If provocation was found, then the malicious intent was removed and there must be acquittal as far as murder was concerned. However, if it was found that more force was used than was necessary, then the charge should be reduced from murder to manslaughter. Provocation could do no more than reduce the charge from murder to manslaughter. It did not justify acquittal. There was no evidence that deceased had struck a blow or attempted to do so. It seemed he had not been given a chance to review the evidence. His Lordship made the comment that "if I were expressing my opinion, my view would be that there had been provocation."

After receiving the verdict at 10:15 p.m., the judge stated that the jury's recommendation for mercy would be given full consideration. Accused was remanded until the close of the Assizes for sentence.

Court was adjourned until 10:30 Monday morning when the final criminal case on the docket—Rex vs. Nick Sulkoski, charged with attempted murder of Jack Rutter—will commence.

CZECHS IN NEW HOMES

Confident of Success in Peace River—Glad of Escaping From Homeland

TUPPER CREEK, B.C., May 13 (CP)—New homes in a new land are being built here by 25 families, refugees from the Sudeten area of dismembered Czechoslovakia.

Taking up land in this Peace River block of British Columbia the newcomers are hard at work establishing homes and sowing their first crops more than 5,000 miles from their homeland which they fled when Germany occupied the territory.

Edmonton was the last big city they saw as their train swung northward on the last 450-mile stretch in the Peace River country made famous by such wheat growers as Herman Trelle of Wembley and widely noted for its quality grains.

Into this area came the 25 families. There were 87 persons in all many of them children. They travelled westward from the Atlantic seaboard in two private coaches and they were joyous at the prospects of success in the land of their adoption.

Few of them had any experience at farming. They come from the industrial areas around Reichenberg and Golez. But they have no fears about building themselves new homes and a happy life on the farm. It is a venture. They intend to make it a success.

Children romped and played at stations on the route across Canada. But the older people were more serious-minded. All were glad of the chance to escape from their homeland. Spokesmen for the party talked. But they would not reveal their names. They feared some of their relatives still at home might suffer.

Chief spokesman for the party was a district secretary of the Sudeten German Social Democratic party. He told newsmen that he had left the headquarters of his party just three minutes before troops arrived to arrest him. The party leaders who did not get away in time were placed in concentration camps, he said.

"We were building a new nation for ourselves but that it all past now," he said. "We would not go back even if Hitler and the Nazi party disappeared. We look forward to peace and freedom and a new life in Canada. We found freedom in England; we know we shall find it here."

Those who remembered the "immigrant trains" of 35 and 40 years ago saw a difference when the newcomers passed through Edmonton. There were no colorful shawls or native costume. They were all neatly dressed in clothing Canadians see every day.

About 60 Czech and Slovak residents of Edmonton visited them at the station before the coaches pulled out for Tupper Creek. They contributed about 100 baskets of foodstuff and many city merchants made contributions.

The families now are being located on farms to learn the Canadian way of life. Lack of farming experience did not cause any worry about the future. They were in search of freedom, peace and new homes. They were confident of success in Canada.

HISTORIC RIDEAU HALL WILL BE KING'S PALACE

Byng arrived with her husband, Lord Byng, in 1921, that a rock garden was made at the back of Rideau Hall and planted with Canadian wildflowers.

During the Willingdon regime, 1926-1931, Chinese painted lacquer screens and carved chests found their way into one of the drawing rooms in Rideau Hall. These were bought from Lady Willingdon by the government on her return to England. Hardly changed, the "Chinese Room" has been brightened with new burnt orange chintzes, yellow drapes and peacock blue chair coverings and it is here the Queen and the women guests at the state dinner will adjourn for coffee.

Exquisite mirrors top the many fireplaces in the rooms of Government House. Several of the finer cut-glass ones were brought from England by the Duchess of Connaught, hostess at Rideau Hall from 1911 to 1916.

Lady Tweedsmuir has developed a keen interest in Canadian handicrafts, encouraged by her many excursions with Lord Tweedsmuir across the Dominion. Around the house are woven rugs, the handwork of a group of Cape Breton women, and carved souvenirs, made by the Eskimos of the Labrador coast. Lord Tweedsmuir has collected many mementoes on his extensive tours and two buffalo hides, a totem pole and other souvenirs have found their place in his bedroom and study.

Steel etchings on the walls of Rideau Hall tell the story of Canada's early days to the present.

Interesting Paintings

Portraits of historic figures look down from the dining room where Their Majesties will dine informally while Canadian landscapes and originals by Canadian painters have been chosen for the rest of the house.

Oils of King George V. and Queen Mary stand at the end of the state ballroom and similar court portraits of King Edward VII. and Queen Alexandra hang on the walls of the reception hall at the entrance of the building. A sharp contrast to these distinguished paintings are the many informal "shots" of the royal family, governors-general and present day notables which lie about the mantels, desks and shelves of the apartments used by Their Excellencies.

Nosegays of lilies-of-the-valley, gardenias and sweet peas will be picked from the six large greenhouses adjoining Government House to emphasize the feminine atmosphere of the Queen's bedroom where the walls are painted soft pink and the furniture is covered in baby blue chintz with white cockle shells.

The King's bedroom just across the hall is small but cosy and a man's room with its beige rugs, ruddy brocade linen hangings and a small settee covered in cream chintz sprayed with tiny spring bouquets. A four-poster walnut bed, curly walnut highboy and a broad easy chair by the fireplace also furnish the room. On the walls are Indian sketches and a charcoal study of Alastair Buchan, youngest son of Their Excellencies, hangs above the mantle.

Designed and built in 1845 by Thomas Mackay, contractor for the stone work on Rideau Canal locks here, the grey stone building, which Mackay's friends called "The Castle," was bought by the Dominion government about the time of Confederation for $85,000.

NEW AND BETTER COLD CURED ICE

For the Halibut and Salmon Fleets

Following the investigations of the Fisheries Research Station, the Company has just completed extensive changes and improvements in ice storage and ice delivery methods.

Ice for the boats will all be old ice, thoroughly cured or aged at new low temperatures. It will be delivered into the hold, even in the hottest weather, as cold as the storage room.

Fishermen are invited to inspect the new system. Better ice than ever before, at no increase in cost, means economy to the boat and improved quality in fish delivery.

PLAN FOR MYSTERY IS MANAGER FUNNY ALSO

Joint Proposal of Trades and Labor Council and Chamber of Commerce Regarding Civic Administration

The Prince Rupert Trades and Labor Council, at its regular monthly meeting Thursday night, gave its endorsement to a city manager plan for Prince Rupert as outlined by a joint committee of the Chamber of Commerce and the Trades and Labor Council, the secretary being instructed to sign the plan on behalf of the council.

Correspondence included letters from Olof Hanson, M. P. for and the chief electoral officer, in regard to absentee voting, stating that all voters who are away from home at the time of the issuance of the election writ and polling in the pursuit of gainful occupations will be entitled to vote.

A local compensation case will be taken to the Workmen's Compensation Board at Vancouver, it being felt that certain complaints regarding treatment of injured persons should be placed before the Board.

Robert Montgomery and Rosalind Russell are teamed up as mystery comedy stars in "Fast and loose," tonight's feature offering on the screen of the Capitol Theatre here. Montgomery plays the part of a madcap rare book dealer who, in his quest for a volume for one of his clients, becomes involved in a series of mystifying crimes which he eventually solves as an amateur detective. Miss Russell has the part of his equally madcap wife who only complicates matters by her mirthful meddling and her incidental capture by gangsters. Principal supporting roles are taken by Reginald Owen, in a character part; Ralph Morgan, as a millionaire Bibliophile whose mansion is the amphitheatre of the picture's complexities; Etienne Girardot, whose yearnings for a rare volume cause all the trouble; Alan Dinnehart, Jo Ann Sayers and Joan Marsh.

"Fast and Loose" is a sequel to "Fast Company" which proved a popular hit last year.

KITSEGUKLA

On Monday the young people and the Ladies' Aid of the United Church held a social and concert for the church. Refreshments were served and gifts were collected. Enough money was raised to meet all church debts and Kitsegukla starts the new conference year free of obligations.

On Wednesday morning the athletic club left to join in the field day sports at Kispiox. Two teams made the trip by truck—the Red Wing softball team and the Skeena Crossing football team.

Last Friday night the Red Wing's Club put on a very interesting program in the McDames Hall. This was followed by refreshments and a dance until the early hours of the morning. Again on Saturday evening the young people had a sale of flowers, games, refreshments and a dance. The events were to raise funds so that they could pay travelling expenses to the Kispiox field sports.

Joe Wesley, his son Walter and wife, Edward and wife and the little grandchild made a business trip on Friday to Hazelton. Accompanying was Rev. B. Black. The whole party returned on Saturday afternoon by train.

On Sunday afternoon the Kitsegukla friends under the leadership of their pastor, Rev. Bishop Black, held a service for the sick in the Hazelton Hospital.

Matthew Jones and his daughter Mrs. Fred Sampare, have been called to Kitwancool where Mr. Jones' daughter is reported seriously ill.

Farewell Parade For Children On Trip To Victoria

Six children from the local schools selected as a result of the recent campaign will be sent on Friday night of next week aboard the Princess Adelaide to Victoria to be present at the visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth. After all expenses in connection with the sending of the party have been defrayed, the balance, if any, will go to the Milk Fund. Mrs. J. S. Black will be the official chaperone on the trip from Vancouver to Victoria. The party will return home on the same steamer the week following.

Providing the weather is favorable, there will be a parade next Friday night in connection with the departure. The Boys' Band will take part in the parade.

On Thursday afternoon group pictures of the group were taken.

Possibility of Tuna Fishing Off This Coast—Many Canadian Boats in Dur-ing Week—New Trolling Boat In

Possibilities of tuna fishing on a commercial basis off the British Columbia coast are to be investigated by the Fisheries Research Board of Canada, the work along this line to be carried out from the Nanaimo Biological Station. Tuna fishing is a marine industry of major importance off the California coast, large vessels being employed in the taking of the fish the handling of which involves considerable employment on shore. If the fishery is found to have commercial possibilities off British Columbia it might become of similar importance here.

An unusually large number of Canadian vessels, most of them smaller craft, featured the halibut business at Prince Rupert during the past week. No less than forty-three Canadian boats were in with catches aggregating 400,800 pounds. During the same period nineteen American boats landed 250,800 pounds at the port. Total landings for the week thus were 651,300 pounds. This brought the aggregate landings for the 1939 season to date up to 3,188,500 pounds as compared with 2,431,100 pounds at a corresponding date last year. Canadian landings this year have reached a total of 1,476,600 pounds in comparison with 1,288,900 pounds last year with American 1,711,900 pounds as against 1,142,200 pounds. Prices remained at a fair although not high level during the week, the top bid for Canadian fish being 7.6c and 5c which the Arctic I. received for 14,000 pounds while the low was 6c and 5c which was paid to a number of vessels. For American fish the high price of the week was 8.5c and 6c which the Onah and Zarembo received for catches of 14,000 and 17,000 pounds respectively. The American low was 7c and 5.5c paid the Explorer and Esther for 25,000 and 7,000 pounds respectively.

Cold storage halibut landings on the coast at April 15 this year, according to a statement at Seattle, amounted to some 700,000 pounds, which was a relatively small figure and only about half of last year at a corresponding date last year. Average halibut prices on the coast are said to be running somewhat higher this year than last.

Four Area No. 2 boats marketed 41,000 pounds of halibut at Seattle on Thursday. They were as follows: Chancellor, 11,000 pounds, John Bergman is in port from Oona River with a fine new forty-foot trolling boat which was built during the past winter by Ole Wick, well known troller and boat builder. The new boat is equipped with a 30 h.p. Easthope engine.

Col. J. W. Nicholls, general manager of the Canadian Fish & Cold Storage Co., is leaving Monday morning on the Princess Louise for a business trip to Ketchikan and Juneau. He also plans to attend the Rotary district convention in the Rotary district convention in Juneau next week.

Whiz, 8 3/4c and 6 1/4c; Rosario, 8,500 pounds, Chase, 8 1/2c and 6c; Ad-dington, San Juan, 6,000 pounds, 9c and 6c; Antler, 15,500 pounds, San Juan, 9c and 6 1/4c.

C.P.R. steamer Princess Adelaide, Capt. William Hughes, arrived in port at 3:30 yesterday afternoon from the south and sailed at 10 p.m. on her return to Vancouver.

Delayed again by heavy freights for cannery points in preparation for the coming season, Union steamer Cardena, Capt. John Boden, arrived in port at 1:30 this morning from the south, sailing a couple of hours later on her return to Vancouver and waypoints.

Bringing north a scowload of equipment from Vancouver for use of Ryan and Stewart on the fortification construction work at the entrance of the harbor, Armour Salvage Co.'s power tug Pachena, with Capt. Paul Armour in command, returned Thursday afternoon from Vancouver. The equipment consisted of heavy machinery which was unloaded at the local dry dock and taken out to Barrett Point by rail.

Col. J. W. Nicholls, general manager of the Canadian Fish & Cold Storage Co., is leaving Monday morning on the Princess Louise for a business trip to Ketchikan and Juneau. He also plans to attend the Rotary district convention in the Rotary district convention in Juneau next week.

INFLUENCE ON YOUTH

Example of Elders Discussed By Rotary Speaker—Plans To Entertain Delegates On Way To Juneau

The influence and example of their elders upon growing boys and girls was the appropriate subject of Rev. Horace C. Burkholder, field secretary of religious education for the United Church of Canada, in addressing the Prince Rupert Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon on Thursday. Mr. Burkholder's discourse, while brief, was interesting and impressive.

The club also discussed plans for entertainment of upwards of two hundred delegates from Southern British Columbia, Washington and Oregon who will be here next Tuesday afternoon aboard the Alaska Steamship Co.'s steamer Aleutian on their way to district convention at Juneau. Subject to weather conditions, the Aleutian, which is coming here direct from Seattle, will arrive at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, remaining until midnight. The afternoon will be spent largely in showing the delegates around the city, visiting various points of interest, and in the evening there will be a dance at the Armory for the Rotarians and their wives.

The body of Knute Olsen, who dropped dead on Third Avenue, Wednesday night shortly after arriving in the city from the prairies, was forwarded last evening to Davidson, Saskatchewan, where interment will be made.

It's the cumulative effect of advertising that counts.
